REPORT HOOVER WILL OUST DRY CHIEF LOWMAN

Notorious Prohibition Events Blamed.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Reports that Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of customs, prohibition, and coast guard operations, would be ousted shortly by President Hoover persisted tonight in the face of official White House denials.

According to the reports originating in many sources, Lowman is due to retire in favor of a less sensational enforcement official before fall.

One report went so far as to say that Lowman already has been directed to turn in his resignation. This latter rumor was denied in behalf of President Hoover by George Akerson, the White House secretary.

"The report that the President has asked Mr. Lowman to resign is not true," Akerson said. "There is nothing to that report."

Draws Fire on Prohibition.

It is known, however, that Mr. Lowman's ability to draw down unfavorable publicity upon himself and upon the administration's prohibition enforcement activities has had an unfavorable reaction at the White House.

Sinking by coast guard of the I'm Alone, Canadian rum runner, in which a negro seaman lost his life. Canada protested and the matter now is the subject of arbitration.

Hoover Is Irritated.

President Hoover was displeased with the unfavorable publicity which followed in the wake of the slaying of Virkula by a customs agent armed with a sawed off shotgun.

Immediately after the citizens of International Falls, near where Virkula was shot, protested the use of sawed off shotguns by customs personnel an inquiry was made by President Hoover. Investigation disclosed that Mr. Lowman took the position he did not even know certain of his enforcement agents were armed with shot guns.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills was called to the White House. On his return to the treasury he summoned Lowman and the order banning the use of shotguns followed.

School Propaganda Helps.

The second unfavorable reaction from the White House came when the newspapers began to publish reports that the prohibition bureau was launching a campaign to use dry propaganda in the public schools. Inquiry revealed Mr. Lowman had no knowledge of what his subordinates were doing. The upshot of the matter was that Lowman hurriedly saw Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran and the propaganda campaign was dropped.

Mr. Lowman smiled broadly when asked if it were true he would shortly [illegible].

"I have not been asked to resign," he replied. "I have no intention of leaving the service."

"There have been reports you have been criticized by the President. Are these reports true?"

Denies He Was Criticized.

"I have not been criticized," Lowman replied. "I think my work has been satisfactory."

"Have you seen the President recently?"

"Not for three weeks," was the reply.

During the administration of Frank B. Kellogg as secretary of state the department was forced to express its regrets to Great Britain for the unlawful activities of a coast guard boatswain who entered Bahama waters unlawfully. On one occasion Mr. Kellogg was quoted as having said, "The coast guard will get us into a war yet."

Since prohibition became effective nine years ago, 167 citizens and 68 government agents have been slain in enforcement of the law.

Dry reinforcements have been rushed to Ohio, the home state of the Anti-Saloon league, in an attempt to stop an increased flow of Canadian liquor across the American shores in that state.

JONES, ESPINOSA TIE; TO PLAY OFF FOR TITLE TODAY

Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 29.—[Special.]—Bobby Jones and Al Espinosa finished the 72 hole national open golf tourney here this afternoon in a tie with 294 strokes each. Jones cracked badly in the final nine when he had victory almost within his grasp. He took 41 for the nine.

Gene Sarazen and Densmore Shute finished in a tie for third with 296.

Jones and Espinosa will play 36 holes tomorrow to decide the championship.

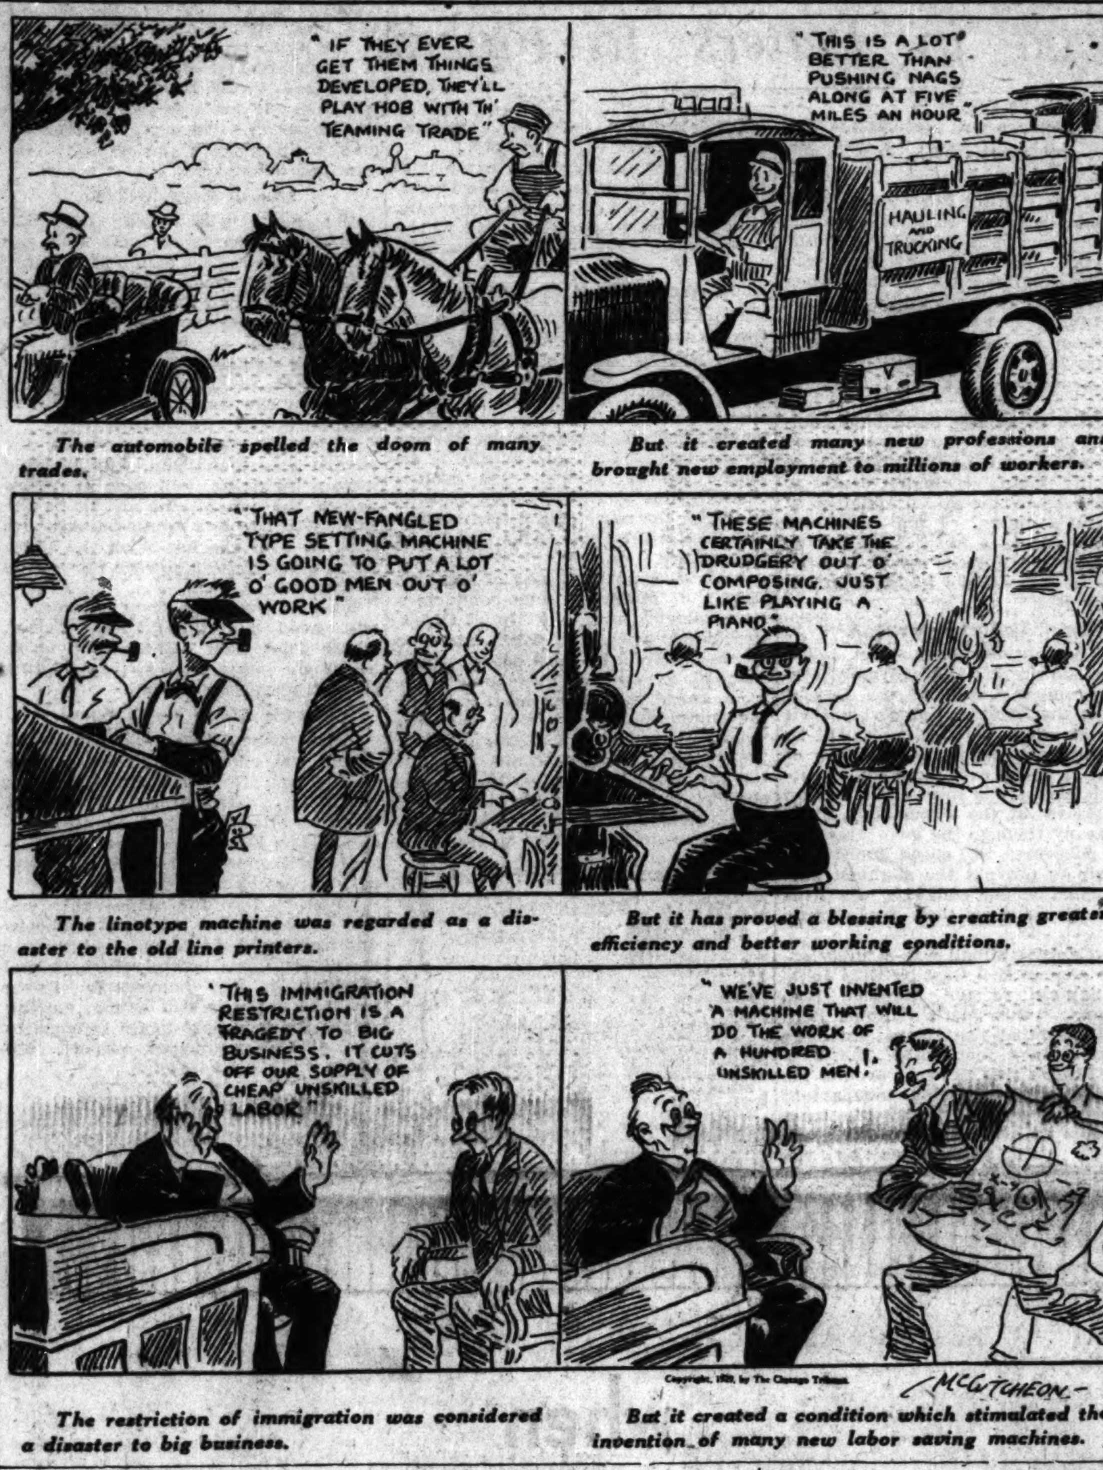
MISFORTUNES THAT PROVE TO BE BLESSINGS IN DISGUISE



"IF THEY EVER GET THEM THINGS DEVELOPED, THEY'LL PLAY HOB WITH TH' TEAMING TRADE"
"THIS IS A LOT BETTER THAN PUSHING NAGS ALONG AT FIVE MILES AN HOUR" HAULING AND TRUCKING
"THAT NEW-FANGLED TYPE SETTING MACHINE IS GOING TO PUT A LOT O' GOOD MEN OUT O' WORK"
"THESE MACHINES CERTAINLY TAKE THE DRUDGERY OUT O' COMPOSING. JUST LIKE PLAYING A PIANO"
"THIS IMMIGRATION RESTRICTION IS A TRAGEDY TO BIG BUSINESS. IT CUTS OFF OUR SUPPLY OF CHEAP UNSKILLED LABOR"
"WE'VE JUST INVENTED A MACHINE THAT WILL DO THE WORK OF A HUNDRED UNSKILLED MEN!"
McCUTCHEON

The automobile spelled the doom of many trades.

But it created many new professions and brought new employment to millions of workers.

The linotype machine was regarded as a disaster to the old line printers.

But it has proved a blessing by creating greater efficiency and better working conditions.

The restriction of immigration was considered a disaster to big business.

But it created a condition which stimulated the invention of many new labor saving machines.

FOUR DIE WHEN FIREWORKS BLOW UP IN 5 AND 10

St. Louis, Mo., June 29.—(AP)—Four persons were burned to death and several were injured when fireworks on display at the F. A. Scharlott 5 and 10 cent store were ignited accidentally late today, enveloping the store in flames.

The dead are Thomas Henderson, 12, an unidentified woman of 25 or 30, and two unidentified girls, about 16 and 14. The injured were treated by physicians in the neighborhood.

The first burst from the fireworks counter, opened this morning, and illuminated a string of red and white electric lights. It is believed a short circuit ignited one piece of fireworks and it spread flame to the others. Fireworks, skyrockets and roman candles burst through the store windows after loud explosions.

The store was ablaze in a few moments and girl clerks and customers ran out screaming, the clothing of several in flames.

There were about 70 persons in the store.

RALPH CAPONE AND PALS NABBED AT COLISIMO'S

Colosimo's café, 2126 South Wabash avenue, reopened last night, under new management, after a year or more of darkness, was invaded at the height of hilarity early this morning by a police squad from the office of State's Attorney Swanson under direction of Patrick T. Roche, Mr. Swanson's chief investigator.

Ralph Capone, brother of "Scarface Al" Capone, the gangster, imprisoned in Philadelphia, was arrested with four of his guests who tossed pistols under their table as the police moved through the crowd. Capone and his four guests, who identified themselves as Mike Spramze, Matt Capalaris, Earl Fraser, Martin Kane, and N. Poncher, were jailed at the South State street station and held for the showup today.

The police also paid a call at the Frolics café, around the corner at 18 East 22d street, inspected the crowd from the entrance and passed on. The same squad earlier in the night arrested eight women and ten men in a vice resort at 413 South Halsted street, said to be under the operation of "Monkey Face" Charley Genker.

300,000 Go in Lake; Beach Water Is High

The south park board officially opened its bathing beaches yesterday, giving locker service to the public. Fifteen miles of Chicago beaches are new in operation. The crowds taking a week-end dip in Lake Michigan's cool waters were estimated at 300,000.

It was ideal weather for a plunge, but officials in charge of the beaches reported that there were complaints. The water was dirty at some places, and at other places, much of the sand of other years was washed away.

High Water Blamed.

"The high lake levels are responsible for the complaints," said V. K. Brown, superintendent of playgrounds for the south parks district. "The waves have flooded the city's most valuable recreation area, the sand on its lake front. The waves reached old dumps on filled in land and scattered rubbish along the beaches."

The high lake level is paradoxical evidence in the sanitary district's water diversion suit pending before the United States Supreme court. The court, on evidence obtained during the low level period on the lakes three years ago, has held that Chicago was lowering the lakes through its diversion for its sanitation system. The tribunal, on petition for six lake states other than Illinois, has held that this diversion must be limited to navigation purposes.

Fears Further Spoliation.

"I dread to look forward to the time when the diversion is reduced and the Chicago river starts backing into Lake Michigan during storms," Mr. Brown added. "Our beaches have suffered enough from the high water without having to suffer more because a court says the waters are low."

Similar comments were made by John B. Sharp, who is in charge of the beaches of the north shore park district, from Devon avenue to the north limits. "The high waters destroyed many of our piers and threatened others," he said. "And the waves have scattered rubish on our shores."

E. L. Wheeler of the Lincoln park district and M. L. Hunt of the city's department of parks, beaches, and playgrounds, also told of the high water damage.

BARS COFFEE OF WOMEN EMPLOYES OF COUNTY JAIL

Sheriff John E. Traeger appeared at the new de luxe $7,500,000 county jail and criminal court building yesterday to give his "employés a good scolding" as he put it. He told the scrubwomen and janitresses that henceforth they must not spend their time drinking coffee. The men were told that the ban was also put on gin and that any employé caught with liquor would be discharged.

"I do not see why we cannot make a pot of coffee or two to eat with our sandwiches," said one of the women who was agitating for a strike because of the ban. "We have no place to get coffee for our lunch unless we go to a restaurant near the building, which charges prohibitive prices. We certainly do not do any harm by attaching a coffee pot to the light sockets so that we may have something to drink with our meals."

Flyer Tells of Week's Ocean Drift

LOST WAY, THEN RAN OUT OF GAS, SPANIARD SAYS

Rescued by British Ship Near Azores.

LONDON, June 29.—(AP)—The dramatic story of the harrowing adventures of the missing Spanish airmen and their rescue at dawn this morning by the British aircraft carrier Eagle, told in simple and terse language by Maj. Ramon Franco aboard the rescue ship today, revealed that the flyers had flown beyond the Azores and were attempting to beat their way back when they ran out of gasoline.

Maj. Franco's companions on the flight were: Maj. Eduardo Gonzalez Gallarza, pilot; Capt. Julio Ruiz de Alda, navigator, and Sergt. Pedro Madariaga, mechanic.

Late this afternoon the British admiralty received the following statement of what happened in Maj. Franco's own words from the Eagle, now speeding to Cadiz, Spain, with the four rescued airmen.

Flyers' Own Story.

The message read:

"We left Los Alcazares at 5 p. m. on June 21, passing Cape St. Vincent at 9 p. m. From Gibraltar we were forced to gain height, owing to the excessive air disturbances.

"From Cape St. Vincent to the Azores was an uninterrupted layer of clouds, above which we had to fly, and later another cloud layer formed above us. The intended time of arrival at the Azores was 9 a. m. Greenwich meridian time [4 a. m. eastern standard time] on the 22d, but a strong wind which we were unable to foresee or check in flight caused us to pass over the Azores during the dark.

"At dawn we took the longitude by the sun, which showed that we were to the southwestward of the Azores. We therefore flew through the clouds and landed to economize fuel and examine the situation. We checked our position and took off, shaping a course for Fayal, but owing to a strong headwind we ran out of gasoline about 40 miles from that point. A strong northeasterly wind drifted us to the south and on the following day, the 23d, we were about 100 miles from Fayal.

Wind Turns to Gale.

"The wind shifted to the southwest, reaching gale force, and drifted us toward the island of Santa Maria. From the 24th to the 27th winds of varying force and direction drifted us about. On the morning of the 28th the situation was extremely dangerous on account of wind and sea conditions.

"At dawn on the 29th the aircraft carrier Eagle found us in the vicinity of Santa Maria and took us on board. The behavior of the aircraft and engines was magnificent."

Behind this simple statement, told in such unvarnished language, was the dramatic story of a struggle against overwhelming odds—the first details of what lay behind the veil that for the last week has obscured the fate of the four adventurous men who started from Spain determined to fly the Atlantic by way of the Azores.

Landed to Save Fuel.

For the first time it was learned that the flyers had "landed" to economize their fuel after discovering that they had missed the comparatively tiny Azores in the vast Atlantic and had passed beyond them. They resumed their flight, but exhausted fuel brought them down only 40 miles from the island of Fayal, where the eyes of the world had restlessly centered awaiting their arrival.

Down in the sea and floating helplessly, the Dornier No. 16 drifted to the south. The next day of their strange aimless voyage at the mercy of the sea and wind they were pushed toward the islands of Santa Maria, which lie to the far southeast of the Azores archipelago. For three more days—until Thursday—the four comrades were buffeted here and there, and on Thursday their situation became extremely perilous because of the violence of the sea and wind. It was this storm which hindered rescue operations and probably delayed their being picked up for several days.

The long week of spiritual and physical discomfort and dreadful loneliness ended joyfully this morning when the huge British ship, which had been searching tirelessly for several days, hove into sight and found the drifting expedition. Weary but still resolute,

1 Dead, 2 Ill; Suspect Gas in Refrigerator

Methyl chloride gas, escaping from a mechanical refrigerator, was blamed by health authorities last night for the death of a young woman yesterday afternoon and the critical illness of her husband and her mother, all stricken in the same apartment.

The gas, widely used for the last three years as a substitute for brine in mechanical refrigeration is odorless and poisonous enough to cause death, according to Dr. Ralph W. Webster, coroner's toxicologist. He cited a bulletin of the United States bureau of mines as his authority.

Mrs. Clark, an Artist, Dead.

Mrs. Viola Clark, an artist, 28 years old, and her husband, Clifford, an electrical engineer, were tenants in the apartment, 926 Eastwood avenue. Mrs. Clark died in the John B. Murphy Memorial hospital yesterday afternoon. Her husband and her mother, Mrs. Margaret Hennesler, 1433 East 67th street, were in a critical condition at the same hospital last night.

The manufacturer of the refrigerator installed in the apartment where the tenants were stricken asserted the gas was harmless. To reach a conclusion, a small kitchen in the same building in which the Clarks lived has been transformed into a laboratory with guinea pigs as the subject of experiments.

An inquest on Mrs. Clark's death has been set for Monday morning. Testimony which Coroner Bundesen expects to develop there may have a bearing on the case of three children of Irving Markowski, who died after the whole family of eight were stricken in their apartment at 4856 Milwaukee avenue last Wednesday.

Illness Perplexes Doctor.

The Clark couple first became ill the same day the Markowski children died. They noticed a hissing in the refrigerator but thought nothing of it. Suffering cramps and nausea, they summoned Clark's brother, Dr. E. L. Clark, 7000 South Shore drive, who was perplexed as to the nature of their ailment.

The next day Mrs. Hennesler went to the apartment to nurse her daughter and son-in-law. Yesterday all three became violently ill. Clark collapsed in a bedroom and his wife fell on the davenport in the living room.

Mrs. Hennesler was also stricken but remained conscious. Trying to telephone for help, she became temporarily speechless, but the flashing of a light on the telephone switchboard downstairs warned Miss Alice Hunt, the operator, that something was amiss.

Police Start Investigation.

Miss Hunt notified the manager of the apartment, Thomas B. McGurk, who forced the apartment door and found the Clarks overcome. Mrs. Hennesler was on her feet but in a state of coma. McGurk telephoned the hospital, to which all three were taken in an ambulance.

Policemen Charles Reynolds and F. J. Donahue of the coroner's office were at the hospital when the patients were brought in. The officers, thinking they detected a similarity in the symptoms of the new cases and those in the Markowski case, which they had investigated, went to the Clark apartment to examine the refrigeration system.

Two repairmen employed by the Peerless Ice Machine company, 535 West 35th street, were departing with their tool kits as the policemen arrived, and thus eluded questioning. An effort will be made to have them appear at the inquest over Mrs. Clark tomorrow.

Coroner Bundesen, advised of the repairmen's visit to the apartment,

Buffalo, N. Y., June 29.—[Special.]—The 'Untin' Bowler, en route from from New York to Chicago, whence it will start on a flight to Berlin and back, dropped down out of a smoky sky here this evening, after a 400 mile battle with a strong head wind. The ship's wheels touched the runway of the Municipal airport at 7:09 p. m., and a moment later it skimmed across the field, coming to a stop before the hangar where it will pass the night.

Pilot Bob Gast elected to stop here rather than continue to Cleveland as planned, as there was scarcely enough daylight left to enable the flyers, Gast and Shorty Cramer, to reach Cleveland before nightfall. Gast stated that the plane will continue to Chicago early tomorrow, arriving there about 3 o'clock, Chicago daylight saving time.

Fight Strong Head Wind.

All the way up the Hudson and down the Mohawk valley the giant amphibion was buffeted about by a head wind which, over most of the route, attained a velocity of 40 miles per hour, the trans-Atlantic flyers said. They declared the plane functioned perfectly.

"We got away from North beach at Astoria, Long Island, in fine shape," Gast told reporters here. "In spite of the fact that we carried nearly a maximum load, the Sikorsky pulled up out of the water and got away in about 12 seconds, which is remarkable. We had the benefit of choppy waves and a stiff surface wind.

"Over Long Island and into the Hudson, the visibility was perfect, although the sky was partially overcast. We got our nose into the wind as soon as we turned up the Hudson. At Peekskill a west cross wind came up through the gorge and gave us a good bumpy ride for about 25 miles.

Avoid Thunderstorm.

"West of Albany we sighted a black thunderstorm passing eastward to the south, but we got through to Buffalo without any trouble at all, save for the adverse winds. All along our course we could see people run into the streets and peer up into the sky to see us pass. Several places the roofs of factories and office buildings were dotted with people who had come out to wave to us."

Carl Myers, TRIBUNE radio engineer, stated that the test of the ship's radio turned out excellently. He kept up a constant two way communication with the New York Times wireless station all the way across the state. At various times he exchanged messages with radio stations in Kansas, Virginia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Ohio and Illinois. He said that other distant stations were likely reached by his messages, although he was unable to receive messages from them due to the fact the radio receiving apparatus was only temporarily installed.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—The 'Untin' Bowler hopped off from North beach, Astoria, Long Island, airport this afternoon for Chicago. The big twin motored Sikorsky amphibion, which will drop her fat rudder wheels in Lake Michigan and head along the northern circle early next week on a round trip flight from Chicago to Berlin and back, rose from the white capped waters of Flushing bay as gracefully as a sea gull, despite her load of almost 10,000 pounds.

A stiff forty mile an hour wind was blowing in from the west when the Bowler slid down the runway. Bob Gast, who will pilot the air yacht on its survey trip to Europe, was at the controls. John McAndrews, mechanic, was by his side. Parker D. Cramer, co-pilot and navigator, was back in the cabin at the radio instrument with C. J. Meyers, chief engineer of W-G-N, and Joe Bradley, radio engineer of Heintz and Kaufman company. Gast and Cramer will be joined by Bob Wood, TRIBUNE aviation editor, when the plane reaches Chicago, and the others flying today will be dropped.

Starts at 2:18 P. M.

It was 2:18 p. m. when the Bowler lifted clear of the water after a 1,000 foot dash through the bay that sent a curtain of spray flying so high it almost hid the boat. She rose like a shot to 1,000 feet, circled back of North beach and dived low over the crowd that lined the pier. Gast leaned from his seat to wave goodby to brother pilots who had come up the bay to see him off on his long flight.

A moment later, as he was climbing over the bay, he waved to Frank T. Courtney, the British pilot, who once tried a trans-Atlantic hop, as Courtney sat riding the waves in his seaplane far below the Bowler. Then the great gray Sikorsky flashed on toward the skyscrapers of Manhattan, turned north into the Hudson river valley, and set its course for Albany.

The Bowler monopolized attention at the tidy airport—which is more like an exclusive yacht club than it is a flying field—from the time the first spectators arrived this morning, attracted by stories in the newspapers of the coming round trip flight to Berlin. A crowd gathered about the ship as the mechanics and radio men began their final inspection. The radio men were sleepy-eyed, for they had worked until early morning hooking up the instrument that is going to keep the Bowler in constant communication with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE during its days on the unplotted far northern course.

"Big Enough" to Win.

"She's big enough to go anywhere," said one man as he lifted his tiny son on his shoulders so the boy could see the three 100 gallon reserve gasoline tanks which half filled the once roomy cabin.

Bob Gast stood by the side of his ship, looking at the rain clouds scudding past. Suddenly a gust of wind whipped his straw sailor hat from his head. A small boy became a hero for a moment when he rescued it.

"That lid is no 'untin' bowler, or it wouldn't have blown off," grinned the big southerner as he tossed it into the cabin.

A sedan automobile drew up alongside the Bowler. Somebody took a look at the two means of transportation and remarked that the air yacht made the automobile look like a child's toy.

There was a sudden rush across the wide concrete parking field as mechanics and pilots left their ships to run to the Bowler. The engines were being warmed up. The Bowler has an electric starter and it is only necessary to touch a button and turn on the gas to put life into the gleaming propellers. The powerful Wasp motors roared for ten minutes. Bob Gast answered the telephone three times. Cramer ran back and forth between the plane and the airport office, arranging final details about the coming flight with oil, gasoline and motor men.

Surveying New Skyway.

The 'Untin' Bowler is Col. Robert R. McCormick's air yacht. It was his idea to send the big ship on a survey and exploration trip to prove the northern circle route the best airway between America and Europe and at the same time make Chicago a western air terminus. Through his newspaper, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and a selected group of associated papers, the story of the Bowler's great air adventure will be told to the world.

More than three weeks ago Col. McCormick sent the amphibion to the Sikorsky plant to be placed in trim for the flight on which it started this afternoon. Bob Gast and Shorty Cramer accompanied it here and have personally inspected its grooming. When the Bowler arrives in Chicago it will be ready to head for Berlin on a day's notice, for all that remains to be done is to remove its landing gear, put an extra ton of gasoline in the three cabin tanks and give it the "gun."

Shorty Cramer popped out of a telephone booth to say good-by and was nabbed for a minute interview.

"Sure, We'll Make It."

"Sure, we'll make it right on schedule," declared Cramer. "We are going to fly as straight to Berlin and back as we are to Cleveland this afternoon. The only thing that can hold us back is the weather and when there is good weather in the Arctic, it usually is good for a week or more. There will be a new mail route from Chicago to Berlin when we get back. I was up as far as Prof. Hobb's camp last summer when Bert Hassel and I attempted a flight somewhat similar to this one. This time, however, we have planned further ahead, and are making shorter jumps. We'll get there and back O. K."

Mechanic Andrews waved to the two flying men, signifying the ship was ready. Gast climbed in and took the controls and Cramer sat by the radio. With six uniformed attendants from the airport staff swinging onto the wing, the Bowler slid down the incline and dropped gently into the water. A mechanic pumped the wheels back up into the ship's body and Gast headed her into the wind. There was the business of taxiing the aircraft out into the open water and then Bob gave her the "gun" and the Bowler shook the spray from her turtleback and headed eagerly toward the skies—off on her greatest adventure.

Bob Gast Confident.

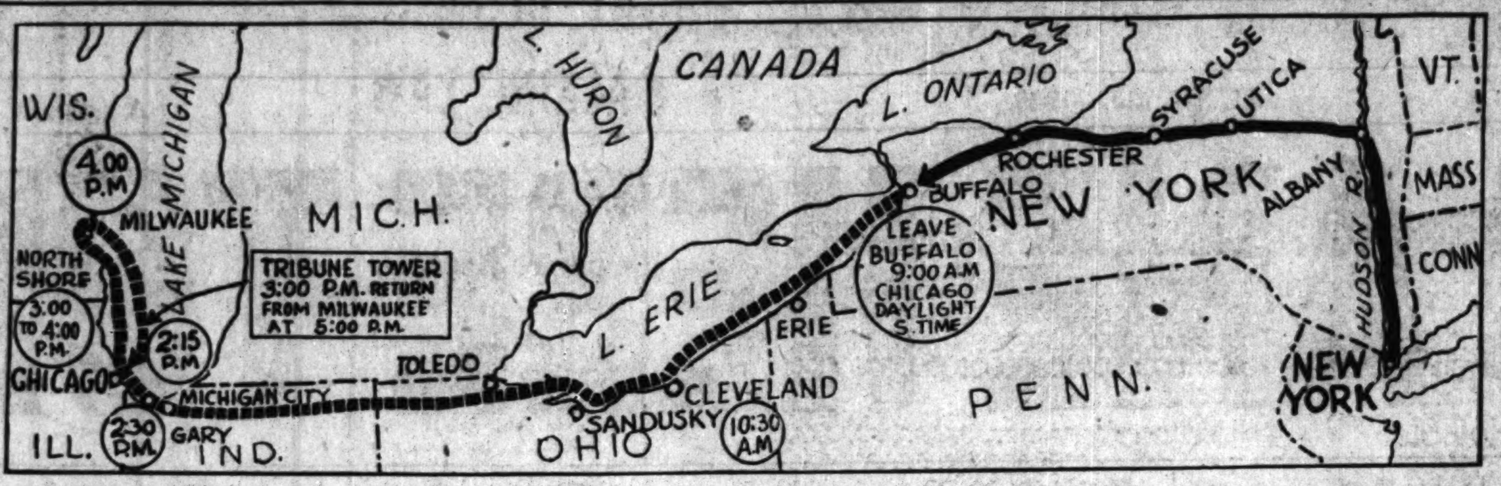
"I will see you again in a couple of weeks or so," said Gast as he sat chatting with the writer just before the hopoff.

"The worst part of the whole trip is over—the waiting here in New York. There were a million things to do. From now on it ought to be easy sailing. We've got the right ship, the right maps, supplies every eight hundred miles, and I'll bet you $20 right now that Shorty Cramer and I hop right over there and home again with no trouble."

"If you do, you'll both be 'big shots,'" he was told.

"Who wants to be a big shot?" grinned Gast. "Us explorers had rather find a new river!"

Route of Tribune Plane as It Flies to Chicago



The route being taken by the 'Untin' Bowler, Tribune trail blazing plane, on its flight from New York to Chicago, the starting point on its round trip journey to Berlin. The solid line shows the progress of the flight yesterday as far as Buffalo, while the broken line indicates the route for today into Chicago and to Milwaukee and return. The times of passing various points are indicated to help residents secure a glimpse of the giant Sikorsky in its operations today. After landing at the Municipal airport the plane will be given its final overhauling for the journey overseas.

CRAMER'S MOTHER IN CHICAGO TO MEET HER SON

While Parker Cramer and his companions aboard the 'Untin' Bowler, THE TRIBUNE'S trans-Atlantic amphibion, are chartering a new air route to Berlin, Mrs. Fannie D. Cramer, mother of the co-pilot of the big Sikorsky, will await news of her son at the home of Austin Harlow, a nephew, at 547 Wellington avenue. Mrs. Cramer came here yesterday from her home in Clarion, Pa., to meet her son who is en route here from New York for the take off.

This will not be Mrs. Cramer's first experience waiting for her globe trotting son. "I've grown quite accustomed to having Parker off in some remote corner of the world—first Greenland, then Alaska, and now, furthest of all, Berlin," she said yesterday. "But I have the utmost confidence in his flying skill, and I've never really worried about him but once, when he was lost in Greenland last year."

Mrs. Cramer and Mrs. K. C. Gast, mother of Bob Gast, Cramer's flying partner, will meet their sons at the Municipal airport when THE TRIBUNE plane arrives today.

DAVISON OPENS FIRST AVIATION COUNTRY CLUB

Hicksville, N. Y., June 29.—(AP)—Aviations first country club, exclusively for those who travel by air, was opened here today.

F. Trubee Davison, secretary of commerce for aviation, delivered the dedicatory address and prayer was offered by Capt. J. J. Brady, United States navy chaplain and an aeronautics enthusiast.

The club is described as the first of a national chain. It comprises a $300,000 building and a 90 acre field. Charles L. Lawrence of the Wright Aeronautical corporation is president.

Proviso Township Voters O. K. High School Addition

By a vote of six to one, tax payers of Proviso township, including the villages of Maywood, Melrose Park, Hillside, Bellewood and Forest Park, decided yesterday in favor of a $450,000 bond issue to finance construction of an addition to the Proviso Township High school.

'Take Us Along,' Boys, Girls Plead in Letters to Flyers

While Chicago was preparing yesterday to greet the Berlin flyers, Bob Gast and Shorty Cramer, on the arrival of the 'Untin' Bowler from Buffalo, hundreds of letters, telegrams and telephone calls flooded THE TRIBUNE office. Many of them were sent by well-wishers, but the great majority were from school boys and shop girls, importuning THE TRIBUNE airmen to take them on the flight to Europe.

A hurriedly scribbled letter from a State street shop girl was typical. It said:

"I have no money, but I have courage enough to ask you to take me on this trip. My one and only wish is to make this flight. I am not afraid to die. Please let me go. I could go at a minute's notice. I am small and you will not even know I am in the plane and I will make myself helpful. I will be the world's happiest girl if you say yes!"

Guard Against Stowaways.

But precautions have been taken against stowaways and souvenir seekers. From the moment the Bowler lands at the Municipal airport until it takes off again for Berlin, it will be constantly guarded by a squadron of police. A police squad car and a motorcycle escort will meet the flyers on their arrival at the airport today and accompany them to the loop. Day and night policemen will stand guard over the ship to prevent the slightest mishap which would endanger the lives of the pioneers on their trans-Arctic flight.

In yesterday's mail was a bulky envelope sent to Bob Gast by Ellis Johnson, captain of the Ashland, Ky., "Tomcats," this year's national high school basketball champions. Enclosed was a rabbit's foot which the Kentucky athlete said he wore around his neck throughout the final tournament in Chicago and to which his team attributes its success. The good luck talisman was relinquished by the "Tomcats" and sent here to their fellow Kentuckian with this note:

"We hope that you will carry it to Europe and back and that the best of fortune will attend you on your long, long trail across the sky. And wherever you land—tell 'em you're a Kentuckian!"

Governors Send Best Wishes.

From Gov. Emmerson of Illinois and Gov. Kohler of Wisconsin came messages wishing the flyers luck in their venture. Gov. Emmerson, on leaving for a northern fishing trip, expressed the hope that THE TRIBUNE flight would prove the importance of Chicago as an inland port for a future air mail route to Europe. Gov. Kohler was gratified by the fact that Milwaukee is on the route of the Berlin flight and thus will be able to participate in the venture.

Prof. William H. Hobbs of the University of Michigan, who conducts a meteorological station at Mount Evans, Greenland, where the flyers will stop on their second or third day out from Chicago, is on his way to Chicago from Ann Arbor, where he is spending the summer. He will meet with the flyers here today and discuss plans for their stop at Mount Evans. He will tell them the location of the gasoline supplies in and about his station and give valuable advice as to the proper landing areas in the fiord on which his camp is located.

TODAY! BOWLER TO PARADE SKIES OF CHICAGOLAND

W-G-N Will Broadcast Story of Flight.

Inhabitants of Chicagoland, from Gary, Ind., to Milwaukee, will be offered an opportunity today to watch in action the giant TRIBUNE plane which will hop from Chicago this week over the wastes of Greenland to Bergen and Berlin. W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE'S radio station, will broadcast every movement of the plane today in its jump from Buffalo to Chicago.

Quin Ryan, stationed at a special microphone in the observatory of the Tribune Tower, will inform the radio audience of the plane's progress. He will read special telegraphic reports as the plane is sighted over the cities of Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana. When the 'Untin' Bowler becomes visible from the south to the watchers in the Tower, a vivid description of the plane's flight down the shores of the lake will be sent out over the air.

Due at Gary at 2:30.

The plane will appear over the southern extremity of Lake Michigan at Gary about 2:30 p. m., if weather conditions are good. On its trip from Buffalo, Pilot Bob Gast intends to roar down Lake Ontario and across Ohio and Indiana at high speed. But when he strikes Chicagoland, he will slow down to cruising speed, parading down the shores so that all may see.

Skimming close to the water, the silvery gray amphibion, with its twin motors humming, will pass in review before the inhabitants of East Chicago, Whiting, and South Chicago and then fly over the hotels on the south shore of Chicago, following the curves of the shore.

Soaring over the loop district, it will head for the Tribune Tower, where Pilot Gast will dip and circle about the stars and stripes floating 580 feet above the ground.

Parade Along North Shore.

Then, withoute stopping, the aerial march will continue northward. The Gold Coast, Rogers Park, Evanston, Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, Glencoe, Highland Park, Fort Sheridan, Lake Forest, Waukegan, Kenosha, and Racine in turn will be afforded glimpses of the flying boat.

At Milwaukee the plane again will curve in a salute to the watchers below and then jaunt up the Milwaukee river a short distance before returning and winging its way homeward. Down the lake shore it will sweep, cutting across the loop once again to come to rest at the municipal airport, 63d street and Cicero avenue.

2 ARMED BANDITS GET $35.

James McAminch, attendant at a Standard Oil service station at 10001 Torrence avenue, was held up by two armed men last night and robbed of $35.

Bowler to Shed Its Wheels; Land Only on Ice or Water

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—The 'Untin' Bowler, a giant Sikorsky amphibion air yacht which will fly from Chicago to Berlin and back for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will head out on the great northern circle strictly as a flying boat. Its landing wheels, which lift into the body like a stork's legs, will be dropped before the ship quits Lake Michigan. Otherwise the Bowler will differ very little from the regulation S-38 model Sikorsky.

The wheels will be discarded to save weight, because they will not be needed on the route the air yacht is to follow. All landings will be on ice or water and with its staunch boat bottom the Bowler will be equally at home on ice or sea.

Wheels Weigh 500 Pounds.

The total weight of the Bowler, with two persons aboard, as it now is equipped for the flight, is 10,480 pounds. Dropping the wheels will cut this weight almost 500 pounds. The Bowler has been equipped with three extra 100 gallon gas tanks, which with its regular wing tanks, gives it a load of 628 gallons of gas—enough for 12 hours of flying. The extra ton of fuel is located directly behind the pilot's compartment in the front of the cabin and occupies about half the space reserved for passengers in the regulation model Sikorsky. The fuel system is arranged so that the engines draw from all tanks at the same time. The pilot, however, can switch to one tank only by switching a lever near the seat if he so wishes.

Extra size struts have been fitted to the ship at points where the greatest strain will be felt. They run back from the twin Wasp motors and from the cabin to the top wing.

No special covering for the Pratt and Whitney Wasp motors will be used. The temperature during summer months in the arctic is not sufficiently low to make this necessary. The only below zero weather expected on the trip will be encountered over Greenland's ice cap and the pilots expect to have the motors well warmed up before they run into this area.

Carries Tools, Spare Parts.

The flying boat has been equipped with a complete set of engine tools, a few of the more vital spare parts, and anchors and ropes to peg the air yacht down whether landings are made on water or ice.

The 'Untin' Bowler is a unique trans-oceanic airplane in that it will make the flight to Berlin without exceeding the weight limit set by the department of commerce regulations. All other ships have had to carry such large loads of gasoline that the gas alone put them out of the "useful load" class.

The Bowler's two Pratt and Whitney motors are 410 horse power each. Its span is 71 feet 8 inches and the length over all is 40 feet [illegible] inches. Its height is 13 feet 10 inches. The span of the lower or "little wing" is 36 feet.

Its guaranteed ceiling is more than 20,000 feet, and its speed will range from 110 to 125 miles an hour. It will fly on one engine with its present load. Its takeoff time in still air from water is 14 seconds, and the takeoff from ice will be less than ten seconds.

GERMAN PLANE EXPLODES OVER LAKE; 5 DEAD

LINDAU, Germany, June 29.—(AP)—Five passengers were killed and two were seriously injured today when a new airplane, the D-1620 of the Bodensee Aero-Lloyds line exploded and fell into Lake Constance. The wrecked machine sank almost instantly.

The catastrophe happened just as the machine was about to alight on the lake. It was only a few feet above the surface when a sharp explosion took place. The plane turned over and sank. There were seven people aboard the machine, five passengers, a pilot, and a navigation officer. Boats hurried to the rescue and saved Johan Firley of Friedberg and Hermann Wuester of Barmen.

The body of the plane was later hauled to the surface and in it were found the bodies of Mrs. Firley and Mrs. Wuester, Eduard Hagge, the navigating officer, and of Wilhelm Hagg, architect of Friedberg. The front part of the plane and the motor are at the bottom of the lake, presumably holding there the body of Pilot Zinmeister. Thus far the cause of the explosion has not been determined.

KILLED IN FALL FROM WINDOW.

Daniel McKnight, 30 years old, colored, 440 West Chicago avenue, was instantly killed last night when he fell three floors from a window ledge on which he was sitting.

JURORS TOLD OF JOKER IN ANN'S MARRIAGE PACT

Attorney Given Control of $100,000 Settlement.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

It wasn't, after all, the smallness of the $100,000 settlement which Franklin S. Hardinge offered Ann Livingston that disrupted the romance of the wealthy manufacturer and the comely Tulsa divorcée. This developed yesterday in the trial of Miss Livingston's $250,000 breach of promise suit in Judge Charles H. Miller's court. Ann refused to sign because of a power of attorney tacked on the end of the prenuptial agreement.

Admission of her willingness to accept the $100,000 which he had proposed was made yesterday from the witness stand by the elderly defendant. In this round of the legal bout, Ann undoubtedly scored a point.

Jurors Show Interest.

One of the veniremen spoke up to request a second reading of the first paragraph of the power of attorney after the defense attorney, John H. Bussian, had read the contract into the record. It was evident that the significance of the paper and its probable effect on the contract itself was receiving due attention and being revolved in the minds of the men who are to decide whether Miss Livingston is entitled to monetary recompense for Hardinge's failure to marry her.

The long, long trail of testimony that brought the case only half way to completion carried the defendant yesterday pretty well through the list of expenses incurred by him on Ann's account while she was established at the Cluxton hotel apartment here, and indulging in an orgy of shopping in collecting her trousseau. She spent with a free hand, and Hardinge paid the bills—with the important exception of the bill for her wedding dress and hat.

A Fortune on Her Finger.

Looming at the head of the list was that three and three-quarter carat diamond solitaire which Ann had mentioned, her engagement ring. She had never been told, she said, what it cost. She learned yesterday. The unmounted stone, at $575 a carat, lightened her fiancé's pocketbook by $2,162. Another $170 went for the mounting.

Then there was the leopard skin coat which Hardinge admitted he suggested purchasing for her because of the quick change in the climate she encountered between Chicago and Tulsa. That was $600. And the value of the white fox scarf which Ann still is sporting in the courtroom, was given yesterday as $125.

What a Bride Costs.

Other items included $650 for a dinner ring, containing three rubies surrounded with diamonds; an evening gown at $220; lingerie to the amount of $117.92 in one shop; a sweater suit, $65; a dress, $65; another dress, $55; an ensemble suit, [illegible]; her hotel expenses, $65 a month for two months, and a bill for $590 from Marshall Field's, which precipitated a wrangle when Ann insisted that she had not purchased all the items included. Hardinge admitted that a small part might have been purchased by Josephine Brand or another member of his household.

Ann also scored a minor victory when Hardinge, who appeared to resume his testimony clad in a meticulously tailored suit of dark blue, replied, in response to a question by his attorney, that he couldn't remember any occasion on which Ann had secured money from him for purchases and then charged the things to his account. He gave her pocket money amounting to about $100, he stated. Ann fixed the amount at nearer $200.

Policy on Ann Refused.

One item not previously mentioned, and which necessitated a conference of opposing counsel in the judge's chambers, was an insurance policy for $25,000 on the plaintiff's life, naming her mother as the beneficiary, for which Hardinge was to have paid. Ann successfully passed the medical examination, Hardinge testified, but the policy was refused. He was not allowed to state why.

It is understood that the reason the policy was never executed was that Ann had no earning power.

Another phase of the direct examination of the defendant by Bussian touched on the relations between Ann and Josephine Brand, the housekeeper, who later proved a bone of contention between them, and also the attitude of Ann toward Hardinge's daughter, Helen.

Miss Brand Discussed.

Q.—Now, Mr. Hardinge, after Miss Livingston arrived here, do you recall discussing Josephine Brand with her? A.—I do.

Q.—Tell what was said. A.—Well, I told Miss Livingston that Miss Brand had had a very serious operation and that she was far from well. She was very weak for six months afterward.

Q.—Will you describe Josephine's attitude toward Miss Livingston during December and up into January? A.—Why, she was very lovely and sweet to her after she met her, and wanted to be a lifelong friend of hers.

Q.—Do you recall the first meeting between your daughter Helen and Miss Livingston, "Don't you want to see the my home with her baby, a boy, and we were all in the sitting room. Miss Livingston was there, and after they had been presented, I said to Miss Livingston, "Don't you wan to see the baby?" She was sitting about six feet away from Helen and she said, "I can see the baby from here."

Tells Ann of His Assets.

Q.—Do you recall telling Miss Livingston that the bigger part of your assets consisted of your stock in Hardinge Brothers? A.—I told Miss Livingston that the principal amount of my wealth was represented in my holdings in the business of Hardinge Brothers, and that I nad the controlling interest of that company.

Q.—Do you recall, Mr. Hardinge, how many other stockholders there are in your company? A.—I believe there are between forty and fifty.

Attorney Bussian then picked up from the table before him, a blue covered document, quite thick, and handed it to his client. This was the often mentioned but not hitherto discussed pre-nuptial contract, which occupied the entire remainder of the court session.

Q.—Tell the court and jury when and where you first delivered it to Miss Livingston. A.—I delievered it to Miss Livingston in her apartment in the Cluxton hotel, about the twenty-first day of December, 1927.

Attorney Bussian turned to Judge Miller and asked,

"May I read it, your honor?"

MARRIAGE CONTRACT READ

The jurist, whose impartial conduct of the case has won commendation from both sides, looked resigned as he eyed the bulky instrument that is the "cause celebre" of the case that will go down in legal annals as "Livingston versus Hardinge."

"Might as well read it now," he replied. "It's got to be read some time."

Attorney Bussian settled his glasses more firmly on his nose, opened the paper and began to read. As the impressive legal phraseology setting forth the agreement between Franklin S. Hardinge, party of the first part, and Ann E. Livingston, party of the second part, got under way those in the courtroom, fewer than at any previous time since the case opened, leaned forward, all ears.

As the reading proceeded, setting forth at seemingly interminable length the conditions and circumstances surrounding the drafting of the document, interest lagged and finally waned. The spectators toward the last were merely sticking it out until the financial terms were mentioned.

Finally Reaches Terms.

Eventually, after detailed explanations that a marriage was to take place between Miss Livingston and Mr. Hardinge, and that the latter, having worked long and earnestly, and accumulated, with the aid of his first wife, considerable worldly goods, and having in his home a certain Josephine Brand who had practically raised his children after the death of their own mother, and for whom he desired to make provision, the terms of his arrangement with Ann were stipulated.

These details were set forth at such length and in such unmistakable terms and definitions of terms, as to constitute what is known to the legal profession as an ironclad or foolproof arrangement. Both parties agreed to relinquish any and all rights to property held by the other. Ann forfeited her dower rights, which would amount to one third of her prospective husband's estate, and agreed to make no claim whatever upon his property, real estate, cash or business.

In return he promised to execute immediately after their marriage, his last will and testament, in which she would be willed $50,000 cash if she were still his wife at the time of his death, or separated from him without statutory fault on her part. He would further take out a $50,000 insurance policy in her favor, in consideration of which she promised to make no further claim of any sort upon his estate.

Further provision was made that if she preceded him in death all provisions of the contract were to lapse. She would not be allowed, provided he died first, to pass on any of her wealth to her relatives or others. That was to revert to his estate.

Attached to the contract was the power of attorney, which Ann was to sign along with a quit claim deed to his property and sundry other papers relinquishing claims on his business and personal effects.

GIVES ATTORNEY POWER

It provided that Miss Livingston sign over her power of attorney to Edward I. Debolt, law partner of Bussian, who was formerly vice president of the Hardinge corporation and has long been the personal attorney of the defendant. Debolt was to have the power to sign her name to any papers or documents after her marriage.

To Ann, who has spent several years in the business world and has demonstrated on the stand that she is a shrewd business woman, this power of attorney appeared to be the joker in the proceedings. She regarded it as effectively nullifying all that went before, since it would give Debolt power to sign her name to various documents.

"I'll tell you this much," she replied to a question after court had adjourned. "When this contract was handed to me in Mr. Bussian's office I knew enough that I asked him to take off the power of attorney and then I'd sign it. But they wouldn't."

When the reading of the contract was completed Bussian resumed the examination of Hardinge and he brought out the defendant's statement that Miss Livingston appeared to find the agreement acceptable with its $100,000 proviso, but her lawyer suggested a change.

Q.—Now then, Mr. Hardinge, did you discuss the contract with Miss Livingston? A.—I did. In her apartment. She read it over and said that it seemed all right to her, but that she didn't know much about law and that she would have Mr. Bland, her Tulsa attorney, examine it, and that she would sign it if he approved.

Q.—Do you know whether she wrote Mr. Bland? A—She said she did, and read me a letter she received from him.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said in the letter that this was a very fine contract, but that he would suggest that she have another drawn providing that she get one-sixth of my estate, as it might grow more valuable, rather than a flat $100,000. And that she could take less if it grew less valuable.

Q.—What was said about that? I told her that I would do that, and I had another contract drawn and delivered to her.

The second contract, duplicating the first but changing the terms of the settlement to that suggested by Bland, was then read into the record by Bussian. By the time he had reached the last punctilious paragraph, the noon whistles had long since sounded, and court was adjourned until Monday morning.

JOSEPHINE AND WIFE OF HARDINGE AWAY WHILE SUIT IS TRIED

Franklin Hardinge Jr., 18 year old son of the oil burner manufacturer being sued by Ann Livingston in a breach of promise suit, declared yesterday that neither his step mother nor Josephine Brand, his father's former housekeeper, are in Chicago during the trial.

"You would not expect Mrs. Hardinge to remain in town under the circumstances," he explained in discussing the absence of his father's second wife, Peggy Means, who married the oil burner manufacturer in November last year, a few months after the Ann Livingston romance ended. "Nor could you expect Miss Brand to remain here. The whole matter would be too painful to them both."

The Hardinge home, where Franklin Jr. and his sister, Helen, were raised, and which was presided over by Josephine Brand after the children's mother died in 1925, is an expansive place of brown brick, ivy covered and surrounded by shrubbery just a half block from the Cluxton hotel where Miss Livingston says Mr. Hardinge arranged for her to live when she came to Chicago from Tulsa.

SHUMAKER, DRY LEADER, FACES AN OPERATION

Indianapolis, Ind., June 29.—[Special.]—The Rev. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league is in a Battle Creek sanitarium awaiting a serious operation, it was said at league headquarters today. When Shumaker recently started to serve a sixty day sentence for contempt of the state Supreme court he decided to start dieting and lost forty pounds. Once he started losing weight, Shumaker could not stop and physicians became alarmed and sent him to Battle Creek.

Apprehensive that Shumaker will not return to his desk, league attaches today speculated on his possible successor. Samuel McNaught, now superintendent of the Iowa Anti-Saloon league, is a likely candidate.

ALDERMAN FINDS NOBODY DESIRES JAYWALKING LAW

Can't Get Arrested, So He Decides on Repeal.

Ald. Thomas J. Bowler [41st] was walking acrcoss the intersection of La Salle and Randolph streets yesterday, puffing at his pipe and pondering on his problems as chairman of the council traffic committee. His thoughts were on a meeting of a national safety commission at Washington, D. C., and on what he had seen on New York's congested streets. He has just returned from his eastern trip.

Whiz-z-z! An automobile flashed by in front of the alderman's face. Muttering under his breath, Bowler glanced at the traffic signals and discovered he was walking against the red light, contrary to the newly enforced jay walking ordinance. He turned around and saw a policeman on the corner grinning at him.

He Decides What to Do.

"Why don't you enforce your jaywalking law?" demanded Ald. Bowler, who was unknown to the policeman.

"Why isn't prohibition enforced? Because nobody wants it," was the policeman's answer.

"Well, I know what to do about the jay walking ordinance," the councilman commented to himself and walked on with the green light.

Ald. Bowler announced last night that he will take steps this week to repeal the jay walking ordinance that has been holding pedestrians on loop street corners for the last three weeks.

"There is nothing personal about my decision," he said. "I'm against any law that isn't enforced, and Chicagoans are to busy to waste time waiting unnecessarily for the lights to change from red to green.

Doesn't Promote Safety.

"I would be in favor of pedestrian control if it promoted safety or if it helped both the motorist and the walker. But the contrary is true.

"A regulation of sidewalk traffic gives both the pedestrian and the motorist a false sense of security at crossings. With both the driver and the walker on the alert, the loop has been comparatively free of traffic mishaps.

"On Monday or Tuesday I'm going to invite fellow members of the traffic committee to take a walk through the loop with me. This inspection, I am quite sure, will lead to a committee report recommending the repeal of the lock-step regulation."

Police Grow Weary.

A stroll through the business district yesterday at noon showed that the police have wearied in their three weeks' experiment in holding the sidewalk crowds back to give the right of way to automobiles.

Police Commissioner Russell has been indifferent toward the pedestrian control from the beginning.

"The law was on the books for two years and as long as it is there I think it is my duty to enforce it," he said. "I am agreeable to any decision of the city council regarding the proposed appeal."

GIANT AIRSHIPS OF EUROPE OPEN AMERICAN EYES

One to Carry 100 Passengers, Another 30.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—American aeronautical engineers just now are watching with interest the development of two huge airplanes in Europe—a giant 30 passenger four engine Junkers air liner and a 100 passenger six engine seaplane, designed by the Swiss aeronautical engineer, E. Manos.

Detailed reports of the design of the two planes, just received here from commercial attachés of the commerce department in Berlin and Berne, only have served to sharpen the interest of American designers who will watch the first tests of the air liners for a hint whether these planes are to be the forerunners of the huge air liners expected to be developed as commercial aviation becomes more advanced.

Some New Facts.

Some details of the big new Junkers already have reached the United States, but a detailed report on the craft forwarded by A. Douglas Cook, assistant trade commissioner in Berlin, has revealed hitherto unknown facts.

The plane is to be powered by two 800 horsepower and two 400 horsepower engines, all of which will be located immediately accessible should the necessity for repairs occur.

The other chief departures from conventional Junkers construction is novel design of the under carriage and construction of the steering gear, which for the first time in an airplane is to be controlled by an auxiliary motor.

May Use Oil Burners.

It is expected that as the new plane is further developed the new type Junkers oil burning aircraft engines may be substituted for the motors which will power the first plane. The motors at present mounted in the plane are set in the leading edges of the wing, their housings stream lined into the wing surfaces so as to avoid air drag.

The plane's wing span is 144 feet, its fuselage length 64.5 feet and its height 17.4 feet. Twin fins, elevators and rudders form the large tail section, necessitated by the large size of the plane. Supplementary rudders are located on each end of the control surfaces. The auxiliary motor will actuate the rudders.

The interior of the cabin is arranged in two stories, the upper for passengers, the lower for freight. The passenger section will be equipped with 30 seats for day flying and 26 berths for night flying. The plane's maximum speed will be 105 miles per hour.

Berne Plane Different.

The design of the new Manos seaplane was reported from Berne totally different in form and wing spread from any other plane type known. It is reported to have great stability and with its six 1,000 horse power engines will be capable of speeds from 118 to 155 miles per hour.

The six engines of the plane will operate six propellers, their operation being so coördinated that if from one to three engines fail to function, all six propellers continue to turn, only at decreased speeds, thus insuring the stability of the craft. All six engines are mounted in an engine room, where the engineers may watch their operation continuously and make repairs if necessary.

WHEN VIOLA GENTRY'S PLANE CRASHED

Condition Uncertain

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Chance for the recovery of Miss Viola Gentry, who was seriously injured yesterday when her endurance plane, The Answer, crashed into a tree, killing Jack Ashcraft, her co-pilot, was reported as uncertain today by surgeons at Nassau hospital at Mineola. Miss Gentry is suffering from a broken arm, severe cuts, shock, and undetermined injuries. A blood transfusion was successfully performed late yesterday.

Corporal Elmer Barry, who sustained serious burns in yesterday's second flying accident, died at Nassau hospital early today. Barry, an army mechanic, was injured when the army plane piloted by Lieut. Maxwell Balfour took fire in the air and came down in a tree near the Meadowbrook club at Westbury, L. I. Lieut. Balfour escaped with only slight injuries.

Polish Court Refuses to Act on Ex-Finance Chief

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, June 29.—After four days' hearing of the case of the former minister of finance, M. Czechowicz, who was accused of exceeding the budget by $50,000,000, the court adjourned stating that owing to lack of precedent a decision was impossible. The verdict was considered a victory for parliament, which is opposed to the Pilsudski government.

U. S. TREASURY COUNTS SURPLUS AS YEAR ENDS

Officials Stand by Estimate of 160 Million.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Treasury officials continued today to predict a surplus of from 160 to 170 million dollars as the final business day of the fiscal year came to an end. Definite figures on the year's financial operations are to be announced tomorrow.

Today's treasury statement, which showed conditions at the close of business Thursday, indicated that the excess of receipts over expenditures for the fiscal year up to that time was $238,231,879. Today $45,000,000 was paid to the railroads for back mail compensation necessitated by a court decision. This would reduce the surplus to about 193 million dollars and other payments of yesterday and today are expected to cut it down to 160 or 170 million dollars.

The actual debt reduction during the fiscal year up to Thursday was $652,713,675.

The total for the fiscal year is likely to be upwards of 700 million dollars. If the balance in the general fund at the close of business today should be the same as a year ago, the reduction in the debt would be almost exactly 700 million dollars, on the basis of a surplus of 160 million dollars. This is indicated by the fact that debt retirements through sinking fund operations and from payments by foreign governments have totaled about 540 million dollars.

The treasury up to Thursday had received almost 200 million dollars from foreign nations during the year. Of this amount about $39,000,000 was in payment of principal of the foreign debts and about 160 millions on interest. Of the total, about 162 millions was in Liberty bonds and other securities, this amount automatically going toward reduction of the funded debt, through the cancellation of the bonds. The remaining amount which was paid in cash went into the general fund, helping to reduce the floating debt.

Income tax payments up to Thursday amounted to $552,305,408 in June, compared with $453,287,231 during the corresponding period last year. This gain of approximately 100 millions was much greater than anticipated, even after the March income tax receipts showed a big increase in revenue over estimates.

LINDY'S INDORSEMENT OF WATCH IS BASIS OF NEW AD CAMPAIGN

New York, June 29.—[U.P.]—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has joined the vast army of "indorsers," and a national advertising campaign is being launched by makers of a wrist watch.

Advertisements have appeared bearing the celebrated flyer's autographed testimonial, his photograph and, of course, pictures of the wrist watch.

This is believed to be the first case of indorsement by Col. Lindbergh in an advertising campaign, a now common practice of social, boxing, movie, racing, baseball and other celebrities.

JENSEN GIVES UP ENDURANCE MARK ATTACK IN ANGER

Blames Refueling Plane Crew for Failure.

Roosevelt Field, L. I., June 29. —[Special.]—Martin Jensen's effort to beat the refueling endurance record in his plane, The Three Musketeers, ended in a dead stick landing and a bitter quarrel at 6:07 p. m. today, when the failure of the refueling plane to take up gasoline forced Jensen to bring his ship down without a drop of fuel in his tanks.

Jensen, his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Jensen, and his assistant pilot, William Ulbrich, climbed out of the plane tired, dirty, hungry and thirsty and—so far as Mr. and Mrs. Jensen were concerned, disappointed and angry. The Jensens began at once to berate the pilots of the refueling plane, the Exclamation Mark, for their failure to supply gasoline and the refueling crew retorted in kind.

Hurries to Hospital.

Ulbrich was morose with worry about Miss Viola Gentry, injured yesterday in the crash which killed Jack Ashcraft, and after inquiries as to her condition, departed for the Nassau hospital at Mineola.

When The Three Musketeers, a Bellanca monoplane, was finally forced to give up the struggle it had been in the air 70 hours 37 minutes and 36 seconds, more than a hundred hours short of the record of 172½ hours, set by Reginald L. Robbins and James Kelly at Fort Worth on May 27. They had started their flight at 7:32:02 p. m. on Wednesday.

Cleveland Flyers Still Up.

Cleveland, O., June 29.—(AP)—The monoplane "City of Cleveland," with the 13 painted on its blue fuselage, cruised above the Cleveland airport tonight as Pilots Roy L. Mitchell and Byron K. Newcomb ended the first day of the monotonous grind which they hope will bring them a new endurance flight record for planes refueled in the air.

Fair weather and successful refueling contacts indicated better luck was with them than when they were forced to end their first attempt early yesterday morning in an electric storm. They took off at 6:38:51 p. m. yesterday and must remain in the air until 11:10:21 p. m. next Friday to better by the necessary hour the mark of 172 hours and 31 minutes made by James Kelly and Reginald L. Robbins at Fort Worth, Tex.

Two successful refueling contacts were made today.

Minneapolis Plane Down.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 29.—(AP)—A sputtering motor which gradually lost its power today ended the attempt of Thorwald [Thunder] Johnson to set a new mark for an endurance airplane flight after nearly 150 hours of continuous flying.

Three struts holding what is known as the "exact valve motion" were sheared off in some unexplained manner, mechanics said after inspecting the ship. This, they added, allowed compression to accumulate in the cylinders, forcing gasoline back into the carburetor and gradually "smothering" the motor.

A farmer's pasture at Langdon, Minn., 15 miles south of St. Paul, was the landing field of the tiny Cessna monoplane which for six days and nights had battled to stay aloft more than 172½ hours, the record for endurance flying.

During the flight Johnson and his co-pilot, Owen Haughland, successfully maneuvered their craft through wind, hail and rain storms. They fought and conquered a leaky oil line, and had victory almost within their grasp when the motor faltered.

Undismayed by their ill fortune, the flyers said they would try again. They set their ship down gently in the pasture and it was undamaged. As soon as they have rested and inspected the plane they expect to make another assault on the record.

Boy Scout Hangs Self Performing Circus Stunts

Menominee, Mich., June 29.—[Special.]—Basil Norbert Crevier, 15 year old Boy Scout of Goodman, Wis., near here, hanged himself while performing circus stunts on a trapeze and was dead when cut down by his father, William Crevier.

FIVE INJURED AS CRASH SPLASHES MOLTEN METAL

Five workmen were seriously injured yesterday at the Heaney Galvanizing company, 1334 West Fulton street, when a 500 pound steel beam suspended over a galvanizing vat fell and splased molten zinc over the workers.

Joe Bilkowski, 1334 North Lincoln street, was blinded by the white hot metal and taken to the County hospital. Another of the injured is Joe Kamiski, 1048 North Marshfield avenue. He was taken to the County hospital suffering from burns about the shoulders and arms.

The other three workers injured are Thomas Metchek, 1634 West Huron street; Joseph Begalski, 1636 Julian street, and John Czarnowski, 934 Will street.

Leonard Lang, shipping clerk, said the beam crashed to the floor when a chain supporting it snapped. One end fell into the vat, splashing the molten zinc for yards around.

STEALS CITY LICENSE; FINED.

Leonard Baylon, colored, 4434 St. Lawrence avenue, was fined $25 and costs yesterday by Municipal Judge Samuel Heller on a charge of using a stolen city vehicle license tag on his automobile.

GRAFT INQUIRY TO HIT COUNCIL, ALBERT CHARGES

Says Aldermen Fight Quiz to Protect Selves.

BY CARL WARREN.

"When the state's attorney rips the mask off the corporation counsel's office he is going to show up some of the members of the Ettelson controlled council, too. No wonder they would like to kick me out. Just let them try it!"

Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d] flung back these replies yesterday in answer to warnings by Thompson members of the city council that he may be punished by ouster for his activity in pushing the forthcoming investigation of city hall affairs by State's Attorney Swanson. Declaring that he would "fight the whole council alone, if necessary," Ald. Albert said that he intended to continue publicly his campaign for a cleanup to the limit of his ability.

Not Afraid of Threats.

"They have tried by every possible means to stop me—offered patronage and threatened my political annihilation," the alderman asserted. "That doesn't worry me in the least, for I don't expect to run again. I ran the last time only to show them I could come back in spite of them."

Corporation Counsel Ettelson, whose office has been Albert's principal target, announced that a week from Tuesday he will make a complete explanation to the council finance committee of the circumstances whereby the city failed to take advantage of a judgment option on the Union Lime company's quarry. It was a resolution by Ald. Charles S. Eaton [5th], inviting State's Attorney Swanson to investigate the alleged failure of the law department to notify the council of the option that evoked the anti-Swanson uprising in the council last Wednesday.

Ettelson Denies He's to Blame.

Mr. Ettelson was quoted as saying that the council did have notice of the option and that it was through no fault of his office that it was allowed to lapse. This statement added fuel to that of Ald. Albert.

"This passing the buck only goes to show that either the council or Ettelson, or both, were to blame," he said. "What difference does that make to the taxpayers? They had to pay the bill. I believe there has been an understanding between Ettelson and certain members of the council and that Mr. Swanson will dig it out."

Outlining the evidence which he has presented to Mr. Swanson, Ald. Albert said that it dealt with four situations in the corporation counsel's office: Mr. Ettelson's pay rolls, his connections in the Chicago Tunnel company franchise case, with the Insull transit interests, and with the Illinois Central railroad in the lake front ordinance matter.

Cites Pay Roll Padding Evidence.

"I gave Mr. Swanson information to show that Ettelson has had on his pay roll names of persons who never existed and whose addresses are barns and vacant lots," Ald. Albert said. "Obviously, I can't make these names public now, but they will be shown up in due time."

Although Albert has centered his fire on the law department, it became known yesterday that Mr. Swanson is more keenly interested in the offices of Building Commissioner Chris Paschen and Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, and it is believed that the investigation may start with them.

TAYLORVILLE PIONEER DIES.

AVIATION INTERESTS JOIN IN DEDICATION OF NEW SKY HARBOR

Aviation interests in the Chicago area joined yesterday in dedicatory ceremonies at Sky Harbor, the Gray Goose lines' new aviation country club and airport on the Dundee road, four miles west of Glencoe. A squadron of six army planes from Selfridge field, detailed for the ceremonies by Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the army air corps, assisted in the dedication.

The new modernistic club house was thrown open to the crowds that flocked to the field to watch the maneuvers of the aircraft. The two cinder runways were occupied all afternoon with visiting ships, sent to the field by Chicago air transport companies as their representatives.

Built at a cost of $5,000,000, the new port will house all branches of air service and transport. An aviation school, a sightseeing service, and a repair service for planes, all operated by the Gray Goose lines, are some of the features provided for. The Petrushka club, Russian night club on Michigan avenue, has established summer quarters in one of the four dining rooms of the club house.

WOMAN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE WHILE IN PARK

While crossing Jackson boulevard in Garfield park yesterday Mrs. Ida Povalonky, 65 years old, 535 South Millard avenue, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile driven by Frank Garofolo, 5927 South Hermitage avenue.

This death and one other raised the 1929 county auto toll to 388.

Believed to have been the victim of a "hit and run" motorist, Stanley Kopec, 21 years old, 2119 North Loral avenue, died in the Keystone hospital. His skull was fractured. Kopec was found lying in the street at Grand and Long avenues on June 21.

Frank Bubulas, 48 years old, 1548 Fullerton avenue, was probably fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile in which two boys were riding at Milwaukee and Fullerton avenues. Frank Kuprewicz, 14 years old, 1634 West 13th place, the driver, and his brother, were held.

Lungina Zdanes, 7 years old, 4407 South Mozart street, was probably fatally injured when she was struck by an automobile near her home. Alexander Lapinski, 33 years old, 4210 South Albany avenue was the driver.

Arnold Tennant, 28 years old, 2207 Washington boulevard, was arrested by Cicero police and held as the driver of the car which seriously injured James Shimek, 25 years old, 3030 South 48th court, Cicero, Thursday.

CANADA WANTS NO RUM ARRESTS IN ITS WATERS

Detroit, Mich., June 29.—[Special.]—The Canadian government today, through semi-official utterances at Ottawa, indicated that it opposes rum running arrests in Canadian waters, but does not object to United States dry agents entering Canada purely to secure information regarding liquor smuggling activities.

Attention of the government was drawn to the matter by the alleged hi-jacking by United States agents of a boatload of liquor in Canadian waters.

1 DEAD, 2 ILL; SUSPECT GAS IN REFRIGERATOR

Coroner Starts Inquiry to Determine Cause.

ordered a police guard stationed there. He placed live guinea pigs in the refrigerator and about the kitchen, the doors of which were hermetically sealed. The animals were fed food from the refrigerator and left to inhale the kitchen air until the inquest.

Charles C. Kritzer, president of the Peerless concern, declared he had no report of a leak in the plant installed in the Clark apartment. Kritzer declared his company in the last three years had manufactured 15,000 machines, using methyl chloride gas instead of brine. The company has been operating for seventeen years.

Calls Gas Harmless.

"Methyl gas is in general use by companies making mechanical refrigerating systems and is known to be harmless," Kritzer declared. "It has a slight toxic effect, sometimes causing a stomach disturbance, but no case of a fatality or serious illness has ever been attributed to it."

His concern buys the gas from the Roessler and Hasslacher Chemical company of Niagara Falls, N. Y., Kritzer stated. Expert chemists of the New York concern have been called here in past investigations of the effects of the gas and have proven it innocuous, Kritzer said.

The coroner's toxicologist, who has recently conducted an investigation of the properties of the gas, stated it was a powerful poison which would cause quick death in a concentrated form or illness and death in a weaker but more protracted dose. The bureau of mines has traced a number of deaths to the gas, Dr. Webster stated.

Similar to Markowski Box.

The coroner said his investigation had definitely established a similarity of construction between the Peerless refrigerator in the Clark apartment and the refrigerator in the Markowski apartment. In the latter case, coroner's investigators learned the refrigerator was frequently out of order.

Irving Markowski, his wife, and their six children were stricken on June 3. The parents and three of the children are still under medical care and their apartment is unoccupied.

JUDGE IN PEORIA UPHOLDS SHERIFF IN COUNTIES' WAR

Circuit Judge John M. Niehaus of Peoria yesterday upheld Sheriff Grant Minor of Peoria county in his refusal to respond to a writ from the Elgin city court in his jurisdictional dispute with Chief Deputy Sheriff George W. Jones of Kane county.

The ruling, on a petition of a writ of habeas corpus, held that City Judge Frank E. Shopen of Elgin was going beyond his bailiwick in issuing an order upon the Peoria county sheriff. It had the effect of nullifying a contempt proceedings against Sheriff Minor in the Elgin city court.

The dispute arose in the prosecution of Morris Mansfield, Peoria bootlegger, held for murder in connection with poison liquor deaths. He is held in the Peoria jail awaiting a new trial, a jury having disagreed at his first trial. The Elgin court sought to hold a hearing on a habeas corpus petition for Mansfield's release on bail and the Peoria sheriff refused to produce the prisoner in Elgin.

2 Children Die as Result of Accidental Burns

Two children died yesterday as the result of accidental burns. Charged with Embezzling $9,000 from Employer

Walter F. Rossow, 45 years old, manager of the claim department of the Builders and Manufacturers' Mutual Casualty company, was arrested yesterday at his home, 3520 Palmer street, on a charge of having embezzled $9,000 from his employer. The company discovered false entries in his records a short time ago, the police were told, while Rossow was in a hospital for an appendicitis operation.

U. S. Government Acts in Fund Affair.

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—After fifty-six days in jail without a hearing, Antonio Gomez Maquero, secretary to Salvador Ateca, alleged former paymaster for the Mexican rebel army, was released today under $5,000 bail. United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill, sitting as extradition commissioner for the state department, denied the Mexican government's application for his extradition. Ateca's hearing was postponed until Monday. He is still being held without bail.

The intense feeling this case has aroused flared in Commissioner O'Neill's court room today. It has been contended throughout by David P. Siegel, attorney for Ateca and Maquero, that all the charges against them and against the two Americans arrested here with them were the outgrowth of an alleged political offense by Ateca and Maquero and that the United States government was being used as a "catspaw" by the Mexican government.

When Mr. Siegel referred to the fact that Ateca would soon have been in jail here sixty days without a hearing, Charles A. Frueauff, of counsel for the Mexican government, rose and shouted:

"Don't wave the American flag, Mr. Siegel."

United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle caused the arrest here of Ateca, Maquero, Russell B. Mathews, assistant director of immigration at El Paso, Tex., and W. H. Fryer, a former United States attorney at El Paso. He charged them with conspiracy to help Ateca escape to Spain.

The $770,000 seized from Ateca by Mr. Tuttle's score or more of agents, who raided his apartment at the Hotel McAlpin, is still in a bank deposit vault here in Mr. Tuttle's name.

There have been reports, which reached Mr. Tuttle's ears that the Mexican government had offered Ateca a "compromise" for some of the money seized by Mr. Tuttle. It was reported also that Ateca refused.

(A BUSINESS EDITORIAL)
THE GLORIOUS FOURTH

In June of the year 1776 Richard Henry Lee of Virginia introduced a measure in the Second Continental Congress calling for a Declaration of Independence from the Isle of Great Britain. This was referred to a committee including such famous men as Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and Benjamin Franklin.

The result of this committee's work was finally passed after debate on July 4th, 1776, to the wild hurrahs of the populace.

Thursday we celebrate that wonderful day. May the great advantages and blessings which were then given to us be perpetual. Let us remember the hardships and privations that our colonial fathers went through in order to establish this wonderful nation.

Let the resolve be taken to be fully worthy of them and all unite to make this, our Country, greater, better and more glorious than ever.

RIGINS QUOTAS N IMMIGRATION APPLY MONDAY

cle Sam Putting New System Into Effect.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Spe- l]—National origins immigration become effective on Monday. tory reductions will take place in number of immigrants to be ad- ed annually from Germany, the Free State, and Scandinavian tries, while quotas will be in- ed from Great Britain and north- Ireland, Italy, and a number of countries.

The new quota system is expected remain in effect for a considerable . But the groups which have opposed to the new system are to seek its repeal at the earli- possible opportunity.

Hoover Favors More Study.

dent Hoover, who opposed the al origins system, is known to suggested as a compromise that be further postponement to per- more study of the immigration tion.

t is assumed that efforts will be to reopen the whole subject be- the house and senate committees immigration in next winter's ses- of congress. That congress will able to agree on anything that satisfy all elements is doubted. there is a further change in im- ation laws, it is expected that will be in the direction of more restriction. Sentiment for a on all immigration is growing and tually may be sufficient to force able action.

The old quotas were computed by g 2 per cent of the foreign born lation as shown by the census 1890. The new quotas have been tained "by determining as near- may be, in respect to each geo- ical area which is to be treated separate country, the number of bitants in continental United in 1920 whose origin by birth ancestry is attributed to such graphic area." This determination the terms of the law was made by tracing the ancestors or de- ants of particular individuals but statistics of immigration and ation, together with rates of in- in population as shown by suc- decennial United States cen-."

Statistics Cover Short Period.

The first complete census was not until 1790 and there were as to its accuracy.

German Quota Cut Most.

greatest cut suffered by any try under the new quota system of Germany, whose quota is from 51,227 to 25,957. The Free State quota is cut from 28,- to 17,853; Sweden's from 9,561 to ; Norway's, from 6,453 to 2,377; ark's from 2,789 to 1,181; ce's, from 3,954 to 3,086; Switzer- 's, from 2,081 to 1.707; Roumania's, 608 to 295; Czecho-Slovakia's from 3,073 to 2,874; Portugal's from 503 to 440; Danzig's, from 228 to 100; and Esthonia's from 124 to 116.

DRY BUREAU HAS BOOTH AT TEACHERS' MEET

Atlanta, Ga., June 29.—(AP)—Anna B. Sutter, head of the educational and statistical section of the bureau of prohibition, occupied a booth in the exhibit hall at the convention of the National Education association here today.

In a formal statement to newspapermen, she said:

"I am here as head of the educational and statistical section of the bureau of prohibition to answer inquiries of teachers interested who desire to know what facts are available in the bureau of prohibition bearing on observance and enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and laws enacted to carry it into effect."

ALIEN RESIDENTS OF U. S. SINCE 1921 MAY RECEIVE O .K.

Aliens residing in the United States since June 3, 1921, who desire to legalize their residence, but who do not wish to take out naturalization papers, may make such application beginning tomorrow, July 1. This was announced yesterday by S. D. Smith, district director of immigration, and follows the terms of an act passed by congress on March 2. Applicants must show four facts: Entrance into the country prior to June 3, 1921; continuous residence in the United States since that date; good moral character; and assurance that the alien is not subject to deportation.

CARBARY TIES UP COUNTY FUNDS IN BOOZE FEE FIGHT

Judges Grant Writ to Block Supervisors.

State's Attorney George D. Carbary of Kane county yesterday instituted surprise proceedings which tie up the moneys collected in fines for liquor, vice and gambling violations. Two constructions were placed on his action. One was that his aim is to get for his investigators and snoopers the expense accounts denied them by the supervisors. The other, his own explanation, is that he wants a judicial decision on all the disputed bills.

Prosecutor Carbary asked and obtained from Circuit Judges John K. Newhall and William F. Fulton in Geneva an injunction which restrains the county treasurer from paying out any moneys from the fines already collected, and restrains two court clerks from disposing of about $7,000 in fines they have on hand. The entire board of supervisors was restrained by the injunction.

Prosecutions Are Blocked.

In his petition the state's attorney said the money had been legally appropriated to pay his employés, and that as a result of their endeavors he had been able to file 250 complaints against law violators. Now, unless the employés are paid, he asserted, they will not testify against the defendants.

The bills submitted by Carbary's under cover men were reduced or disallowed by the supervisors as a result of investigations following the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King by a dry raider in her home in Aurora. In his petition yesterday Carbary said one group of supervisors voted against allowing the bills because they were confused and misinformed; another group so voted because they are opposed to enforcement of the prohibition and a third group voted in accordance with their honest judgment. The vote was unanimous.

Own' Pay Is Tied Up.

"I even tied up my own pay," Mr. Carbary said. "Nothing may be paid out of the funds, which would ordinarily be turned over to school funds, until after a hearing in September. Several of the investigators had threatened to sue the county for their money and by filing this petition we will get a decision all together instead of in seventeen separate cases, because a suit in equity takes charge to avoid a multiplicity of actions."

Some of the officials named in the restraining order said they will ask a change of venue because Judges Newhall and Fulton were Carbary's sponsors in office.

EX-BANK TELLER ON PROBATION.

Springfield, Ill., June 29.—[U.P.]—Calvin Blattner, Highland, Ill., former county clerk of Madison county, who pleaded guilty in federal court to embezzlement of bank funds, today was admitted to probation by Judge Louis Fitzhenry. He absconded with $13,000. He returned with about $12,000 of the funds a week later. Full restitution has been made.

HOLD FICTITIOUS OIL SERVICE HEAD ON FOUR CHARGES

Two felony complaints and two fugitive warrants were filed yesterday against Louis J. Reycroft, head of the fictitious Tower Chain System, Inc., with offices in the National Security building, 105 West Madison street.

He was arrested on Friday by Lieut. Thomas McFarland of the detective bureau on information from the Better Business bureau that the promoter was about to obtain $1,000 from each of thirty-eight persons whom he had promised jobs as managers and hostesses in a string of de luxe filling stations he said he was going to open in Chicago.

A charge of operating a confidence game was preferred by Miss Grace Burr, 360 Garfield boulevard, who had mailed Reycroft a negotiable $1,000 security as her bond on a promised job. A second charge, alleging conspiracy to swindle, was signed by Edward S. Graham, 711 Brompton place, against Reycroft and his office aid, M. B. Smith. At the same time, police of Portland, Ore., wired that Reycroft was wanted there, under the name of George Adams, on two indictments for selling securities without a license.

500 POLICE START ACTIVE TRAINING FOR 8TH FIELD MEET

Five hundred policemen have started training for the eighth annual police field meet to be held in Soldiers' field Aug. 24 and 25, Police Commissioner Russell announced yesterday. Eleven policemen have been killed on duty since the first of the year. Proceeds from the meet will go to the widows and orphans of these and other dead policemen through the Policemen's Benevolent association, which sponsors the program. During the last five years $1,000,000 has been raised for this purpose and $200,000 will be expended this year.

FREE DRUGGIST IN LIQUOR CASE; GIRLS MISSING

Leon Brooks, druggist of 3141 Beach avenue, was discharged yesterday when arraigned before Judge Joseph Burke in the Des Plaines street court on charges of selling poison liquor, from which a young woman was temporarily blinded. The court took the action when Miss Jacqueline Fornes and Mrs. Margaret Rondeau, 3001 Jackson boulevard, failed to appear against the druggist. Miss Fornes was the one who became temporarily blinded when she drank the liquor.

Judge Burke, in the same case, also discharged Hans Christianson, 28 years old, of 2436 North Lawndale avenue; Harry Moe, 27 years old, 4843 Augusta street; and Carl Olson, 28 years old, 4739 West Ohio street, who had been charged with disorderly conduct. The girls charged the three men made their acquaintance on the street, induced them to drink the liquor purchased from Brooks, and then attacked them.

FEDERAL BOARD STUDIES NIAGARA WATER PROJECT

Finds Propagandist Used U. S. Official Role.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—The federal trade commission, it transpired today, has begun an investigation of the activities of water power interests toward procuring an enormous increase in the diversion of water from Niagara falls for power purposes under the guise of the project to preserve and improve the spectacle.

The commission became interested in this matter as the result of disclosures in the course of its inquiry into the propaganda activities of electric power interests with which it has been occupied for the last two years.

It discovered that a monograph entitled "Niagara Falls: Its Power Possibilities and Preservation," published by the Smithsonian institution, had been written by an engineer in the employ at the time of the Duquesne Light and Power company of Pittsburgh and of the National Electric Light association. The publication sought to demonstrate that the Canadian falls "is committing suicide" and can be saved only by a redistribution of the flow, which, when accomplished, will permit two and one-half times the present power development.

Trace Pamphlet's Use.

A large number of copies of the brochure was purchased and distributed by the Schoelkopfs, who dominate the Niagara Falls Power company, sole utilizer of the present diversion of 20,000 cubic feet of water per second on the American side and pioneer in the movement to double the diversion by means of remedial works to redistribute the flow as proposed in the pending treaty with Canada which this company promoted.

When the commission resumes public hearings in the fall it will subpoena the Schoelkopfs and other officials of the Niagara Falls Power company to testify regarding the "save Niagara" propaganda disseminated for the purpose of obtaining an increased diversion worth more than $20,000,000 a year to the concern developing the power on the American side.

The commission is also inquiring into the financing of the Niagara Falls Power company and of the holding company, the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern Power company, in which the former concern and affiliated interests in the Niagara region have been merged, and into their relations with power interests in other regions.

Inquiry Interests Senate.

The accountants and other investigators of the commission are already at work on this phase of the inquiry. The 60 million dollar Morgan merger of New York utilities, which takes in the Niagara companies, also will be subjected to scrutiny.

Doubt that the senate will ratify the pending Niagara treaty during the life of this congress was expressed today by Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee. He said that the opposition of the central and northwestern states to further diversion at Niagara pending an agreement on diversion at Chicago for the lakes to the gulf waterway and on the building of the St. Lawrence seaway is so great that it would be difficult to muster a two-thirds majority for the treaty.

Source of Technical Article.

The engineer who wrote the Smithsonian institution monograph is Samuel S. Wyer of Columbus, O. In 1924 he was employed by the Duquesne Light and Power company and the National Electric Light association to make certain investigations of the development of power at Niagara falls. He received for his services $15,890 from the Duquesne company alone.

At this time Wyer was an associate in mineral technology on the staff of the United States National museum which is under the administration of the Smithsonian institution. He received no pay from either of these institutions. He had an understanding, however, with the power interests employing him that he was at liberty to use the material he obtained in their service for a Smithsonian publication on Niagara Falls. Furthermore he obtained access to information in the hands of the hydro-electric commission of Ontario by means of a letter of introduction given him by the late Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian institution.

Private Employment Conceded.

The monograph issued in 1925, purported to be an unbiased survey by a government institution of the question of the preservation of Niagara Falls and its power possibilities. The author identified himself in the pamphlet only as a member of the staff of the national museum. The fact that he was in the employ of power interests was not disclosed.

Secretary Walcott sponsored the monograph with a foreward in which he said that the following original investigation shows that:

"The Canadian side of the Niagara Falls—carrying 94 per cent of the water—is rapidly, by nature's own means, destroying itself, and mere nonuse of the water is not preservation. Two and one-half times more power than is now developed can be developed and still maintain an adequate scenic effect. Real preservation can be brought about only by frankly facing the engineering and geologic facts now obvious and the development of an international preservation program that will insure maximum use with the continued preservation of an adequate scenic effect."

In Line with Power Argument.

This was right in line with the propaganda of the Niagara Falls Power company, which operates a model of the falls to demonstrate that with a redistribution of the flow double the present volume of water can be diverted without impairing the beauty of the cataracts.

Wyer said of the Canadian falls that "What was once a beautiful horseshoe shaped crestline is now becoming ragged and V-shaped" and that the concentration of the flow in the notch "increased the rate of recession." This was disproved by the report of the special international Niagara board which declared that the Canadian falls is not committing suicide.

"The water diversion—10,000 cubic feet per second—that Chicago is asking for," said Wyer, "is just about equivalent to the total amount of water going over the American falls at Niagara Falls.

"Sixty-eight thousand cubic feet per second of the diverted water is now incidentally used in the development of power in an inefficient manner at Lockport. Only a 34 foot fall is available and this same amount of water run through the new Queenston plant at Niagara Falls, where a head of 296 feet is utilized, would generate at least 10 times as much electric power. Incidentally, this Lockport inefficient water power is also close to the Illinois coal fields."

Wyer said the diversion at Chicago should be reduced to 5,000 second feet by 1940.

Asks Divorce and Pay for 36 Years of Worry

Indianapolis, Ind., June 29.—[Special.]—The bands at the Chicago World's Fair were playing "After the Ball" when William D. Haverstick, wealthy young farmer, met, wooed and wed his wife, Florence, in September, 1893. Today she sued for divorce, and asked $35,000 damages for 36 years of worry which she alleges her husband caused her. Once he shut her up in a barn seven hours when she attempted to follow his buggy into town, she charges, and years later, one cold Christmas eve, he left her locked in his automobile 6 hours while it was parked on Monument circle, Indianapolis, she avers.

Officials Ask Celebration Minus Usual Perils.

Chicago this year will celebrate the most safe and sane, yet the most intensely patriotic Fourth of July in its history, if plans of city officials, Commissioner of Police Russell and other leaders are carried out. The motif of the celebrations in the city and in the suburbs—the whole cosmopolitan area—will be to promote realization that the day is Independence day, marking the birth of the nation.

In the city proper there will be literally scores of celebrations. In the churches and in the parks and playgrounds, in all public gathering places, groups of hundreds to thousands will meet from morning until night. There will be flag raisings, military drills, and other ceremonies during the morning, athletic contests during the afternoon, and band concerts, fireworks and dancing in the evening.

Plan Pier Celebration.

There will be municipal displays at several points in the city. Tentatively the Navy pier has been fixed as the spot at which one big municipal fireworks display will be held. Others are to be announced in the next few days. There will be displays in the amusement parks, at White City and at Riverview, and others, and it is probable, it was stated, that displays may be held in the city's larger parks under the auspices of the several boards in control of them.

Fireworks of a dangerous explosive nature are barred in the city so far as their sale is concerned. Commissioner Russell has again instructed all police to see none are sold or bootlegged around the city's small stores. It was stated there is also a move on foot to bar the sale of them on the highways of the county.

Prisoners to Participate.

The celebrations also will extend into the penal institutions, and there the same motif of loyalty and patriotism will be carried out. This includes the county jail and the House of Correction. For the latter an elaborate program already has been arranged, including band music and a dozen vaudeville acts.

Among the suburbs Norwood Park is one of the first to announce its program. There a citizens' association with a membership of 700, most of them representing families, will take part in the festivities and patriotic program.

Other special programs will be given in Evanston and other north shore suburbs and in Oak Park and other suburbs to the west. Similar celebrations will be held in suburbs south, southwest, and northwest of the city.

The Kiwanians will unveil a bronze tablet commemorating the dedication of Kiwanis square, the intersection of Sheridan road, Broadway and Montrose avenue.

GOV. EMMERSON PUTS POLITICS BEHIND AND GOES ON FISHING TRIP

Gov. Emmerson left Chicago last night for a fishing trip in Manitoba, Canada. Accompanying him were Frank Batcheler, vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, in whose private car the party rode; W. J. James of Chicago, Dr. C. E. Cook of Chicago, Dr. R. A. Scott of Geneva, and James Snyder of Chicago.

The governor said he had no announcements to make. He wouldn't discuss appointments.

"I left politics behind at Springfield," he stated.

It is expected that upon his return in a week or ten days he will replace many, if not all, of the Small appointees who are still in his cabinet, and will make arrangements for the distribution of patronage in Chicago.

DOCTOR'S LOVE OF BOOKS COSTS HIM HIS WIFE

Baltimore, Md., June 29.—Declaring that her husband spent his time with his books instead of with her, Mrs. Eloise Stewart Dieuaide today was granted an absolute divorce from Dr. Francis Dieuaide of the Johns Hopkins hospital medical staff.

Mrs. Dieuaide testified that while living in Peking, China, "my husband told me to pack up and return to the states, because he could do much better without the encumbrance of a wife and family."

Failing to induce the physician to reconsider his decision, Mrs. Dieuaide said she returned to the states with her young son.

The physician deserted her, according to Mrs. Dieuaide, on March 10, 1926. Before that time, she said, they had been happy together. They were married in 1920.

Capone Loses in Court Fight for Freedom, Files Appeal

Two hours of strenuous legal battling in Municipal court concluded with a prompt decision by Judge Walsh rejecting the petition for a writ of coram nobis on which Capone sought a review of his trial and imprisonment for gun toting.

But Chicago's notorious gang leader, or rather his attorneys, refused to accept as final the defeat of their efforts to obtain his release from the Holmesburg county prison cell, where he has already spent six weeks of his one year sentence.

Appeal to Higher Court.

The moment Judge Walsh's decision was rendered Congressman Golder, counsel for Capone, filed an appeal with the prothonotary to the Superior court.

Thus the gang chieftain's coram nobis action followed its expected course. He suffered defeat in the court that sent him to jail and promptly used the decision of this court as stepping stone to a higher court.

The last gesture of the Capone forces in Judge Walsh's court was a bid for the gang leader's release on bail pending the appeal. But in this, too, they failed.

Capone Waits in Cell.

Capone being condemned by Judge Walsh's decision to remain in the cell he loathes, his counsel immediately started to look for a Superior court judge, who would fix an early date for hearing of the appeal.

The hearing on the petition for the writ of coram nobis was fought every inch of the way by both sides, Capone's counsel vainly endeavoring to convince Judge Walsh that his court had railroaded the gang leader to jail. Opposing Mr. Golder were First Assistant District Attorney Kelley and Assistant District Attorney Bok.

The hearing itself was as extraordinary as the resort to coram nobis proceedings in a case such as Capone's.

A crowded courtroom heard the appeal argued. Capone awaited the verdict in his cell. Judge Walsh having refused to permit him to be brought to court.

Two Kidnaped Children Found After Week's Hunt

Lafayette, Ind., June 29.—[Special.]—Sonny McDonald, 8 years old, and his sister Louisee, 11, who were kidnaped from the home of their parents Monday, were found unharmed in a camp in a ravine on the Wabash river last night by searchers. John Wesley Eads, professing to be a Cherokee Indian, who lured them away, was found with them and arrested on an abduction charge. He said he wanted to show the children the beauties of Kentucky. Eads, who is thought to be mentally unsound, camped several days on the McDonald farm, and when he started away on an old wagon drawn by an ancient horse he took the children with him.

REVEAL CHARGES IN OPERA STAR'S DIVORCE SUIT

Cruelty Basis of Action by Edith Mason.

Details of the domestic strife of Edith Mason, prima donna, and her conductor husband, Giorgio Polacco, before the footlights of the Chicago Civic Opera company were recounted in her suppressed bill for divorce which was released yesterday by Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher. The bill also makes charges of cruelty, recounting threats with a revolver, and beatings.

All the charges in the bill are on the grounds of mental and physical cruelty. There is no mention of another woman, although Miss Mason hinted in an interview that this was the underlying cause of her action. She refused to make a definite statement.

Charge Is Extreme Cruelty.

The bill states that the Polaccos were married June 29, 1919, and that they have one daughter, Graziella Polacco, 4 years old. The formal charge is extreme and repeated cruelty. In amplifying the charge the bill recites the maestro's conduct to his wife before and during her appearances on the operatic stage.

"The defendant [Polacco] appeared to take particular pleasure in creating scenes just before your oratrix [Miss Mason] was due to appear on the opera platform, for the purpose of disconcerting her and making it impossible for her to appear at her best in such productions," the bill said. "Many times while she was on the platform, he made derogatory remarks about her, both to her and others, seeking to accomplish her entire discomfiture and embarrassment until it was impossible for her to proceed with her duties."

Resulted in Breakdown.

These actions are said to have resulted in a nervous breakdown in February of this year, and to have compelled Miss Mason to discontinue her opera tours.

The bill characterizes Polacco as a man of vicious and vulgar habits, and charges him with the use of obscene language toward his wife. It declares that he repeatedly told Miss Mason "that wives and cattle should be of your own country."

In April of 1927, during a visit to Florence, Italy, Polacco is said to have gone into a violent rage because he was without funds. At the time he shook and cursed his wife, the bill states. In Milan, shortly after, he seized a revolver and threatened to kill her, according to the bill.

The bill recites one instance of cruelty in their Chicago home at 233 East Walton place, in December of 1928. It also mentions others in Boston last February, and in the Roosevelt hotel in New York, three hours before Polacco sailed for Europe on April 12.

Miss Mason asks the custody of the daughter, alleging that Polacco is wholly unfit to be entrusted with her care because of his vulgar habits. She mentions that Polacco was not deterred in his cursing by the presence of the daughter.

Has $200,000 in Securities.

Miss Mason states that her husband has stocks and securities valued at more than $200,000 and real estate of unknown value. She asks that he be restrained from removing the securities to defeat her efforts to obtain alimony and also asks the restoration of her former name of Edith Mason Barnes.

The bill was filed Friday and suppressed for service by Judge Fisher. Its publication was authorized when former State Senator Thurlow G. Essington, attorney for Miss Mason, was reached on a week-end visit to Lakeside, Mich., and gave his approval. The suit had been supressed to permit securing of service on Polacco, who is en route from Italy. He is expected in Chicago before the end of the week.

"I ordered it suppressed so that Mr. Polacco could be served," the judge explained. "My decision was made without consideration to the publicity involved. It is at the discretion of the court to make a decision in such matters. Senator Essington explained that Mr. Polacco is en route to New York from Italy and might not come on to Chicago if the bill was broadcast. By courtesy of the state of New York he hoped to secure service before the defendant could go into hiding."

Miss Mason denied the report that Polacco had insured himself for $500,000, naming their child as beneficiary.

Surprise to Friends.

That Miss Mason and her husband were unusually devoted to each other and to their small daughter and that the trouble between them was due only to differences in Italian and American ideals of the marriage relationship was the contention yesterday of many friends of both musicians, who registered amazement at the instances of cruelty cited in the bill.

"Edith Mason and her husband have been perfectly devoted, unusually so, and we are all horrified that trouble has come between them," Mrs. James McCrystle, with whom the singer and the small daughter have been living at 337 Central avenue, Highland Park, declared yesterday. "The trouble is just different ideals of home life of two nationalities."

Among the society and musical groups among which Mr. and Mrs. Polacco moved friends recalled dozens of instances of tenderness they had witnessed between the two, and fellow artists declared that the close companionship of the prima donna and the conductor was noted again and again.

2 ATTORNEYS SUED BY FORMER CLIENT IN DIVORCE ACTION

Matthias J. Weis Jr. of Aurora yesterday filed the praecipe of a $50,000 damage suit against Alexander W. Jamieson and Cameron Latter, Chicago attorneys. Attorney Malcolm McKerchan, representing Weis, said the suit is brought for the failure of the attorneys to represent Weis in a divorce action.

Attorney Latter said that he had failed to enter an appearance in the action because of an error on the part of his law clerk. As a result Judge Thomas J. Lynch ordered Weis to pay $30 a week alimony. Latter advised Weis to go to Jamieson and have the order set aside. This was done, but when the case was called the second time Jamieson failed to appear because of an error in his office, and the same order was made by Judge Harry M. Fisher.

Attorney Leslie H. Whip, who represented Mrs. Weis, was named defendant in a similar suit for $50,000 also filed in the Superior court. Action was brought against him by Minnie Ophelia Tracy, who charges him with negligence in a personal injury case which he conducted for her.

SIX TAKEN IN GAMBLING RAID.

A squad of policemen from Commissioner Russell's office raided an alleged gambling house at 836 Irving Park boulevard yesterday afternoon. Michael Rowan, 912 North Clark street, was charged with being the keeper, and five men were arrested as inmates.

SENTENCED FOR SELLING RUM TO DE PAUW MEN

Indianapolis, Ind., June 29.—[Special.] — Charged with having sold liquor to students at DePauw university and having confessed to making beer which they and their seven children drank, Paul Novotney and his wife, Anna, of Seeleyville, today pleaded guilty to violation of the national prohibition act before Judge Robert C. Baltzell of the federal court.

Novotney was sentenced to six months in jail, while the case of Mrs. Novotney was taken under advisement. The Novotneys admitted they gave liquor to several students at De Pauw but denied selling them liquor.

According to George Jeffrey, United States district attorney, the DePauw students made affidavits they bought liquor from the Novotneys.

Near Beer Whisked Out of Iowa After Decision

Des Moines, Ia., June 29.—(AP)—Ten carloads of near beer, released from the clutches of city police by a court decision declaring the consignment to be non-intoxicating, were whisked out of Iowa today by the Manitowoc Products company, the consignor. The beer, originally billed to a distributor here, was destined now for consumption elsewhere, Vernon Lynch, counsel for the consignor, stated. John B. Hammond, dry crusader, responsible for the seizure of the beer under search warrant, had no comment to make on the decision.

LET CONTRACTS FOR 2 CRUISERS OF NEW PROGRAM

First Building for U. S. Navy Ready.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—The Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation of New York and the Puget Sound navy yard are to build the first two ships of the fifteen light cruisers and one aircraft carrier naval construction program.

The navy department announced today the award of these contracts and made it known that the other three cruisers on which bids were opened June 15 will be awarded within a few days.

Wide Difference in Bids.

The Bethlehem bid provided for one cruiser to be built at its Quincy, Mass., yard within 36 months at a cost of $10,753,000. The Puget Sound yard estimated it could build a cruiser for $8,838,000 within 40 months.

These ships are to be of 10,000 tons, carrying main batteries of eight inch guns, and equipped with engines of 100,000 horse power. They are 600 feet in length over all. The new craft will be similar in design to the eight Chicago class cruisers now under construction.

Of the three ships which still are to be contracted for under the bids opened, one will be privately built, and two in navy yards.

Offers by Other Bidders.

The next lowest private bid on the contracts awarded today was made by the New York Shipbuilding company, Camden, N. J. Its figure was $10,903,200. The two navy yards furnishing the next lowest estimates were Mare Island and Philadelphia, with figures of $9,307,770 and $10,285,906, respectively.

Philadelphia also offered to build two cruisers for ten million each, while the New York navy yard offered an estimate of $10,508,100 for one cruiser and $9,639,403 for a second.

T. J. Healy and John Pelka Improve After Operations

Two Chicagoans well known in political circles were reported improving in hospitals yesterday following operations earlier in the week. Thomas J. Healy, president of the West Side National bank and advisor to Senator Deneen, underwent an operation for appendicitis on Wednesday at the Washington boulevard hospital. John A. Pelka, former county commissioner and present head of the city department of compensation, was operated on for a stomach ailment on Thursday at St. Joseph's hospital. Mr. Healy's condition was described as "very good" and Mr. Pelka's as "better."

Premier Mac Donald to Reveal British Plans on Disarmament This Week

BULLETIN.

LONDON, June 30.—(Sunday)—(U.P.)—Premier MacDonald has definitely decided to confer with President Hoover on naval armaments as early as possible this summer, probably in August, the Sunday Express said today. He will be accompanied to Washington by Premier W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 29.—A definite pronouncement by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald on the progress of Anglo-American naval negotiations is expected within the next two or three days.

It is now believed that there will be only a general reference to the naval situation in the king's speech before parliament Tuesday, but that Mr. MacDonald will take advantage of discussion on the question in the house of commons Tuesday or Wednesday to make an announcement of the next step.

Will Invite Five Powers.

The announcement is almost sure to be a suggestion of a five power conference, at which preparatory conversations will take place before entering the full dress conference at which the work of the naval experts will be discussed and overhauled by statesmen.

There has been a lively interchange of views by cable not only between London and Washington but between London and other capitals, and it is now believed that all the naval powers are willing to discuss naval limitation. It is pointed out that the question is really much more difficult than securing some yardstick of parity between Great Britain and America. It is comparatively easy for experts to work out some common factor of measurements between 6,000 and 10,000 ton cruisers, but when the French and Italian navies are included, the question becomes more complicated.

What Equals a Cruiser?

How many French submarines are equal to a 6,000 ton cruiser and how many sub-chasers equal one submarine? How many naval seaplanes, with which the Italian navy is superbly equipped, equal how many French submarines and destroyers, and what chance would British battleships and cruisers in the Mediterranean have against a fleet of flying warships? All these questions are now being posed gleefully by the experts, who predict privately that they will have to be called in anyhow to straighten out the statesmen before the question is settled.

There is also evidence of a growing group in Great Britain which would like the conference to go further and discuss freedom of the seas, blockade, naval bases, etc.

Urge Britain Quit West Indies.

The danger to Anglo-American relations of the possession by Great Britain of fortified bases in the West Indies is also penetrating many British minds. The Fortnightly Review has an important article in which the writer suggests neutralization of the Carribbean sea.

"It occurs to us that Great Britain is in a fortunate position," he says, "being able to render America a signal service and proving thereby at the same time in an irresistable manner the resolve of the government and the British people never to enter into fratricidal strife with the people on the other side of the Atlantic.

"The service we have in mind is the neutralization of the British possessions in the Caribbean sea. The isthmus between North and South America is traversed by the Panama canal, which tomorrow may be doubled by the no less magnificent waterway across Nicaragua. The life blood of the economic existence of the United States pulses through this opening between the two oceans.

Potential Bases for Attack.

"On the Atlantic side, clustered around the entrance of the interoceanic canal and across the routes to it from the eastern seaboard, lie the British islands. Americans see in them potential bases for a hostile attack against the canal. The British people would feel the same way if America possessed a right on the Irish coast in the approaches to Liverpool.

"We give away no secret when we say that today the warlike equipment of the British colonies mentioned is negligible. It is the potentialities of the situation which exasperate the Americans. Now, if we apply to that part of the world the principle of perpetual peace so successfully existing on the Canadian border, we discover the need for neutralization already mentioned.

"To have good effect, the measure should be carried out on the following conditions: First, it should come as a free offer, and, second, no counter value for it should be demanded. For if neutralization, or call it demilitarization, comes as a consequence of American suggestion, the moral advantage of the spontaneous action we recommend will be lost. The same argument applies to the use of neutralization for bargaining. This is all the more so because the value of the British islands and the fortifications at the entrance of the Panama canal cannot be set off one against the other. This becomes clear if the magnitude of the American interests involved is taken into account."

Expect Big Fight in Commons.

When parliament meets Tuesday for opening the real work of the session, no one knows how many parties it will be composed of. Officially, there are three parties and half a dozen independent members. Unofficially, however, there will be five parties, and two will be trouble makers.

The extra two parties are the left wing of the Laborites and the right wing of the Tories. Each can muster thirty or forty votes, and each is deeply dissatisfied with the moderation of the official leaders. The left wing of the Laborites is composed chiefly of the "black gang" from Clydeside, and their leader is James Maxton, who, despite his extremist views, is a popular figure in parliament. The motto of this group is: "Socialism in our time."

On the Tory side there is an almost exactly similar division as to young Tories. The leader of the Tory "black gang" is Sir Henry Page Croft, who, although old in years, calls himself a young Tory.

Dawes Reports to Washington.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—Dispatches from Ambassador Dawes, recounting the progress of the conversations on naval reduction now being conducted in London between British officials and diplomatic representatives of the United States, France, Japan and Italy, were discussed with President Hoover by Secretary of State Stimson today. Col. Stimson declined to discuss the London negotiations, except to say that the administration has been encouraged by the general interest shown in the question of reducing navies.

CANAL EMPLOYES FIGHT WAGE CUT; VOTE TO STRIKE

Protesting against the reclassification of laborers and reduction in wages announced on Friday by the sanitary district, the International Brotherhood of Firemen, Oilers and Maintenance Laborers, local No. 7, last night voted to strike. About 200 men are affected by the walkout, which is to go into effect Tuesday at 11 o'clock.

The vote on the strike, it was reported, was 95 for and 6 against. The meeting was held in the hall at 175 West Washington boulevard. J. W. Morton is president of the union and E. J. Howells business agent.

"I warned President Elmore that a strike might result if the board voted the decrease in wages," Howells said.

Drinkwater's 'Lincoln' Put on Radio for Austrians

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, June 29.—The first German production of John Drinkwater's play, "Abraham Lincoln," was broadcast by a Vienna radio station this evening. The translation was made by Erich Glass, a young Anglo-Austrian. Hans Peppler, popular Reinhardt actor, played the title rôle; Karl Goetz was the Negro preacher, Frederick Douglas.

MUSSOLINI JAILS TWO FOR LETTER RAPPING ITALY

ROME, June 29.—For having secretly sent out information, held to be damaging to Italy, Arnaldo Guerrini, former secretary of the Republican federation of Ravenna, and Egilberto Mazzotti, former Socialist, were given four and three year terms of imprisonment respectively by Premier Mussolini's special military tribunal for the defense of the state today.

Some months ago Guerrini gave Mazzotti a letter to post when he was outside Italy addressed to Jeanne Delage in Paris. The letter spoke of a grave crises in Italian affairs.

FRANCE BOWS TO U. S. WILL ON PAYMENT OF DEBT

Takes Refusal to Extend Time Calmly.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 29.—Confronted with a polite but very clear refusal from the United States government that it is constitutionally impossible to postpone the date of maturity of the $407,000,000 war stocks debt, due on Aug. 1, the French parliament tonight seemed suddenly to have come down to earth again.

Immediately on receipt of a report from Ambassador Claudel at Washington, D. C., regarding his conversation with Secretary Stimson, which he was ordered to make after the chamber's romantic gesture of revolt Thursday night, Premier Poincare called the cabinet and read the report to them. Then, holding to his promise to inform the deputies at once, he called the finance and foreign affairs commissions. He read the report to the former body, while Foreign Minister Briand read it to the latter.

Resigned to "Fate."

The two commissions heard the response, which both Premier Poincare and M. Briand previously had warned them was inevitable, quietly. Both took note of the communication without discussion. It was feared the chamber might agitate for an immediate discussion on the response, precipitating another near cabinet crisis, but influential members of the commissions saw to it that nothing of the manage somehow to debate ratifica- kind took place. This means that, as far as war stocks are concerned, parliament accepts the inevitable and will manage somehow to debate ratification of the war debts between now and Aug. 1.

Both commissions will meet again Tuesday to begin discussions on the debt problem and prepare a report for the chamber, in the hopes of launching a general free for all debate in the lower house the following Tuesday. The government confidently expects to emerge from the struggle with a majority on ratification. Every party in the chamber is so divided on the issue that it has lost anything like a purely political complexion.

The necessity for going ahead on ratification and forgetting momentarily all about the relation of the debts to the Young plan in a settlement of German reparations became more evident to the deputies this afternoon when M. Briand admitted to the foreign affairs commission, after sharp questioning by M. Gurmbacs, Alsatian socialist, that the international liquidation conference cannot possibly convene before Aug. 15.

M. Gurmbacs asked if a special session of parliament would be called to ratify the Young plan so that it would go into effect on Sept. 1. M. Briand responded that he thought they would be lucky to discuss the experts plan by October, as he considered the liquidation conference was sure to run most of the way through September.

"Well, we can safely tell the world that the Americans have been very nice to us," he said sarcastically. "O, yes, very nice indeed. They escorted us gently to the door and taking us by the shoulders said, 'Cher ami, you are very tired, go and rest.'"

Rene Renoult, the most important deputy of the majority, announced in a loud voice that the answer was only what could be expected in view of the adjournment of congress, and added that he thought Washington always acted most considerately toward France.

Ambassador Claudel's Report.

PARIS, June 29.—(AP)—American Secretary of State Stimson gave Ambassador Claudel no hope for a favorable decision on the French request yesterday for postponement of maturity of the French debt for American war stocks, it appeared today at a meeting of the cabinet, which considered Ambassador Claudel's dispatch in reply. The French ambassador's report says:

"The ambassador of France applied himself with great energy and set forth to the American government the reasons for the request of postponement as asked by the chamber and contained in the dispatch received.

"The secretary recalled with visible emotion that he was an old friend of France, having French blood in his veins, and that he worked for three years to obtain the entrance of the United States into the war, and himself enlisted at 50 and served through the whole campaign.

"The secretary regretted that the question was one for which a favorable solution did not seem possible. He declared that the question posed by the French chamber of deputies had already been considered by the cabinet on the strength of press reports on the session at which the resolution concerned was adopted.

"It was decided that the constitution did not give the President power to postpone the maturity of such an obligation. Moreover, the resolution passed by congress June 27 would have deprived him of that right had it existed.

"As to calling a special session of congress to act again on the question, Secretary Stimson remarked that all the senators and congressmen were dispersed, many of them, including the speaker of the house, being abroad.

"Besides, the secretary added, the difficulty encountered in obtaining a postponement gave no hope that congress, even if willing to reconsider the matter, would vote conformably with the desire expressed in the resolution of the chamber of deputies.

"Mr. Stimson remarked with sadness that American opinion was no less troubled over the debt question than opinion in France."

U. S. OFFICIALS PUT LID ON DISCUSSION OF FRENCH WAR DEBT

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Administration officials clamped the lid tightly today on discussion of the French debt problems and all attempts to obtain official information regarding this government's position were futile. Informally, it was learned, however, that the United States has not receded from its position that the French post-armistice war stocks debt of 400 million should be paid on its maturity date, Aug. 1, unless the Mellon-Berenger French-American war debt agreement is ratified prior to that ime.

Should France ratify the four billion dollar war debt proper prior to Aug. 1, then the administration would postpone the due date for payment of the war stocks bill until May 1, 1930, in order to give the American congress time to ratify the Mellon-Berenger agreement.

In case both governments have ratified the war debt agreement prior to May 1, 1930, then the 400 million dollar war stocks bill will be merged with the 4 billion dollar war debt. Should the United States refuse to ratify the Mellon-Berenger agreement after France had acted on it, then the war stocks bill would be due on May 1, 1930.

SHE'S SORRY, BUT HER SORROW GETS HER A $25 FINE

Standing before the bar of justice in Municipal Judge Samuel Heller's court yesterday morning, Mrs. Pauline Seeger, 40 years old, of 2700 East 75th street, said:

"I'm sorry——"

Judge Heller, S. P. Nice, a street car conductor, and an attorney for the car company, all thought Mrs. Seeger was going to say she was sorry she had lost her temper and tried to slap the conductor on Friday night. Each was willing that she be discharged and Judge Heller turned to enter such an order, when—

"I'm sorry I didn't give him more," Mrs. Seeger, continued with a snap of her teeth.

Judge Heller looked up and frowned.

"Twenty-five and costs!" he announced.

SOUTH AMERICAN THIRST-QUENCHER FOLLOWS HOOVER HOME

Greatest Sensation Since Prohibition. Only Stimulant Used Daily by 30,000,000 South Americans.

"Let's get acquainted with South America," proposed President Hoover a few months ago. The response of the gay and light-hearted people of that great continent has been prompt and cordial.

"Come! Drink with us to friendship," is their warm invitation to the people of the United States.

Great is the amazement of tourists to South America to learn that 30,000,000 natives of that land of adventure and romance never drink coffee, tea, whiskey, gin, brandy or wines but rely entirely for stimulation and exhilaration upon an amazing herb, Yerba Mate, from which YERMAT takes its name.

Dashing and happy-go-lucky, the dare-devil Gauchos of the pampas, perfect specimens of robust manhood, spurn alcoholic stimulants as insipid and harmful and ride from morning till night with no other refreshment than Yerba Mate.

Six thousand years old is this remarkable thirst-quencher and stimulant. Yet until now it has been virtually unknown in this country.

Incomparable and indescribable is the strange, enticing, pungent, "foreign" flavor of this happiest of thirst-quenchers—so different from mawkish, cloying, syrupy, insipid beverages.

How its popularity has grown in its own home land is indicated by records showing that its consumption has increased from 1,378,000 pounds in 1726 to more than 500,000,000 pounds in the year 1928.

Like good wine, YERMAT is a splendid aid to digestion as well as a harmless stimulant. Through the Department of Commerce the United States Government says: "The effects of Yerba Mate drinking are stimulating without any perceptible deleterious reaction on the system. It fortifies the body against fatigue and its use is undoubtedly responsible for the remarkable endurance of the South American."

In any company—two or a crowd—YERMAT promotes the very spirit of gaiety and conviviality. Everywhere the drinking of toasts is being resumed with this fitting drink.

Here in a bottle costing only 30 cents is the same joyous sparkle and inspiration that bubbles in real French champagne.

Go at once to your nearest dealer and ask for YERMAT. Take home a supply and give the family a wonderful treat.

POWERS BEHIND MIKADO CAUSE CABINET CRISIS

Early Fall of Tanaka's Government Seen.

BY ST. CLAIR M'KELWAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, June 29.—With the quiet precision of men whose words make governments and break them, the elder statesmen close to Japan's young emperor, Hirohito, have been moving slowly but surely this week, and tonight it seems certain that Premier Baron Giichi Tanaka and his cabinet must fall.

The existence of the political crisis leaked out this morning as the climax neared, and this evening newsboys, with extra editions of the newspapers, overran the city. All agreed that the government will resign within the week, some fixing Tuesday as the definite date.

The Nippon Dempo asserts and so do some of the others, that Premier Tanaka will call an extraordinary cabinet meeting on Monday, when the final decision to hand over the reins of government will be made, and, with the emperor granting an immediate audience, he would submit his resignation the same day.

Imperial Advisers Criticize.

Anyhow, it is known that Prince Saionji, Count Makino, lord keeper of the privy seal, and Admiral K. Suzuki, in characteristic roundabout fashion, criticized Baron Tanaka on Friday. Their murmurs, if unfavorable, unquestionably mean the eventual, if not early, downfall of the government, for they are the real powers behind the imperial throne.

The reasons for the government's fall, according to the local press, are numerous, but the events leading to the climax are said to be the impending unpublished government report on the murder of Gen. Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord, a year ago, and the government's policy on the Kellogg treaty, which caused the resignation of Count Uchida, former foreign minister and privy counsellor, this week.

Resent Blame on Military.

All the indications are that the military authorities, in other words, the bureaucracy, resented the Chinese report, which demands disciplinary action toward the commander of the Japanese railway garrison where Gen. Chang Tso-lin's train was wrecked, and that they have managed Premier Tanaka's downfall, to demonstrate the power of appointed bureaucrats over political government.

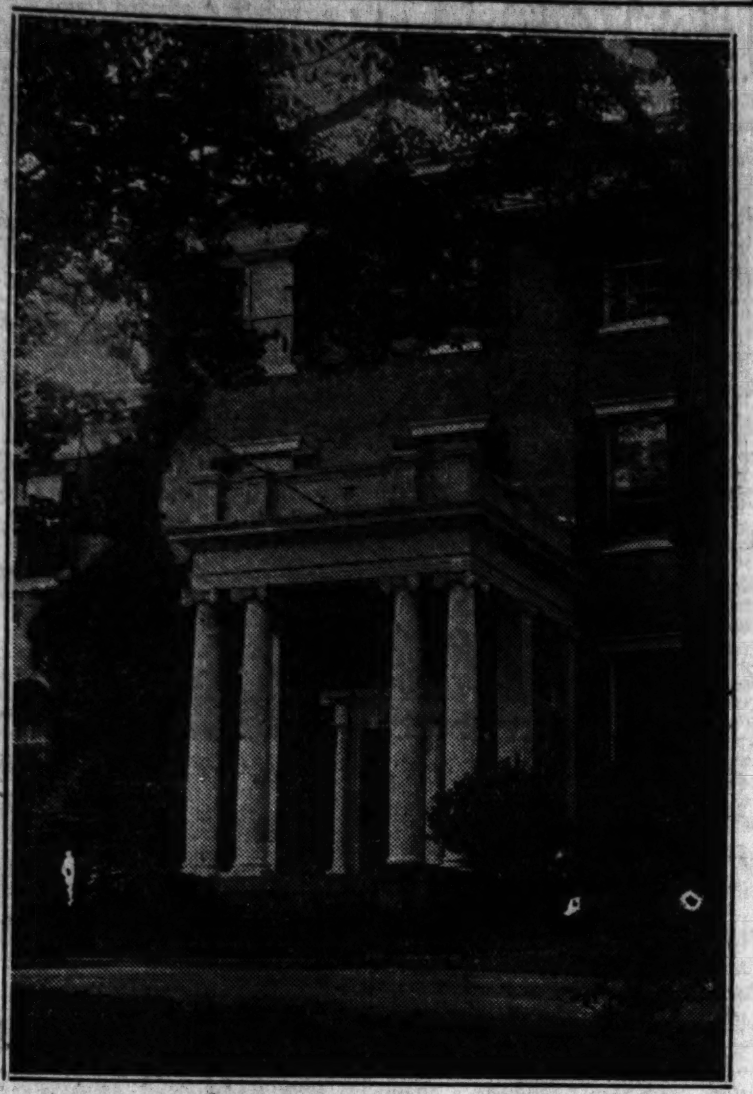
Col. Daisaku Kawamoto, the commander held responsible for lack of protection at the railway crossing, today began one year of suspension. Lieut. Gen. Tsune Saito, former chief of staff in the Kwangtung army, and Maj. Gen. Takezo Mizumachi were subjected to major disciplinary confinement. Lieut. Gen. Chotaro Kuraoko, commander of the Kwantung army, probably goes on the waiting list tomorrow.

Tanaka Gets Resignations.

Premier Tanaka apparently foresaw the crisis early in the week, when at a series of conferences he obtained the resignations of all the cabinet members. The official explanation was that he planned a reorganization of the cabinet and wished a free hand in forming it. It is said that the resignations were obtained so that he could submit them to the emperor at the proper moment.

Three ministers objected to handing in resignations, but after interviewing Prince Saionji they gave up hope of staying in office. The prince received them, sat silently drinking tea and listened to their tales of woe. Then without a word indicated he had heard enough and showed them the door.

Stimson Buys Historic Mansion



Historic mansion, "Woodley," at 3000 Cathedral avenue, Washington, which has been purchased by Secretary of State Stimson. It is the former home of four Presidents.

Presidents' Home

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson has purchased as his home "Woodley," a historic property overlooking Rock Creek park, in which four Presidents have lived and historic conferences have been held.

The large southern colonial house, surrounded by spacious grounds, was the summer home of Presidents Van Buren, Tyler, Buchanan, and Cleveland. It once was owned by Benjamin Stoddert, the first secretary of the navy.

George Washington was a frequent visitor to the spot and is said to have suggested it as the proper one for the capitol.

Col. E. M. House held at Woodley many of his important conferences with foreign diplomats prior to America's entry into the world war.

CREAGER SLURS INQUIRY EFFORT OF COMMITTEE

San Antonio, Tex., June 29.—(AP)—Vigorously defending his actions as Republican national committeeman, Rene B. Creager testified today before the senate patronage committee, charging the committee had exceeded the authority granted it by the senate and telling Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa, chairman, that "you can't bluff me."

Greager went on the stand after a parade of witnesses had defended the Texas Republican organization. He prefaced his testimony with the statement that the "committee has exceeded the authority granted it" by considering subjects other than patronage.

"And I refer to the chairman when I say that even common courtesy has not been extended to persons appearing before the committee," Graeger said.

Senator Brookhart, after Creager had made reference to "riff raff" testifying before the committee, said: "Well, you might as well know you aren't going to bluff anybody on this committee."

"And you are not going to bluff me," Creager replied.

Woman Leaves Sickbed to Hang Self with Gown

Miss Frances Hummel, 35 years old, arose from her sick bed at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and, complaining of the heat in her bedroom, walked downstairs to the basement of her home, 2911 North Richmond street. A couple of hours later, her brother, Lester, became uneasy and went downstairs to investigate. He found her body hanging from an overhead water pipe by her nightgown, which was tied around her neck. She had been ill for some time.

Take Home a Carton of JOY!

12-Bottle Family Size Carton . . . $3.25

85¢

Imported Yerba Mate, pure fruit flavors, cane sugar and distilled water are all that enter into Yermat. No wonder it sells for a trifle more than beverages made of less expensive ingredients.

10¢ A GLASS AT FOUNTAINS

When only a glass of Yermat is desired; cork the bottle tightly and put in a cold place. The remainder will retain its original sparkle and freshness for several days.

The next time you visit a food or drug store, take home a carton of Yermat Stimulating Drink. You'll readily agree that it's "bottled joy" when you see how it banishes worry and fatigue and makes every one feel happy and full of life.

Yermat is utterly different from the average insipid soft drink that merely quenches thirst. It's brewed from genuine Yerba Mate, an herb used for centuries in South America as an effective but harmless stimulant. Thus in flavor, sparkle and stimulating effect it actually rivals the finest French champagne!

The 30 million South Americans who drink Yerba Mate daily are distinguished by their unfailing good humor and their ability to do the hardest kind of work without tiring. So noticeably does it pep them up and enliven their spirits that they have absolutely no desire for alcoholic beverages!

A Beneficial Stimulant

Medical authorities assert that Yerba Mate stimulates without increasing the heart action, irritating the nerves or causing insomnia! Yermat, therefore, may be freely consumed . . . even by children, the aged and those afflicted with ailments which prohibit the use of coffee and alcohol.

Another important reason for drinking Yermat is its beneficial effect on the stomach. Doctors say that its regular use will counteract acidity and thus prevent heartburn and gas. Try it as a table beverage and see how your digestion improves!

A Delightful Thirst-Quencher

You will find Yermat to be the finest thirst-quencher you ever tasted. It instantly relieves the most burning thirst and stimulates you to such an extent that you actually don't mind the heat.

If taken daily for a period of two weeks, Yermat will make a new person of you. It will cheer you up and make you more vigorous than you have been in years. Give it a trial and mark the change in the way you look and feel.

Drink Yermat as an "eye opener" on arising, at meal-time, and whenever you feel thirsty, tired or blue. Also enliven your friends with it when they drop in to call or play bridge. It's sold by the carton at food and drug stores, and is served by the glass or bottle at fountains, restaurants, hotels and clubs. Get a carton of Yermat for over the Fourth of July and let it promote the spirit of joy, revelry and good fellowship!

SPANISH FLYER TELLS OF GETTING LOST OVER OCEAN

Flew Past Azores, Then Ran Out of Gas.

weather blackened but still sound, the four flyers and their seaworthy airplane were taken aboard the Eagle and given the necessaries and comforts that their long exposure required.

Madrid Wild with Joy.

MADRID, June 29.—(AP)—All Spain poured into the streets of cities and villages today in one vast roaring demonstration of national joy for the discovery this morning of the four Spanish aviators who had been lost and despaired of since they failed to arrive in the Azores islands last Saturday.

The aviators' plane was salvaged also, although in slightly damaged condition. It was hoisted on board the carrier.

One of the first things Premier Primo de Rivera did after he heard the news was to attend a special mass of thanksgiving with other high officials in the ministry of war.

The British embassy was surrounded by cheering and grateful crowds of Spaniards.

Street demonstrations of joy began spontaneously throughout Madrid a few minutes after the government announcement of the message saying that Maj. Franco and his companions had been found alive. Thousands of enthusiasts began marching through the streets shouting and cheering.

Due at Gibraltar Tuesday.

GIBRALTAR, June 29.—Preparations are being made here and in surrounding Spanish towns to celebrate the arrival of the British aircraft carrier Eagle with Commander Ramon Franco and his three companions. They are expected to arrive here Tuesday.

Recalls Other Sea Rescues.

New York, June 29. — (AP) — The Azores has been the scene of other fortunate rescues since man with his air machines first defied the elements in efforts to span the Atlantic.

Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, American trans-Atlantic flyers, and Commander Francesco De Pinedo of Italy were saved there from almost certain death by timely recue by steamships.

Other notable sea rescues of aviators elsewhere after hope almost had been abandoned, were those of Harry G. Hawker, English daredevil, in 1919, and the late Commander John Rodgers and his crew of naval aviators who were found floating on the wreckage of their plane off the Hawaiian Islands in 1925.

Ship Saves Miss Elder.

Miss Elder and Haldeman were rescued off the Azores when a broken air line forced them down Sept. 13, 1927, they were picked up by the Dutch Tanker Barendrecht.

Commander De Pinedo was flying home after a tour of four continents. Forced down on his flight from Trepassey, N. F., to the Azores, he was towed safely into Fayal.

Probably the most notable rescue during the last decade was that of Commander Rodgers and his crew in the seaplane in which they were flying from San Francisco to Honolulu. Missing for days, they finally were sighted off Kaui. Although they had fallen short of their goal, they established a long distance flight record. Rodgers later was killed in an airplane accident at Philadelphia.

The luck which followed Harry Hawker, famous English aviator for many years while he wrote new records into the sky, was with him on his flight with a companion from St. John's, New Foundland, to Europe on May 18, 1919. For seven days wild reports of their fate stirred the world until a message from the S. S. Mary told of their safe rescue in mid-Atlantic.

Spanish Flyers Rescued from Sea Near Azores

The map shows the course which the Spanish flyers, who were rescued yesterday, took after leaving Cartagena, Spain, a week ago Friday for New York. They overshot the Azores, landed, circled back and then, out of fuel, were forced to come down again. For a week, the plane drifted until found by the British airplane carrier.

Sheet Metal Workers Honor W. J. Rooney

More than a thousand members of the sheet metal workers' union and their wives attended a testimonial banquet at the Palmer house last evening for W. J. Rooney, business manager of the union and one of the two American delegates to the British trades congress to be held in Belfast, Ireland, next September. At the speakers' table were Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board; Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, Deputy Fire Commissioner Edward Maloney, and Michael Kelly, labor director for the board of education.

Slide at Niagara Falls Ties Up Railway Traffic

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 29.—[Special.]—A rock slide which came down the precipice nearly two hundred feet last night tied up the Niagara Falls Gorge Route railway. Cars from Niagara Falls to Lewiston connecting with the Toronto steamer were routed over Canadian side to Queenston until workmen had cleared away the tons of limestone on the right of way. A clear view of the obstruction enabled the operator of the Toronto boat car to stop in time to avert a disaster.

PRIVATE BANKING HOUSE CLOSES; "RUN" IS BLAMED

New York Institution Was Founded in 1843.

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Clarke Brothers, private bankers in Nassau street, at the edge of the financial district since their organization in 1843, closed their doors today and filed a bankruptcy petition in the federal court, with a request for a receiver.

The Irving Trust company was named receiver.

Unprecedented withdrawals, a typewritten notice on the bank's doors said, caused the crisis. Payment of 100 cents on the dollar was promised the bank's depositors.

The petition, filed for the firm by its attorney, gave no inkling of the actual state of the bank's financial affairs beyond the statement that there are $6,000,000 assets "if liquidated in the ordinary course of business."

The state banking department had no supervision over the private firm.

The institution was founded as William Clarke & Sons. It went through a failure in 1903 and later was reorganized as Clarke Brothers by Hudson Clarke. Mr. Clarke, now 76 years old, retired several years ago because of illness.

RENEW HUNT FOR WAR 'VET,' MISSING FROM HOME FOR TEN WEEKS

WILLIAM S. PHELPS.

Police yesterday renewed their search for William S. Phelps, 29 year old world war veteran, believed to be suffering from loss of memory, who was last seen when he left his home at 18 Highwood avenue, Highwood, Ill., to take a train for Chicago, some ten weeks ago.

Phelps was wounded in France, a piece of shrapnel having entered his head, and it was this old wound that was believed to have made him a victim of amnesia. His wife, a bride of ten months, told police she has exhausted every means to trace or find him.

Phelps, she said, had noticeable powder burns around his left eye. He is about 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 178 pounds.

Upon regaining consciousness Fahnestock told hospital attachés he had swallowed six poison tablets Friday night and four more yesterday morning. Pressed for a motive, he declared he took the poison "for pastime." His recovery is doubtful.

JOHNSTON MYERS WARNS CHURCHES TO GROW OR DIE

On His 34th Anniversary, Pastor Looks Ahead.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers, dean of the Protestant clergy of Chicago, celebrates today the 34th anniversary of his pastorate at Immanuel Baptist church, 2323 South Michigan avenue.

Speaking last night of his anniversary, which will be observed with ceremonies today at Immanuel church, Dr. Myers was disinclined to review his long pastorate, nor did he seem interested in giving figures on the great growth of the church under his leadership. He spoke of the coming of the automobile, the radio, the airplane, and of improved standards of living. Yet these things seemed of incidental importance as compared with the essential change of thinking which he believes will compel the churches of the future to revise their methods of work if they are to survive.

"We must take a different view of the Bible today," Dr. Myers declared. "It is none the less the word of God, but the new knowledge and recent discoveries are compelling us to interpret it very much differently than our fathers did. The same is true of Christ. He is no less the savior of the world than he was, but it is impossible for us to think of him today as we did a generation ago when I came to Chicago."

Forecasts New Church.

Dr. Myers sees in the near future a different sort of church. He said it will be a church adapted to its day and not one that holds on to modes of thinking of a past generation.

"We have failed to adjust the church to new conditions," Dr. Myers said. "It has been so much wrapped up in the past that it failed to adjust to the newer developments. As a result there is an increasing weakness which any one can see. A new church is bound to come. It will be a church new in methods and new in theology."

When asked to indicate some of the marks of the coming church, Dr. Myers spoke of changes in methods of worship but stressed the idea that it must be a ministering church. He stated that many of the present forms of worship mean nothing at all to many people who are really interested in Christianity. He cited unemployment and the general problem of poverty as central to the new church's interests, and spoke of the church as the connecting link between the sick person and the physician.

"Many people do not get hospital service today because of fear," he said. "They are afraid of doctors, afraid of hospitals, afraid of the expense connected with getting the medical and surgical aid they need. The new church must act to assuage these fears. The church also will combat the causes of exorbitant costs in medical aid."

Play Outside Church Sphere.

Gymnasiums and social amusements in connection with church work have never interested Dr. Myers, according to his statement. The church has too much else to do than to play with such toys, he observed.

"Commercial amusement enterprises are taking fairly good care of the amusement field," Dr. Myers said. "For 44 years, ten years in Cincinnati and 34 years in Chicago, as a pioneer in the ministering type of church I know that the new church will have too much to do, to feed the hungry and to guide the sick to medical aid, to look after amusement enterprises.

"Immanuel church is looking for a young man to take on the burdens of leadership. That man has not yet been found. Our theological seminaries answer many inquiries by saying, 'We are not turning out the kind of men you need for Immanuel's problems.'"

DENIES PLASTERERS WILL STRIKE MONDAY FOR WAGE INCREASE

Percy World of the Employing Plasterers' association last night denied the rumor that negotiations between the association and plasters' union have ended unsatisfactorily and would be followed tomorrow morning by a strike of journeymen plasterers.

Officers of the plasterers' union and employers have been holding conferences on a new wage contract for several weeks. The employers offered the plasterers a scale of $13.60 a day or $1.70 an hour to become effective on Oct. 1, the same date set for the bricklayers' increase from $1.62½ to $1.70 an hour. Five years was to be the period of agreement for the plasterers.

It was explained that at the last plasterers' meeting the radical forces succeeded in having a resolution adopted which makes it mandatory for the plastering contractors to pay the $13.60 a day scale beginning tomorrow morning. The contractors' refusal to meet that demand gave rise to the strike rumor, according to World. A settlement of the dispute is expected to be made Tuesday night at a union meeting.

MODERN GODIVA HEADS PAGEANT IN PINK TIGHTS

COVENTRY, England, June 29.—(AP)—An estimated 300,000 persons lined the main thoroughfare of this old city today as a beautiful golden haired girl rode on a white charger through the heart of the town attired only in flesh-colored tights. It was a holiday pageant and procession of Lady Godiva enacted for the benefit of the Coventry hospital.

Hundreds of Americans and other tourists crowded the streets to watch the reënactment of the ancient story of the Saxon lady who rode naked through the streets of Coventry about 1040 A. D. to gain from her husband, Leofric, earl of Mercia, the remission of oppressive taxes on his people.

Miss Muriel Mellerup, the modern Lady Godiva, faced the crowds and hundreds of cameras without flinching. But there was an undertone of criticism of the program in some quarters. The presence of numerous clergymen, aldermen and other dignitaries, however, silenced the opposition. Lady Godiva's horse was led by Benedictine nuns and headed a procession four miles long.

BAD GENERALSHIP; BRAVE GENERALS.

The war books come in waves of realism, comedy, heroics, and memoirs, but about the conduct of the war itself from the standpoint of military science few books have been written, and they are inadequate. There may be a number of reasons for the lack of them, but certainly one is that there was no outstanding leader, no Cæsar, Hannibal, Napoleon, or Grant. Without a hero a book is likely to become a mere chronicle, and chronicles are not much fun in the writing or the reading either.

There was in the last war no great captain to build a book around, and not even a revolutionary strategic or tactical idea to serve as a central theme. You look in vain for a Cæsar or a Vercingetorix in the Gaul of 1914-'18; and you look in vain, also, for an irresistible Roman legion or a Roman short sword. There were new weapons, gas, tanks and airplanes, to mention only the most conspicuous among many, but none of them was responsible for victory. There is nothing in the record to inspire the military historian who cannot see beyond the traditional themes of his craft. The war was won by the allies, not because of any brilliant commander or military conception, but in spite of repeated errors. When it finally was won victory came to the side whose leaders had made the more mistakes.

The plan of the French general staff in 1914 can be characterized only as contemptible in its stupidity and inadequacy. It contemplated an invasion of Germany at the point where invasion was all but impossible, and it concentrated troops where they were in greatest danger of being cut off and where they could be withdrawn only with great difficulty and delay. The plan would have been unworthy of a cadet. It was bound to fail and it did. The German plan was sound in a purely military sense. The Germans hoped they would meet no resistance in Belgium, but they were prepared for it should it develop. If the Belgian army and fortresses had not opposed them the Germans would have crossed Belgium in six days. As it was, it took 18 days. The delay was short, evidence of the allied panic as of the efficiency of the German plan. In their advance the Germans scored a number of tactical victories and a great strategic success. From past experience, as recent as the Franco-Prussian war, they had every reason to believe they had achieved an overwhelming triumph and the French had fully as much reason to believe they were defeated.

According to the books, the French army should have collapsed and Joffre should have surrendered his troops. Instead he, or perhaps some of his subordinates, stood firm. The Germans were surprised by the unexpected French resistance. It was not the German soldiers but their leaders who in turn were seized with panic. Von Moltke was found lacking in morale and retreated from the first battle of the Marne.

In that sequence of events is summarized the whole story of the war, a story which was repeated time and again. The allies were inferior in leadership on the technical side, but their leadership was superior in morale. As tacticians and strategists the Germans had the edge virtually to the end. In 1917, for example, they delivered a crushing defeat to the French at the Chemin des Dames. It was perhaps the most bloody repulse of the war. The Senegalese fled 10 kilometers in a panic. Mutiny broke out in the allied ranks. Again an imperturbable, if only moderately skillful general was found in Petain, who succeeded to the command which had been held by Nivelle. The panic was quelled.

On March 21, 1918, the Germans, by another masterful maneuver, broke the English army. The British troops were flying in disorder to the seacoast, having lost mountains of stores and tens of thousands of prisoners. Again victory was in the grasp of the Germans and again the allies managed to rally under a man who had strong nerves. Foch refused to be stampeded and succeeded in plugging up the holes knocked in the English line. By that time he had superiority of man power, to be sure, though the value of the raw American troops was open to question, but his strength in numbers, whatever it was worth, was more than matched by his superior sang froid, which he had demonstrated as early as the first battle of the Marne.

The Germans beat him at the Chemin des Dames again in May, but he maintained his equanimity and held his lines together, though the situation seemed desperate. At this point the German morale failed again. They had victory in their grasp but failed to make the most of their advantage.

Nothing especially serious in the field led to the German surrender. They had been pushed back, but neither as far nor as fast as the allies had been before both battles of the Marne, and the German inferiority in 1918 in men and supplies was less marked than had been the inferiority of the allies in these particulars at any earlier date. Meanwhile the war had taught the advantage of the defensive position. The machine gun was the ideal weapon for the type of fighting which the Germans were called upon to undertake. The French morale, under calm but not particularly skillful generals, had survived situations as trying as that which confronted the Germans in the autumn of 1918. The German morale collapsed from the top. The supreme command had the highest intellectual endowments, as the conduct of the final retreat demonstrated, but it was lacking in the supreme military virtue. The German command was not indomitable. Hindenburg's reputation, much of which is fully deserved, cannot offset the fact of his panic. He no doubt thinks his reputation is based on his accomplishments as a soldier. Posterity may hail him as a statesman.

SCHOOLS FOR THE MODERN WORLD.

Baffled critics of these times find in the educational system their refuge and their convenience. When worlds go wrong and the human race falls into unaccountable error the educational system usually must absorb the blame. As the schools unfortunately do not produce a perfect human being, able to run the world with neither friction nor confusion, they are rated low in the long programs of cosmic reform.

That the schools and colleges do fail to meet the needs of a new time, of course, must be admitted. Their readjustments to new factors and conditions in the modern world have been slow and tardily conceived. They have held back and blundered. But the critic's tendency to use them as receptacles for all the blame and difficulty of a world in transition is hardly sound. An educational system can only formulate the attitudes and outlook of the society in which it is, and the failures of society will be represented in the faults of the educational system.

Thorough revision of our system of education from bottom to top is needed, says Dr. S. A. Mitchell of the University of Virginia. Useless fads in education are the trouble, says Dr. E. K. Rand of Harvard; Horatian contentment, a correct theology, and classical learning should be promoted. More sound culture based on knowledge of science and the humanities is the need, says Prof. W. L. Phelps of Yale. They all blame generously, though the reforms offered are characterized more by emotional indefiniteness than by constructive and specific propositions.

America pays some $3,000,000,000 annually to educate her citizens. From about $800,000,000 in 1913 the costs of all schools and colleges had advanced in 1925 to about two and one-half billion dollars. This is much money, and few Americans would wish it less. But a skillful use of funds of such size is of high importance. Whether the dollar buys full value in educational goods is a question.

Education is a selection and a condensation of experience. It is experience designed to give life fullness and a competent approach to future problems. When the schools forget this fact and this purpose education fails. Usually it fails in part: sometimes it pulls backward on the real progress of the times. For education should be conditioned by the present rather than the past, with the future as the main regard, and a school system dominated by traditional bodies of learning long removed from the vital currents of the times may do more harm than good. And education must be flexibly adapted to the needs of individuals. It must look forward; it must be infinitely adaptable.

The mechanized systems of our schools and colleges are their first and foremost failure, and the structures of grades, credits, degrees that bind the educational life of America into stereotyped forms refute in great part the purpose for which schools are founded. Why should a college education be a fixed course of four years, 120 credits, sixty per cent above D grade? Just what do these quantitative standards of educational value mean? Examined frankly, they mean the imposition of noneducational aims and interests on the schools. They mean the standardization of teaching at the expense of real education.

Education should give experience to the student and, by that experience, bring out his powers and values. Its value is founded on the inner authority that it finds in the lives of men. Externalization is its destruction. Education is not quantitative.

Editorial of the Day

AN UNBELIEVABLE TALE.

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

Two days ago Mrs. Katherine Post, 56 years old, mother of 16 children, passed through St. Louis from Arkansas on her way to a federal prison in West Virginia. She was in the custody of a United States marshal, and had been convicted of selling whisky.

Mrs. Post is the wife of a fruit grower living near Altus, Ark. Their home is some 45 miles from Fort Smith. Five of her children are under 18 years of age and living at home. A woman remarkably typical of that sturdy stock which pioneered the United States, Mrs. Post made a profound impression upon all those at the station who witnessed this amazing American tragedy. The institution to which she is going is the Federal Industrial House of Correction. It is at Alderson, W. Va. Conveying this country woman thence, the majestic United States government provided an entourage of one United States marshal and the marshal's mother as matron.

It was charged against slavery in those stirring days before the civil war that it did more than sell human beings into servitude. It tore the mother from her children, and the husband from the wife. The humane instincts of those who opposed slavery were so fired by these incredible cruelties that they became at length a flaming sword. Yet here we have duplicated in another time those very abominations for which slavery was destroyed. Presumably those who put prohibition above the humanities, as in another time there were those who put slavery above the humanities, can justify the transportation of this woman from Arkansas to West Virginia.

Mr. Lincoln said: "If slavery is not wrong, then nothing is wrong."

To paraphrase that powerful pronouncement, if transporting this woman, for such a petty offense, from her country home down in the Arkansas woods to a federal prison in West Virginia, tearing her away from her family—if that is not wrong, then nothing is wrong.

RELIGION AND SPORT

BY THE REV. A. HAIRE FORSTER, A. M., B. D.
[Professor of Literature, Western Theological Seminary (Episcopal), Evanston].

A member of the Toronto Yacht club once said that there was more Christianity in his club than in the church, for even in the middle of a race a yacht would give up its chance of winning and turn aside to help another yacht in distress, whereas wealthy parishes preferred to ornament themselves rather than aid weaker churches. Whatever truth there may be in this criticism, and perhaps there is some, it is only carrying further the idea of St. Paul that the canons of sport are needed in the church at least as much as any other canons. He asks that the definiteness and discipline of the Greek games be introduced into the religious life. Sportsmanship is perhaps man's greatest achievement; he has introduced law and order into his play. Before the Olympic games, the competitors took an oath before the altar of Zeus that they would observe the rules of the contest.

Sir Horace Plunkett, the founder of the Irish agricultural coöperative system, tells of going to see a football match between two clubs, one of which was Parnellite in politics and the other anti-Parnellite. "When I arrived on the scene," he says, "the game had begun in deadly earnest, but I noticed the ball lying neglected in a distant corner of the field." That is the result of introducing politics into sport. Who can estimate the results if the spirit of sportsmanship were introduced into politics, business, international relations and religion? When congress passed the Japanese exclusion bill soon after the Tokio earthquake they may have been prudent politicians but they were poor sportsmen. They might have learned a lesson from the Maoris of New Zealand, who found that the English, with whom they were fighting, had run out of ammunition and sent them over a supply. They said it was no fun shooting at men who could not shoot back. President Roosevelt is an example of a man who carried his sportsmanship into politics. In his 1912 campaign he was urged to use a scandalous story about his rival, Mr. Wilson, a story now known to be entirely false. Mr. Roosevelt indignantly refused; he would rather lose the presidency than win by unfair means, and that is the essence of sportsmanship.

When King Richard the First was fighting the Saracens in Palestine he was hampered by the sickness of his horses. The Saracen commander sent him a present of two thoroughbred Arab chargers. That was chivalry or sportsmanship, for the two are one. Sportsmanship is the successor of chivalry and the lineage can easily be traced. The monastic education of the middle ages was found too often to be producing sneaks and sham saints and so there was added to it the chivalric training such as a boy received in the castle of a knight. That is what William of Wykeham did when he founded Winchester school with its motto: "Manners Maketh Man," and by manners he meant the courtesy and fair play of a knight.

Games under proper guidance create self-control, the sense of honor, the esprit de corps which the page and esquire learned in the medieval castle. Furthermore, games seem to be the only antidote to modern industrial and city civilization. In 1790, three per cent of the population lived in cities; in 1920, 53 per cent. This means that the opportunity for activities which a country boy has is gone for most boys today and we have the "city where crime is play," where amusement has taken the place of recreation, and where we find city halls of classic beauty and inside them politicians whose flabby bodies well express their flabby minds.

Character is the product of guided activities and not of books; free play centers with proper supervision would probably have produced a better race than free schools have done—not that that is saying much.

Commercial, professional, and spectator athletics do not properly come into a discussion of sport if we are thinking of sport as a means for the physical and mental improvement of all the people, and that is the kind of sport in which the church is interested, though professional athletics probably do increase the popularity of games. The extraordinary precision and the almost perfect coördination of mind and muscle as shown in professional baseball is certainly worthy of imitation, and many professional ball players are known to be also sportsmen.

Universities, where the best and wisest are presumably collected, are the places in which we might expect the lamp of true sport to be kept alight, but paid coaches who must produce winning teams at all costs and the desire for big gate receipts are not the best atmosphere for sport. A Harvard captain once refused to allow the Cornell crew to row over the course at Harvard before the race. Many Harvard men were very indignant at this lack of chivalry, but the captain was acting on the advice of the coach, who dared not allow any possible advantage to be lost. This incident is in contrast to the case of Fletcher, the amateur coach of Oxford. Oxford had beaten Cambridge seven or eight times in succession; so Fletcher, with the approval of his club, went to Cambridge and coached their crews until they were able to beat his own university.

There are, of course, paid coaches who do promote true sportsmanship—there is one in Chicago—but such men are secure in their positions on the faculty. They are not merely hired to produce winning teams. "Intercollegiate games," wrote President Lowell of Harvard in 1927, "should be conducted for the benefit of the students by themselves and by the appropriate authorities of the universities, not by others to furnish entertainment to alumni and the public."

Gambling has always been the curse of sport, because it brings a few sportsmen into contact with a horde of every kind of crook. The tragedy of horse racing is that beautiful and well bred horses have to associate with the kind of people who frequent race tracks. The press has done much to make gambling easier for all, the sporting papers have done much to kill sport. In connection with the fishing contests conducted by some papers, it might be suggested that the prize be offered not for the greatest weight but for the best fish caught with the finest tackle.

The church, by means of supervised games, remains one of the few institutions which are left to preserve the great tradition of sport and sportsmanship, the spirit of fair play, the conviction that it is better to lose than to win unfairly, the sound mind in the sound body for the children of the slums as well as for members of college teams.

FAVORITE HYMNS

BY CHARLES WESLEY.

Love divine, all loves excelling,
  Joy of heaven, to earth come down;
Fix in us thy humble dwelling,
  All thy faithful mercies crown;
Jesus, thou art all compassion,
  Pure, unbounded love thou art;
Visit us with thy salvation,
  Enter every trembling heart.

Breathe, O breathe thy loving spirit
  Into every troubled breast!
Let us all in thee inherit,
  Let us find that second rest:
Take away our bent to sinning;
  Alpha and Omega be;
End of faith as its beginning,
  Set our hearts at liberty.

Come, almighty to deliver,
  Let us all thy grace receive;
Suddenly return, and never,
  Nevermore thy temples leave.
Thee we would be always blessing,
  Serve thee as thy hosts above,
Pray, and praise thee without ceasing,
  Glory in thy perfect love.

How to Keep Well By Dr W A Evans

EARLY STAGE CONSUMPTIVES

NOT even the right to have all the medical service one needs and whenever he needs it, to have hospital and sanitarium care and periodic physical examinations, and all without extra charge, will suffice to make all consumptives take heed of their own condition early.

A certain railroad in the southwest has an employés' benefit service. Each employé pays a certain amount monthly. He gets an examination when he begins his employment and thereafter he is entitled to periodic physicals. If he feels that he needs the service of a physician all he needs to do is to send for the doctor or go to the clinic. If he needs hospital care he can go to the company hospital and stay as long as he needs to. If he needs sanitarium care that, too, is at his disposal.

Dr. E. W. Phillips, who writes of the prevalence of consumption among these employés, pronounced the medical service to be of the best. It enjoys the confidence of the men. Since they support it by monthly dues they feel a certain pride and confidence in it. And yet, Dr. Phillips found that 87 per cent of the consumptives in this group have the disease far advanced before they applied for treatment. Only 5 per cent had the disease in the early stages. The other 8 per cent were in between. Advanced consumption can sometimes be cured, but in this series only one-fourth of the cases were arrested. However, the longer the disease has run, the less chance of the disease being arrested, the longer the treatment required and the more expensive the cure.

In this group it cost $4,600 to get an advanced case of consumption into good enough condition for him to resume work. A person with an early case can be put back to work by an expenditure of $450.

Investigation showed there were several reasons why consumption got such a hold before the men came for help. Some suspected the disease but dreaded to know the truth. Some tried to deceive themselves for religious reasons. Some suppressed the facts in order to get a good job with this employer of excellent reputation. But the greater number did not know the significance of their symptoms.

MACHINE MISSED A NOTCH.

Mrs. W. K. N. writes:

1. My baby was born with a double uvula. What is the cause?
2. Is it harmful?

REPLY.

1. When he was being made the machine missed a notch.
2. Not at all.

RUBBER PANTS FOR BABIES.

A grandmother writes: What do you think of having babies wear rubber pants over the diapers? My babies are all grown and the parents of babies, but I have in mind one infant who wears rubber pants all the time. He is always raw and blistered. He is very cross when his diaper is wet. His mother uses all sorts of salves.

REPLY.

Rubber pants can be worn for short periods to meet emergencies. They should not be worn long and certainly not habitually. Where is the net gain if a mother spends her spare time petting a cross baby and greasing him with salves. I am sure the baby would agree with me.

SALT SOLUTION LAXATIVE.

G. S. writes:

1. Is the continued use of a warm salt solution as a morning laxative injurious? This solution consists of a half teaspoonful to each of four glasses of water. It has been said that salt will tend to harden the arteries and lead to a serious condition in middle age. When it works it seems that the solution mentioned is not absorbed by the body, having rather a flushing action.

2. What vegetables have an alkaline ash and what ones an acid ash? This distinction is rather vague and new to us and we would appreciate a bit of a lecture on it.

REPLY.

1. The theory is that salt solution used in that way is not absorbed and, therefore, would not harden the arteries, if salt ever does.

2. Under ordinary circumstances, all vegetables leave an alkaline ash. This may not be true of rhubarb. It is true of all fruits except perhaps plums, prunes and sometimes pineapple.

JANITOR AT FAULT.

Chicago, June 21.—[Friend of the People.]—Couldn't something be done to keep people from throwing garbage, tin cans and rubbish of all sorts into the vacant lot at the northeast corner of Adams street and Cicero avenue?
J. L. J.

Report is made that lot is clean with the exception of alley lines, where janitor of building had apparently been burning paper and other rubbish. Owners of building were notified to instruct the janitor to desist from this practice and location will be kept under observation to see that there is no further cause for complaint.

LANDLORD SUPPLIES SCREENS.

Chicago, June 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there any law forcing the landlord to provide screens, mailboxes and clothes lines for his tenant?
M. K.

Sec. 2174 of the city code provides that "it shall be the duty of every . . . person owning or controlling . . . any place where persons are housed . . . and where foods are kept . . . to maintain on all . . . openings . . . from April 15 to Nov. 15 . . . screens . . ." While this wording is equally applicable to landlord and tenant, we are informed that if an owner fails to provide screens a complaint to the department of health will insure action to that end.

WASHINGTON.—The Star says: "Since Grant has crossed the Rapidan he has taken 17,000 prisoners, not including those of the last four or five days, while his own loss is less than one-third that number. Among the recent prisoners were men over 60 years of age and boys of 14 to 16. They all say they were forced into the rebel ranks."

NEW YORK.—Under the unfavorable news from Sherman gold has advanced to 240@245 and is held firm. Money is close.

CHICAGO.—We regret to learn from the Alton Telegraph that Col. F. S. Rutherford of the 97th Illinois volunteers died on June 27 in that city after a protracted illness, contracted in the field. Col. Rutherford entered the service under the call of July, 1862.

WASHINGTON.—The blockade of Germany is to be lifted by the allies as soon as Germany ratifies the treaty of peace, whereupon the President will be at liberty to permit the resumption of commerce between the United States and the German republic.

CHICAGO.—"Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we dry up," was the motto which Chicago adopted on stroke of midnight. It proceeded to put the idea into practice. At that hour doors of saloons in all parts of the city were thrown open to throngs which sought to take advantage of every one of the remaining "wet" hours. Preparations made by hotels, cafés, and saloons forecast a revel tonight until midnight when wartime prohibition goes into effect. District Attorney Clyne has been ordered to see that the law is obeyed in Chicago.

CHICAGO.—Branding the Rev. Elmer Williams, spiritual adviser of Earl Dear, hanged for murder last Friday, as a friend of criminals and obstructor of the law, the Rev. R. Keene Ryan, pastor of Garfield Boulevard Presbyterian church, bitterly denounced the actions of his fellow pastor in attempting to save Dear from the gallows. He accused Rev. Williams of being more interested in fighting the state's attorney's office than in the innocence of Dear.

CONSIDER THE PRECINCT CAPTAIN.

Chicago, June 20.—Just a word to the people and the boss politician from one who has been ringing door bells and doing things for the people and the politician in his precinct for the last seventeen years, commonly called a precinct captain, but ought to be called the goat.

The people who think that a precinct captain is in soft when he is holding a political position forget that he is the man that has to work after his regular hours to take care of the many things that are asked of him, such as getting the alley cleaned or the street repaired, or better living conditions, and the 101 other things that he is expected to do, evenings, nights, Saturday afternoons or Sundays, running around spending his money for street car fare, gasoline, and many other things, and then the people holler about him having it soft. Let some of these people go out and try being precinct captain for a while and see what they would get.

To the boss politician, for whom this precinct captain rings these door bells every evening, Saturday afternoons and Sundays around election time and on other occasions, does he think that the precinct captain or anybody else is going to do this extra work with all this efficiency and economy being put in effect all over the county? It is not worth while, and there is no honor in being called a precinct captain.

Give the precinct captain a break. He is the goat for the people and the boss politician.

PRO AND AMATEUR FISHERS.

Chicago, June 18.—For the benefit of all who like to fish with hook and line at Navy pier why not compel the net fishermen to set their nets three miles out in the lake, which I understand is a state law in Illinois? This would permit the larger fish to come closer to shore and give the smaller ones a chance to be returned to the water when caught.

Recently I saw the fisherman that has his shack on the so called dime pier set his nets across the channel from the dime pier to Navy pier about 800 feet from shore and did not lift them until two lake freighters were due to dock at Navy pier. That is not giving the people on shore a break to catch any fish for which they have to pay an annual license fee.

PAYING INTEREST TO TAXPAYERS.

Chicago, June 15.—With the various governing bodies clamoring for money and paying out nearly a million a month in interest, here is a plan to save the taxpayer this interest, and enable him to make twelve per cent on his money. The average and careful taxpayer is holding this money in bank without interest to prepare for his tax bill.

The city of Victoria, B. C., has a plan whereby the citizen is allowed 6 per cent on his money by giving it to the city in advance of the due date for tax payment.

He thus saves the 6 per cent per hundred the city otherwise would have to pay the banks, and which the city must stand, and the city gives him $6 for the use of his hundred dollars. In this way the man is $12 ahead and the city is benefited.

If one city can adopt this plan, why not Chicago, especially considering the uncertainty of the due date for tax payment, the amount of the tax and the need of money by the city?

The most recent suggestion about the tax muddle is that the citizen might be generous and advance this money now to the city. This plan is doomed to fail, as no man will be found in a benevolent mood when it concerns tax paying.

THE OIL AND THE DRY CRUSADE.

Chicago, June 17.—"We cannot be ignorant as judges of what we know as men," said the decree of the United States Supreme court in the case of Curt Miller vs. the State of Oregon, otherwise called the Women's Ten Hour Law case. While this wording applied to the fact that effects of long toil for women may be more injurious than for men, the idea behind the words need not be held to that specific application.

It might be very good for Mr. Seymour Lowman, even the excellent Mr. George W. Wickersham, to recall. For it is not an unknown fact that many of our excellent citizens, especially during the administration of the late Theodore Roosevelt, were under criminal charges brought by federal grand juries. During those investigations I cannot recall that one of these men was shot on suspicion or that he was shot at all. Nor can I recall that any one was shot in connection with Teapot Dome.

So is it not to be hoped that the federal and state dry forces will, in time, come to some color of legality in their acts, or they may infect all law enforcers and we may read that some one accused of violating the anti-trust law has been killed while driving from his town house to his country home, or that some one suspected of violating the national banking act has been shot down while leaving his club. Or that some one suspected of tax dodging has been killed while talking with his lawyer or a public official. Why should any official be ignorant of what he knows as a man? Why check the brains in the cloak room?

LAKE FRONT HOODLUMS.

Chicago, June 17.—The annual nuisances have already made their appearance at Oak street beach.

Gangs of young hoodlums—noisy, foul mouthed and insulting—congregate each night along the water front from Schiller street south to the breakwater. Will you urge the policemen and policewomen to break up these gangs so that the decent citizens may enjoy their evenings out of doors?

UNAPPRECIATIVE COP.

Chicago, June 18.—Last Sunday at Oak street beach a group of girls and young men was gathered around a youth with a ukulele, singing popular numbers softly and in beautiful harmony.

We listeners close by were enjoying the program, when suddenly we were interrupted by a hard boiled cop who [illegible]. Surely they were [illegible] no crime by their harmless singing. [illegible] persons innocent of any wrongdoing.

MARRIAGES ON INCREASE AFTER ERA OF DECLINE

Marriages are on the increase in Cook county. This was revealed yesterday by County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer in his report for the first six months of 1929 at the close of June, the marriage month. In that period 20,887 marriage licenses were issued as compared with 19,886 in the corresponding period of 1928.

This increase is the first break in the downward trend of licenses since the record year of 1920 with a total of 47,503 licenses. Since that year the figure has fallen until only 40,570 were issued in 1928. County Clerk Sweitzer predicted an increase of 3,000 before the end of the year, since the last half of the year brings a heavier demand on the marriage bureau.

The last day for procuring the certificates in June brought 230 applications to swell the 1929 June total to 5,605 as compared with 5,447 in June of 1928. The record June, with 5,739 licenses, was in 1920.

Year.	Marriages.	Year.	Marriages.
1920	5,739	1925	5,611
1921	5,072	1926	5,681
1922	5,636	1927	5,651
1923	5,257	1928	5,438
1924	5,608	1929	5,605

"We are all glad to see romance coming back into its own," County Clerk Sweitzer said. "The number of marriages is a barometer of economic conditions. They go up, so conditions are prosperous. We believed that the drop in former years was due to the increasing economic independence of women. Evidently girls are seeing that a home and all that goes with it is far more important than a weekly pay check to spend on pretty things."

Free Ceremonies Offered.

Justice of the Peace James M. Corcoran of Evanston offered an inducement to promote marriages in July by declaring that he will perform all ceremonies without charge during the month. Justice Corcoran is the youngest to hold that office in Cook county. He is 26 years old.

Dr. J. H. Penniman Weds Frank O. Walther's Widow

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29—(AP)—Announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Frank O. Walther of New York City to Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, provost of the University of Pennsylvania, was made today by Mrs. William C. Sutten, mother of the bride. The ceremony was performed last Thursday in St. James Protestant Episcopal Church, New York City.

Moline, Ill., June 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Phoebe Omlie, Memphis, Tenn., aviatrix, today flew to a height of 25,400 feet to claim the altitude record for women. Mrs. Omlie took off at 3:45.

According to Mrs. Omlie, the previous record was 20,800 feet.

The flight was made in a small monoplane manufactured here and was part of a campaign to secure approval from the citizens of a tax for the maintenance of the Municipal airport.

A representative of the National Aeronautic association was present.

Mrs. Omlie carried a sealed barograph which will be sent to Washington to be read and checked.

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Four girls, the eldest 11, had "a wonderful time" this afternoon, drifting three miles out to sea from South Beach, Staten Island, on a home made raft.

And Harry Engelhausen Jr., 11, who jumped off the raft when it was half a mile from shore and swam back to send for rescuers might have saved himself the trouble, for Lieut. Alexander Gray of engine company No. 161, picked up the voyagers before any of the big liners had a chance to follow directions radioed from New York police headquarters asking them to look out for the raft.

The girls are Geraldine Bessi, 10, South Beach; Gloria Bacarei, 9; Dorothy Egbert, 8, and Julia Pturcurli, 11, all of Fort Wadsworth. The boy who risked his life was the 11 year old son of Harry Engelhausen, retired city fireman.

11 Reported Missing After Texas Hurricane

A Negress and three small children were killed near Wharton when their home was blown away by the 90 mile gale which accompanied a three inch rain.

Boy Playing Tag Trips on Stone and Breaks Neck

Sixteen year old Charles Deutschman Jr., 4118 North Leavitt street, was killed last night in a game of tag. He was running away from Robert Thunock, 2146 Belle Plaine avenue, in an alley in the rear of Thunock's home when he tripped on a cobble stone and broke his neck. Deutschman was pronounced dead at the Ravenswood hospital.

THERE is a reason why Konjola is the most talked of medicine in Chicago.

No wonder . . . Konjola has brought new and glorious health to thousands of men and women who were run down, worn out, tired, lacking in vitality . . . not feeling as they should.

Konjola has a surprisingly beneficial effect on the organs of digestion and elimination; it cleanses and stimulates, paving the way for Nature to assert its powers.

Konjola is a compound of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs. It is taken after meals and works with your food, as Nature intended.

Konjola offers the safest, surest, sanest way to overcome the common disorders, such as indigestion, loss of appetite and general weakness.

The Konjola representative is explaining the merits of this new medicine to large crowds daily at the Walgreen Store, State and Washington. Other Konjola representatives may be seen at the following stores:

CHARGE CHECKER EMPLOYES WITH ASSAULT TO KILL

U. S. Court May Act on Slugging of Driver.

It was decided yesterday that beating a Federal court litigant on the head and legs with a baseball bat in an endeavor to win a lawsuit is a more serious offense than mere assault and battery. Consequently charges of assault with intent to commit murder were placed against Charles Patrick, 3350 Polk street, a road superintendent for the Checker Cab company, and Walter Finkle, 1401 Jackson boulevard, a driver for the Checker Cab company.

The victim of the beating was Meyer Mizenberg, 1112 South St. Louis avenue, owner and driver of a Checker cab until he joined with others in filing a petition before Federal Judge Wilkerson which charged the Checker Cab company officials with grafting. Mizenberg's right leg was broken in three places, and there were numerous wounds on his head inflicted by revolver butts as well as by the baseball bat.

He left his home Thursday morning to go to Judge Wilkerson's court and was met on the way by two men whom he said he recognized as Patrick and Finkle. He told about the assault later in the Mount Sinai hospital.

Mizenberg's wife procured a warrant for the accused sluggers, charging them merely with assault and battery, and they were released on $50 bonds. They were arraigned yesterday before Judge Harry F. Hamlin. Assistant State's Attorney Covelli informed the judge that Mizenberg was in a critical condition and asked that the felony charges be added to the simple assault charge. Judge Hamlin issued the warrants and fixed additional bonds for Patrick and Hinkle at $5,000 each.

Will Ask U. S. Court to Act.

Attorney L. A. Stebbins had reported the slugging to Judge Wilkerson and was advised to present an affidavit stating the facts, which the lawyer said he would do tomorrow. He said he will ask Judge Wilkerson to take jurisdiction and inflict proper punishment on the sluggers if they are proved guilty.

Mizenberg's part in the litigation before Judge Wilkerson was that of one of several intervening petitioners in a suit against the Checker Cab company for $1,500,000. This suit was the culmination of a long series of charges against Checker cab officials that included murders, bombings, sluggings, arson, and wholesale stealing, as well as numerous flareups of taxicab warfare and internal strife in the cab company.

Start Ouster Proceedings.

Several Checker drivers reported injuries or threats because of their endeavor to obtain a housecleaning in their coöperative company. Judge Wilkerson finally placed Attorney Thomas J. Healy, chairman of the board of the Checker company and a prominent Deneen politician, at the head of a committee which he instructed to bring ouster proceedings in the state courts against Robert E. McLaughlin, president of the Checker company; Harry I. Gordon, vice president; B. J. Mitchell, treasurer, and Max Raifman, secretary.

A report by Federal Master in Chancery Thomas J. Peden declared there had been gross mismanagement of the Checker company, as well as misuse and misapplication of its funds. A report by the Cook county grand jury last October stated that the Checker company's affairs had resulted in many crimes, including personal injury and property damage, and the jurors recommended that when State's Attorney Swanson assumed office he take the proper steps to end the reign of crime attributed to those under McLaughlin's leadership.

Assistant State's Attorney Covelli said yesterday that the grand jury would investigate the "Mizenberg outrage."

CURTIS HERE FOR REST; IS GUEST OF A. D. LASKER

Vice President Charles Curtis arrived here yesterday and went to the home of W. D. Lasker, former head of the United States shipping board, where he expects to remain until the Fourth of July. Last night he went to Ravinia and tomorrow he plans to go to the opening of the Arlington race track.

"I'm very keen on horse racing," he explained to a reporter, recalling the days when he was a jockey. He was about to take a plunge in the pool on the Lasker estate, which is known as the Mill Road farm. Previously he had followed a foursome around the Lasker links, but he swung no golf clubs.

"I never learned golf," he said. "I never had time, as I had to work all the time. But I like to walk."

While he wouldn't discuss the farm relief bill, both he and Mr. Lasker expressed the hope that Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester company, would accept appointment on the farm board. He expressed approval of Ambassador Dawes' entry into his job in Great Britain, saying "Dawes is always able to take care of himself."

FEAR U. S. OFFICER KILLED IN PANAMA ON FISHING TRIP

PANAMA, June 29. — Lieutenant Commander George L. White, U. S. medical officer of the fifteenth naval district, who disappeared from a navy motor launch early yesterday morning while en route to Pear island, Balboa, on a fishing trip, has not as yet been found by the plane sent out to search for him from the Coco Solo air station.

Lieutenant Commander White, J. H. Drumm, manager of the Panama branch of the National City bank, and Frank Farnsworth, manager of the West Indian Oil company branch, were the guests of Commander Clevel and McAuley for the week-end. He was last seen retiring at 3:30 a. m. An hour after his departure his absence was noted by the watchman, who entered the cabin about 6 o'clock to turn off the lights. Others were informed and a boat retraced the course all day without results.

The theory is that he went on deck and fell overboard. Lieutenant Commander White was 36 years old, single. His mother lives at Hagerstown, Md.

HIGHEST "TAXPAYER" BUILDING IN WORLD IS BEING TORN DOWN

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—The highest "taxpayer" building in the world is in process of demolition, it was said today by Albert A. Volk, president of the house wrecking company bearing his name. It is at 1 Wall street and is 18 stories high.

It and 74 Broadway, 20 stories in height, the old Central Union Trust company, 15 stories high, two twelve story buildings and one of ten stories, are coming down to make way for the projected Irving Trust building, which will tower up sixty stories.

The 18 story building, according to Volk, was erected ten years ago as a taxpayer pending the time when other buildings on the lot had been made available for the huge structure soon to be commenced.

"Taxpayers are ordinarily only two stories in height," said Volk, "but it was evident that no two story building would pay the taxes on so valuable a piece of property as 1 Wall street. I do not know the exact value, but I know that it was calculated that its worth was the equivalent of the number of $5 gold pieces it would take to cover every inch of the ground."

NEW YORK POWER INQUIRY ASKED BY ROOSEVELT

Albany, N. Y., June 29.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today in a letter requested Attorney General Hamilton Ward to make an immediate investigation of the merger of the Northeastern Power corporation, the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern Power corporation, and the Mohawk Hudson Power corporation, forming the Niagara Hudson Power corporation, to determine if the merger, "as well as the immediately previous consolidations, may be such a monopoly as is forbidden by the provisions of the general business law and the stock corporation law."

He asked the attorney general to submit a preliminary report within two weeks.

The merger is a $500,000,000 consolidation of the J. P. Morgan power interests, the Carlisle power interests of northern New York and the Schoellkopf power holdings in Buffalo. Former Republican State Chairman H. Edmund Machold, who is said to be allied with the Carlisle interests, is believed to have been a moving spirit in the merger.

A few days ago the governor said he was studying the merger, but he did not indicate who was making any investigation. Nor did he today reveal who had made it. At the time he said his chief object was to determine if the merger meant an increase of rates for electricity to the consumer.

JUDGE ACTS TO FORCE SALE OF ALTON RAILWAY

Upholds Master's Report; Will Sign Order.

Federal Judge Carpenter yesterday upheld the findings of the report of Master in Chancery Herbert A. Lundahl affecting the foreclosure proceedings against the Chicago and Alton railroad. Early this week the court is expected to enter a formal decree ordering the foreclosure and sale of the road, thus ending one phase of a seven year receivership.

By yesterday's decision the holders of a $22,000,000 mortgage, under the trusteeship of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company of New York, are awarded a first lien on the rolling stock. This mortgage was placed on the property in 1900 by E. H. Harriman, eastern railroad magnate, and was the second he had placed upon it in the one year of his ownership.

The road was purchased from the T. B. Blackstone interests in 1899, and a $45,000,000 mortgage was immediately saddled upon it. This mortgage, however, was not a party in asking for foreclosure, its interest having been paid regularly.

Contesting the claims of the $22,000,000 mortgage, which bears 3 per cent and has had no interest for seven years, were the holders of an $18,000,000 mortgage, bearing 6 per cent, on which no interest has been paid since it was put on the road in 1912. The latter mortgage is under the trusteeship of the United States Mortgage and Trust company of New York, and was awarded the second lien.

Appeal Is Expected.

Attorney J. Sidney Condit, counsel for the receivers, W. W. Wheelock and W. G. Bierd, said yesterday that he expected to have a draft copy of the foreclosure and sale order submitted for Judge Carpenter's signature within the next day or two. It is expected, however, that an appeal will be taken to the United States Circuit court, a proceeding which would delay the sale until fall, the earliest that a decision from the higher court could be expected.

The total mortgages, including those defaulted, amount to $85,000,000, and the value of the road has been estimated in the neighborhood of $125,000,000. Before the Harriman purchase it was known as one of the soundest railroads financially in the country.

The "Last" Word in Elegance—
A Hursen Funeral
The charges made for Hursen funerals are invariably far less than the charges which are usually exacted elsewhere. This sounds amazing to those who have been subjected to an enormous outlay of money for funerals not conducted by Hursen.
In spite of this vast reduction in cost to you, the elegance of all Hursen materials and Hursen equipment so generously furnished to you cannot even be equaled anywhere in America.
Supreme elegance, and low cost—these are two of the many features which have made Hursen's the largest and most remarkable institution of its kind in America.
Hursen specially-built funeral automobiles excite universal admiration everywhere. For comfort, roominess and elegance they are unsurpassed by many of the highest-priced automobiles of the day. The charges for these Hursen autos are no higher than the usual auto hire. So, call Hursen, of course!

HOOVER TENDERS 2 MORE PLACES ON FARM BOARD

6 of 8 Appointments Now Made Public.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—President Hoover has tendered appointments on the new farm board to W. S. Moscrip of Lake Elmo, Minn., and C. C. Teague of Los Angeles, Cal. Announcement to this effect was made today at the White House. Mr. Moscrip is an official of the Twin Cities Milk Producers' association, while Mr. Teague is connected with the California Citrus league. Definite acceptances have not been received from either man as yet.

Mr. Moscrip came to Washington at the President's invitation and conferred with him today. Following the conference it was stated that Mr. Moscrip was reluctant to accept inasmuch as he has supported W. F. Schilling, also an official of the Twin Cities Milk Producers' association, for the appointment.

Six Selections Made.

Announcement has now been made of the president's selections for six of the eight appointive members of the board. Acceptances were announced yesterday from James C. Stone of Kentucky, active in tobacco co-operatives; C. B. Denman of Missouri, president of the National Live Stock Producers' association, and Carl Williams of Oklahoma, editor of a farm paper and active in cotton coöperatives.

The President is awaiting word from Alexander Legge of Chicago, president of the International Harvester company, who is his choice as the business man on the board.

What Grower Expected.

If the two appointments yet to be announced it is a certainty that one will be a wheat grower. Those already named give representation to live stock, dairy products, cotton, tobacco, and fruits. The other remaining member will either represent another agricultural group or will be some one with special experience in finance.

President Hoover expects to complete the personnel of the board before July 4. He hopes the board will be able to get to work before Aug. 1.

Investigates Beer

MRS. ELLA MERSMAN.

After preparing approximately 7,000 prohibition cases for hearings before United States commissioners during the past nine years Mrs. Ella Mersman, chief clerk to Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, left on a vacation yesterday for Canada. "I've heard hundreds of prohibition agents testifying to their knowledge of what beer contained one-half of one percent and what didn't," she said yesterday, "so I've decided I shall find out for myself if they really know. They can't arrest me for it in Canada." Mrs. Mersman lives with her husband at 9210 South Elizabeth street.

PREDICTS SENATE WILL WIELD AX ON TARIFF BILL

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.] predicts that the tariff bill, recently passed by the house, will be so overhauled when it reaches the senate that most of its identity will be lost when the senators get through with it. In passing through Chicago recently, en route to his home in Topeka, the senator gave out a statement in which he said that the farmers would be worse off than before if this bill, in its present form, should become law.

He points out that President Hoover made it quite emphatic that there was to be a limited upward revision of the tariff in the interest of agriculture, designed to put farming on a basis of economic equality, so far as possible, with general industry. An exception was the depressed textile industry, and it was tentatively agreed that help would be given to other hard pressed industries, if any. But rates were to be changed on a very limited number of nonagricultural commodities.

Calls Bill Too Radical.

"Instead of a limited tariff bill one comes from the house modifying virtually every schedule, and, with few exceptions, revising them upward, although existing duties are the highest ever known, and, in the case of certain commodities, have long been admitted to be excessive," declared Senator Capper.

To support his position he cited comparative compilations which reveal that agriculture has an average rate of protection of 25.85 per cent in the act of 1922, now in effect, and 29.90 in the bill passed by the house, while industry has an average rate of 42.03 per cent in the existing law and 47.07 in the new schedule. These comparisons show that the average rate on industrial products in the act of 1922 is 16.18 points higher than the agricultural rate, and in the new bill 17.17 points higher.

Putting it another way, the figures show that the average of the increases given to industry exceed the average of the increases given to agriculture. The disparity between the two rates, instead of being lessened, is increased.

Industry, 160; Farming, 40.

In his analysis of the bill the Kansas senator also points out that of the 83,000 words devoted to the new "limited farm tariff" 160 inches of the printed form is devoted to nonagricultural products and less than 40 inches to agricultural products.

"Included among the presumably depressed industries is the cement industry," Senator Capper said. "Cement and brick and shingles and several kinds of lumber—all extensively used by farmers—are therefore removed from the free list and given protection.

"There are other striking examples of such equalization processes carried out in the new tariff bill. The bill 'helps' the farmer by boosting his cost of living. For example, it puts an extremely high rate on sugar, although scarcely 1 per cent of our farmers grow beets. The bill places more increase on what the farmer has to buy than on what he has to sell."

MINE PAY ROLL TAKEN IN HOLDUP.

Middlesboro, Ky., June 29.—(AP)—George Veal, superintendent of the Davisburg mines of the Log Cabin Coal company, was held up and robbed of a $1,300 pay roll today at Chenoa, a remote place in Bell county, where the company's mines are located.

SENATORS HEAR PRO AND CON OF TARIFF ON SHOES

Leather Dealers' Views Given Subcommittee.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Arguments for and against duties on shoes, leather and hides, were presented today before the sundries subcommittee of the senate finance committee.

F. G. Wadsworth of the Brooklyn chamber of commerce said that Brooklyn produces a substantial part of the high class women's shoes manufactured in this country and that a duty is imperative. Imports are chiefly of women's shoes, he said, and the eastern manufacturers are hard hit.

Swiss Representative Talks.

The other side of the shoe argument was offered by Dr. J. Anthony Schwarzmann of Bally, Inc., Swiss shoe manufacturers. Dr. Schwarzmann said that a duty of 20 per cent on shoes as provided in the house bill would prevent the importation of the high grade shoes made by his company. He said he would not object to a duty applying only on shoes valued at $4 or less.

Monroe Einstein, of the Shoe Leather Dealers' association of New York, importers, opposed the imposition of a duty on shoe leather.

T. R. Lewis, of the Association of Glove Importers, New York, asked that ad valorem duties on leather gloves be eliminated. He objected to the ad valorem rates of the house bill and suggested specific rates.

High Duty on Bags Asked.

Abraham Mittenthal, of the Leather Goods Manufacturers' association, asked a duty of 75 per cent on leather hand bags and traveling cases. The house bill has a rate of 35 per cent on leather hand bags and 50 per cent on the fitted bags.

John R. Roser, representing pig leather manufacturers, asked for a duty of ten per cent on rough leather and 30 per cent on finished instead of 25 per cent on both as in the house bill.

Louis M. Musliner, representing fancy leather manufacturers, asked that duties of 25 and 30 per cent on fancy leather be decreased. He asked a rate of 10 per cent on reptile skins and 10 per cent on Indian tanned kid and goat skins.

Mrs. Willebrandt Quits and Promises Statement

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, went out of office today to engage in private law practice. Mrs. Willebrandt made known her intention to issue a statement "to all the newspapers within a short time" and revived gossip as to the cause of her sudden withdrawal. Rumors prevailed that Mrs. Willebrandt was not satisfied with the program for her activities after the proposed transfer of the prohibition bureau to the department of justice from the treasury.

REBEL GENERAL IN VENEZUELA DESERTS CAUSE

Agrees to Reveal Names to Dictator.

BY GERALD MARTIN.

CORO, Venezuela, June 29.—The Venezuelan revolutionary forces have received a setback following the surrender of Gen. Jose Rafael Gabaldon.

Gen. Gabaldon had his headquarters in the prosperous coffee state of Trujillo, bordering Maracaibo lake, and threatened considerable trouble. A former close friend of Dictator Juan Vicente Gomez, Gen. Gabaldon quit the dictator cold following the Caracas university students' revolt, when Gen. Galbaldon's two sons were arrested and put on road work. He gathered his forces and proceeded to the rebel-infested western states. He received promises of support from numerous officials and political leaders, but at the eleventh hour they turned him down flat.

Makes Deal with Dictator.

Gen. Gabaldon, hard pressed, then wrote Dictator Gomez a personal letter offering to give the names of those who, pretending loyalty to the administration, had offered to support his rebellion, in exchange for amnesty. Gen. Gomez granted amnesty and Gen Gabaldon is now proceeding to Caracas.

Gen. Rafael Nozalez, world war colonel serving under Germany and commanding Turkish troops and the author of numerous books is leading a rebel force of about 2,000 and is reported to be advancing northward from Trujillo to join Gen. Urbina, who, it is claimed, is advancing to the south, having captured Churuguare.

Gen Cedeno, who entered southwestern Venezuela over the Colombian border, is reported to be advancing north.

Situation Well in Hand.

Americans consider that the government has the situation well in hand and is able to dispatch at any moment well armed and trained forces to any part of the country. Spasmodic attacks on small towns are the only thing feared.

Should, however, the revolutionist forces get together and achieve notable victory, the smouldering discontent in the country would result in a raily around the rebels, causing the government trouble, but American as well as other foreign interests here are strong for Gen. Gomez, whose reputation for always keeping his word impresses them, and the native coffee planters, whose laborers have been conscripted by both factions, are beginning to realize that the stability Gen. Gomez offers is preferable to chronic internal strife.

Stephen Zimmer, 15 years old, of Wheeling, yesterday won the annual Cook county schools' achievement contest. Caroline Van der Griend, 14 years old, of South Holland, and Theresa Wagner, 13 years old, of Niles Park, tied for second and third places.

County Superintendent of Schools Edward J. Tobin awarded the prizes of $25 and two of $15 in a bankbook to each of the winners. They also received banners which are to be hung in their classrooms. Each of the seven school districts entered a candidate in the contest. The contestants were judged on their work in the twenty-nine school and home projects.

Stephen's profitable achievements were gardening and caddying. The two girls also chose gardening with needlework as the second school-home project.

PHILIPPINE GRAFT BARES TRICK FOR FORTUNE IN CHINA

Fat Yangtze River Project Held Up by American.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

MANILA, June 29.—When the Supreme court of the Philippine islands meets in July to consider an en banc motion of Benjamin F. Wright, the American appointed author of the Philippine government, the real inside of the wharf scandal at Iloilo may be brought to light.

The defendant in the case of Tan C. Tee & Co., a Chinese contracting firm, and the success or failure of Mr. Tee in this case involves his ability to land a project affecting millions of dollars for the improvement of navigation on the Yangtze Kiang, the mighty and ever troublesome river of China.

Mr. Wright is not interested in this angle at all, but Mr. Tee is. For Mr. Tee is said to have assurances from the Chinese government of a good chance at this contract, which would be some years in completion, and which would leave him and his associates in possession of a fortune.

Ships Sail 600 Miles Up River.

In normal times ocean going steamships can go right up to Hankow, and there load or discharge cargo without the expense of transhipment at Shanghai, and often large British, German, and American ships are seen lying at the Hankow, wharf, some 600 miles above the mouth of the Yangtze. But for months on end, owing to the silting that comes down from the Tibetan slopes when the winter snows melt and the Yangtze is at flood, the river is not navigable by such vessels.

It is a great project and one that means much to China. George Strobe, an American engineer, has for some years been engaged by the Chinese government on this work, and has accomplished much in a preliminary way. He is the conservation engineer and not a contractor.

Where the Catch Is.

Where the trouble of Mr. Tee and his associates in China comes in is that while he has the inside with the Nationalist government of China, there exists a law there that the contractor must have had experience on other river and harbor projects, and this Mr. Tee lacks. So he came over to the Philippines, where no such law exists, and made the lowest bid for the Iloilo contract. With that job successfully done he would be sitting right on top of the world in China.

Unfortunately, he did not reckon upon Mr. Wright, a one time bank examiner under the federal reserve board at home, who was drafted for work in the Philippines and later was appointed by the American President as the insular auditor. The auditor and the governor general are now the only direct Presidential appointees in the Philippines and they take their orders only from the President. Mr. Wright has his hands full in checking up on graft and for that reason is bitterly despised by the politicians in the Philippines, and he has been bold enough ot say that 35 per cent of all public works in the Philippines is pure graft and that the graft runs right to the heads of the government.

Bondholders Hold the Bag.

Bonds for the Iloilo wharf construction project were issued and sold in March, 1928, but the government has paid no interest on them and the bondholders are holding the bag. The project involves 1,600,000 pesos [about $800,000] but Mr. Wright has held it up on account of irregularities he discovered in his official duties as auditor. Se he was hailed to court, where he said on the stand that in the year 1928 alone he "hand found more than 120 cases of contracts involving most surprising violations of the law which apparently had been wilfully overridden or ignored."

"Son, don't you drive too fast!"

THIS natural timidity upon the part of an old man is nothing new to Checker drivers. After all, a cab ride is quite an experience for him, fraught with imaginary dangers, time for extra caution.

Old men and women—invalids—sick folks—soon learn, in a Checker, that they are the paying guests of a business man who knows the profits of safe driving. This business man (the Checker driver) knows reckless driving has wrecked many a Cab company.

He knows, too, that the Checker record for safety has been greatly improved every year—and it is up to him to keep that record good. If he does not, he loses his membership—promptly.

If all Chicago cab drivers would bear in mind that the public hates reckless driving, our local accident toll would drop immediately. Watch Checker drivers and you will see that we are justified in this comment.

ATVIA GUARDS WEDISH KING KE CZAR OF OLD ace Troops at Each One-Half Mile.

BY DONALD DAY.

RIGA, Latvia, June 29.—More carefully guarded than the former Russian czars, King Gustav V. of Sweden arrived here at 10:45 this morning from Tallinn, Esthonia, where he was visiting yesterday, aboard a special train which made the 274 mile journey in just 12 hours. Guards were stationed every half mile along the road.

A crowd of 100,000 people were gathered at Riga station and roared their greeting to the king, who, after being presented to the Latvian cabinet by President Gustav Zemgals, was taken to Riga castle for lunch with the president's family, while Foreign Minister M. Balodis entertained the king's suite.

During the afternoon the king attended a special service in the cathedral and visited the Latvian university. In the evening he attended a special performance of the ballet "Sleeping Beauty" at the National opera. The king's first day ended with an official dinner given by President Zemgals.

Today the king comes, according to the Latvians, building a bridge across the Baltic between the Scandinavian and Baltic states, and the hope of the Letts and Esthonians that Sweden will actively enter northern European politics, is contained in all papers.

Reasons for Visit.

The German press features the fact that the first Gustav who visited the Baltic did so to fight the Poles, and interprets the visit of Gustav as an indication of Sweden's intention to remove the Baltic states from the sphere of Polish influence. Members of the king's suite, however, deny this interpretation, saying that Poland is becoming an increasingly important market for Sweden.

They give three reasons for the visit. First, Sweden's desire to strengthen trade and economic relations; second, to use the Baltic states as transit countries for future Russian trade; third, to increase cultural relations in the Baltic countries.

Speeches made thus far by King Gustav and the Swedish foreign minister, Ernst Trygger, carefully avoid politics. Lorenz, the bolshevik minister to Latvia, attended all today's functions but was presented to the king.

10,000 Esthonians Parade.

TALLINN, Esthonia, June 29.—Ten thousand Esthonian home guards, ranging in age from 17 to 70, including university professors, students, former members of the government, representatives of all professions and the working classes, were reviewed by King Gustav yesterday as a climax to his visit here.

The spirit behind the parade was to show King Gustav that Esthonia is prepared to combat any aggression from the east and conveyed the hint that Sweden was in a position to continue to discuss further disarmament that it is now protected from Russia by the Baltic states.

PALM BEACH SHERIFF DECLARES HIS COUNTY SAFE FOR MOTORISTS

Discovered in the Northwestern station on his way to Lake Geneva, Wis., for a week end continuance of his visit to Chicago, Sheriff R. C. Baker of Palm Beach, Fla., last evening said he is in the north to prove that tourists are safe, at least in Dade county, Florida, and that they will not be fired on by zealous prohibition enforcers.

The sheriff admitted he came also to purchase a machine gun with which to carry on his fights against desperadoes in the Everglades. He laughed at the report he had come to purchase 18 machine guns.

"I'm in Chicago principally to tell everybody I meet they'll be safe in coming to Palm Beach," he said. "Not a pocket has been picked nor an innocent motorist fired on since I became sheriff. We did have just one major crime—a jewel robbery—but the man who did it is now doing fifteen years."

EX-KAISER STILL NURSES HOPE TO RULE GERMANY

BERLIN, June 29.—"The defeat in the reichstag of the proposal for a prolongation law for defense of the republic, which includes a ban on the former kaiser's return to Germany, will not affect his majesty's plans," a near associate of the former kaiser said today.

"Though he feels his exile keenly, he does not desire to return to Germany except as ruler. We all hope the day will come when the republic has been given so much rope that it will hang itself and the people will call back the ancient dynasty. When that day comes, it does not matter whether there is a ban on the former kaiser's return or not. The nation's will is stronger than any legal ban.

"At the same time we are pleased to note that the reichstag's vote confirms the view that the revolutionary madness is beginning to die out among responsible Germans, as is also shown by the impressive success of yesterday's national demonstrations."

U. S. LUTHERAN FLAYS ONE DAY A WEEK CHRISTIAN

Speaks on Social Sins at Danish Congress.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 29.—(AP)—After devotional service led by the Rev. P. H. Popp of Jugo-Slavia, today's session of the world Lutheran congress opened with an address by the Rev. G. M. Bruce of St. Paul, Lutheran Theological seminary. His topic was: "The Lutheran Conception of the Relationship Between Christianity and the World."

Prof. Bruce said that it was the duty of the church to raise its voice of authority against prevailing social sins and evils wherever they may be found and not to become a thing aloof and apart from the world in which men live.

"Let Your Light So Shine."

"Nor is it the function of the individual Christian," Prof. Bruce continued, "to be a Christian on Sunday and a worldling, cursing, swearing, deceiving, lying, cheating, stealing and oppressing on week days. His entire life is to be lived as a Christian; he is in the world, yet not of it. He is to be a light to lighten the world, a salt to season it, and a leaven to permeate it."

In the subsequent discussion Baron Will von Techmann of Germany and the Rt. Rev. Erkki Kaili, bishop of Viborg, Finland, participated.

Attacks Social Evils.

An address was made by the Rev Dean J. Maroni of Oslo on "The Lutheran Church and the Social Crisis."

Dean Maroni urged the church to dedicate itself towards a greater task in fighting the evils which beset the poor, and to embark upon a wider field of social reformation.

The discussion was participated in by the Rev. Louis Appia of the Lutheran church of Paris; Victor Capestus, president of the Lutheran Church of Austria, and the Rt. Rev. Dr. Zoellner of Muenster, Germany.

MARTINELLI AND RETHBERG MAKE MARVEL OF 'AIDA'

Ravinia Sees Opera Stars at New Heights.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

By this time the Ravinia company can be considered fully assembled. Elizabeth Rethberg, the most recent arrival, was on hand to sing the name part of "Aida" in the Saturday night performance, and so all was well with the world. This was to be expected, for this artist has one of the world's rare voices, one of the two, or at the most, three soprano voices of the present generation that approach so close to perfection that there is little need of argument.

And there were other noble voices there in addition to that of Mme. Rethberg, the one owned by Giovanni Martinelli, for instance. Perhaps it was because of an unusually large audience; perhaps there was a bit of extra inspiration in the presence of Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Gann, guests of honor in Mr. Eckstein's box, but there was plainly a quite extraordinary bit of tension in the singing of these two artists.

Both Reach New Heights.

Mr. Martinelli's "Celeste Aida" at the beginning of the opera was sung as it has not been sung hereabouts in the last ten years or so, and as it probably will not be for another decade to come. Mme. Rethberg's "Patria Mia" in the Nile scene was a marvel of lovely expressive tone, and the duet of the two a few moments later was something even a little lovelier.

Two great voices, these, and at that they had no monopoly on the good singing of the evening. Ina Bourskaya as Amneris is always an interesting figure, a little less exotic in this performance than she has been in past seasons, and a somewhat better singer. Leon Rothier, as the high priest, and Louis D'Angelo, as the Egyptian king, did marvels with the two bass parts of the score.

Basiola's Singing Distinctive.

And Mario Basiola, who with Mme. Rethberg was another newcomer of the season, carried off the part of the Ethiopian king with much manner, singing with fiery distinction and listening with ear to the ground for the approach of Radames quite as one reads about in books of adventure.

Being present at a performance of "Aida" is a highly pleasant summer night occupation. It is more than pleasant when there are such artists as Mme. Rethberg and Mr. Martinelli to head the cast. And it must not be forgotten that Gennaro Papi, a conductor of extraordinary ability, was on the stand. Wherefore, and for several other reasons, Ravinia was a good place to pass a week-end.

BEARS THIRD SON

QUEEN MARIE.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, June 29.—A salvo of 101 cannon and the ringing of church bells proclaimed the birth at the royal palace today of a third son to Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia. The queen's mother, Queen Marie of Roumania, was present.

The Jugo-Slavian queen attended a moving picture show tonight. She left, however, before the end of the performance, and shortly before 11 p. m. the child was born. King Alexander I., who was in his castle of Topolja near Belgrade, was informed of the event by telephone and left immediately for the palace.

Tomorrow the nation will celebrate the birth. The new child will receive a Slavonic name, the custom of the dynasty being to inspire unity in the Jugo-Slavia by naming its children after various provinces. In the provisional baptism the child was named Paul, but the date of the final baptism which will be made a national event, has not yet been fixed. It is expected that the duke of York, representing the king of England, will be present, as he was at the baptism of the other sons of the king and queen. The health of the new son and the mother is declared to be satisfactory.

CAMP ALGONQUIN BECOMES MECCA FOR CITY'S POOR

School Out, 200 Children Pack Up Today.

With school books shoved away to the furthermost corner of the closet, school children will turn their thoughts today to plans for summer vacations.

Lakes and mountains and seashore will be within the reach of many who will get their summer supply of sun tan by canoeing, fishing, and horseback riding. The majority, however, will be compelled to spend their vacations dodging traffic on crowded, dusty streets and cooling off only when the policemen turn the fireplugs loose. Those are the children whom THE TRIBUNE is eager to get to Camp Algonquin through the generosity of its readers.

200 Pack Up Today.

Two hundred boys and girls from 6 to 14 years of age, chosen for an all-summer stay at the Harlowarden section of Algonquin because they need dietitians to watch their food, nurses to watch their rest, and trained counselors to guard their play, will arrive in camp tomorrow and Tuesday. The homes in the most congested districts served by the United Charities, where these children live ten months of the year, will be the scenes of excitement today. Clothing for the whole summer must be packed, stationery to write home to mother put in, and each vacationer's cherished valuables tucked away.

"The very first party for our all-summer guests will be the Fourth of July celebration," promises Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent, who already has the dozen or more buildings of the lower camp in shipshape order. "We'll have a parade, and a special dinner, and best of all will be the fireworks demonstration the Thearle-Duffield company will give."

Ice Fund Needs Help.

While the camp schedule is marching along in accordance with its schedule, THE TRIBUNE's free ice fund is lagging behind. No continued spells of hot weather have yet brought the suffering known only to the backyards of the city in the heat of summer, but unless the ice fund is prepared to care for emergency on a moment's notice that suffering is bound to come. THE TRIBUNE's wagons which started carrying free ice last Monday are propelled only by the gifts which come in from TRIBUNE readers.

NEW SUITS BREAK ALL RECORDS WITH 1,207 STARTED IN HALF DAY

All records for bringing litigation in Cook county were broken yesterday when attorneys swamped the Superior and Circuit courts to file suits on the last day for filing before the increase in fees effective Monday. A total of 1,207 suits was filed, surpassing the previous high mark of 802 set on Friday.

The Superior court led in the number filed with 750, as compared with the normal Saturday average of 40. In the same court 253 appearances were filed against a normal 25; the naturalization department handled 175 cases against the normal 25. A total of $7,972 was taken in in fees. The average half day nets $500, according to Superior Court Clerk M. S. Szymczak.

In the Circuit court 457 suits and 200 appearances were filed and 98 naturalization cases handled. Clerk Thomas O. Wallace reported that collections reached approximately $6,000.

The costs for filing are to be increased by 50 per cent Monday. Naturalization fees are to be raised from $1 and $4 for first and second papers are to be increased to $5 and $10 respectively.

Deserted with 9 Children, She Gets Mad After 19 Yrs.

Kenosha, Wis., June 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Agnes Bruley, 47, got a divorce today. She told the court here that her husband deserted her and her nine children on their thirteenth wedding anniversary, and for nineteen years since then she had been supporting herself and the children. They were married at Oconto, Wis., in July, 1897.

Fit New Style Clutches to Damaged German Zep

FRIEDRICHSHAVEN, Germany, June 29.—(AP)—The breaking of the Graf Zeppelin's crankshafts on her last attempt to fly to the United States is now definitely attributed to overstrained clutches and couplings. A new style clutch is being installed with the new motors.

FOURTH WIFE OF HOWARD CAPPER SEEKS DIVORCE

Follows First Three in Charging Cruelty.

Howard Capper, son of John Seville Capper, former head of Capper & Capper, clothiers, yesterday was sued for divorce in the Superior court by his fourth wife, Mrs. Margaret Barclay Capper. The bill, drawn by Attorney Martin J. McNally, makes formal charges of cruelty.

This is the fourth charge of cruelty made against Capper in the last thirteen years. All three of his former wives were granted divorces on the same charge. Capper is 36 years old and is at present in Canada on a vacation, according to Attorney McNally. Capper was connected with the firm founded by his father, but left there years ago.

Nurse Interrupts Honeymoon.

Capper and his present wife were married on March 5, 1928, by Circuit Judge Phillip L. Sullivan. Their honeymon was interrupted by the appearance of Miss Betty Erickson, 28 years old, a former nurse, who said Capper had promised to make her wife No. 4. She was arrested and charged with extortion, but Capper did not prosecute. She filed a $100,000 suit for false arrest which is still pending.

Mrs. Capper charges Capper struck her last August and again in November. She left him on Dec. 28, 1928, after he struck her in their apartment in the Wedgewood hotel. The bill estimates his income at $500 a month and asks for alimony. It is reported that Capper has been thrown on his own resources by his father because of his domestic difficulties.

Divorced First in 1916.

Capper was divorced from his first wife, Mrs. Josephine Keirnan Capper, in 1916. The following year he was married to Miss Frances Callan of the Edgewater Beach hotel. This marriage lasted three years. She won a decree in 1920.

In 1921 he married the third time. A year later Mrs. Louise Quinlan Capper, the third wife, procured a divorce on the charge that he began beating her shortly after their marriage.

Capper's present wife is said to be a daughter of a member of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Downed London-Paris Plane Takes Off Again

BRUSSELS, Belgium, June 29.—(AP)—A three motored London-Paris airplane made a forced landing at Chistelles, Belgium today because of engine trouble. No one was reported injured. The airplane was able to resume its flight after the trouble had been fixed. Some of the passengers continued their journey by rail and steamer.

A WARM WELCOME THAT HAS NEVER WORN OUT

"The nation-wide acclaim with which the Chrysler is heralded is due to the quick appreciation of a motor-wise public that here at last is a car which is a marked departure from all earlier practice and performance. + + + In distinctive appearance, in performance ability, in economy of operation, in fine standards of manufacturing, in roadability, in driving convenience, in supreme quality, motor car experts give the Chrysler a place apart. + + + For the Chrysler is more than a great engineering feat—it is, literally, the culmination of all past engineering experience."

TRUE FIVE YEARS AGO AND STILL TRUE

Daring to go back five years when the first Chrysler appeared, Chrysler can read without apology every promise made then, for every promise has been fulfilled.

In 1924 Chrysler was new. Its claims for performance, economy and stamina had not been proved valid by the hundreds of thousands of cars and millions of miles of driving that support today's leadership.

True, the automotive industry was startled by the wealth of Chrysler innovations. The public trend was to Chrysler if only because Chrysler instantly out-moded other cars in appearance. Comprehensive and gruelling tests had convinced Chrysler engineers that they had built a superior product, but the public—ever reluctant, and wisely so, to take without question the manufacturer's word for it—was proving out those claims five years ago. Chrysler owners by strict trial discovered before long that the car upheld every promise made for it, and their eagerness—continuing to this day—to testify to its speed, its power and its strength resulted in the prevailing world-wide acceptance of Chrysler products.

Now, in 1929, the public's confidence in Chrysler is still unwavering. We invite you to discover in a test of your own selection, the good reasons for Chrysler's uninterrupted success—for this constant acceptance of Chrysler leadership in quality and value.

DOES GOLD RULE COUNTY COURTS? JUDGES DISAGREE

Statement by Comerford Both O.K.'d, Challenged.

"Seldom is a criminal convicted in Cook county criminal courts if he has sufficient money and influence."—Judge Frank Comerford.

The quotation is from a report of an address by Judge Comerford at a meeting of the Illinois Bar association Friday in Rockford. It was read by Judge Comerford's fellow members of the Cook county bench with varying reactions.

"Money talks everywhere," said Justice Jesse Holdom of the Appellate court, who has had thirty-one years' experience as a judge in Chicago. "Money can hire able defense counsel and it sometimes hires crooked defense counsel.

Depends on Judge, Prosecutor.

"Whether the unscrupulous employment of money in a trial influences the verdict depends to a great extent upon the alertness of the trial judge and on the prosecutor. I would not say that many guilty men have escaped punishment in Cook county's courts through the aid of wealth."

"A poor man has a better chance before a jury than a wealthy man," said Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court. "The average jury is prejudiced against a man with money and a capable prosecutor can prevent gold from undermining the scales of justice.

"It's true that the rich can employ more able lawyers than the poor, but clever defense attorneys cannot defeat substantial evidence. In my ten years as an assistant state's attorney before becoming a judge, I saw Adolph Luetgert, wealthy sausage manufacturer, convicted for murder; John Irwin, clerk of the Superior court and a rich man, found guilty by a jury; Alexander Sullivan, an attorney with a large fortune, convicted, and State Treasurer Spaulding and Bankers Dwyer and McGill receive the same fate. And there were many others."

Statement "Too Broad."

Judge John R. Caverly, a veteran of thirty years on the bench and the judge who sentenced Nathan F. Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb, said that Judge Comerford's statement was too broad.

"Successful corruption is a rare exception in Cook county's courts," he said. "Of course, it is true that money can hire the most skillful attorneys, but it's hard to determine what influence the best lawyers have with juries."

Judge D. J. Normoyle who will become chief justice of the Criminal court in the fall, was inclined to agree with Judge Comerford's views.

"Money can employ criminal lawyers who resort to unethical tricks," he said. "These criminal lawyers cheat justice with fraud in obtaining delays that wear out the state witnesses. Worse still, and perhaps the greatest menace to society today, money is employed by the defense to intimidate witnesses."

FINDS $3,500 IS IN HER BANK BOOK BUT NOT IN BANK

Mrs. Mathilde von Oesteren Moody, years old, a music teacher and composer of 560 Aldine avenue, was returned from New York last night on a warrant charging her with practicing a confidence game. Her spouse of six months, Charles Moody, known to her as a consulting engineer, was under arrest in New York and will be returned here today.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. Moody explained, her husband offered to take her to her native Germany for a vacation and sold sixteen shares of petroleum stock to finance the trip. She said he gave the shares and her bank book to a supposed salesman he encountered in a broker's office and instructed the salesman to transfer the proceeds of the stock to Mrs. Moody's checking account with the National Bank of the Republic.

The salesman returned the bank book marked with an entry of $3,500, she said, and on the strength of the entry, she wrote a $2,000 check to pay for an automobile in which the couple motored to New York. The $3,500 was never entered at the bank.

MITTIMUS LOST; 3 GUNMEN ESCAPE MURDER CHARGE

Inquiry Is Begun by Prosecutor.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson and Sheriff John E. Traeger yesterday began a search through their office files for an explanation for the disappearance of a mittimus that saved three young gunmen from a grand jury investigation on a murder charge.

A cursory investigation showed that there had been a flagrant official omission, but there were some gray haired veterans in the offices who shrugged their shoulders and surmised that society may have benefited from the irregularity.

The gunmen are Sollie Deutsch, Lawrence Ogden and Raymond Smith. Last December they shook revolvers in the face of Dr. George W. Thilo, a wealthy physician. He backed up, with his hands raised and tripped and fell, injuring his spine. Four days later he contracted influenza and died.

The criminals were in jail on robbery charges at the time of the death. A coroner's jury, under Deputy J. J. Butler, returned a verdict holding them to the grand jury on a murder charge. Mr. Butler said he turned the mittimus over to the deputy sheriffs who brought the prisoners from the jail to the inquest.

The mittimus never reached the grand jury. The youths went before Judge John P. McGoorty last April and, pleading guilty to robbery charges, received sentences of from one to twenty years in Pontiac. They will be eligible to parole hearings on April 18, 1930.

"There wasn't much of a murder case against the defendants," remarkd an old time investigator who, for the sake of his job, asked that his name be suppressed. "Some clever young assistant prosecutor probably held the murder charge over the heads of the gunmen to use it as a weapon in getting them to confess the robberies. With the criminals behind the walls, the mittimus papers, having served their tactical purpose, may have been thrown in a waste paper basket."

As reasonable as this explanation sounds, officials were concerned about the irregularity since the destruction of a mittimus might be a means for corrupt suppression of prosecution. The coroner's office, anxious to be cleared of any suspicion, dug up testimoney to show that the mittimus was duly presented to the sheriff's representatives and that the prosecutor had cognizance of the murder case since Assistant State's Attorney A. L. Marovitz attended the inquest.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—The cargo tonnage carried through Panama canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific in May set a new record for all time with 920,360 long tons. The heaviest Pacific bound tonnage in any previous month—875,641—was in October, 1928.

CATHOLIC WOMEN OF NATION WILL HOLD CONVENTION HERE

More than 1,000 Catholic women from all over America will attend the first national sodality convention, July 5, 6, and 7, at the Palmer house. This was announced yesterday by leaders of Our Lady's soladity of the city, under whose auspices the convention is called. It was stated that the main purpose of the convention is to impress the membership that their sodality is an apostolic organization and that it should be the right hand of the pastors in church work.

The Rev. Father Daniel A. Lord, nationally known director of sodalities, will conduct the meeting. Father Lord was selected by Cecil B. De Mille as a member of the advisory board in the filming of the picture "King of Kings."

The Catholic attitude toward women, their ideals, their problems, needs, and spiritual possibilities, will be presented.

NEW REGISTERING LAW TO GO INTO EFFECT MONDAY

The central registration law, recently passed by the state legislature and approved by Gov. Emmerson, becomes effective tomorrow. County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, sponsor of the law, yesterday explained its benefits.

The law was designed to accommodate commercial travelers, railroad men, and others whose occupation prevents their registration on specified days. The law permits such persons to register at the office of the board of election commissioners at any time prior to the compilation of the registration lists for each election. It also provides that registered voters may be transferred from precincts in which they formerly resided to new precincts by making application for transfer at the office of the election commissioners.

The names thus registered or transferred are subject to the canvass, suspect, and erasure proceedings as are those of all other voters. Judge Jarecki explained that this precaution is a safeguard against fraud.

What a verdict for shoe value
– – fifty million pairs a year

TO PROVIDE adequate facilities for its tremendous production, to assure uniformity in its high standards of quality, and to effect the economies that lower the price you pay, the International Shoe Company owns and operates ~
43 Specialty Shoe Factories, each making just one particular type and grade of shoe, together producing 50,000,000 pairs a year.
1 Rubber Heel and Sole Plant, producing 125,000 pairs of heels and 30,000 pairs of soles a day.
1 Cotton Mill, to produce 7,000,000 yards of lining fabric a year.
59 Auxiliary Plants, producing welting, dyes, chemicals, shoe boxes, shipping cartons, trunks, gloves, etc., to the value of more than $30,000,000 a year if purchased from outside sources.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT that the best shod nation on earth should wear fifty million pairs of International Shoes a year. One pair out of every seven produced by the entire industry is an International Shoe. This is the equivalent of two pairs for every home in the nation.
This fact measures in definite form the leadership that has come to the International Shoe Company through the things it has done and is doing for shoes.
It is a comparatively simple problem to elevate quality when price is no consideration. But to elevate quality and definitely lower price at the same time is an achievement. It is this that International has accomplished.
Today the International Shoe Company stands at the head of its industry. It is the world's greatest producer of shoes. It is the world's largest tanner of leather. Likewise it is a large producer in many related industries where its factories manufacture in tremendous quantity the many materials required to make and market its shoes.
From the selection of the hides themselves, through their tannage and on beyond the building of its shoes, International follows a policy of manufacture that embraces the production of its own lining fabrics and rubber heels and soles.
It manufactures its own chemicals, dyes and finishes. It produces its own shoe boxes, shipping cases and similar supplies.
All this is done in order to bring better quality to its products and make possible a lower price for those who purchase them. International Shoes sell in the merchant's store at the prices of grades beneath them in quality because International manufactures shoes under conditions that definitely lower the cost of producing quality footwear.
Fifty million pairs a year reflect the verdict of this nation on the value to be found in an International Shoe. It is as great an endorsement as has ever come to a product of industry.
The leadership which such endorsement has brought to this institution is but the recognition of the public in expressing its approval of an institution capable of giving greater value in footwear.
INTERNATIONAL SHOES are marketed under the five marks of quality which are shown below. Together they comprise more than 1,000 styles of footwear for men, women, children and infants. They are sold by more than 70,000 leading merchants, distributed throughout every state in the Union. Regardless of the brand you select, the style you prefer or the price you pay, International Shoes represent the greatest shoe value you can buy.

A mistake that may ruin your tour

YOU doubtless have heard it—maybe you are one of the careless who repeat it: "All tires are about alike."

Do you really think this is true? If you do, how do you explain the fact that one tire towers above all others both in popularity and in sales?

How do you explain the fact that the leading manufacturers of motor cars, seeking the best in accessories, use more Goodyear Tires for original equipment than any other kind?

How do you explain the fact that owners of the great truck fleets of industry, constantly on the hunt for cost-reduction, use more Goodyear Tires than any other kind?

How do you explain the fact that the urban, interurban and transcontinental bus lines, working always for safe and profitable operation, use "more Goodyear Tires than any other kind"?

How do you explain the fact that not alone this year but for fourteen years it has been true, "more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind"?

NO, good friend, these things are not to be explained, except on the true and unassailable premise that "all tires are NOT alike."

If you persist in thinking they are alike, that is your privilege. But you are denying yourself benefits in tire satisfaction and savings in tire costs that Goodyear users by the millions now enjoy.

Another thing, these lost benefits are not the only penalties you may be paying.

Summer is here, the roads are calling, the chances are you are planning some fine morning to head out for distant and alluring places on vacation in your car.

Maybe before you leave you would like to escape any hazard of tire trouble, and with that thought in mind you outfit all around with a set of new tires.

On the performance of that set of tires depends to a great extent the kind of a trip you will have.

If you buy them thoughtlessly, if you pay out your good money on the loose idea that "all tires are about alike" you may be inviting trouble.

A blowout, or a flat, on a hot dusty road a long way from a service station, is one of the surest destroyers of the vacation frame of mind that ever was!

SO why not get the best insurance there is, against a mistake that may ruin your tour, by insisting that your new tires be Goodyear Tires?

They'll cost you little if anything more than other tires, and it is the judgment of an overwhelming percentage of motorists that they are outstandingly the best tires money can buy.

Tread and carcass: these are the two main parts of a tire. There is greater traction in the Goodyear All-Weather Tread. There is greater vitality in the Goodyear Supertwist carcass. Evidence? Any Goodyear Dealer will demonstrate. Proof? "More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!"

JONES, ESPINOSA TIE; TITLE PLAYOFF TODAY

CUBS' ATTACK IN EARLY INNINGS DEFEATS CARDINALS, 10 TO 7

BRUINS START WITH ROAR, END WITH WHISPER

Hornsby, Grimm Hit Homers in First.

The Pirates lost a half game in the National league race yesterday by dividing a double header with Cincinnati, winning, 3 to 0, and then lost, 3 to 2.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

St. Louis, Mo., June 29.—Cheer loudly for what the Cubs did in the first four innings this afternoon. For what they did the rest of the way, whisper, neighbors, whisper. The score was Cubs, 10; Cards, 7, which ought to make everything all right, but one couldn't help noticing one of the most startling reversals of form ever beheld in one afternoon.

In the first four innings our boys made all their ten runs and all their ten hits, including two homers off Willie Sherdel in the first inning, one by Hornsby, his 14th, and the other by Grimm, his 8th, the latter with the bases full. After the fourth the gang didn't register a single run or a solitary hit, although they faced four second and third string Card pitchers. Fred Blake again attempted to demonstrate that he is more than a five inning pitcher but failed, despite the inspiration of a lead which at one time stood 10 to 3. In a state of exhaustion, he was taken out of the game with two on and none out in the seventh, following a tottering sixth inning.

Bush Relieves Sheriff.

Tireless Guy Bush, who pitched a full game which was tied most of the way day before yesterday, went in. Although Guy forthwith got himself into a jam through an error, he buckled and finished without allowing a hit in the three innings he performed.

Today's victory gave the Cubs a record of seven straight over the Cards this month and a ratio of 10 wins out of 14 played with the league champions this year. In turning back the Cards the McCarthys gained on all their first division adversaries, inasmuch as the second place Pirates and third place Giants divided double headers.

Since all the Cub offensive took place in the first four innings it is necessary to discuss Murderers' Row as it performed in that span. In the four innings, Hornsby scored three runs, and had a homer, a double and a walk; Hack Wilson scored two runs, had a single, a walk and a sacrifice; Kiki Cuyler scored two runs and made three singles, Stephenson scored a run, drove in two with a double and got a pass. Grimm got a homer with the bases full.

Hornsby Starts Trouble.

This afternoon's game was launched quietly enough, for McMillan sent a gentle fly to Bottomley and the one English sent to Hafey was just as mild. Then came the Rajah.

He drove the ball on a line into the right field pavilion. Wilson walked and went to third on Cuyler's single to center, Ki taking second on the throw to third. Stephenson was given an intentional pass, filling the bases, then Grimm got his number 8 into the stand in right center, with Wilson, Cuyler and Stevie scoring ahead of him.

In the Card's half of the first inning the customers got to see the ball fly out of the park for the third time. After disposing of Douthit and High, Blake walked Frisch. Then Bottom-

Scouts Start Canoe Cruise on Muskegon

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Big Rapids, Mich., June 29.—Nine cozy pup tents and one seven foot green cloth shelter are staked out among the trees. Camp fires are gleaming and a clamor of dishes may be heard. For the Chicago Boy Scouts who are members of THE TRIBUNE canoeing party are tenting tonight along the banks of the Muskegon river.

These 16 youngsters, chosen because of their experience in the outdoors, their ability to handle a canoe and swim expertly, are making the woods ring with their yells and frolics because the day's program has been one continual round of fun, including two good meals, a thirteen mile paddle down this beautiful stream and an opportunity to fish in front of camp this afternoon.

Start from Big Rapids.

Upon arriving at Big Rapids at 10 o'clock this morning THE TRIBUNE party found their 16 foot canoes, a big sponsor which is to serve as a commissary boat, tents and all kinds of food already on the banks of the Muskegon about one-half mile from town.

The canoeing expedition is finding the Muskegon river a rare combination of alternately swift and easy flowing water, high banks, a winding, twisting channel and lots of timber, with many ideal camping sites. The stream flows through a sparsely settled country, so these young canoeists and campers from Chicago are getting a taste of real tent life beyond the reach of towns. Each youngster must pick a tent site, make his own bed, wash his dishes and lend a hand in the cooking operation.

Encounter Swift Water.

With our canoe leading to pick the channel and keep an eye out for stumps and logs, the canoe flotilla moved down stream this afternoon like a well trained naval unit. The boys were assigned positions in the canoe formation and thus followed behind the flagship in regular order. Trailing the last canoe in the string, Scout Master Anderson was able to keep the entire group in view.

The thirteen mile stretch negotiated today gave the youngsters a good chance to show their canoeing ability because the expedition shot through some fairly fast stretches of water which shoved our 16 foot ships along at such merry pace that the boys yelled like a bunch of wild Indians.

After camping here near the Rogers dam the party will start down stream again in the morning.

MR. STANCZAK'S NINE SONS LOSE BALL GAME, 8-7

The Stanczak Brothers baseball team of North Chicago, composed entirely of sons of Martin Stanczak, was defeated yesterday afternoon in Waukegan by the Knights of Lithuania, 8 to 7.

John Stanczak, left fielder, had his left leg fractured in three places in sliding into second base in the second inning.

Yuncer, outfielder on the K. of L. team, won the game with a home run with the bases loaded in the fifth inning.

Neal Wins Final at Homewood to Tie Shropshire

Paul Neal and E. Shropshire fought it out to the last race for jockey championship of the Washington Park season which ended yesterday and wound up in a tie for high honors. To tie Shropshire, Neal had to ride Sweet Mandy to victory in the last race on the program. He did it quite handily. Each boy won 31 races.

Windy City, as a result of his victory in the American Derby, was the highest money winning horse and his owner, Fred M. Grabner of Chicago, naturally became the biggest money winning owner.

"The Washington Park season was a record breaker from every standpoint," Col. Matt J. Winn, executive director, declared last night. "Our attendance was the highest ever recorded at a Chicago track, and our mutuel handle ran accordingly. The American Derby came back so strongly that I believe this race next year will attract the greatest crowd that has ever witnessed a turf contest in America."

	Winners		Winners
E. Shropshire	31	L. McDermott	20
P. Neal	31	R. Ayraud	13
R. Heigle	21	L. Jones	13

The largest crowd of the season gathered at Washington Park on June 15 for the American Derby. Decoration day provided the second largest gathering and the closing day yesterday brought out the third largest crowd.

LOTT, TILDEN IN WIMBLEDON QUARTER FINALS

Chicagoan Defeats Czech Champion.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, June 29.—George Lott, the Chicago youngster who hurried from his studies at the university out on the Midway to arrive here at the last minute, earned the right to meet Jean Borotra in the quarter finals of the men's singles in the Wimbledon tournament by trouncing Jan Kozeluh, Czecho-Slovakian champion, in straight sets today. Lott won, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

Mixing his shots in a baffling manner, the Chicagoan ran Kozeluh all over the court and was never in danger after he once had settled down in the opening set.

Other quarter-finalists were Henri Cochet, Tilden, Landry, Hans Timmer, Kehrling, and Bunny Austin, the last three of whom won their matches this afternoon.

Austin is hailed as England's new hope in the tennis world. He defeated Kingsley, a fellow countryman, in a dramatic five set match in which the latter four times had match point only to lose the gruelling last set 11-9. Austin won, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, 4-6, 11-9.

Baron von Kehrling won, making short work of J. S. Oliff of Great Britain, 9-7, 7-5, 6-4.

France thus qualified three, the United States two, and England, Hungary, and Holland one each. George Lott and Edith Cross were outclassed by Jean Borotra and Kea Bouman, Franco-Dutch pair, in the mixed doubles, the latter winning 6-3, 6-2.

Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, doubles champions, experienced little trouble in beating Ulrich and Menzel, Czech-Danish pair, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

Rallies After Trailing.

With the games four all in the initial frame, Lott took his own service in the ninth game by maneuvering his opponent out of position and then charging the net for a smash placement. He trailed 15-30 in the tenth game and then took the next three points in a row to capture the game and the set.

Kozeluh showed increased speed in the second set, but Lott responded to the increased pace. The first game was deuced six times and the third four times, but Lott won both and soon jumped to a 3 love lead. Kozeluh made it 3-1 on four errors on the part of the Chicagoan, but Lott annexed the next three games for a 6-1 set.

The American toyed with his opponent in the last set, grabbing a 2 love lead and never being in danger thereafter. Kozeluh's best effort was to pull the game up to 4-3 and 5-4, from where Lott ran out the 6-4 set and the match.

Lott Reduces Errors.

Today Lott, who is one of the best net players Europe has seen, was content to rest on the base line until an opening came, which amply rewarded him, for his errors were twenty-five per cent less than in his previous matches.

What the young Chicagoan will do against Borotra, who is tonight a slight favorite over both Cochet and Tilden to annex his third Wimbledon championship, remains problematical, though if he retains the flashy form he exhibited today he should give the Bounding Basque' the battle of his life. Borotra, however, is twenty-five per cent better now than in his best days, because during the last year he has developed powerful ground strokes, lack of which heretofore has been his great weakness.

Helen and Edith Win.

Helen Wills and Edith Cross, who are not liable to get very far in the women's doubles, beat Molla Mallory and Miss Desmidt, the latter the South African star, 6-1, 5-7, 6-1, before a crowd of fifteen thousand spectators on the center court.

Sparkling net play by Mrs. Mallory pulled the second set out for her and her partner after the games stood at five all, but Miss Wills and Miss Cross were too versatile in the last set, which they took easily, 6-1.

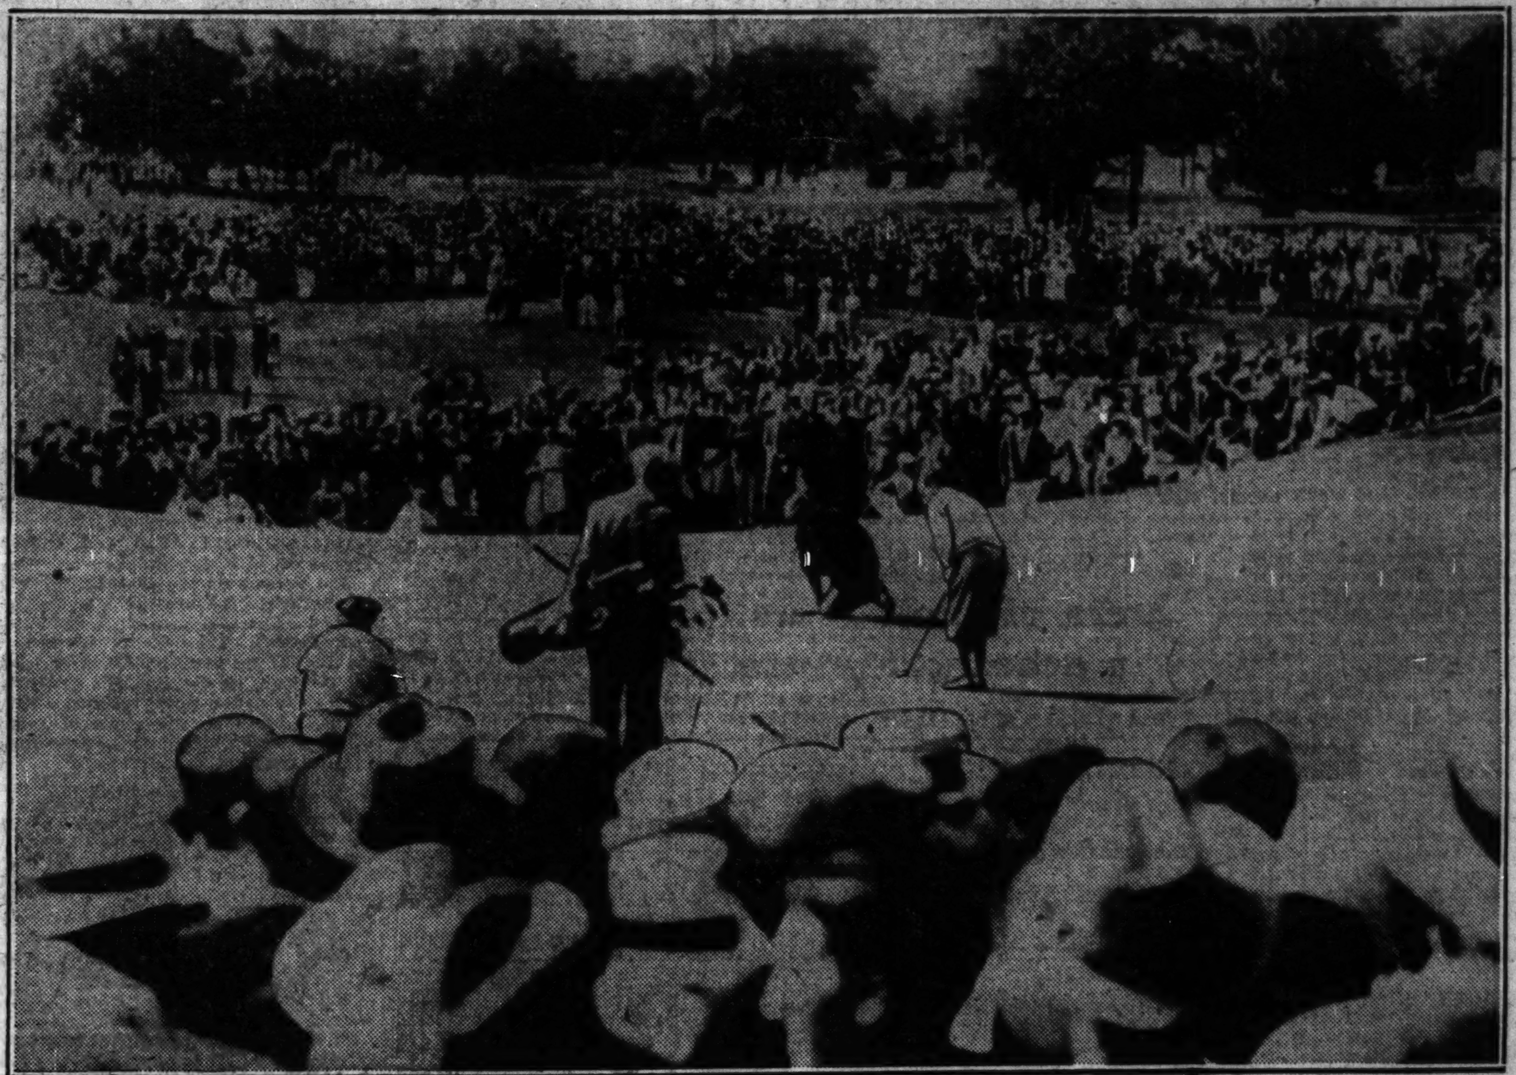
Miss Ryan and Betty Nuthall, who appear as one of the strongest women's doubles combination, beat Mrs. John Hill and Evelyn Colyer, 6-4, 6-4, dominating the match throughout.

Great Britain put two women in the last eight when Elsie Goldsack beat Mrs. Michell, conqueror of Betty Nuthall, 4-6, 7-5, 6 love, and Joan Ridley defeated Fraulein Aussem, German champion, 8-6, 6-1. Billie Tapscott, South African youngster, is the other quarter finalist. She triumphed over Miss Chamberlain, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

In the fourth round of the men's doubles Big Bill Tilden and Francis Hunter beat the British pair, George Crole Rees and C. G. Eames, 6-1, 6-4, and 6-3.

England's hopes of getting three men in the quarter finals began to dwindle when Hans Timmer, blonde Dutch champion, who is finding himself for the first time this year, beat Nigel Sharpe, English youngster who upset Baron Morpurgo the other day, 6-1, 3-6 love, 11-9.

WHEN BOBBY TIED FOR THE OPEN GOLF TITLE



Bobby Jones makes his 294th stroke, a ten foot putt on the eighteenth green, and ties Al Espinosa for the national open golf title. With two disastrous sevens behind him on the last nine and his third shot on the home hole ten feet from the pin, Bobby carefully measured his putt, then tapped the ball with "Calamity Jane" and the ball dropped into the cup.

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Another turf idol was cracked, if not broken at Aqueduct today. Blue Larkspur, winner of the Withers and Belmont stakes, was beaten by a head by Grey Coat, a 30 to 1 shot, in the running of the Dwyer stakes.

E. R. Bradley's colt struggled desperately under the whip to retain his place at the top among the 3 year olds, but Grey Coat, with a pull of seven pounds, came from far back to win in a spectacular finish and to earn $19,450 for Samuel Ross.

Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's Sarazen II. also stunned the crowd by winning the Tremont stakes and $13,550 in the first race of the season for 2 year olds at six furlongs.

Blue Larkspur simply was not at his best over the slow track. When he raced up to Flag Day, the early pacemaker, to take command half way down the long stretch, the crowd, on its feet, gave way to emotions deeply stirred with a mighty shout. A big majority had backed the son of Black Servant at odds on and shouted in anticipation of what looked like an easy victory, if not a triumphal march.

Suddenly, however, danger loomed on the outside. Grey Coat, son of Gnome-Lady Gay, a far distant trailer for a mile and all of eight lengths back rounding the turn, charged up on the outside to begin cutting down the distance which separated him from the leaders.

Mack Garner, on Blue Larkspur, sensed the danger and so did the thousands in the stand. The boy on the favorite sat down for a vigorous ride, but on the instant the horse began sprawling slightly in the loose footing. Just at the end Garner tried to save the race with the whip.

Flag Day, well supported at 3 to 1 and carrying the confidence of Jimmy Fitzsimmons, his trainer, finished third, two lengths back.

Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 29.—There was consternation on the clipped lawns of the Winged Foot Country club about a mile out over gummy tar roads from the suburban station of Mamaroneck this afternoon. Al Espinosa, the professional golfer, a quiet fellow, strongly addicted to minding his own business, tied Bobby Jones, who has been standing as a one man amateur team against the whole class of pros for years, in the final 18-hole round of the open tournament with a total score of 294 for the 72 holes.

Technically, you might say that Jones tied Espinosa, because Espinosa finished first but that wasn't the way the big, restless crowd looked at it. Bobby was their fellow, a club member himself and socially quite quite, whereas the professional golfer is only a member of the help after all and therefore not quite quite, though he may be a very decent chap and all that.

Title Is Worth $50,000.

So it was Espinosa, the pro, employed by the Sportsmen club of Chicago, who tied Bobby Jones and carried him into extra innings for the fourth time in six years. They will play 36 holes tomorrow, going out at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Jones will seek another medal to toss into the catch-all drawer of the bureau back in Atlanta, and Espinosa for the fees, royalties, and driblets of money that generally mount up to $50,000 in a one year term for a professional with a fairly active manager.

There were several golf managers lingering on around the Winged Foot clubhouse this evening long after the crowd had limped away to the Surrey-style, half-timbered mansions and bungalows of the stucco suburbs hereabouts.

The managers wished to see Espinosa on business. Even Mr. Leo P. Flynn, whose pugilists have been sailing through the ropes to land in his lap of late, was willing to manage Espinosa, promising an efficient business administration. Of course, if Robert should beat Al in the play-off Sunday, he would not need a manager. Runners-up never do.

The popular emotion as Robert came up the eighteenth fairway to tie the pro was something on the order of dismay. The crowd broke from a tight circle bordering the green, loosened and drifted about the place. Bobby had been expected to win. He hadn't won. What had happened to the young lawyer who won the open title twice before?

Bobby Has Two 7s.

He had gone out for the afternoon round in a fight with Gene Sarazen and three strokes up on him. Sarazen had taken a 78, which did for him. But Espinosa had been four strokes behind at mid-day and not only that but the score board showed an eight against his name at the twelfth hole, where a par is five.

Could a man legally tie Bobby Jones with an eight on his card?

It appeared that this could be done, for Bobby had taken two sevens himself, the first one begetting the second because it shook his nerve and made him trap-shy.

Espinosa shot this last round just four strokes better and four had been Bobby's advantage at the start of the last tour.

The state of the rivalry between Bobby by himself and the professionals in the aggregate is quite warm but also quite sporting and friendly. Twice in the last six years this young barrister who used to play in the tournaments as a collegian, has won the open championship from one of them. In those years the open title paid nothing. Bobby wouldn't sign testimonials, play exhibition tours for guarantees or hire out as a clothes horse for the manufacturers of belts, socks, shoes, shirts and underwear.

When Turnesa Lost Out.

In 1923 he beat Bobby Cruickshank in a playoff. In 1926 he overcame a lead of four strokes in the last seven holes to beat Joe Turnesa, a young alumnus of the Westchester caddy houses who [illegible] just setting out as a tournament player and contemplating marriage and in need of $50,000. The professionals as a group have felt that this was a deplorable waste of $150,000 but they are a more sporting lot than the run of professional athletes and their regret hasn't amounted to anything like resentment.

Here is a curious fact about Bobby's record in the open championship. In that time the professionals have sent against him a couple of thousand players, counting those who didn't qualify in the trials, but never has he played twice against any one pro for the title. They seem to ripen one fellow every year but he stays ripe to meet them as they come.

There was Cruickshank. Bobby beat him

There was Willie Macfarlane, who tied Bobby and beat him in the play-off. Then Robert licked Turnesa that hot afternoon in Columbus, the only time he has won the open off by himself. Last year he played off against Johnny Farrell and lost. But this time Johnny was dropped to relieve the congestion on the fairways at the end of the second day, 23 strokes behind Bobby.

Considering what Bobby has been doing all these years against all those players who are good enough at the game to make their living, some their fortunes at it, a man can understand why the crowds make a Lindbergh of him and moan out loud when he misses a shot. Still, he is no party to all this and if it is instinctive in the crowd to set him socially apart from the men he plays with, that is none of his doing.

Rain Gave Him a 75.

His last round today was his worst of the tournament. His first was a 69, the lowest he ever shot in the open. He traveled his next round in the heavy rain yesterday afternoon, a state of weather that might have added a dozen strokes to a very good golfer's score. His card was 75. This morning he took 71 and then, with a lead of three strokes over Sarazen, he went out and was caught by the next man, Espinosa.

He was even with par at the seventh tee, where his drive curved off in a wide slice and his second shot fell in a trap. Up to here he had been boosting them up out of the traps without trouble. He had even gone out before his rounds to pitch a few dozen out of sand for practice. But this time he hoisted clear over the green to the edge of the mound and fell into another trap.

He said afterward that this shot broke his game. He had no more confidence in traps and was afraid of going in more of them. He played out of this second trap right back into the first one and was on the green at last in five, taking two putts.

In the meanwhile Espinosa had been having a terrible time at the twelfth. He hooked his drive, trapped his second, trapped his recovery and used his fourth to get out of that. His fifth was trapped beyond the green and the sixth went on, two putts from the cup.

Then Another Seven Hole.

Bobby was crowding himself after the eighth, afraid he might even take ten somewhere. At the tenth hole he used a spoon instead of an iron and carried beyond the green, losing a stroke on a par three hole, and was three down to par for the round.

At the thirteenth he lost another and going to the fifteenth he used a spoon instead of a driver to play safe, short of a ditch. The tee shot caught the wind and fell into the woods to the right where there was nothing to do but spend a stroke playing out. His third shot rolled off the green and his recovery also failed to hold, rolling back down a high bank. So again he took five to reach the green of a par four hole and took two putts for another loss of three strokes. A putt of 3 feet missed on the sixteenth and his serious troubles were over, though he was off the green with his second at the home hole and had to sink a ten foot putt to tie.

Farrell Is Mr. America.

Sarazen and Denny Shute, were tied for third with 296 and behind them came George Von Elm, the amateur, and Tommy Armour, with 297. Henry Ciuci's 299 placed him seventh.

Mr. Farrell's haberdashery triumphed where his golf couldn't. He was again elected Mr. America, the best dressed young man in the tournament and awarded $1,500 which was $500 more than the first prize in the tournament.

HILLSDALE, ILL., SHOOTER TAKES TOURNEY TITLE

Cracking 200 consecutive targets, Harry Schomerus, Hillsdale, Ill., sharpshooter, yesterday won the men's amateur singles title in the Great Western trapshoot tournament that ends today at the Lincoln Park Gun club.

E. F. Woodward of Houston, Tex., and Frank Troeh, Portland, Ore., star, ranked next, each with 198. Seven others tied for fourth, each with 197. They were: C. J. Mustion, Kansas City; H. C. Henry, Chicago; S. L. Jenny, Highland, Ill.; C. W. Olney, West Allis, Wis.; John Cunningham, Sturgeon Lake, Minn.; Stanley Shidley, Des Plaines, Ill., and H. M. Bauder, Geneva, Ill.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29.—(AP)—Harvard university today defeated Yale, 6 to 3, for the 1929 intercollegiate polo championship. The match was played on the Philadelphia Country club oval.

E. T. Gerry, No. 2 for Harvard, was the star of the game, accounting for five goals. J. P. Cotton made the other tally. J. C. Rathborne scored two of Yale's goals and Hardie Scott the other.

It was Harvard's second championship since the series started in 1923. The Crimson won the crown in 1925. Yale was the victor in the first series in 1923 and, then, captured the title in 1926, 1927 and last year.

MONTANARO WINS $10,000 PEABODY MEMORIAL STAKE

From the downstate farming district of Galesburg, Ill., came Montanaro, a 4 year old thoroughbred, to win the $10,000 Francis S. Peabody memorial handicap as the June racing season closed at Washington Park yesterday.

A crowd of 19,000 watched the Illinois bred and Illinois owned horse race to his victory. From the rise of the barrier until the finish Montanaro was always in front and at the end, was doing his best under the feather impost of 98 pounds to beat the Wild Rose farm stable's Dowagiac by a head. Canaan, owned by Leo J. Marks of Kentucky, finished third.

Montanaro, ridden by Jockey F. Halbert, a Chicago youth, turned in the fastest mile and quarter ever run over the Washington Park course as he rolled up his victory. His time was 2:04 1-5, and it clipped three full seconds off the old track record.

Montanaro Pays $14.22.

In the betting Blackwood and the Seagram entry of Sir Harry and Gaffsman absorbed most of the support. Montanaro, for the third time during the season here, went to the post as an outsider.

Montanaro paid $14.22 to win, $6.92 to place, and $4.06 to show. Dowagiac paid $7.90 to place and $5.18 to show, while Canaan paid $4.20 to show.

As the barrier went up Jockey Halbert rushed Montanaro into the lead and as they passed the clubhouse turn he was a length and a half to the fore, with Dowagiac second, Blackwood third, and Canaan, pinned in against the rail, fourth. The Seagram entry of Gaffsman and Sir Harry was running sixth and seventh in the seven horse struggle.

As they hit the last turn there was no changed order of the running, but the entire field had moved up and was running closely grouped. The only horse to display the distress signal and show signs of quitting was Blackwood, and he couldn't find racing room. Montanaro was now only a half length in front of Dowagiac. Canaan was a head back in third place and Chicago was fifth, but just another head behind.

Wins by Inches.

Midway in the stretch Montanaro and Dowagiac, fighting for each inch in every stride, drew away from the others. They fought it out right up to within the shadow of the finish line. Dowagiac was gaining in those last strides, but his drive fell short by inches. Montanaro staggered on to victory. Dowagiac was eight lengths in front of the third horse, Canaan.

The race was worth $10,050 to Owner Milton Deatherage, who is a retired banker from the Galesburg section. It also carried a silver trophy, as an additional prize. The trophy was presented to Mr. Deatherage by Stuyvesant Peabody, son of Francis S. Peabody, in whose memory the stake was named.

The final day of the Washington Park season brought numerous exciting finishes.

The favorite players were jolted in the Centennial purse when T. S. Jordon was beaten by a length by Blushing Maiden, with Badger Face third.

Al Espinosa, Often Second, to Try Again

Al Espinosa, who will play 30 holes with Bobby Jones for the national open championship today, has won a reputation as a champion runnerup. Recognized as one of the best of professional golfers, like Mac Smith, he has never had the luck to be at his peak for the few days when a major championship was at stake.

Espinosa was born in California of Spanish parentage. He is one of five golfing brothers, all of whom are professionals, three of them employed in the Chicago district.

Al came to Chicago after making a reputation in California three years ago to become professional at the Illinois club. He left that post last fall to become builder and manager of the Sportsman's club, a private course to be built by George E. Chamberlain of Evanston.

Al's Record Spotty.

Espinosa's tournament record has been spotty. He has finished high up in many tournaments, but his most important victory was in the Mid-American open, which was held in Kansas City a year ago. Competing against most of the best professionals he won with four rounds of 74—68—75—72—289, five strokes ahead of Archie Compston, who was second. His 68 was four shots under par and a new course record and included an ace on the 145 yard fifth hole.

In the western open last year Al finished third, four strokes behind the winner, his diminutive elder brother, Abelard, who is professional at Columbian. In the Chicago district open Al again finished third, three strokes back of Abe, who won again. In the national open he tied for thirteen with 300, six strokes back of Farrell and Jones.

In the national open at Oakmont two years ago, he tied for thirteenth with 311, due to a bad start, but he was the only player in the field to break 70 on that long course of many traps. He scored 69 on his last round.

Espinosa's outstanding golf of last year was played in the national professional championships. He was medalist with rounds of 70 and 72 for 142, four strokes in front of his nearest competitor, Tommy Armour, and went on in the match play to win decisive victories over John Golden, 8 and 7; Jock Hutchison, 5 and 4, and Horton Smith, 6 and 5. He lost in the final to Leo Diegel, 6 and 5.

Espinosa is of average height but strongly built with a "barrel" chest and particularly powerful shoulders. His skin is olive, due to Spanish ancestry.

OTTO W. LEHMANN.

Chicago will get its first taste of noncommercialized racing at Arlington Park tomorrow, where the reorganized American-National Jockey club will open a 29 day summer meeting.

Thoroughly representative of the commercial, professional, and financial life of Chicago, the new Jockey club, with its rich array of stakes and liberal purses, hopes to elevate the turf standards of the west during the meeting. Arlington Park officials expect to see the track rival Belmont and Saratoga in New York.

Instead of declaring dividends at the end of each season, the leaders of the new turf organization, who have invested several millions in the enterprise, have promised to put their profits into improvements and increased stakes and purses. Within a few years, they believe, Arlington will occupy the same important place in American racing as Royal Ascot and Epsom Downs do in England.

The outlook on the eve of the meeting indicates the venture will be successful. The fact that the best horses representing the most prominent stables in the east, middle west, and far west are on the grounds awaiting the call to action gives assurance that Chicago is to be the scene of some of the greatest racing of the year during the next 29 days.

Large Attendance Predicted.

An efficient organization has been recruited by the Chicago sportsmen to conduct their meeting. Because Arlington Park will be the only big track in the country operating during a greater part of the month the meeting no doubt will bring turf regulars here from all sections of the country. The attendance, it has been predicted, will double that at any other track in this section.

The opening of the season tomorrow afternoon is to be featured by the American National handicap, a sprint at 6 furlongs, which will carry $7,500 in added money. During the first week three rich stakes are carded, the $15,000 Stars and Stripes handicap, featuring the July 4 program, the $10,000 Post and Paddock handicap for 2 year olds July 6, and the opening day stake.

A field of 20, including such stars as Misstep, Golden Prince, Greenock, Blackwood, Wisdom, Panchio, Cayuga, T. S. Jordan, Illegitimate, Silverdale, My Sis, Click, Nellie Custis and Lady Broadcast, is expected to parade to the post in the opening hadicap. Misstep is the top weight of the party and will shoulder 128 pounds.

Horse Colony Grows.

The thoroughbred colony at Arlington has received many additions within the last few days. Today all the best horses that have been racing at Washington Park will move to the north side course. There have been numerous arrivals from New York, Canada, Latonia and Fairmount Park. When the first bugle sounds there will be more than 1,200 horses quartered at Arlington and about half that number at Hawthorne and Washington Park which will be vanned to Arlington to fill racing engagements.

Christopher Fitzgerald of New York is to head the board of stewards at Arlington and his associates will be Martin Nathanson, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, A. B. Hancock and Maj. L. A. Beard.

Many improvements have been made at Arlington Park since last season. A new clubhouse for the Post and Paddock club members has been constructed north of the regular grand stand and clubhouse. It was built at a cost of $300,000.

Other improvements include the construction of several new barns and the laying of concrete on the terrace fronting the grand stand and on the concourse leading from the train shed to the stands. A new paddock has been built. The entire property has been beautified and landscaped.

Post time for the first race each day will be 2:15 o'clock. Every race on the opening program was filled almost to the overflow point yesterday. Advance demands for reservations indicate a record opening crowd, Managing Director Carruthers declared.

Vice President Curtis, who is in Chicago as guest of Albert D. Lasker, will attend the opening card at Arlington, Mr. Carruthers announced yesterday.

ARLINGTON PARK.

ARLINGTON PARK, sponsored financially and socially by an imposing list of leading citizens—who in this instance prefer to be termed sportsmen—will open its gates tomorrow for its first meeting under the present régime. That opening, its leading spirits assert, will inaugurate a new era in Chicago and midwestern racing.

With the slogan "Sport for sport's sake," Arlington Park undertakes to bring here the greatest horses in the country, to conduct its racing on the highest plane, to minimize all so-called commercial features of the turf.

That is a pretentious undertaking. Caliber of the men interested in this venture—giving the same energy and attention, even more, to racing that has guided vast business enterprises—bespeaks their success. Seeking no profit, and accepting nothing beyond return of their original capital—after which all profits will be devoted to the sport—they are in a position to do big things if Chicago gives the response it always previously has given to big things.

Arlington Park is favored in its date allotment because few other tracks of prominence are operating in July. Already stable applications indicate more prominent racing strings than ever before—even greater, relatively, than old Washington Park.

Whatever the new organization does for local sport, whatever coöperation other local tracks extend, redounds to Chicago racing as a whole, and that is what interests turf followers here. Never was a sportman's organization launched with more altruistic motives or with greater promise.

The Old Camp in the Wilderness
Has gone the Red Man's way.
These broidered "outings" in the Wild
Are like a bromide play.
The tents, the ax, the frying pan
That lead us far and free. . .
Alas! That these adventures gone,
Again as true might be.

In primal days . . . forgetfulness
Of castles, clothes, and caste
We sought in solitudes remote
Where peace would hold us fast.
Our Camp . . . but now a ritzy Club
Parades its painted pride . . .
De luxe with mirrors, rugs, and ease—
Where might a King abide.

The Camp of other days no more
Its rugged virtues sings . . .
Our Scouts upon a gilded bed
Snores late, in silken things.
The ice box and the radio
Bind habit to their slave. . . .
O, ashes of old fires we knew,
What braver faith we save!

The Red Gods of Biwabik
Are but a legend now.
Beyond the shores of Nipigon
They keep their lonely vow.
The Town has gathered in the Waste . . .
Old Campfires weave a veil
To hide the sightless Vandal Horde
Come crashing up the Trail.

PYLE REWARDS 8 BUNIONEERS—BUT WHICH 8?

Los Angeles, Cal., June 29.—[Special.]—Eight runners in the recent New York to Los Angeles foot race, which thirteen days ago qualified 15 prize winners to split $60,000, have received their cut of the purse, Promoter Charles C. Pyle announced today. The payoff took place in secret—in fact, it was so secret that Pyle won't tell which eight of the fifteen he paid.

If one guess is better than another it was the eight runners who won the $200, $300, and $500 purses whom Pyle paid off. The Illinois promoter still is negotiating over a gate receipt event, in which he can get his big drawing cards to compete. His plan is to put on a lap race at a local sports field in connection with the annual Elks convention here, and to give John Salo his $25,000, Peter Guvuzzi his $15,000, and Guisto Umek his $10,000, under the full glare of publicity.

Umek has retained a local attorney, but has not yet taken any legal steps toward putting Pyle under financial compulsion.

CUBS HIT EARLY AND LUSTILY TO BEAT CARDS, 10-7

The Cubs got a rebate on those Card runs when they went to bat in the second. After High had thrown out McMillan, English singled to right and scored on Hornsby's double to left. Rog went to third on Wilson's sacrifice fly and scored on Cuyler's single to left. Stevie popped to Frisch.

Frankie and Jim Again.

Frisch and Bottomley again collaborated in the production process in the third. After two were out Frankie bounced a double past McMillan and scored on Bottomley's single to right. Hafey was safe on McMillan's boot, but Orsatti rolled out to Grimm.

The Cubs in the fourth demonstrated for the second time in the game that it is possible to do things in a big way after two are out. After McMillan had fanned and English had flied to Douthit, Hornsby walked and went to third on Wilson's single to right. Cuyler made his third successive hit, a single to right, scoring Hornsby and putting Wilson on third. Stephenson doubled to left center, scoring Wilson and Cuyler. Frisch threw out Grimm.

The seventh witnessed the removal of Blake before he had time to collapse completely. Frisch opened with his third hit, a single to center, and Bottomley walked on five pitched balls. Bush then was sent in. Hafey hit to Bush, who, in attempting to start a double play, made a wide throw to English. The bases were filled. Bush walked Orsatti, forcing in Frisch. Holm batted for Frankhouse and forced Orsatti, English to Hornsby, Bottomley scoring. Gelbert then hit into a double play, English to Hornsby to Grimm.

M'CRARY WINS GOLF TOURNEY AT OMAHA

Fighting a strong south wind that made good golf impossible he captured the crown today by upsetting Bud Maytag of Newton, Ia., 2 and 1, in a gruelling 35 hole fight on the Omaha Field club course.

It was his first golf victory of importance and it terminated his successful march through four of the best players of the tournament which started Monday. On Thursday he shoved the defending champion, Arthur Bartlett of Ottumwa, Ia., out of the championship round with a brilliant 2 up victory.

Maytag, a millionaire washing machine manufacturer, excelled his youthful opponent in only one department today, and that was with his woods.

The jinx that operates against the White Sox when they are involved in diamond difficulties with the St. Louis Browns hasn't exhausted its bag of tricks. It wielded its evil influence again yesterday and rendered the Blackburne forces so helpless that the second placers were able to sneak away with one game by 2 to 0 and then bag another in a romp by 12 to 4. It made fifteen trimmings the Howley men have handed the Sox in seventeen attempts this season and the latter agree that they have discovered, so far as they are concerned, the world's greatest nuisance.

As might be judged by the above count, the opening meeting was not exactly bad to look at, even though it furnished no balm for the 6,000 in attendance. Old Red Faber settled this affair by having another of his bad first innings during which the only runs of the game were walloped across. After that Faber was a picture of effectiveness but it meant nothing because the Sox could score no bull's eyes against the pitching of George Blaeholder.

Browns Hit; Sox Don't.

The nightcap was vastly different. The Sox continued in a hitting slump under the direction of Walter "Lefty" Stewart and the Browns continued in a hitting mood against both young Walsh and McKain. Moreover the Blackburne defense became as loose as ashes in this argument and ran up errors at such a dizzy rate that the spectators felt the occasion appropriate for the tuning up of the raspberry chorus. Much of this left handed harmony was directed at Bill Cissell, whose three boots made up half the Sox total and at the Great Shires, who through no fault of his own lost a pop foul in the sun when the Browns were ruining Walsh with four runs in the third inning.

The first game started to get away from Faber and his pals when Badgro singled with one out in the opening inning. Manush also hit for one base and the two runners moved to third and second while Kerr was tossing out Schulte. Then Kress smashed an honest single to left, the two runs zipped over the plate and that was all Blaeholder needed. In the seven subsequent rounds worked by Faber he snuffed out the Brownies on three hits, but the effort of the old timer was wasted because of the feebleness of the Sox attack.

Blaeholder Is Stingy.

Blaeholder was such a stingy gentleman for quite a spell it looked as if he might escape with a one hit triumph. That was the extent of the Sox attack for seven innings. The lone blow was a contribution by Cissell in the first chapter, but he was left stranded. The same fate was met by Reynolds who reached second on Kress' error with none dead in the fourth. After this nobody in white socks survived until Watwood produced the second hit off Blaeholder—a double to open the eighth. He died like the others. The other two blows were off the bats of Shires and Hoffman after two were out in the ninth, but Metzler fanned while acting as pinch hitter for Kamm.

The four tallies with which the Brownies broke up the second game in the third round began to brew when Blue led off with a pass and advanced to second on a wild pitch by Walsh. Badgro slapped a single to center and Blue ran home. Manush also singled to center, but Badgro was nipped trying to reach third on the hit. Manush went to second while this play was being staged and home when Cissell let Schulte's grounder seep through his paws. A single by Kress, double by O'Rourke, after Shires had lost his pop foul in the sun, and a sacrifice by Melillo added two more runs before the uprising subsided.

Walsh threw himself out of the game in the sixth by his own blunder. O'Rourke started things moving by beating out a roller to Kamm. Melillo bunted and O'Rourke should have been caught at second, but Walsh pegged the ball into center field, so O'Rourke took third and Melillo second. Both scored on a double to left center by Ferrell. McKain then was summoned and he retired the side after Ferrell had counted on Badgro's sacrifice fly.

Blackburn's fellows didn't touch Stewart for a hit in the first four innings, but exploded a couple in the fifth and counted a run. Kamm walked and worked around to the plate on singles by Kerr and Autrey. Then the Sox made things a bit interesting by showing their teeth and scoring three runs in the sixth. A single by Cissell, a double by Reynolds, a pass to Kamm and a two bagger by Watwood did this.

The Brownies rounded out their day's extended labors by slapping a couple more runs across in the eighth and three others in the ninth. One of the latter two runs was a homer into the left field first floor by Melillo.

Grimes Hurls Only One Game, So Pirates Divide Twin Bill

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 29.—[Special.]—The Pirates and the Reds divided a double header here today before a crowd of 20,000. The home team won the first game, 3 to 0, and the visitors the second, 3 to 2.

Steve Swetonic and Ray Kolp engaged in another pitchers' duel in the second game. Klop squeezed over Allen in the seventh inning with the run necessary to give the Reds the even break. Score:

ROBINS WIN PAIR.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 29.—(AP)—Behind the fine pitching of Clark and Johnny Morrison the Dodgers drubbed the Braves twice today, 4 to 3 and 8 to 7.

The appearance of Morrison in the second game marked the first start of the former Pirate curve ball artist in a Brooklyn uniform. Bissonette, Robins' first baseman, knocked out two home runs, one in each game. Frederick and Rhiel of the Dodgers and Bell, Sisler and Harper of the Braves, also contributed four base hits. Score:

RUTH HITS TWO HOMERS AS YANKS WHIP MACKS, 7-5

Errors Beat Lefty, Grove, End His Streak.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29.—[Special.]—The Athletics played miserably afield today and fell before the Yankees, 7 to 5, George Pipgras again turning back the Mackmen. Max Bishop was the chief offender with three boots at second base. He fumbled, booted and juggled the ball all over the park and kept Lefty Grove constantly in a hole.

The victory enabled the third place Yankees to cut the A's hold on first place to ten and one-half games, but the St. Louis Browns, in second place, are only nine games in the rear of the Macks. The defeat broke the Athletics' six game winning streak.

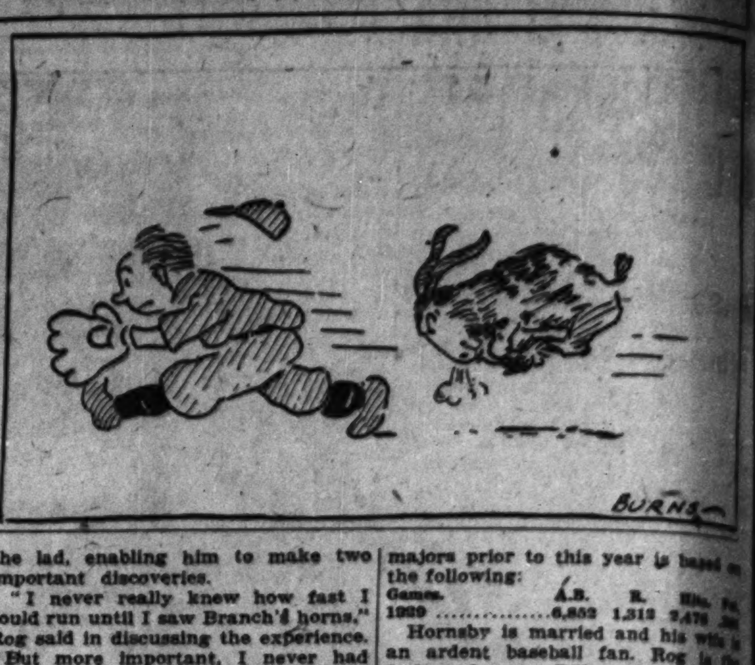
Clubhouse Confessions of Our Cubs

By Edward Burns.

St. Louis, Mo., June 29.—This is the ninth of the human documents through which the Cubs are telling the great public little and big secrets they long have been holding locked in their bosoms. Mail requesting that we tell how to trace players autographs on eggs of birds and other fowl continue to roll in, some demanding we reveal the process forthwith or quit talking about it. All these requests seem worthy and are being read with a great deal of interest.



ISN'T it a pretty bit of sentiment that we should be transcribing Rogers Hornsby's confession right here in St. Louis, his home and the scene of his greatest triumphs?

The Rajah wasn't born in St. Louis, you know, but he has an estate out a ways in St. Louis county and has paid taxes, more or less, in this community for 14 years. So really he's just as much a St. Louisan as Charley Lindbergh, even if he doesn't go in for the stuff quite as much as Charley does.

Rogers Hornsby was born in Winters, Tex., April 27, 1896, his folks being farmers. He always has loved animals, including goats, dogs, guinea pigs, rabbits, cattle, and horses.

Goat Rog's Favorite Pet During Boyhood.

When Roy was a very small boy his father died and his mother moved the family to Fort Worth, Tex., where he spent his boyhood playing baseball and raising pets and sometimes working a little. When Rog was about 11 years old, his favorite pet was a goat, which Rog says he called Branch, though we know this isn't true but is just a dig at Branch Rickey of the Cardinals, who Rogers didn't know until years after the goat died.

At this time Rog belonged to a kid team which played three games every Saturday. His mother took an interest in her son's passion for baseball and made him a uniform out of a bright blue material. Donning the suit for the first time, Rog ran out into the back yard. Branch, the goat, was there but didn't recognize his master in the new regalia. He chased the lad, enabling him to make two important discoveries.

"I never really knew how fast I could run until I saw Branch's horns," Rog said in discussing the experience. "But more important, I never had known how to slide. This day, though, with the goat only one stride behind me I reached the kitchen door and made a hook slide around my mother—one of the best of my career. The goat knew her and when she scolded him, he ran away."

Hornsby's Name Scattered Through Record Books.

Later Mrs. Hornsby invented a sliding pad which still is in use and on which she drew a royalty up till the time of her death.

Mr. Hornsby's name is scattered all through the record books, as all fans know, but the records of which he has most reason to be proud have to do with the fact that he is the only major league ball player who has batted better than .400 for three seasons. He also is the only player who ever went a full season with an average of .424, the mark he attained in 143 games in 1924. The figures on Rog's three ".400 years" are as follows:

1924	143	536	121	227	.424
1925	138	504	133	203	.403

Games.	A.B.	R.	Hits.	Pct.

Hornsby is married and his wife is an ardent baseball fan. Rog is the father of a son, Bill, aged 4, offspring of his present marriage, but he is silent on the subject of whether he wants Bill to be a ball player.

"To what do you attribute your ability to earn $40,000 a year as a ball player, Mr. Hornsby?" we asked.

"To them big steaks you've seen me eating," Mr. Hornsby replied. "Show me a ball player that feeds on tidbits and delicacies, and I'll show you a ball player thats hitting under .240."

Next Sunday—Next sabbath will be a banner day for the lady fans. In response to the most impassioned plea imaginable, we have arranged for Mr. Heathcote to tell all next Sunday. Speak to all your newsdealers early. As an added feature we expect to print a portrait of Cliff dressed in a John Gilbert costume.

SIREN SKIMS TO VICTORY IN FIRST OF Q BOAT RACES

Karas Bros. Yacht Beats Princess and Sinbad.

Finding a breeze precisely to her liking, Karas Brothers' Siren skimmed the nine mile Belmont Harbor course in 2 hours 14 minutes, and 15 seconds to take the first race for the Virginia cup against strong competition yesterday. Siren, defending the title which she took last year from Intruder, found Princess, with Edmond Jedzry-Kowski at the helm, her most troublesome opponent, but held an early lead to the finish and took the final gun two minutes ahead of the Jackson park boat. Sinbad was third in 2:33:40.

Of the six Chicago "Q" boats only three turned out for the first of the Virginia series, one of the two cup series emblematic of "Q" class local championship. Intruder and Chaperon, Jackson park boats, did not make the trip to Belmont harbor for the race, while Virginia, a Chicago Yacht club "Q" boat, did not enter.

Jennie Beats Fantome.

Although half the "Qs" missed a great day of sailing in a gentle southwesterly breeze, the entire Chicago Yacht club "R" class took advantage of it in the club's fifth race of the A series. Massee and Giaver's Jennie, last year's champion as Ariel, beat Bill Faurot's Fantome to the line by forty-seven seconds to win in 2:17:49, a little more than three minutes slower for nine miles than the champion Siren of the "Q" class. Fantome was second in 2:18:36, while six minutes behind Samuel Dauchy in Varya and Hollis Potter in Calypso battled for third position. Varya was winner by fifteen seconds in 2:24:04. Ariel, Mitzi, Nancy, and Guerilla also contested.

Dr. G. G. Davis' Orn was the winner in the "Eagle" class, one minute and fifty-nine seconds ahead of Bob Haynie's Falcon. In the Seawanhaka sloop division Gus Nylund's Springtime, held a wide margin over Orton and Klenze's Invader. Springtime, who showed her heels to the rest of the Seawanhakas at Michigan City last week, toured the nine mile triangle in 2:20:58, on corrected time.

Beaver Wins at Jackson.

Jackson Park Yacht club missed the "Q" boats in their weekly racing and only the yawl, 30 fot Seawanhaka, schooner, and jack classes sailed.

At Columbia Yacht club five members of the racing division continued the fight for the club championship off the Navy pier. Nowak's Sally VII. was the winner on elapsed time with a record of 1:50:12. The corrected time winner was not determined yesterday, however, though Norberg's Victory, a smaller boat than Sally, which is scratch boat of the fleet, is an almost certain corrected time winner. With a late start, Victory finished bu eighteen seconds behind Sally.

The "Q" boat racers will hold the second of the trio for the Virginia cup next Thursday, July 4th, in conjunction with the Lake Michigan Yachting association regatta, off the Navy pier on that day. The final will be sailed next Saturday, also off the Navy pier.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, June 29.—So many universities are having so much trouble living up to the rules which they adopted to restrain themselves from cheating unduly in sport that it looks as though the Harvard plan of minimizing intercollegiate relations and substituting inter-house matches within the university is the best solution short of abolition. Of course, it is possible that after some years the inter-house system would develop rivalries of such intensity that one house might be tempted to cheat slightly in order to gain an advantage over another. But that would be something like a man's cheating himself in a game of solitaire or welching on a mental bet with himself, which is a type of sin that cannot be detected.

One way to minimize cheating would be to abolish the legalistic and violistic rules which establish a special set of offenses, but the time probably is not ripe for that. In the beginning the colleges were wild barbarians, as Prof. Goodenough of the athletic council of the Big Ten put it, and hired the village ice man to play on the varsity football team. Then they went suddenly and tremendously moral, adopting rules which barred not only the village ice man but also a large element of athletes who were very sincere students, for all that any one knew to the contrary.

Rules Like Busybody Laws of Legislatures.

It is realized of course, that these rules are meddlesome, personal and comparable to the busybody type of public laws enacted by the legislatures, and it was manifest from the beginning that they could not be enforced because nobody wanted to live up to them. But they are very high-sounding, and it will take some years for opinion to swing back to a point half way between the crazy exploitation of the old days and the ultra-nice morals which stand on the books today.

I know of only one school which has the courage to argue that proselyting and subsidizing are fair and decent practices. That school is the United States Military academy, which holds that good athletes are likely to make especially good officers for the army and sometimes seeks them through its alumni and its friends. However, even the military academy is compelled to scout in a discreet manner because it is supposed merely to accept the cadets as they are appointed and not to find appointments for athletes. The subsidy, of course, is offered openly and at a rate established by congress. It consists of the cadet's pay.

I confess to having done my best to proselyte a half back for the Army football team within the last few months. In this case a young man with some college football experience wanted an appointment to the academy, and an expert on such matters who had seen him play football said, "There is no doubt whatever that he will be able to make the team." I obtained a list of the appointments available and unfilled in his region of the country and wrote instructions as to how he could comply with the rather vague rule of residence so that he could apply to congressmen from three different states for his appointment.

At first the military gentleman to whom I mentioned the matter was quite enthusiastic. A little later he was only moderately excited. Shortly after that he became quite apathetic toward the half back.

"I hear that he is a very good half back," he said, "but I have been looking him up and find that he is not exactly a prodigy in his classes. What would be the sense of wasting an appointment on a fellow who would be likely to flunk out on us in his plebe years?"

Young Men Realize Value of What They Have to Trade.

It would simplify matters if the colleges would face the fact that a sophisticated class of young athletes are growing up in the high schools and prep schools nowadays who realize that they can trade their services for their education and will haggle shrewdly for the most attractive conditions. If that is professionalism, then we may as well make the best of it because there is a lot of it now and there will be more of it as the young men realize the value of what they have to trade.

I have heard of a case of a young baseball player who was offered a major league contract when he finished high school. He did not want to turn pro at the time, however, as he had obtained an athletic scholarship at a college. Still the major league firm wanted to reserve him, so the club paid $5,000 to the athlete's father. The boy used his money to pay his expenses in college and, when he was graduated, reported to the ball club, a recruit worth at least $15,000 in the open market.

Exposure to Education Did Him No Harm.

Under the rules, I suppose, this was a sordid evasion, but the young man supposedly was a genuine student at college and the presumption is that his exposure to an education did him no harm and probably improved his mind. In this case a ball club subsidized a man for a college varsity.

It seems strange that the universities with their pride and traditions can subscribe to rules which, in themselves, are a reflection on their honor, implying that cheating and evasion are natural to them. It seems strange, also, that there is in American sport so much cheating and suspicion and such calm resignation to all this, as though sport in America could not be carried on in an honorable way.

Not caring too much what other people say, but with a decent respect for the opinions of mankind, one may wonder what the English or the Germans think when they hear that our heavyweight champion prize fighter retains the services of a gangster to help him win the title and then cheats the gangster, that our universities cheat against rules bespeaking a propensity to cheat, that our amateur tennis players make their living playing tennis and that American track athletes in the A. A. U. perform on a percentage arrangement with the promoters.

Fort Sheridan Beats Rovers; Reaches Final

The Fort Sheridan polo team will clash with the Oak Brook Four Horsemen Tuesday at Onwentsia in what will be the final of the current Chicago twelve goal handicap tournament. The Army team yesterday won the right to ride in the final by defeating the Rovers, 12 to 11.

A five goal handicap rating helped the Fort Sheridan four. Reed and Hazelrigg bore the brunt of play for the victors while Phelan with four goals and Balding and Reynolds with three each starred for the Rovers. Lineup and summary:

FT. SHERIDAN [12].		ROVERS [11].
Lieut. Smith	No. 1	Glore
Lieut. Reed	No. 2	Balding
Capt. Rockwell	No. 3	Phelan
Capt. Hazelrigg	Back	Reynolds

Score by chukkers:

Fort Sheridan	*6002	2002—12
Rovers	1231	0031—11

Goals—Phelan [4], Balding [3], Reynolds [3], Reed [3], Hazelrigg [2], Glore, Rodwell, Smith.

When Oak Brook's entry takes the field in the final of the Chicago twelve goal handicap polo tournament Tuesday, its lineup will consist of the personnel that went to make up the Four Horsemen.

Five teams will take part in the Chicago six goal championship tournament, the fourth major meet of the local season, starting at North Shore this week. Onwentsia has entered two teams, while North Shore, Fort Sheridan, and the 124th Field Artillery one each.

For the sake of convenience, Fort Sheridan and the Onwentsia teams will play on the latter's lot, while Thursday's contest between North Shore and the 124th Field Artillary as well as the tournament final will take place at North Shore, according to Herbert Lorber, captain of the North Shore entry and in charge of schedule arrangements for this particuler joust.

With the return of John D. Hertz from England, polo at Leona Farms will take a turn for the better, that is, in the way of activity. Leona Farms has yet to enter a team in any of the Chicago tournaments.

Those in charge of the two national polo tournaments that will be staged in Chicago during August will announce within a short time a list of probable entries, together with the districts they represent and their playing personnel and handicap ratings. The nation's best teams, ranging in geographical extremes, will be here for competition.

At Oak Brook today, a special match will be played with the Cantigny four, made up of Lawrence Smith, M. M. Corpening, N. E. Margetts and Col. R. R. McCormick, opposing a quartet known as the Musketeers. Riding for the Musketeers will be Edward Hillman Jr., Paul Butler, Carl Crawford and T. L. Crites. The contest starts at 4:30 o'clock. At Onwentsia, too, an intraclub struggle will take place, beginning at 3:30 o'clock.

NATIONAL A. A. U. GAMES ATTRACT RECORD HOLDERS

Three Day Meet Opens at Denver Wednesday.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

CHARLEY PADDOCK.

Record holders from all parts of the country will compete in the National A. A. U. outdoor track and field championships to be held in the Denver university stadium Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The event will be conducted under the auspices of the Denver division of the A. A. U.

Among those who will take part are Sabin Carr of Yale, who holds the world's record in the pole vault at 14 feet 1 inch; Harold Osborne of the Illinois A. C., who holds the world's record in the running high jump at 6 feet 8 1-4 inches; George Simpson of Ohio State, who shattered all records for 100 yards in :09 2-5 at the National Collegiate A. A. championships; Pete Rasmus of the same school, who hurled the discus 159 feet 1⅞ inches, and Richard Rockaway, the low hurdler from Ohio State.

Bracey, Tolan, Simpson's Rivals.

Simpson's principal rivals will be Claude Bracey of Rice institute, Eddie Tolan, the colored sprinter from the University of Michigan, Charley Paddock and Wykoff, both of the Los Angeles, A. C.

Rothert and Krenz, the star weight men of Stanford university, will represent the Olympic A. C. of San Francisco in the shot put. Rothert won the event in the National Collegiate A. A. championships with a toss of 50 feet 3 inches. Krenz was second with 49 feet 10¾ inches. The coast weight men, however, will meet stiff competition from Herbert Schwarze, former University of Wisconsin athlete, who will compete under the colors of the Illinois A. C. of Chicago.

Incidentally, the Illinois A. C. will be represented by a formidable aggregation. Coach Johnny Behr has strengthened his team with the addition of Dave Abbott of Illinois, who won the two mile run in the Western conference and National Collegiate A. A. championships. Abbott will run in the two mile steeplechase.

Shimek, Zola, I. A. C. Runners.

Coach Behr will send Melvin Shimek, formerly of Marquette university of Milwaukee, and Johnny Zola, who a few years ago ran under the Cardinal colors in Wisconsin, to the mark in the two mile flat. The Tri-Color club will have Don Gwinn of the University of Pittsburgh in the hammer throw. Gwinn won the event in the National Collegiate A. A. championships with a throw of 163 feet 9⅜ inches.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Albert Hanson, Story City, Ia., was awarded $5.

The Question.

What is the longest distance you ever swam?

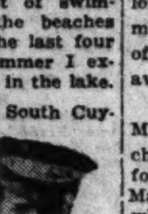
The Answers.

E. D. Mosier, 5541 Everett avenue, accountant—My longest swim was about a mile and a half, the distance across Gravel lake near Lawton, Mich., which I made in thirty-three minutes three years ago this summer. I was living up there and swam across the lake regularly, but this was my fastest time.

Miss Mathilda Elly, 4329 North Mansfield avenue, biller — I don't know; about a mile and a half, I guess. This was off Diversey street beach last summer. Swimming is my pet sport. There is nothing I like better than to get out on the beach and swim with my friends. It wouldn't be a bad idea if swimming lanes were established, with markings for the quarter, half, three-quarter mile distances and so on.

Miss Sophie Roux, 5662 Ridge avenue, stenographer — From one end of the bath tub to the other without drowning, so you can just about guess that I'm not much of a swimmer. The best I can do at the beaches is to wade in the water, which I enjoy, and that's more than many of the beach beauties are reputed to be doing. The fact is, I am afraid of the water when too much of it gets around.

Morton Arnson, 1821 North Albany avenue, cost clerk — The longest distance I ever swam was about five or six times back and forth in the tank of Division street Y. M. C. A. I have done quite a bit of swimming at the beaches and in the tank during the last four or five years and this summer I expect to spend a lot of time in the lake.



George Vasiolisky, 1223 South Cuyler avenue, messenger boy—I couldn't tell you exactly. Well, about a mile, say. Four or five of us boys framed up a swimming race at Gage's lake last summer. One of the boys followed us in a row-boat. Although I was only third, I felt as though I was a pretty good swimmer.

Mrs. Hertz' Gypsy King Wins $4,500 Newton Cup

HAYDOCK PARK, England, June 29.—[U.P.]—Mrs. John D. Hertz's Gipsy King, stablemate of Reigh Count, won the mile and a half Old Newton cup today. Lord Glanely's Appledore was second and Reid Walker's Plymouth Hoe third. Eleven ran for a stake of approximately $4,500.

FRIEDMAN, MADEY HEAD RING CARD AT WHITE CITY

Two Fight Shows Offering This Week.

Two shows are on this week's fistic calendar. Tomorrow night at the White City open air arena, Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, will meet Walter Madey of the south side in the feature of Promoter Mique Malloy's show. On Thursday night, Promoter Jack Art will stage 50 rounds of boxing at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick avenue and Lake street.

The scheduled bout between Jack McKenna, Canadian middleweight champion, and Johnny Burns of California, which was the headliner of Malloy's show, was called off yesterday when McKenna received a cut on his upper lip while working with one of his sparring partners. Mitz Minkel, Milwaukee heavyweight, and Jack Lea of California will clash in the eight round semi-windup.

Other fights on the card will bring together Jack McGrath, University of Notre Dame heavyweight, and Walter Radka of Bloomington, Ill., a former TRIBUNE Golden Gloves winner; Bud Hammer, another Golden Gloves victor, who lives in Gary, Ind., and Mickey Patrick of East Chicago, and Pete Serella of Englewood and Lester Quillen of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Luis Vicentini, South American lightweight, who was signed to meet Louis "Kid" Kaplan, former world's featherweight champion at the Mills' stadium show Thursday, has been compelled to cancel the engagement.

PUBLIC PRACTICE COURSES CREATE NEW GOLF FAD

Help Average Players to Correct Faults.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

It seemed nothing new could be added to golf lore, yet within a space of two months the public practice golf course has been imported, blossomed and expanded into a definite part of golf in the Chicago district. No development in golf has reached such proportions in so short a time. There is hardly a main road leading out of Chicago without two to ten of these public practice fairways beckoning the golfer to stop and hit a few balls.

The idea came to Chicago from California, where such courses are popular. Who was the first to try it in the Chicago district is doubtful, but the imitators were immediate and many. All it requires is a reasonably turfed stretch of land, a few thousand golf balls and a caretaker. The golfer stops, pays his 50 or 75 cents for an hour's practice, is given a ten gallon pail of old golf balls and unlimbers his clubs. No caddies are used, but the caretaker and boys gather up the balls the next morning.

Of course, the courses vary greatly in equipment and appointments. Some have stakes driven into the fairway, 25 yards apart so a golfer may judge the length of his shots. Some furnish tees and others sell them. At most of them, at least, the golfer may hit just as many balls as he can in the time for which he paid. If he uses one pailful he gets another.

Can't Hit Many as You'd Like.

The owners, however, aren't as generous as they may sound, for the golfer soon discovers he can't hit nearly as many balls as he thought he could. The hands and wrists, which get most of the shock in hitting a ball, simply won't stand a continuous series of shocks unless they are accustomed to it. The golfer may start off at a pace of eight or ten balls a minute but he soon slows up to half that number, and more than a few quit before the hour is up.

Apparently the proprietors have various arrangements with the owners of the land, but none of the figures are sufficiently authenticated to be worth the printing. Some of the courses are on a profit sharing basis with the owners of the land, while others pay a straight rental. Like all new things, in which a profit appears quickly with small investment, the growth of these courses has come with mushroom suddenness. If it continues at the pace it has begun an oversupply doubtless will exist shortly.

The big play, of course, comes late in the afternoon, when bricklayers and bankers, fishermen and flappers, housewives and hodcarriers stand side and side and sock golf balls with every type of golf swing possible to the limitations of the human body. Whereas many workers haven't time after finishing their day's stint to play a round of golf, nearly every kind of toiler has a chance to get out and hit balls for an hour.

Draw Different Types of Players.

These public practice courses do not draw the same type of player that the daily fee courses do, for many a man who tells his stenographer to lock the safe, as well as the chap who punches a time clock, play them. High priced cars as well as the flivver are parked in rows near them.

The answer is really plural. Many private clubs are so far from the loop that it is necessary to take at least half a day off to play a round of golf. Clubs seldom have room for more than two or three on their practice fairways and these are often in use, while around the club are the distractions of friends. Many private club members make use of the public practice courses to "play golf" an hour or so a day, get their exercise and keep their game for the week ends.

In so far as learning to play golf is concerned the idea is sound. As one professional once put it, "Half the value of my teaching is in the fact I keep the pupil hitting balls, and hitting balls is the only way to play golf." An example is Ross McDade, a young southerner who cut quite a swath in some of the winter tournaments along the gulf coast last winter. McDade began to play golf two years ago and plays in the low 70s. He lived on his father's plantation, on which a sand spit ran out into a stream. When he decided to learn to play the game, he bought 200 second hand golf balls. Stationing small Negroes on the sand spit, he began to hit balls, and after getting into condition he was hitting as many as 800 a day. He found out what a golf ball will do when hit in any of the four dozen ways it can be hit and learned to make the ball do what he wanted it to do. As a result he's a first class amateur player.

Helps to Correct Faults.

Should an average golfer who plays much and practices little dub his drive on the first tee, he will play from three to ten more shots before he again has a chance to use the driver. By that time his first mistake has been forgotten and in all probability he dubs another. If he tees another ball immediately after flubbing one on a practice course he can find out what he is doing wrong and correct it. And swinging steadily, hitting ball after ball, "grooves" his swing.

"Grooving" the swing is kinesthesis, which, in short, merely means it gets the muscles into the habit of hitting a ball the way it should be hit. While these practice courses probably are making a profit, perhaps a big profit, they also are doing much toward making better golfers.

PEORIA SCHOOLS ADJUST TROUBLE; TO PLAY SPALDING

Peoria, Ill., June 29.—[Special.]—Differences between the Peoria High schools, which developed last year and resulted in severance of athletic relations, have been adjusted. ROBINSON BEATS QUIGLEY WITH NEAR PAR GOLF

Wins 4 and 3 for His 2d State Title.

Eldridge Robinson of Olympia Fields, who held the Illinois state golf championship in 1925, won it again yesterday by defeating Al Quigley, west side druggist, who registers from Columbus park, 4 and 3. Robinson was only two over even fours for the 33 holes on the Mid-City course, which seems so simple and which no "star" has yet been able to "burn up." His golf wasn't spectacular, but it was beautifully steady.

The match was a close battle for 30 holes, with Quigley passing up several chances by lack lustre putting. With Robinson two up as they came to the thirty-first hole, Quigley found two traps in his efforts to cut across the dogleg for a birdie and lost the hole. "Giving the ball a chance" on the next hole he overran the cup so far he missed coming back, leaving Robinson dormie.

Robinson Never Down.

Robinson won the first hole and never was down, though Quigley came from behind to square the match at the twenty-third hole. A short approach cost the runner up the first hole, but he squared it by sinking a 20 foot putt for a deuce on the short third. That was the one long putt he got down all day, and while Robinson wasn't sinking long ones, he was laying his approach putts and chip shots within inches of the cup.

Robinson's birdie won the fourth, and they halved to the end of the nine. Robinson became two up on the tenth, and when Quigley found a couple of traps, Robinson's two birdies on the thirteenth and fourteenth won more holes, leaving him four up. But Quigley's steady pars won two holes back before the end of the round, when Eldridge was short with an approach on the sixteenth and over with another on the eighteenth.

Two badly hit approaches cost Robinson the nineteenth and on the next two holes Quigley's putts for wins hung on the lip of the cup. On the twenty-third Quigley's birdie put them all level again, but an over strong approach lost him the next hole and he again went two down, when his tee shot on the short twenty-sixth found a trap. They traded the next two, Robinson pulling his second on the twenty-seventh and Quigley playing a weak chip on the twenty-eighth. They halved two more, Quigley's putt for a two on the thirtieth hitting the back of the cup and bouncing out.

Quigley Tries Long Shots.

Two down with six to go, Quigley tried a short cut on the par 5 thirty-first. His drive found a trap, and his spoon shot from the sand barely failed to clear the bunker. That left him three down and in a final try to cut the lead of his marvelously steady opponent, he was over strong with his approach putt on the thirty-second. Both were short on the last hole, but both chipped within two feet of the pin. Par and their cards:

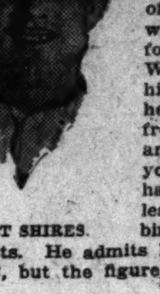
Shires Crowds Action of a Lifetime Into Few Years; You Wouldn't Believe He's Only 22

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.



ART SHIRES.

There's no end to the tales that Charles Arthur "Dude" Shires—he wants to be known as the Great Shires—can spin. Into a few years he has crowded more action that comes to many in a lifetime. All of it has been done with no regard for consequences. When you hear him talk of how he has jumped from here to there and back to here, you suspect he has been as careless about his birthdays as about his acts. He admits he is approaching 22, but the figure is open to debate.

No portion of the young White Sox first sacker's career is as multi colored as the few months, years or maybe weeks—he doesn't know exactly—that he devoted to colleges and the like. He moved from one to the other, most of the time not stopping long enough to say good-by. He used whatever name entered his mind. If a man set out to shatter the belief that there is such a thing as amateurism in athletics, he could do no better job than Shires has done. He says he has heard of it, but never was included in the class—not even in high school.

Prospect in Prep Days.

Our colorful, witty youngster first popped up as a high school prospect down in a small town in Texas. He could play football, and he could pitch or play first base on the diamond. A nearby community with a certain amount of civic pride desired to have Shires assist it athletically. Shires simply moved to the town, played the football and baseball expected of him and was paid proportionately.

"Always got $75 a month for my work," he says. "I wasn't the only one. The business men gathered them from all over. They got the money back by betting on us against the towns which figured they were equally good in prep athletics."

Before Shires could be rewarded with a high school diploma he was forced to leave. The reformers began to smell mice. This in no way discouraged our hero. He desired to go to college, and there came an offer. In fact offers came in so rapidly that he couldn't decide just what to do. To make sure he didn't go wrong he tried about all he could in a limited space of time. He recalls that he tarried at six schools stretching from Texas to New Jersey.

Welcomed with Open Arms.

One of the places that desired his athletic services was a large institution in Texas. The football coach saw Shires laboring with some kind of an eleven down near the Mexican border. Shires was requested to come up and look over the place. He did. They feted him like a long lost brother. They even bought him a suit of clothes. After two weeks he pulled up stakes and went away, taking the suit with him.

He turned up at another school in Texas. Then another. Finally he hit the long trail for the east, but after making the circuit, he decided to try something outside the amateur ranks. He became a pro football player in Buffalo.

Those who guard the morals and the ethics of college competition may think Shires is stretching his imagination when he admits to all this "tramping." Well, he knew how to do it. He was never Charles A. Shires. In some places he was Dana Prince of Arizona. In others he was Edward French. And some knew him as Bob Lowe.

The taking of a fancy monicker such as Dana Prince was not without reason. It will be recalled that mention was made above of Shires' failure to graduate from high school. This naturally would have been embarrassing had he tried to enter college by the front door. To overcome this slight difficulty he, in some way, got the credits of a lad of that name who had dropped out of college. With these the going was easy.

Was the Campus Hero.

Shires was Dana Prince when he attended the college in West Virginia. The name is of no consequence. He was the campus hero and enjoyed it. He admits this much. But it palled on him. One evening his nomadic blood began to boil and he decided he'd put on the big sneak. A half dozen of his co-ed companions packed his luggage, escorted him to the depot at midnight and never saw him again. At his next seat of learning he tarried only long enough to work off part of $250 that had been given as advance payment.

Shires was asked if he ever had taken the time to attend classes at any of his schools. His reply was:

"I certainly did, when there was nothing else to do. Why I am an AB."

UPHOLD REFEREE IN NAMING MEYER ALTOONA VICTOR

Indianapolis, Ind., June 29.—[U.P.]—Officials of the American Automobile association decided today that protests over the referee's decision as to the winner of the automobile race at Altoona, Pa., June 15, would not be allowed.

Ray Keech, winner of the Memorial Day race at Indianapolis, was killed in an accident during the race and the protest said the leader at the time of the accident should have been declared the winner.

The referee decided that Louis Meyer should be awarded first place, Cliff Bergere second and others in the order they finished. Keech was leading when the accident occurred and Cliff Woodbury, whose car crashed into Keech's, was second. The decision today said the race was not called off at the time of the accident because the lives of other drivers were not imperiled.

PERFECT DAY AT BAT GIVES FOXX AVERAGE OF .410

Although the Athletics failed to win from the Yankees yesterday, it was not the fault of Jimmy Foxx, who had a perfect day at bat, with three out of three. This raised his average to .410, as Frank O'Doul of the Phils fell to .366 through two hitless games at the Polo grounds.

Babe Ruth's two homers sent him ahead of both Lou Gehrig and Paul Waner. The Pirate star fell into the cellar of the big six by a fraction of a point. The standing:

COLLEGE TENNIS TITLE CAPTURED BY TEXAS YOUTH

Bell Defeats Mangin in Five Sets.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29.—[Special.]—The intercollegiate tennis crown went back to Texas after the absence of a year, when Berkley Bell defeated Gregory Mangin of Georgetown in the final singles match at the Merion Cricket club this afternoon.

Fighting with his back to the wall, the little Texan did what seemed the impossible of coming back after he had lost two straight sets to take the next three and claim the victory. The scores were: 2-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, and 6-2.

Bell owes his victory to a change of pace during the second set. Opening with a chop stroke, the Texas blond found Mangin keeping him in the rear of the court, so he began to bang away and gained results. After this break Bell mixed up his strokes and had Mangin on the run in the final set.

The doubles title will not be decided until tomorrow. Mangin and Pare, playing for Georgetown, became one-half of the doubles final by eliminating Hall and Doeg of Stanford, 6-3, 4-6, 2-6, 6-3, and 6-2.

In the other doubles semi-final Gorchakoff and Kussman beat Bell and Barnes, 4-6, 4-6, 11-9, 7-5, and 6-4. Bell and Barnes were match point four times in the third set but finally lost out.

Shades of '98! A Tandem Bicycle Braves Boul Mich

Folks for whom the phrase "the good old days" means Dewey and Hobson, "Twenty-three, skidoo!", "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," bicycles, high wheeled and tandem, will be happy to know that a survival of that memorable period pushed its way on to 1929's Michigan boulevard Friday and caused more than one motorist and traffic cop to gape and grin.

That reminder of the nineties and the early part of this century was a tandem bicycle, bearing upon its saddles Ned R. Pace, 35 East 152d street, Harvey and Wayne Doolin, 15 years old, of 15228 Vine street, Harvey. They had pedaled from Harvey to THE TRIBUNE Tower in three and one-half hours, following Western avenue to Garfield boulevard, and then across the boulevard where 30 years ago it was no uncommon sight to see young gentlemen and their young ladies pursuing their perilous way around hacks and broughams.

It seems that Mr. Pace, who is, curiously enough, an automotive machinist, has retained a kid's admiration for a bike since he rode his first one in his home town of Salem, Ill. It was his custom to ride from his home to work and back again, first in Salen and later in Harvey. Then a year ago a friend confessed that the tandem which he and his sister were wont to ride some 30 or 40 years ago was gathering rust and dust in a loft at home and that Mr. Pace might have it for the coming and getting of it.

Mr. Pace is no collector of antiques, and besides, you can hardly tuck a two seated bike into one corner of the family mantel. With the true cyclist's enthusiasm, he proceeded to bring the old mount back to life. First he equipped it with tires, of which it had none since it was consigned to its dungeon. Then he burnished the framework and replaced the once familiar latticed spokes with more modern supports.

Its initial voyage, following its sudden resurrection, was made from Harvey to Hammond, Ind., with Mr. Pace at the helm. Friday he and Wayne, the son of a neighbor, boarded it at 2:05 p. m. and headed for the loop. They encountered only one mishap, and that at 59th street and Western avenue, where a careless motorist suddenly backed out from the curb and grazed it. Having survived this, Mr. Pace and Wayne pushed on to the lopo, there to be stymied by countless stoplights and stared at by thousands of pedestrians and motorists. They crossed the link bridge at 5:30 p. m. Last reports had it that they were headed for Harvey and home.

AMERICAN GIANTS HELDHITLESS; MONARCHS WIN

Timely hitting gave the Kansas City Monarchs a 4 to 0 game over the American Giants yesterday in the first of a six game series. Army Cooper's fast curve ball baffled the Giants and in the seven and one-third innings he worked, he allowed no hits. Brewer finished without letting the Giants in the hit column.

NEW FAIRMOUNT OWNERS TO TAKE CHARGE JULY 10

Collinsville, Ill., June 29.—(AP)—The new owners of Fairmount race track plan to take over the property July 10 and to arrange another racing period from Aug. 30 to Sept. 14, which would complete the 51 days of racing allotted to Fairmount for the year by the Illinois Turf association, it was announced today.

The syndicate also has taken over from the American Turf association an option to buy 156 acres of land on the north side of State street, East St. Louis, near the Louisville & Nashville tracks, as the site of a possible second race track. With such a track it would be possible to give the St. Louis district 102 days of horse racing each year.

PARK FACILITIES HELP TO SOLVE PARKING PUZZLE

Storage Areas Important Municipal Equipment.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

Although the lake front improvement program was determined years before there was any general thought concerning the automobile parking problem, the making of new land opposite the loop has met singularly one of the crying needs of latterday transportation development.

Twenty-five years ago or so, when the fill off Grant park was started there was no parking problem and among the lake front planners no idea or conception of the parking picture of today.

At this date, however, there are vastly more people visit Grant park for the purpose of parking their automobiles than for any other reason, save to pass through it without leaving the boulevards. Originally the park was conceived to provide a "breathing space" for residents of central Chicago and visitors, with an idea that it would attract large throngs by its beauties and facilities for rest and meditation under the blue canopy of summer skies.

Swerved from First Purpose.

How far from the original purpose has the actual trend swerved! There are few indeed, and those mostly noonhour exercisers, tired job hunters or itinerants with time to kill, who purposefully seek sanctuary in wandering about the grass plots or observing leisurely the landscape beauties of the preserve.

Instead some 25,000 motorists each day dash through the new waterfront premises upon the boulevards, bent on reaching downtown business or the other side of town. Of these a number estimated by Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park commission, at from 5,000 to 7,500, leave their cars in the park while they go into the loop district.

Since the non-parking ordinance applying to the loop went into effect about a year and a half ago, the necessity for parking space nearby has been solidified and made a permanent requirement. About half the park "parkers" use the pay station and about half use free parking space on plots either facing the lake beyond the outer drive or facing the Illinois Central railway within the inner drive. At times an additional 10,000 to 15,000 cars are parked south of the stadium at 18th street.

Chicago Good Luck.

With the possible exception of Miami, Fla., which has built a similar water front park with especial consideration for the parking problem, no other city than Chicago in the United States finds itself with equal facilities for meeting the growing parking problem. The broad acres within a figurative stone's throw of the business center of the municipality cannot be duplicated in any other important city of the nation.

"This phase of park use is in its infancy, even here," Mr. Kelly opines. "Development of the parking utility in close in parks is bound to continue and the park administrations must take this feature into consideration. When the outer link bridge is completed the necessity for increased parking space will again develop and the park should be ready to meet it."

For several years Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, has advocated the construction of covered parking catacombs to be constructed along the Michigan avenue frontage. His suggestion has been to excavate to a depth of eighteen or twenty feet between Michigan avenue and the Illinois Central wall, build concrete floors, walls and ceilings, and then cover the ceiling surface with fertile soil so that the lawns may be perpetuated in appearance exactly as now. The suggestion has never received official approval, perhapss because of the expense involved during the period of other vast improvements, but it appears that likelihood of consideration exists now.

Lincoln Park's Gesture.

Supporting the belief that parking facilities in parks has become an important item of municipal equipment there comes the announcement by the Lincoln park commission that it has already started work upon a concrete paved parking field in Lincoln park just east of the lake drive off Addison street. This project is in recognition of the fact that parking provision in this day is essential to the comfort, convenience and peace of mind of citizens who seek park recreation. To make parks popular provision must be made for automobiles. The board has also in prospect the construction of another paved parking area further south in the recreation area, in the vicinity of Belmont avenue extended.

The development of parking facilities in the parks is not the only gesture in this direction, for private car storage facilities within the loop itself and in the area just surrounding it have been increased by leaps and bounds in the last three or four years. There is accommodation for probably 12,000 cars now existing in downtown garages and the capacity is growing daily. The daily volume of loop bound cars is just under 200,000.

In summer, however, Grant park offers an excellent solution for car disposal in daylight hours, and while a fee is charged for special service parking in the pay station, it is believed that in time free parking in a number of specified areas will be practical.

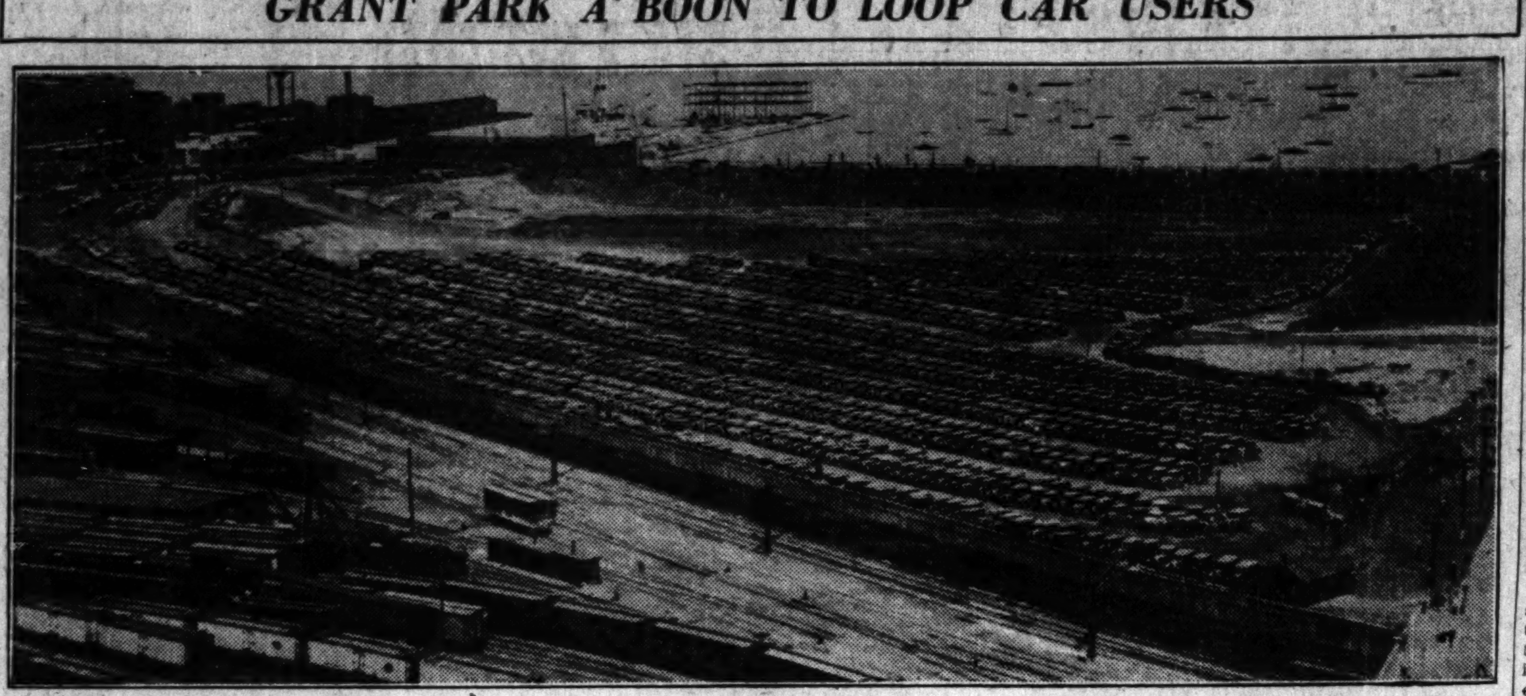
Slow Drivers on Viaduct in Florida Are Arrested

A guardian of the law has been placed at a viaduct in Miami, Fla. He won't arrest you when you do 35 miles an hour. Instead, he'll prefer charges against you if you don't. In order to relieve traffic, the police department posted a speed up sign at each end of this viaduct.

ARIZONA GAINS IN AUTOS.

Arizona led all states in increase of motor vehicles in 1928, with a gain of 16 per cent.

GRANT PARK A BOON TO LOOP CAR USERS



Between 5,000 and 7,500 automobiles are parked in Grant park daily by those who use automobiles for transportation to and from the loop. A pay station is located between the lines of Monroe and Randolph streets, as shown in the photographs, while free parking is permitted in the other areas pictured.

LACK OF MARKED LANES REDUCES ROAD CAPACITY

Small Expense Would Relieve Confusion.

About 30 per cent of the capacity of the main traffic arteries in the park, county, and city road system of Chicago is being wasted because of the failure of authorities in control of them to adopt and enforce allignment regulations.

In other words, Michigan avenue, between 7th street and Walton place, over which about 70,000 vehicles now struggle every day, easily could handle 100,000 cars a day at a faster speed if six or eight orderly lines of cars were maintained instead of four or six ragged lines.

To accomplish this end the first necessity would be the painting in of arbitrary lanes by applying white or colored longitudinal lines which definitely would establish the lanes, and then instruct the police force in charge or traffic to insist that automobiles remain within the lane markings. A few days' or weeks' insistence would end the practice of careless or unthinking drivers of straddling the lane boundaries.

Needed in Many Places.

The thoroughfarees which are susceptible to improvement by this method are Michigan avenue and Lake Shore drive, the inner and outer drives in and through Grant park, the inner and outer drives in Lincoln park, Washington, Jackson, and Warren boulevards, South Park way, Diversey parkway, Sheridan road, Garfield, Humboldt, and Sacramento boulevards, in the city; Waukegan road, Dempster street, River road, Ogden avenue, Dixie highway, Roosevelt road, outside the city in the county.

These arteries are four or more lanes in width, as to measurements, but in actual practice prevail at two or three lanes for travel.

Without the lane markings it is practically impossible to enforce alignment of cars or effectually to discourage the highly dangerous practice of indiscriminate weaving in and out of traffic and "trick" passing on either side. With visible markings it is entirely practical to keep slower vehicles in the right hand lanes and permit fast traffic to move safely in the left hand lanes, even though much passing of cars is indulged in.

Would Increase Service.

The system indicated will yield almost 100 per cent, use of the expensive pavements in which public funds have been invested. As matters stand the investment is yielding 70 per cent or less of service.

The cost of lane marking is insignificant compared with the cost of maintaining extravagantly paid for pavements on a low dividend basis. The marking of lanes also would do much to educate and improve drivers generally. In other cities it has been found that the marked lanes develop the practice among drivers of keeping proper alignments at all time, which in turn speeds up traffic and makes the whole traffic movement safer for all.

Although the marking of lanes does not involve material expense, street, boulevard, and highway authorities of this region appear to have little interest. Conflicting and overlapping authority of various units has something to do with the breakdown of this phase of traffic. The county, which has several miles of four lane pavements in the suburban area, sidesteps the responsibility of getting all possible dividends out of the public investment in county roads by passing the buck to the state highway authorities.

Much Passing of Buck.

The county contends that the state is chargeable with the maintenance of these pavements and that maintenance includes the marking of lanes. The park authorities are convinced they have discharged their duty to the public when they complete pavements and the city authorities appear to be entirely apathetic.

Coupled with the fact that adequate direction signs are lacking upon all the systems of thoroughfares in the Chicago area, and that ten to fifteen feet of pavement on many streets and boulevards are wasted for parking purposes, the lack of lane marking conspires to make traffic about as effectively mismanaged as well could be.

Roads and streets improved with better pavements, more continuity of thoroughfares, and separation of intersecting traffic are crying needs, in the opinion of all competent authority, but it cannot be disputed that there is merit in the contention that, even with all that is lacking in a physical way, the way of the motorist could be eased materially if advantage were to be taken of what already is in existence.

WOMAN'S WISH TO HAVE OWN WAY IS CAUSE OF MANY AUTO ACCIDENTS

The "courtesy complex" of the feminine automobile driver is responsible for many smashed fenders and broken headlights, says Mrs. Mittie G. Tipton, policewoman of Jacksonville, Fla., who has made a study of woman auto owners.

"The woman at the wheel feels that she is entitled to certain privileges, traffic laws or no traffic laws, and she's going to have them," Mrs. Tipton explains. "That is the cause of a high percentage of traffic muddles.

"Part of the trouble may be attributed to some women's extreme nervousness and timidity in traffic. Part of it is due to poor judgment, but the major part is just a determined insistence on having their own way. They cut corners, they ignore traffic lights and they make pedestrians jump. They insist on their privileges."

The feminine driver puts out an arm. It may be a left turn; it may be a right turn of a stop signal. Perhaps she is waving to a friend on the sidewalk or merely flicking ashes from a ciagret, but the fellow behind cannot tell, Mrs. Tipton insists.

MARYLAND PLANS TO MAKE DRIVERS AGREE TO PAY UP

A plan whereby every automobile operator and chauffeur in the state would receive a printed statement which will show when signed that they agree to hold himself or herself liable for property damage up to $1,000, and personal injury up to $5,000, resulting from the operation of any motor vehicle by the signers, is now being considered by the legislature of the state of Maryland.

The operator or chauffeur is to be required to sign the statement and return it to the automobile commissioner of the state, according to the bill.

The driver would be given 30 days in which to settle in case of an accident. If payment is not made within that time the driver's license would be revoked until financial settlement was effected.

ARIZONA OFFERS MOTOR TOURISTS CHOICE OF ROADS

The cross-country traveler in southern Arizona is now given the choice of many good highways. A second main road has been added to the one via Tucson and Douglas through completion of the Central route, via Globe and Safford, over the crest of the Coolidge dam.

The road cost, sustained by the Indian bureau, approximated $1,250,000. This route is proposed to be extended eastward from Clifton, via Silver City, to a crossing of the Rio Grande at Elephant Butte dam. Twenty-one miles of the direct highway is to be oiled at once by the Arizona state highway commission between Superior and Miami. There also is to be oil surfacing of the new stretch from Globe to the Coolidge dam. There is also to be early reconstruction and shortening of the same highway east of Apache junction, paralleling Superstition mountain.

HARD AUTO TRUCK TIRES GIVE WAY TO PNEUMATICS

Latter More Economical, Study Reveals.

Solid tire trucks in this part of the country where hard surface pavements prevail, rapidly are going out of vogue. In the membership of the Chicago Truck Owners' association, figures indicate, only a small fraction of operators will cling to the hard rubber cushions after this year.

There are a number of sound reasons for the indicated change over to pneumatic tires for heavy service trucks, the most important of which is the fact that pneumatic tire makers at last have begun to produce serviceable pneumatics for the heaviest range of loads.

Barred on Buses.

Another item of importance is that the legislature at the last session passed speed laws which so heavily penalized solid tire trucks that economy will dictate installation of the type that now operates under more liberal terms. The legislature enacted a statute which provides that by July 1, 1930, all buses must be equipped with pneumatic tires, and it is generally accepted that the solid tire is making its last important stand as bus equipment.

Studies of compartive economy of pneumatic and solid tires in service of members of the truckers' association indicate that up to last year the solid tire had a small edge in the matter of economy in vehicle operation. This study did not take into consideration injuries to pavements or creation of vibration which caused abutting building improvements to sustain damage.

The principal items of economy ascertained were:

1. Lower cost for installation.
2. Longer life of tires in mileage.
3. Opportunity to greatly overload.

Heretofore heavy trucking has not considered rapidity of movement of much consequence and the speed of trucks was not included as a factor in the studies. Latterly speed has been taken into consideration and proved a material factor.

Thus the principal items of unnecessary expense involved in hard tires were:

1. Low rate of speed and proportionate increased cost for drivers.
2. Injury to car mechanism by impacts resulting from hard tires.
3. Lack of mobility in business service.

15 Mile Speed Limit.

The present day pneumatic truck tires are made to stand twice the strains put on them by the loads specified for the different classifications. On a ten ton truck with hard tires it has been the custom to load twelve or fifteen tons of weight. It has been found that such loads rack the vehicle structure to such a degree as to materially shorten its life, though little or no injury to the tires results. Thus the revenue from overloads is counteracted by the deterioration of the vehicle.

The state limits speed of hard tire trucks to fifteen miles an hour or less in the heavier classification, and fifteen-mile-an-hour transportation on the public highways is practically obsolete. Trucks of similar weight and capacity may travel over pavements without damaging them at the rate of thirty to forty miles an hour, and the higher speed is designated as legal by the statutes. Revenue production from a truck delivering 300 miles a day is quite a different thing than the revenue produced from 100 to 125 miles a day.

Besides the economies confined to the truck and its operation, there is another important economy in pneumatic tires, that of pavement preservation. Hard tire trucks, especially with overloads, do much damage to pavements of the lower types on those in poor repair. The concrete engineers insist that they do not damage road surfaces if the pavement is of the proper character such as present day specifications call for.

License Fee the Same.

However there is much of the lower grade pavement and many places where crevises in concrete or joints between surfacing units or excavation scars exist, which are definitely damaged by heavy trucks with hard tires. It is pointed out on the other hand, that under such conditions heavy duty pneumatics also would do about as much damage, if carrying loads.

There is no difference in the of licenses in Illinois between vehicle equipped with hard or with pneumatic tires. The has had before it proposals to such differentiations but because the evidence that truck interests gradually shedding hard tires and taking to the penumatic, it has been content to penalize the hard tires by restricting speed, thereby extra operation cost.

Summing up from a truckman standpoint it appears that the saving found in lower first cost lation of solid tires is overcome the damage to vehicles caused by the resulting racking and impacts. The safety to solid tires under heavy loads does not offset the wear and on mechanism of the vehicle. With the speeding up of air cushion motor traffic the solid rubber are becoming more obsolete each and authorities say that only or machines of the tractor type be equipped in that fashion within a comparatively short time.

AUTO MAKERS WORST OFFENDERS IN ROAD SIGNS

In a canvass of advertising signs the highways, brought to a close cently by the bureau of public of the United States department agriculture, it was found that automobile industry and those tries which serve it are the offenders. Their signs carry advertisements for cars, tires, oils, and accessories. Hotels and restaurants probably rank second in the of advertising done along the ways, Thomas H. MacDonald, chief the bureau, declared.

do you shout the name of your car or whisper it ?

De Soto

When you have finished discussing politics and the home team's batting slump and the conversation turns to automobiles, you naturally would rather be an orator than an auditor. And when you are asked the name of your car, you want to shout it, not whisper it.

The driver of a Chrysler-built De Soto Six is proud to talk about his car in any company, for its name is accepted as a badge of real quality. Although De Soto Six sells for as low as $845, the price needs no apology from the owner. He found that he did not have to go higher to purchase complete motoring satisfaction.

Above all else, De Soto gives a real foundation for pride of ownership. This pride must be based on something more than mere transportation, nowadays. It can be inspired only by a car that conforms to every high standard of performance, appearance, comfort and safety.

People take it for granted that an automobile will get you there and back, that it started in life with a presentable coat of paint and that it has its quota of gimcracks and knickknacks. The test of its value is how much it exceeds these minimum requirements. The stricter the test, the more evident is De Soto's all-around superiority.

Ask for a demonstration and learn for yourself why De Soto Six owners like to "talk automobile" in any company.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

WANTED! DRIVERS TO USE NEW 23 MILE SPEEDWAY

It's a Swell Highway if You Can Find It.

The weird gesture of the Illinois state highway department, wishing to tell Chicago motorists that it was doing a grand thing for Chicago traffic in building twenty-three miles of 40 foot pavement on the highway known as state route 64 between Elmhurst and St. Charles, has resulted in the creation of a baffling puzzle for automobilists.

The puzzle is: How to use this road for the movement of traffic to and from the city of Chicago.

There are still some unpaved spots in the pavement line, but these do not make it a total loss but rather an inconvenience to traffic. The uselessness of this $750,000 improvement as a traffic artery lies in the fact that traffic is unable to find its way onto the thoroughfare, and once on has a difficult time in trying to find an exit that will lead to a desired destination.

Bridge Over Des Plaines.

The new St. Charles road, called route 64, was planned as a western connection for proposed route 54 which was laid out over the line of North avenue from the city limits to the county line, or east limits of Elmhurst. Real estate operators along the line of North avenue, just outside the city limits, and interested in property as far west as Elmhurst, prevailed upon Gov. Small two years ago to first build the western extension and then build the connection toward the city. The reason set forth was that realty interests had about concluded negotiations for a 200 foot right of way east of Elmhurst and that if a little more time was accorded, would guarantee a fine boulevard width for the Chicago end.

The state last year had gone so far as to let a contract for the 40 foot slab between Elmhurst and Chicago, but canceled it at the request of the promoters. Meanwhile a bridge had been built by the county over the Des Plaines river at North avenue. That structure, inaccessible because of lack of paved approaches, still spans the river.

To Go On to Sycamore.

The completed portion of the wide highway west of Elmhurst connects with the Lake street-Elgin highway at about Mt. Prospect road in Elmhurst and offers entrance or exit at that point, permitting traffic, if any, to come into Chicago over state highway No. 5. This highway, however, is shut east of Elmhurst and a complicated system of detours puzzles the uninitiated.

At St. Charles, the western end, contact may be made with Elgin and Aurora over route 22, the Fox river valley drive. Beyond St. Charles the road is to continue as a 20 foot pavement to Sycamore. This is less than a mile north of Lincoln highway, over which the bulk of through motor traffic travels. The irony of the situation lies in the fact that this great volume of through and local traffic is confined to 16 and 18 foot pavement, while parallel, a little to the north, is a 40 foot pavement without a hundred cars in its entire length.

Such expenditures of public funds may be justified in the eyes of highway and planning engineers as a bulwark against future needs, but it is not justified in the eyes of present day traffic, which pays the bills and looks to its efforts to promote essential road improvements for immediate use.

Something May Be Done.

A ray of hope lies in the current announcement by the state engineer that he has ordered contractors to proceed with grading on North avenue east of Elmhurst as far as the Indiana Harbor belt line. This is merely a ray, for grading, under state rules, must settle for a year before being paved. What is going to happen east of the railway is as yet a mystery. The paving west is to be two 20 foot roadway concrete slabs, fifty-two feet apart. East of Thatcher road North avenue is paved as far as Austin avenue.

While a bridge exists at North avenue, it is isolated and cannot be used. This leaves the inhabitants of this region with only bridges at Lake street and at Grand avenue, which are a mile and a half apart. Further north there are bridges over the Des Plaines at Belmont avenue and Irving Park boulevard and to the south at Washington boulevard and Madison street and Roosevelt road.

So complicated is the approach to highway 64 that a map is necessary to those who are unfamiliar with the maze of streets and detours in the Elmhurst-Bellwood-Maywood-Melrose Park district.

Many Detours Needed.

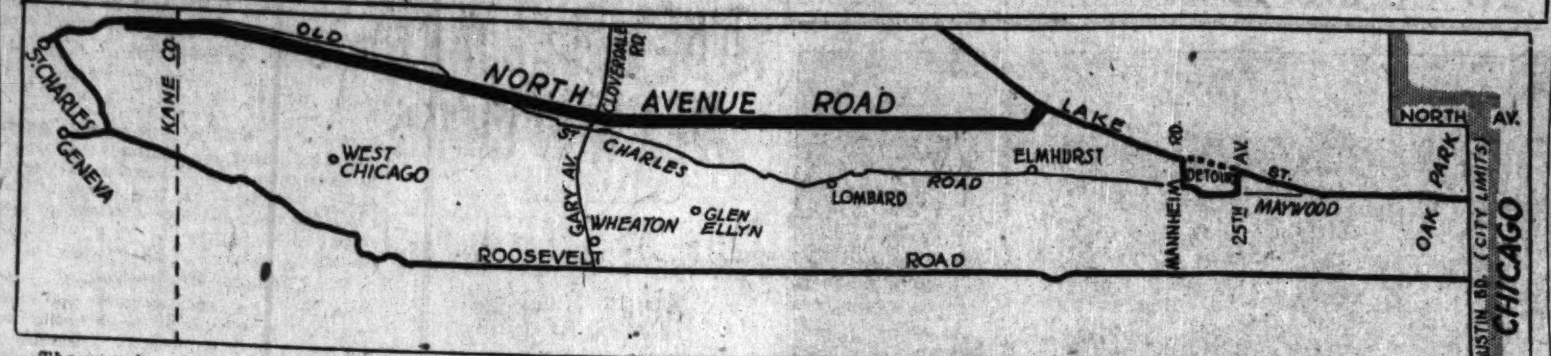
From the west a motorist may get upon the road through St. Charles. Coming eastward a half dozen country lanes lead off to right and left, but not until Cloverdale road, at the west of Wheaton is reached, is there a paved connection. At the east there is a narrow connection of about half a mile to state highway 5 [Lake street road to Elgin]. This is the actual gateway to the boulevard.

If highway 5 was not closed off just west of Melrose Park directions would not be so difficult. But it is, and the established detour is over Mannheim road, St. Charles road, 25th avenue, Maywood, to Washington and Madison streets; thence into the city. Going westward it is possible to follow highway 5 to 25th avenue, detour south to St. Charles road, to Mannheim and back to Lake street.

Seven Mile Auto Bridge Is Opened in California

What is said to be the longest highway bridge in the world was opened recently in California, stretching for 7.1 miles across the waters of San Francisco bay. It connects San Mateo with approaches to Hayward, and furnishes a new short route between San Francisco and the Lincoln highway. The structure is built principally of steel and concrete and cost $7,500,000.

THE HIDDEN SPEEDWAY OF DU PAGE COUNTY



The new four lane pavement on North Avenue road in Du Page county is one of the finest speedways imaginable, but the trick is to get on it. Twenty or thirty cars a day now constitute the traffic for the $750,000 highway, which starts near St. Charles and runs twenty-three miles to Elmhurst. For your information you can get on it at Elmhurst (state route 5), at St. Charles (from state route 6), or over Gary avenue-Cloverdale road, west of Wheaton. Other unpaved connections exist but are hard to find. Once on the pavement a driver may speed twenty-three miles westward, turn around, and speed twentyt-hree miles back.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

MEANEST CAR THIEF.

Chicago, June 27.—Please give space to an item in a good cause:

"The meanest car thief in Chicago is the one who stole a gray small sedan from where it was parked at Washington street and Wacker drive by its owner, a man with only one hand who is trying to make an honest living. This car was his only means of getting in and out of town from where he lives at the edge of the city. The car's engine number is 14,988,912, state license 837,367 and city vehicle 142,433."

GEORGE C. JAMES.

THEY'RE RABID IN TEXAS.

Houston, Tex., June 23.—Noting F. C. Smythe's remarks about speed trappers who hide out in alleys and pounce out on victims, I want to indorse his suggestion that other motorists come to the aid of victims as witnesses. I am still sore over the theft of eleven gallons of gas from my tank while it was held by the Lincoln park police, who, not satisfied with this, extorted $11 from me with the aid of their accomplice, the judge. Speed trappers could not exist without the collusion of judges. Down this way we used to stand horsethieves on a barrel with one end of a rope around their necks, knotted under the left ear, the other tied to a rafter. Then the barrel was kicked out from under and they were forever cured of horse stealing. Why not this simple and inexpensive method of disposing with speedtrappers?

WE SURE ARE.

Lake Shore Athletic Club, June 24.—If you dare! Rogers Park, 5 o'clock p. m., first street north of Fargo avenue [Birchwood avenue]. TRIBUNE truck 54,532 entered Sheridan against red light, turned south. Lights changed, so at Fargo they were against truck. Truck went through nevertheless. And you are for "safety first"?

C. P. ROOT.

SAFETY SUGGESTIONS.

Chicago, June 25.—To avoid more deaths and cripples in this wild time of living, why not keep all automobiles off streets upon which street cars operate. If the drunks who drive cars had to walk, that, too, might help things.

ANNIE MANNING COLBY.

THE SCOUTS GET A BOUQUET.

Chicago, June 23.—A few friends and I were out riding when the machine we were in happened to get stuck in the mud. We all got out and did everything to get the car out but had no luck. I was about to give up hope of ever getting it out when along came three Boy Scouts. They were all dressed up in their clean suits, but they just pitched in and stayed till, with their help, we got the machine out again. I have heard that Boy Scouts are supposed to do one good deed a day. The good deed they did us should certainly last them for a couple of weeks.

CATHERINE L. FORST.

PRO BONO MOTORIST.

Chicago, June 24.—Of the millions of dollars that have been at the disposal of the sanitary board for their own enjoyment and that of their numerous payrollers, also for the pleasures of the relatively few who use the bridle path along McCormick boulevard, it seems to me there should be a few dollars left with which to supply a few loads of gravel to fill in the almost countless holes in the short temporary road at the new Touhy avenue bridge over the drainage canal. In fact, it is not a road, but simply a succession of deep holes.

Possibly if this condition is publicly called to attention, they may have some consideration for the hundreds of motorists who daily endanger their lives and cars in traversing this detour.

J. W. WAINWRIGHT.

NOT A TOMB—A MUSEUM.

Chicago, June 25.—I want to endorse heartily the proposed Lincoln memorial highway outlined in your Sunday edition. I have had the pleasure of visiting practically every spot on the proposed route during the past six months, and any effort to unify such a tour will be highly educational and of value in many ways.

There is one spot on your map that brings a tinge of regret and even shame to every citizen of Illinois. The tomb of Lincoln at Springfield is not a tomb at all, it is a museum, not only filled with relics of Lincoln in a motley array but sprinkled with mementos from Lindbergh and Queen Marie and others whose visits to the tomb have been interpreted as tributes to the museum.

I hope THE TRIBUNE will do everything possible to bring the Lincoln tomb up to the same dignity as other points on your proposed memorial highway.

E. E. HAIGHT.

PROHIBITION, AS IS.

Chicago, June 26.—Sunday while driving in Lyons we turned south in Joliet avenue and left and right to the main highway. Just ahead of us was a car that was not running just right. It bumped another car, then it stalled on the railroad crossing. The driver was so drunk that he could scarcely sit up. After passing him we stopped to get a picture of the river from the bridge. In the meantime he had passed us once more trying to drive and drink from a partially filled bottle. Just beyond the bridge we thought he would go over the embankment. This is the worst case of an intoxicated driver that we have ever seen.

CHARLES L. POWERS.

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES.

Chicago, June 24.—I was walking east on Randolph street at La Salle when a big, bright car going in the same direction violated traffic rules and made a left turn north at La Salle street. The traffic officer made no attempt to stop the machine. The car stopped on La Salle street and I noticed a bright silver star on the rear. I walked up and read it. The inscription: "City of Chicago—Mayor." A slight incident, and yet, significant of our country's difficulties. Instead of setting an example, our lawmakers are themselves flagrant lawbreakers.

S. M.

LICENSE BOOTLEGGING.

Chicago, June 14.—Having noticed large numbers of Ohio auto license plates on Chicago streets recently, I am wondering if there has not developed a new method of relieving local auto owners of paying the Illinois fee and evading also the city license. A peculiarity of the Ohio plates is that about 95 per cent of them are on cars bearing advertisements of Chicago auto dealers, and the drivers apparently are natives here.

It is well known that hundreds of Illinois residents who work in Gary, Hammond, East Chicago, and other Indiana towns use the cheaper Indiana license plates on their cars.

H. L. BROWN.

TRIBUNE TRUCK OVERLOOKED.

Chicago, June 9.—I am a lawbreaker and must pay a fine plus a considerable loss of time because the tail light of my car was out of order. During the evening of May 31 two police officers on State street, between Randolph and Washington streets, inspected all south bound traffic. They ordered cars with minor violations to pull to the right side of the street and wait.

After they had stopped from fifteen to twenty cars they proceeded to issue violation notifications. I was forced to wait fourteen minutes without knowing why I was held. When the officer finally arrived at my car he told me it was on account of not having a tail light.

While I was waiting I noticed other cars which were stopped and some which were not. Two cars equipped with gold "drag" stars were allowed to proceed; one had no tail light and the other had no vehicle tax tag.

TRIBUNE truck 165 was forced to halt alongside of one of the officers. This truck had no tail light, but was overlooked.

If any one wishes the freedom of the streets in Chicago, either ride in a TRIBUNE truck or get a gold "drag" star.

R. WILLIAMS.

FOR DRIVER EDUCATION.

Chicago, June 14.—A campaign of education for drivers on U. S. Route 20 through northern Indiana would be a boon to motordom. May 30 car licensed 255,209, Illinois, straddled the center line of an eighteen foot pavement, nearly crowding two cars off the pavement and narrowly averting a collision with a third when he tried to force his way into the line of westbound traffic. I have noted hundreds of instances of "damn fool" driving on this highway.

WM. C. B.

BRIDGES FOR JAY WALKERS.

Urbana, Ill., June 14.—Having a fair idea of the congestion at loop intersections, I believe that results would justify the expense of designing and building jay walkers' bridges over the busiest corners. They should connect diagonal corners and would be primarily for pedestrian relief. They would simplify movement of pedestrian traffic by removing the necessity for double crossing of corners by pedestrians. The city would save great sums of money, if the convenience of its office workers can be measured in terms of money. Other advantages include the benefits that would come to motor traffic and the reduction of necessary police guards.

MODERN HOBO IS NOW TRAVELING IN STOLEN AUTOS

The modern hobo is responsible for a large number of automobile thefts, according to a check made in one of the larger eastern cities. It is declared that the hobo of the present day has abandoned the old practice of riding the brake rods of railroad trains and now steps into the best looking car he can find parked along the curb and drives himself to the next city in which he wants to stop. He abandons the car in that city and repeats the performance when he wishes to make another move.

German Doctors' Autos to Carry First Aid Signs

At the suggestion of the German Automobile club, doctors who are willing to render assistance to persons injured in traffic accidents will display a distinguishing sign on their cars. The sign consists of a red cross on a blue ground, with the Prussian eagle in the center. Motorists and others are advised that all cars carrying this sign have both a doctor and a medical outfit on board.

N. Y. May Make Garage Owners Install Signals

A bill has been introduced in the New York legislature to compel owners of garages opening onto public highways to install traffic signals on the sidewalks. This move is to protect pedestrians from being run down by cars going in and out of garages.

33D REGIMENT OF INFANTRY TO BE MOTORIZED

The Thirty-fourth United States infantry at Fort Eustic, Va., is being completely motorized. Delivery of the cross country cars, trucks, and motorcycles to this organization will give the army its first motorized regiment. The orders call for the purchase of 23 cross country cars, five three and one-half ton tractors, five rolling kitchens on trailers, nine cross country cars with light cargo bodies, 19 one and one-half ton trucks, 15 three and a quarter ton trucks with six wheels, eight motorcycles with side cars, 14 three and a quarter ton trucks, and one gasoline truck.

JUNE TO SHOW NEW RECORD IN MOTOR INDUSTRY

Detroit, Mich., June 29.—[Special.]—Never before in the history of the automobile industry have so many passenger cars and trucks been produced and sold in any consecutive six months period as were in the first half of the current year. June is to show another amazingly high figure, with every indication that activities in July will continue with little curtailment. In some plants the program calls for capacity output for the next few weeks at least.

Production of new models recently introduced will soon be in full swing, with several changes yet to be announced. Schedules for July are expected to show a number of increases and output for that month in all probability, will exceed that of June.

Figures made public this week shows that during May General Motors dealers delivered to consumers 214,870 cars.

Secretary Hyde Is First Auto Man in Cabinet

President Hoover's selection of former Gov. Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri as secretary of agriculture, brings to the cabinet for the first time a man from the automobile industry, for Secretary Hyde has long been a motor car dealer at Trenton, Mo.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Centralization of the various sales divisions and change in the corporate name of one of the company's subsidiaries is announced by G. V. Orr, northwest regional manager, Willys-Overland, Inc. ONLY since the introduction of the New Pontiac Big Six early in January has it been possible to obtain big car qualities for prices ranging as low as $745. The New Pontiac Big Six has been called the "step-up" car because it enables forward-looking people to step-up in motor car quality without leaving the low-priced field. And since the first of the year, when the new Pontiac was announced, the step-up idea in automobile buying has taken America by storm.

To represent such an impressive step-up from other cars in its field, the Pontiac Big Six had to be an innovation among low-priced cars. It had to offer big car style, luxury and comfort. And this it does in specially-designed Fisher bodies. It had to offer big car performance. And this it accomplishes through a big L-head engine—through such features as the Harmonic Balancer which eliminates crankshaft vibration—through two separate braking systems including noiseless, internal four-wheel service brakes.

How completely American buyers have welcomed the step-up opportunity presented by the New Pontiac Big Six, Pontiac's record-breaking sales for 1929 reveal. If you will investigate this car you will understand why it is enjoying such unprecedented success.

TOGETHER with the New Pontiac Big Six, the New Oakland All-American Six is aiding Oakland in establishing the greatest sales record of its entire history. During the first five months of 1929, sales of Oakland and Pontiac Sixes totaled over 151,000 as compared with 131,303 for the same period in 1928 and 79,286 for 1927. The Oakland All-American Six, has come to be known through the enthusiasm of its owners as the finest medium-priced car in America today.

AIRCRAFT SAFETY IS DEPENDENT ON MOTIVE POWER

When Engine Stops Plane Must Come Down.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Safety in aircraft is primarily a matter of motive power. This fact is readily apparent. All heavier-than-air craft depend upon the thrust of the propeller to overcome gravity. When the power fails the plane must come to ground for it cannot longer sustain itself in air. That is why every aircraft must have a power plant which is as nearly perfect as possible as regards dependability.

Dependability in aircraft motors, as in automobile motors, is largely a matter of care and experience in production, a fact which has a direct bearing on the present character of aircraft engines. Because of a seller's market several new aircraft engines are being placed on the market. Some of these engines must be more fully developed before it is really safe and advisable for their manufacturers to go into the extensive production program. There are even instances where the personnel of the organization attempting to market an engine have had little or no previous experience and are merely copying other engines, including their mistakes. It is an unhealthy condition which jeopardizes the safety of aviation.

Two Cooling Systems.

Modern airplane engines may be classified in regard to their cooling systems as "water cooled" and "air cooled." The difference in the qualities of these two types has only a slight bearing upon the subject of safety although it should be pointed out that the water cooled engine, because of its water supply and radiator, weighs much more than the air cooled engine. Developments in the latter type have brought a motor of greater durability and efficiency than the water cooled type. Hence the air cooled motor has grown in favor. Greater efficiency could be secured, however, if some practical means were devised to air cool an "in-line" motor, which, because of its lower frontal area gives less resistance than the radial type engine which is the type of all air cooled engines at present.

One of the most important safety factors in aircraft engines is reserve power. It has been found by experience that the motor which uses in regular performance only 50 or 60 per cent of its total power capacity has greater reliability. The factor is especially desirable in commercial planes carrying passengers for it tends toward greater regularity and dependability and provides a greater margin of safety.

Multi-Engined Craft.

This explains the growing trend toward multi-engined aircraft. The greater the reserve power the greater the safety and safety is the first requirement for passenger carrying service. The responsible operators today fly two and three motored ships on scheduled runs. Other operators should be required to fly such planes.

More than one motor is not, of course, a guarantee against hazard, as has been plainly shown in two recent air crashes. One of these accidents occurred at Newark when a trimotored ship crashed and killed 14 persons. The other occurred over the English channel two weeks ago when a twin motored plane of the Imperial Airways, unable to stay aloft with one motor, fell to the sea. It had been falsely claimed that one motor was sufficient to sustain the ship.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh regards the matter of reserve power of utmost importance. He recently predicted the wide development of the four motored ship for passenger carrying. All-air passage across the continent, which will require night flying, awaits the development of the four motored plane. The reserve power here is greatest for when one motor fails, three-fourths of the total power remains.

Single Motor for Mail.

A plane equipped with two motors should be able to fly and even climb on one motor with a full load. In the case of the three motored plane safe performance should continue with any two motors. Otherwise the value of the multi-unit power plant is negligible.

In the mail service where speed and versatility are the first requirements a high-powered single motored plane is adequate. The smaller plane is better for air mail over rugged or uneven country for it is able to get in and out of small landing fields. For coastal regions and other water routes where the plane is always in gliding distance of water or adequate landing fields the one motored amphibian serves the purpose.

The power plant must be considered as a whole. Fuel and lubricating oil tanks and pipes and ignition and cooling system dependability are chargeable to the airplane power plant. Not only must the engine function perpectly during the flight but the power plant installation must be simple and rugged enough to obviate failures in air.

PILOTS ON COAST TO COAST LINE

QUESTIONS

Questions relating to aviation are answered in this section by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, famous world war flyer, who formerly held the world's altitude record. Inquiries should be addressed to the Aviation Department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Q.—Is there an aviation business school in Chicago or vicinity? If so, will you give me their address?—M. J. Mayr, Chicago.

Q.—How many miles were flown by planes in 1928?—M. W., Gary.

A.—A total of 70,500,000 miles were flown last year based on figures issued by aeronautics branch of the department of commerce.

Q.—What is an amphibion airplane?—O. W., Milwaukee.

An amphibion airplane is virtually a flying boat, which also has a wheel landing gear in addition, which may be lowered or raised at will for use on land as desired.

Q.—How many licensed pilots and licensed planes are there at present in the United States?—G. E. B., Chicago.

Based on department of commerce figures, there are 6,585 licensed pilots and 4,317 licensed planes at present.

It is an aerial photograph taken from a plane giving the same view as might be secured when one looks out over a city from the top of a tall building or from a mountain top over the surrounding countryside.

Bulletin Boards Now Note Arrivals of Planes

SALT LAKE CITY.—Airplane bulletin boards in waiting rooms at terminal and way stations is the latest development in transcontinental air mail and passenger service. A Boeing Air Transport order instructs all field managers to install the "traffic boards." Space is provided on each board for chalking up "time due," "arrival time" and "number of passengers."

FLYING PROGRAM TO BE BROADCAST OVER NBC CHAIN

Famous Leaders in Air Circles to Talk.

The Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, with offices in New York, cooperating with the National Broadcasting company, has announced plans for an extensive series of informative radio talks which will bring famous fliers, government aviation officials, and recognized leaders of the aircraft industry to the microphone each week for a nation-wide hookup.

The radio series, which will be known as "Roads of the Sky" when it goes on the air over the chain, is planned to take millions of radio listeners, most of whom have not yet flown, on air journeys over the transcontinental air mail route, to the scenic regions of America, through storm and fog by the aid of aviation radio, around the world to view new aeronautical developments, over the Pan-American trail which Lindbergh blazed, and into the upper atmospheres explored by but a few flyers.

Programs start Soon.

The programs are planned to give the American public a comprehensive picture of American aviation in its present stage of development, a picture that has been changing so rapidly that only an expert would be qualified to keep abreast of the latest news.

The series will be opened at 8 o'clock Tuesday, by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, who as President Hoover's successor to the commerce post is in charge of the government's program to aid civil aviation. The series will be continued next Tuesday evening between 8 and 8:30 o'clock Chicago time.

It will be Secretary Lamont's first radio address since he was called into President Hoover's cabinet, and he is expected to outline government plans for stimulating air commerce. He will be introduced by Frederick B. Rentchler, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and one of the outstanding figures in the aircraft industry.

Famous Men to Talk.

Among the speakers of national prominence who will be brought to the microphone during the "Roads of the Sky" series are Capt. Frank Hawks, holder of the nonstop transcontinental air record; Herbert Hoover Jr., son of the President, who is an aviation radio expert; W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general in charge of air mail; Wesley Smith, famous air mail pilot; E. Hamilton Lee, senior pilot of the transcontinental air mail; Lieut. Apollo Soucek, holder of the world altitude record for seaplanes; Erik Nelson, famous round the world flier; F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aeronautics; William P. MacCracken, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics; and David F. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics.

Atmosphere for the "Roads of the Sky," series will be afforded through special musical selections.

New Airmail Service in Northwest Planned

Announcement was made recently by Postmaster General Brown that on Aug. 15, 1929, bids will be opened for the establishment of an air mail line from Pasco, Wash., to Spokane; Pasco to Portland, and Pasco to Seattle. The proposed service will place the northwest in direct air mail connection with the transcontinental route running from Salt Lake City to Pasco.

MARQUETTE U. WILL TEACH AERONAUTICAL ENGINEERING IN FALL

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Courses in aeronautical engineering will be offered as a part of the mechanical department of the Marquette university college of engineering, next fall, it has been announced by Dean Franz A. Kartak of the college.

"Aviation has taken a definite place in the commercial transportation field of the nation," said Dean Kartak. "We believe that the engineer will assume a place of prominence in this rapidly expanding national industry. It will be largely a manufacturing enterprise and the majority of individuals with it will be employed in the manufacturing of equipment, airplanes and accessory apparatus necessary for commercial transportation."

U. S. LEADS WORLD IN DIFFERENT KINDS OF PLANES

The United States leads all other nations in the number of airplane models manufactured with 148, the American Air Transport association reports. France is next with 109 and Great Britain third with 96. Other countries and the number are: Germany, 54; Italy, 44; Czecho-Slovakia, 12, and Holland, 11.

Germany is the nearest competitor to this country in the manufacture of planes devoted strictly to civil use, although its number, 54, is many under the total of 96 credited to the United States. The division between military and civil types is as follows: Great Britain, 60 and 36; France, [illegible] and 35; Italy, 31 and 13; Germany, [illegible] and United States, 54 and 96.

Under the peace terms Germany may not build military aircraft.

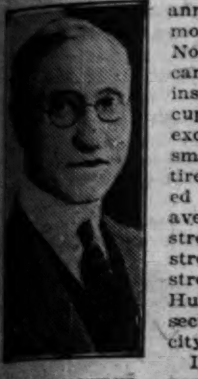
OLD HOSPITAL ON NORTHWEST SIDE EXPANDS

Norwegian - American Erects Addition.

Additions which will greatly augment the northwest side's hospitalization facilities are announced this morning by the Norwegian-American hospital. This institution now occupies, with the exception of one small lot, the entire block bounded by Francisco avenue, Thomas street, Richmond street and Cortez street — in the Humboldt park section of the city.



DR. J. V. FOWLER.

Improvements now being put under way by the hospital, of which Dr. J. V. Fowler is presiding officer of the medical staff, will cost about $400,000 and increase the organization's investment to more than $1,000,000.

J. A. Lindstrand designed the new buildings for the hospital and will superintend their construction.

And now for what is being done. That part of the institution known as Tabitha hospital—erected in 1894—is being torn down for replacement by a five story central administration building which will face on Francisco. In addition a five story wing is under construction along the now partly vacant north front of the institution facing on Thomas street. The new sections will front 110 feet on Francisco and 123 feet on Thomas.

Will Have 130 Rooms.

This new portion of the hospital will contain a total of 130 rooms, which will consist of sixty-three patients' rooms, with toilet and closet attached, twelve patients' rooms with private baths, three operating rooms, sterilizing rooms, doctors' and nurses' rest rooms, etc.

Starting with the lower part of the structure we'll look over the development. A part of the basement will be used for the photographic department, a coroner's inquest room, and the storage of equipment, etc.

On the first floor will be a spacious lobby, with business recess and waiting rooms attached, the superintendent's office, general offices, lecture room, library, trustees' room, private dining rooms for the doctors, nurses and help, a consultation room and an emergency operating room. Also on this floor will be a large kitchen and departments having to do with the feeding of the patients.

The second, third and fourth floors will contain the patients' rooms, while the fifth story will be given over to operating rooms. On this floor there will be a waiting room for relatives of patients gathering information for discussion of the great operation in later years.

The Norwegian-American hospital was founded in 1894. One of its buildings, extending along Thomas and Richmond streets, was erected two or three years ago, while a wing was erected in 1917 along the south frontage on Cortez street.

No Public Collections.

Officials claim for the institution one record that might be classed as somewhat remarkable for organizations of the kind. And that is not in fifteen years has a dollar of subscription been solicited from the public. Financing of the new improvements is through a $175,000 bond issue underwritten by the State bank of Chicago.

The institution was recently reorganized and is now conducted by nine trustees, operating a trust estate not for pecuniary profit, under the name Norwegian-American Hospital foundation.

The trustees and officers are as follows: President, O. O. Krabol, president Colonial Chair company; vice president, Walter O. Johnson, president of the T. Johnson company, coopers; treasurer, O. Gullicksen, president Churchill Cabinet company; secretary and counsel, Andrew Hummeland; chairman of the committee of management, John M. Pedersen; chairman of the board, Oscar H. Haugan; Adolph H. Nordahl, jeweler; Dr. Marie A. Olsen and Birger Osland, investment banker. Dr. R. H. Warden is secretary of the medical staff.

THREE ENTERPRISES IN DEVELOPMENT OF CHICAGOLAND

At the lower left hand corner is a building which the North Shore Military academy plans to erect at Northfield, adjoining the Skokie valley line of the North Shore electric. The school hopes to move its quarters from Niles Center to its new home next fall. C. W. Lampe & Co. are architects, and M. Thompson made this picture.

Start Soon on $9,000,000 Power Plant

With the completion of the final plans, work is scheduled to start shortly on another of the giant power houses playing such important rôles in the industrial development of the Chicago district. The one today is a $9,000,000 plant to be erected by the Northern Indiana Public Service company at Michigan City—on the eastern borders of the district, which through the multiplicity of its manufactories has earned the title "The Ruhr of America."

Considerable information has been written about this electrical generation station, but perhaps it might be of interest to recall some of the salient features.

The new power plant will be 405 feet long and 155 wide. It will be large enough to house two turbo-generator units. For the present, however, only one will be installed. This installation will have a capacity of 68,000 kilowatts, or approximately 68,000 horse power.

Simple, Modern Lines.

The second unit will be added later and provision is made for additions to the station when the requirements of the district demand.

Holabird & Root prepared the architectural plans, while the engineering design was executed by the firm of Sargent & Lundy. Herelihy Brothers of Chicago have the general contract.

The design of Holabird & Root calls for a structure in which the simple vertical lines of modern or contemporary architecture are emphasized. The exterior will be faced with sand colored brick, with Indiana limestone employed for ornamentation. The height of the structure will be 114 feet to the crest of the roof and 250 feet to the top of the stack.

Some Other Features.

Besides the station the plans call for the erection of a breaker house for pulverizing the coal used, two conveyor bridges through which the powdered coal is brought to the boilers, a scale house and pit, a track hopper and an intake tunnel and discharge flume for lake water used in condensing steam.

Approximately eight-five acres are included in the company's holdings, which are on the Lake Michigan front, directly west of the Michigan City harbor. It is planned to have the plant ready for operation by the spring of 1931.

Raklios Plans Restaurant at 18th and Wabash Corner

John Raklios, Inc., leased from Alicia McK. Byrne the property at the northeast corner of Wabash and 18th for fifteen years at an undisclosed rental. The lessee plans to expend $30,000 in remodeling the premises for a restaurant to open in September.

TO RESTORE CHICAGOANS TO HEALTH

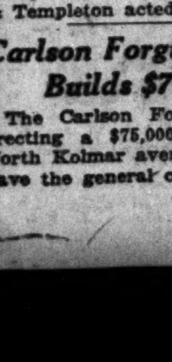
JAMES KEMPER ACQUIRES LARGE WINNETKA HOUSE

James S. Kemper has purchased for an undisclosed consideration from Mrs. Mancel T. Clark the fifteen room brick country house of New England design and five acres of ground at 76 Locust road, Winnetka. The property is just south of Hill road and across from the Indian Hill club.



JAMES S. KEMPER.
[Harris & Ewing.]

Mr. Kemper, who is president of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company and Associated Mutuals, will occupy the place as his home following his return from Europe. All the land around the tract, which Mr. Rutherford farmed for years, is built up. Mr. Rutherford died about a year ago. The property—zoned for three story flat buildings—is adjacent to a park and to transportation. It will be called the Montclare Park subdivision.

Cadet School Plans Campus at Northfield

Following on the heels of the recent huge suburban coöperative apartment house enterprise recently announced for the region being developed along the Skokie valley branch of the North Shore Electric line comes news this morning that the North Shore Military academy will erect a handsome new building at Northfield.

MELVILLE LITTLE.

The school, which is at present located in Niles Center, recently acquired a tract of fifty acres at Northfield. The Metropolitan District Realty Trust will erect the first unit of a quardangle of buildings on the north side of Winnetka road, adjoining the Skokie valley electric line to the west.

This building was designed by C. W. Lampe & Co., who secured their architectural inspiration from the structures at the United States Military academy at West Point. The first unit is to be 226 feet long and 75 feet wide and with the equipment will represent a reported investment of $400,000. It will be three stories and English basement high.

Contents of Building.

All sides of the structure will be faced with slag brick, with rubble stone used for ornamentation. At the south end of the building will be found the auditorium and the gymnasium. On the ground floor—or English basement—will be located the dining room, lavatories, etc. Classrooms will be located on the first floor and the rest of the structure will be given over to dormitories.

The North Shore Military academy was organized four years ago and has been in operation for two years. Its present home in Niles Center is a huge log cabin at Kenton and Lucille which has aroused considerable comment. When the cadets march out of it the structure is to be used as an intermediate school, according to present plans.

Col. M. C. K. Little is president of the academy and Oscar E. Carlstrom, attorney general for Illinois, is chairman of the board of directors.

Campus Is Rolling.

The fifty acre campus of the academy is gently rolling, with plenty of shade trees. Financing of the first unit is through a bond issue—said to be already oversubscribed — and through the sale of preferred stock. The Suburban Construction company has the general contract.

NILES CENTER, WESTCHESTER IN BIG EXPANSION

Insull Interests Are Behind Projects.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Intensive development of the Niles Center and Westchester districts is foreshadowed by information coming to light that the Metropolitan District Realty trust—an organization commonly reputed to have the backing of Insull interests—has before it a building program for the two localities which will represent a total investment of $7,000,000 by the end of 1930.

In both Niles Center—located along the branch of the Rapid Transit lines extended west from the Howard street station a few years ago—and Westshester—at the terminus of the Rapid Transit line's west side division, also recently completed—the organization now has building operations under way.

For Niles Center present plans call for the expenditure of $2,500,000 by the end of this year and a like amount by the end of 1930, a total of $5,000,000. It is planned to spend $500,000 in Westchester during 1929 and $1,500,000 during 1930, a total of $2,000,000.

Building Up Districts.

Besides being operations which in themselves are of major importance, both developments are intended to help build up the districts involved through attracting other building interests. And in this connection other firms now have extensive jobs in both regions.

Buildings of all kinds are contemplated in the program, but for the most part they will consist of five or six room bungalows, two flat buildings, three flat buildings, many unit flat buildings, commercial buildings and combination apartment and commercial structures.

The designs for the buildings are being carefully selected. For instance in the two and three flat building class there will be some twenty-five different designs. These will include Elizabethan English, Early American, Georgian, French and modified Italian.

May Try Coöperatives.

Besides putting up structures for sale in the ordinary way, the organization expects to try out the coöperative idea, particularly in the two and three flat building class. Should this prove successful developments somewhat similar to the Park Gables and Park Mansions at Indian Boundary park, West Rogers Park, may be undertaken.

Now dropping back from the future to the present, it might be well to tell a little about what is being done and what has been done. At the moment sixteen five and six room bungalows are nearing completion at Karlov avenue and Oakton, Niles Center. In this region there are also fourteen brick and steel two flat structures nearing completion. At Cicero avenue and Main ten three flat buildings are nearing completion. At Kedvale and Oakton a building containing three stores and six flats was recently completed.

The block bounded by Lee, Elm and Cicero and extending back to the Rapid Transit line right of way, near the Main street station, is to be developed immediately. In the Crawford station district work starts at once on two flat units and on two nine flat buildings.

A Model Structure.

Perhaps it might be interesting to describe one three flat structure at Lamon and Louise, Niles Center, as an example of the high type of structures in the building program. This structure is of modified English Elizabethan design. On the street façade the English basement is finished in Indiana limestone, laid in rough ashlar. The upper floors are of English red brick, with heavy timber work and stucco adding a decorative touch.

The apartments are as luxuriously fitted and planned as any in the gold coast sections. The third floor apartment has a huge studio style living room. All the apartments are equipped with electrical refrigeration and other convenient devices.

Next Sunday the company will open a model apartment building on Elm street, just west of Cicero, near the Main street station of the Rapid Transit line for inspection by the public.

Westchester Development.

A word or two about Westchester. Development is now under way along Elizabeth, Chauncey and Milford streets. Bungalows and two flat buildings are the principal items now, but developments similar to those at Niles Center also are planned.

Besides Niles Center and Westchester, the Metropolitan District Realty Trust plans developments for other points along the fast electric transit lines, including Northfield, Glenview, Highland Park, etc. In all it expects to have completed by the end of 1930 some 400 buildings. This figure embraces all its developments. And, of course, the amount invested will bring the total to considerably more than the $7,000,000 for Westchester and Niles Center, but definite figures on the other projects are not yet available.

In developing these areas in the Chicago district, the organization is falling in with New York and London, where the metropolitan areas are the scene of intensive building operations. To close we might add that Charles E. Thompson is president of the Metropolitan District Realty Trust. The architects are W. C. Lampe & Co., Frederick B. Schmidt and H. V. Von Holst. The Suburban Construction company has the general contract.

STRIKES ARE FEW, SO U.S. SAILS SEA OF PROSPERITY

BY THOMAS WREN.

The increasing spending power of American wage earners is the motive that keeps our prosperity going; and as long as this force continues to operate American prosperity is not likely to decline, is the conclusion of a comprehensive industrial survey just completed by the statistical department of the firm of Lawrence Stern & Co.

The survey emphasizes the enviable position of American labor as the most efficient in the world today, and brings out new facts regarding the enormous savings that have been recorded in American industry through the cessation of strikes, lockouts and other costly disputes.

"It should be remembered," the survey stated, "that economists are in substantial agreement that it is the marginal production—over and above actual necessities—that keeps the industrial machine in the high gear of prosperity.

"In the past one of the most frequent and serious causes of lost motion in the prosperity cycle has been found in industrial strife, which during the last fourteen years has resulted in 31,166 strikes, involving 16,213,507 workers.

Huge Economic Loss.

"The economic loss is estimated by some economists and statisticians at no less than $15,500,000,000. Such enormous losses, amounting in a peak year of labor, such as 1919, to well over $3,000,000,000, might in themselves be enough to destroy the margin that stands between hard times and prosperity.

"Today," the survey continues, "there appears no sign on the horizon that the present cycle will be broken because of industrial strife. Nineteen hundred and twenty-eight was the banner year in the absence of strikes and lockouts; and 1929 bids fair to equal or break that record.

"There are many facts and figures which indicate the steadily increasing standard of spending of American wage earners. Among these are the following:

"Volume of residential construction has increased approximately 380 per cent since 1920.

Everybody Is Riding.

"Three and a half million passenger automobiles were purchased in 1928 as compared with 815,000 ten years ago.

"Nineteen million homes in America are electric lighted today, 116 per cent more than in 1920.

"There are now approximately 19,000,000 telephones in the country today as compared to approximately 12,000,000 ten years ago.

"Upwards of one million bath tubs are being installed in American homes annually.

"More than $2,000,000,000 is being spent annually for vacation and travel.

"Attendance in colleges, universities and professional schools has increased about 300 per cent since 1900.

"High school attendance has increased 140 per cent since 1915.

"Consumption of fresh fruit and vegetables has increased 50 per cent in ten years."

Hours Are Shorter.

The Stern survey points out that more working people own homes, have money in the bank and securities in safe deposit boxes than ever before in the history of the nation.

It explains it is significant that while the hours of work have decreased 8 to 10 per cent, per capita productivity is nearly 60 per cent greater han in 1920. This is due to better management and planning, new inventions, and modern machinery in the factory and greater skill on the part of the individual worker.

Better understanding of the real basis of prosperity and coöperation on the part of both employers and employés was cited by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, as being responsible for improved industrial relations.

He said the changed point of view regarding the payment and maintenance of high wage standards on the part of many employers and the public generally is a contributing factor.

"Many employers," said Mr. Green, "understand now as never before that the prosperity of the country depends upon the maintenance of a high purchasing power on the part of the masses of the people and that this cannot be maintained at a maximum point unless working men and women are paid high wages."

Employer's Viewpoint.

John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in the survey explained the employer's viewpoint, expressing the opinion that the days of great industrial strife have passed. He said the employer and employé of today realize more than they did a generation ago the importance of the man at the lathe and the man in the frontoffice.

"The attitude of big business generally is that labor in America is entitled to high wages as long as it gives an equally good return in efficiency, coöperation and loyalty," said Mr. Edgerton.

PAYS $192,000 FOR WOODLAWN FLAT BUILDING

The thirty flats at the southwest corner of Blackstone avenue and Marquette road were sold by Linus E. Roder to Bruton S. Powell for a reported $192,000, subject to $130,000. Byron M. Hopkins & Sons were brokers for both parties.

DOCTOR BUYS FLATS.

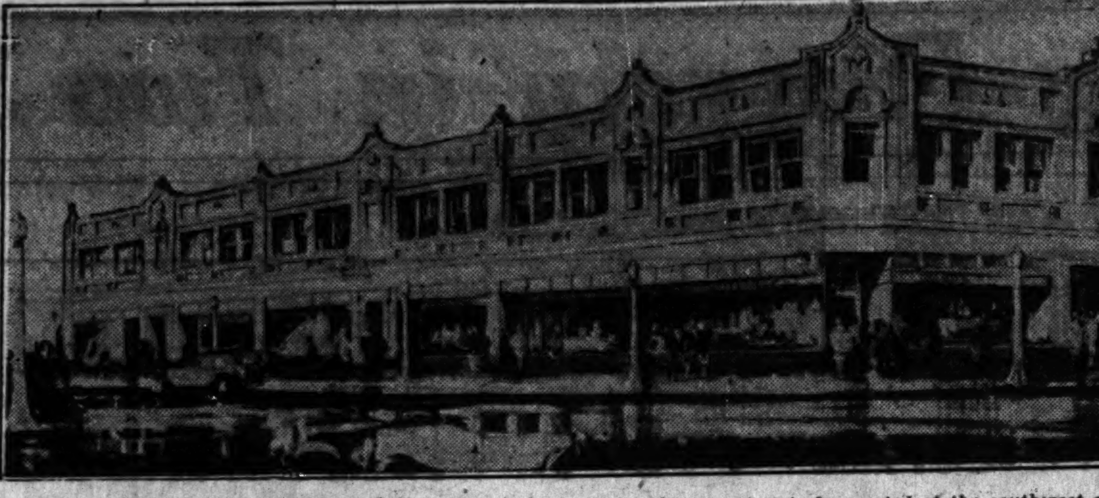
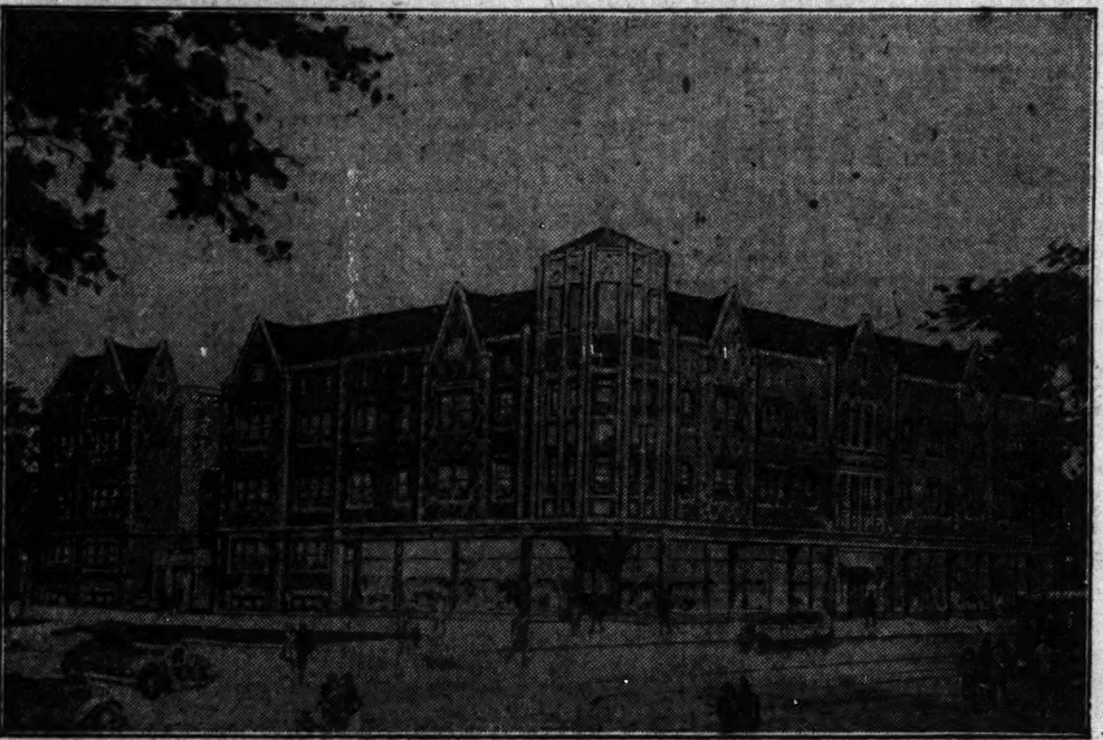
AT DEVON AND WASHTENAW CORNER



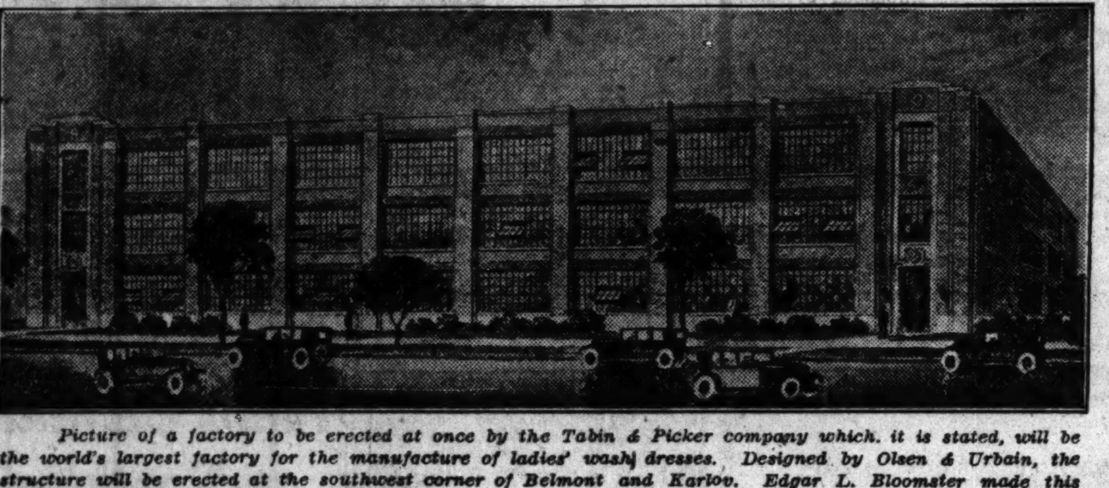
A syndicate headed by Michael F. Schiavone is back of the above project to be erected at the southwest corner of Devon and Washtenaw avenues from plans by Oldefest & Williams. The total investment in land and building will be a reported $185,000. There'll be seven stores, four flats, and twelve offices. Lawrence Monberg made this picture. Contracts have been let and work will start shortly.

FOR CORNER OF 79TH AND SAGINAW



Andrew Ringman, south side real estate man, plans to erect the above structure at the southwest corner of 79th street and Saginaw avenue. The structure will have forty-two apartments of three and four rooms, and seven stores. Kocher & Larson drew the plans. It is stated the investment in land and building will be $335,000. C. F. Eppinghousen made this rendering.

STILL ANOTHER WORLD'S LARGEST FOR CITY



Picture of a factory to be erected at once by the Tabin & Picker company which, it is stated, will be the world's largest factory for the manufacture of ladies' wash dresses. Designed by Olsen & Urbain, the structure will be erected at the southwest corner of Belmont and Karlov. Edgar L. Bloomster made this rendering.

WOMEN'S WANTS FIND ANSWER IN GROUP OF FLATS

Harmon Enterprise in New Roseland.

A unique quintet of apartment buildings is now under construction for the Harmon National Realty Trust in the new Roseland district. Three are located on the east side of Emerald avenue and two on the west side of Union avenue; both groups being located between 127th and 128th streets.

What makes the enterprise unique is the unusual amount of study given the planning of the buildings to incorporate features which would appeal to the feminine contingent of the future occupants. Around 200 women were questioned as to what they missed most in the average apartment and as to what they would like to have installed if they were erecting an apartment building themselves.

For Quick Washing.

Practically all desired some sort of facilities for quick laundry work—a place where a garment could be washed out easily on short notice without the washer having to run down into a basement laundry. So tubs were installed that fold back under the kitchen sink when not wanted. Another convenient device put in is a drying apparatus that snaps up—like a curtain—when not in use.

Then an abundance of oulets for the use of electricity are being installed. The builders are giving full consideration to this electrical age and are looking to the time when there will be even more electrically operated devices than are in service now.

Of Various Designs.

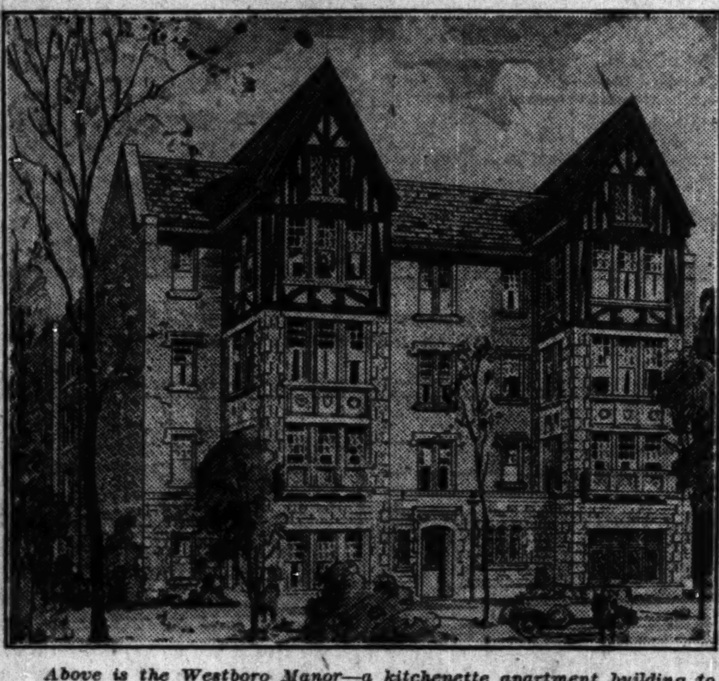
Ernest A. Benkert of Chicago and Randall Evans of New York are the associated architects who designed the buildings. Each structure occupies a lot 36x123 feet and each contains three flats. Two of the buildings are of Georgian design, two of old English and one of Pennsylvania colonial.

Completion of the buildings is scheduled for early October. The investment in land and building for all five is estimated at about $115,000.

Molding Machine Company Buys for Future Addition

The International Molding Machine company bought from Robert Beattie the 75x124 at 2616 West 16th street, adjoining its factory, for future expansion. Burke, Jackson & Burke were attorneys.

WESTBORO MANOR



Above is the Westboro Manor—a kitchenette apartment building to be erected at 148-50 North Mayfield avenue by Louis Lieberman and Isidore Pruzansky. It will contain thirty-nine apartments. Carl Hauber is architect. Including the value of the 50x150 site, it is stated the investment will be $190,000. Baer, Eisendrath & Co. have underwritten a $115,000 bond issue at 6½ per cent. Charles H. Kellner made this rendering.

13 STORY CO-OP IN HYDE PARK TO BY 25 FEET WIDE

Building to Have Six Duplex Flats.

Another coöperative apartment building is proposed for the Hyde Park district of the city. A syndicate headed by L. L. Lewis of Rosenthal, Mayer & Lewis has purchased from William Mason of Wilmette a site at 5144 Hyde Park boulevard on which it proposes to erect a thirteen story structure.

The site is an unusually thin one for a building of this size, fronting twenty-five feet on the boulevard with a depth of 175 feet, but the narrowness of the lot is offset by making the apartments duplexes—that is two floors to each flat.

Harry E. Gallup has drawn the plans for the "coöp" which is to be known as the East End Towers. The design will be "modernized Gothic."

Each apartment will contain a living room 26x21.6 feet, a dining room 12.6x17 feet, a breakfast room, the kitchen, a maid's room, and bathroom on the first floor. On the second floor of each unit will be three large master bedrooms and two baths, besides closets, etc.

Back of the building will be a landscaped garden 100x25 feet, intended especially for the youngsters belonging to the tenant owners of the structure.

The site, which faces east out over East End park, Leif Ericson drive, and the lake, cost a reported $50,000. It is estimated that the cost of the improvements will be $250,000. Of the six apartments to be located in the structure, three have already been taken, it is reported.

Construction is expected to start in the fall. Rosenthal, Mayer & Lewis will handle the sale of the remaining flats.

LEASE BUILDING ON SHIELDS FOR PIE, CAKE PLANT

August Teblemann and Charles J. Hunt, pie and cake makers, have leased the three story factory building at 3548-58 Shields avenue from the Peacock estate in which they will install a bakery. The structure has more than 55,000 square feet of floor area and is served by a switch track of the Pennsylvania railway. The lessees plan to remodel the building into one of the finest bakeries in the country. They are now operating several delivery routes and plan to add thirty trucks to their equipment. Hooker & Slosson represented the lessees and Louis B. Beardslee & Co. represented the lessors.

SELLS BUILDING ON MILWAUKEE FOR $750,000

The four story building at the southwest córner of Milwaukee and Kimball—under twenty-five year lease to J. S. Rosenberg, owner of the Logan Department store—has been sold by the Milwaukee and Kimball Building corporation to Milton and Henry Friend for a reported $750,000, subject to $400,000. Michael Flicht & Co. were brokers. Joseph Rosenberg was attorney for the buyer and Charles P. Schwartz for the seller.

Dental Supply Firm Rents Building on South Park

The Coe Laboratories, Inc., dental supply manufacturers, have leased the one story building at 6624-36 South Park avenue from Alexander S. Irvine for ten years at a reported term rental of $41,000. Ernest E. Dalton is president of the company. Extensive alterations are planned on the building. Russell Smith & Co. were brokers. John E. Hogan was attorney for the lessee and Clinton A. Stafford for the lessor.

BUYS SHERWIN AVENUE RESIDENCE.

Jacob Alexander of the Alexander Woolen company has bought the residence at 1420 Sherwin avenue, lot 50x150, from John Chell of Chell & Anderson, for a reported $40,000. L. J. Dittus of Liepold & Hicks was broker.

NEW FACTORY TO LEAD WORLD IN WASH DRESS LINE

Check old Dad Dearborn with another world's largest factory in a particular field of endeavor. This morning's claimant of world's largest honors is a factory to be erected immediately for the Tabin and Picker company at the southwest corner of Belmont and Karlov. And the line in which it is claimed this plant heads the world is the manufacture of ladies' wash dresses.

Tabin and Picker make in excess of 3,000,000 of these garments annually, it is stated. The firm was organized less than nine years ago by Albert Tabin and N. Picker in a small loft. Eight sewing machines turned out the company's work. Now 1,100 machines are used in addition to pressers and other machinery and approximately 1,300 people are on the pay roll.

Had Several Plants.

For the last few years the company has had several plants in operation at various places on the north side. Now it has been decided to concentrate them all in one factory in the Belmont, Crawford, Diversey, and Milwaukee district.

The structure to be erected will occupy a site fronting 209 feet on Belmont and 125 feet on Karlov. Designed by Olsen and Urbain, it will represent the last word in factory construction, with special attention given the comfort of the employés. In addition to the strictly business departments there will be commodious rest rooms, etc.

Will Cost $300,000.

It is stated the development will represent an investment of $300,000 in which connection the Central Trust company has underwritten a serial bond issue of $160,000. The Regan Construction company has the general contract for putting up the structure.

Adrian Tabin is president of the company. Albert Tabin is vice president, and N. Picker is secretary and treasurer.

PALOS PARK MAY DOUBLE ITS AREA BY ANNEXATION

Palos Park, tucked away among several thousand acres of forest preserve, recently adopted a zoning law which prohibits more than two familes to the acre. This puts it in the class with Lake Forest so far as density of population is concerned. Palos Park now has approximately 1,060 acres within its corporate limits, giving it a possible population of 2,120 families.

A proposition to annex more territory is now being considered. If this is done the village will have about twice as much territory as it now has, or a legal total of 4,240 families. Counting five to a family gives a possible population of 21,200. This, it is pointed out, would be the logical limits for the town is too closely hemmed in by forest preserves to expand west of the Wabash tracks, its natural line of development.

LAND SURVEYORS TO ASK NEW LAW ON REGISTRATION

The Illinois Registered Land Surveyors' association will sponsor a new registration law for the state to take the place of the law declared invalid in 1927. This action was decided upon at the recent first annual meeting of the association, held at the City club. The association also decided to have monthly discourses covering the field of city and country surveying for the benefit of associate and junior members. This course will begin in September. The membership in the association embraces land surveying firms in Cook county and in the six neighboring counties. Morris L. Greeley is president and H. H. Bremer is secretary.

HORDER'S LEASES STATIONERY SHOP AT 329 SHERMAN

Horder's, Inc., now operating ten stationery and office supply stores in the loop, has leased the store at 329-31 Sherman street in the Postal Telegraph building. The lease is for nine years and ten months from July 1 at an undisclosed rental. Cowles & Colean, architects, are supervising extensive alterations on the store, which fronts 48 feet on Sherman and 42 feet on Exchange. This is said to be one of sevedal new stores planned by Horder's. The lease was negotiated by Robert White & Co., in coöperation with J. L. Weaver, agent for the Postal Telegraph building.

LEASE BROADWAY BUILDING.

Skeeles-Rockefeller, undertakers, have leased the property at 4523 Broadway for an undisclosed term, with an option of purchase. The building has been remodeled into a funeral chapel.

COURT FAVORS REALTY BONDS FOR SECURITY

Never Lost a Cent, Says Henry Horner.

Most heirs waste what they get unless it's invested in real estate, according to Nathan William MacChesney, general counsel for the National Association of Real Estate Boards. And other people share this view, points out the association, for the Probate court of Cook county, in charge of estates left to minors and insane persons, directs that much of such funds, amounting to millions of dollars yearly, be invested in real estate securities.

The law of most states protects minor children and persons mentally incompetent by requiring that their guardians or conservators apply to the courts of probate for permission to invest their estates; and the Probate court of Cook county, Illinois, the largest Probate court in the country, has placed properly secured real estate mortgages and bonds high on its list of approved investments, says the association in a recent lesson for property owners.

Safeguards Children and Insane.

Boys under 21 and girls under 18 who are heirs to or recipients of money must have guardians to administer their affairs, and insane people unable to manage their own estates must have "conservators"; but these managers must take their orders from the "bench."

For fifteen years Judge Henry Horner, presiding over the Probate court at Chicago, has permitted the estates of the young and the weak to be invested in only three classes of securities, as follows:

First: Real estate mortgages, notes or bonds where the real estate and its improvements are double the value of the bond issue or note indebtedness. In other words, if the bond issue on a certain project is $1,000,000 Judge Horner's appraisers require that the land and building on it are worth $2,000,000.

Millions Invested.

This Illinois court takes this precaution on behalf of its children and its incompetents to protect the investments made for them. No matter what happens to a real estate project, it is always worth half of its original value, says the Chicago judge, under whose jurisdiction millions of dollars in estates of minors and incompetents have been invested without the loss of a cent in principal or interest.

Second: United States government bonds.

Third: State or county bonds, and municipals of prosperous communities. Judge Horner will not approve an investment in a place with a house or two erected on a prairie which some promoter has called a village.

The second and third classifications of securities described above find favor with the court because, although interest rates are low, they are tax exempt under the federal income tax laws: and in very large estates this factor often offsets the smaller returns.

DUPEE ESTATE IN WISCONSIN IS PUT ON MARKET

Edgemoore, originally the estate of the late John Dupee, Chicago Board of Trade operator, on the shore of Lake La Belle, at Oconomowoc, Wis., and later owned by John D. Larkin of Buffalo, is being divided and put on the market under the name Edgemore estates. Owners of the property are Stanley C. Chadwick & Co. of Chicago and John F. Bluemm of the Bluemm-Swift Investment company of Milwaukee. The residence erected by Mr. Dupee on an island in the lake was one of the show summer residences of the middle west. It contains eighty-four rooms. The grounds on the mainland, which Mr. Dupee is said to have beautified at a cost of $500,000, are being divided into sixty-three summer home lots.

Lanathan Hosiery Company Leases Store in Oak Park

The Lanathan Hosiery company has leased from Cary E. De Butts the property at 117-19 Marion street, Oak Park, for fifteen years at an undisclosed rental. Alterations, including the installation of a new front, are expected to be finished early in August when the Lanathan company plans to open a lingerie and hosiery shop. Jack Carpenter of the George R. Hemingway Organization represented the lessor. Kaplan & Co. acted for the lessee.

FLAT BUILDING TO RISE AT 93D AND SAGINAW

Will Have 19 Apartments and 2 Stores.

Ronneberg, Inc., has drawn plans for an apartment building which Knute K. Ofstad proposes to erect at the northwest corner of Saginaw avenue and East 93d street, not far from the 92d and Commercial business district. The structure will be known as the Saginaw Court apartments.

The Saginaw Court will be three stories and English basement high. It will contain nineteen flats and two stores. Sixteen of the flats will be of four rooms and three will contain five rooms. All the four room flats will have the efficiency of five rooms by reason of disappearing beds.

The apartments will have the latest in equipment, including mechanical refrigeration.

Work is expected to get under way on the enterprise within thirty days and it is hoped to have the building ready for occupancy by Oct. 1. The building will occupy a lot fronting 125 feet on Saginaw and 61 feet on East 93d.

It is stated the project will represent an investment of $125,000. Ernest W. J. Hughes & Co. are underwriting an $85,000 bond issue.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

REAT OUTDOORS TAMED TO SERVE AS PART OF HOME

Garden Living Rooms Are Gaining in Favor.

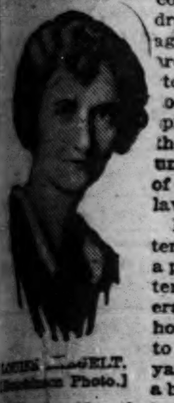
BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]

We are only beginning to discover the great out of doors. Europe discovered it hundreds of years ago. Our homes are no longer stopping at our doorways, but are spilling over into the sun drenched, unroofed spaces of our garden and lawn areas.



LOUISE BARGELT.

Now in the last ten years we have apparently entered on a new era; enlarged our home possibilities to include the yard and all available space we own besides that which the house stands upon.

Out of door living room schemes have appeared in which shade is given by tall trees, high shrubs, artistic fences and walls. All these offer besides shade that affords semi-privacy of the desired sort.

There are a number of additional ways of securing shade if one's land is new and not abundantly supplied with nature's sheltering, or of providing greater shade than that which we may already have.

To Beautify and Serve.

Garden architecture intended to beautify as well as to make the home grounds more livable is designed to suit all manner of homes and all sizes of purses.

Where a new home is being built or an old home modernized these architectural features may be installed, fashioned according to the architect's design or purchased from the many delightful varieties on stock.

PETER PAN.

There are also designing departments in connection with certain large manufacturing concerns which are available to assist in the development of garden architecture. So it is a simple and inexpensive matter to sally forth into one's gardens this summer and live there for many precious hours of each sunny day.

Could anything be more inviting than a comfortable steamer or wicker chair or stone seat with pillows, with perhaps an hourglass beside it, placed beneath the roofed shelter of a garden or summer house? Add to the vista a graceful grape arbor just beyond and low fence encircling all.

There are a number of spots around the average home which may be chosen for this out of door living room. One may decide on a simple flagstone terrace at a side or back door. Then one may select a place having an awning stretched over it for privacy, with a rose arbor seat and vases filled with flowers.

A TREE SEAT.

Away from Confusion.

Or again one may choose the far end of the lot, away from housekeeping confusions of any sort. There, beyond some vine covered entrance arch, one may have an arbor seat or summer cottage or pavilion or pagoda.

Of course, if one lives in a suburb or amid country environs with a gnarled old oak tree on the place, there is opportunity for grouping the living room architecture around this tree.

One can have a circular tree seat which is always ornamental and entices to the outdoors as a fireplace draws to the interior.

Besides that one can have a table. Naturally, it must be simple and weather resisting. Sometimes the plainest and most unfinished woods, if permitted to weather, will take a bluish grey tone and add a touch of rustic beauty to this garden living room. Old tables and chairs may be coated with waterproof paint and there are many handsome types of ready made chairs, benches and lawn seats, painted in ivory or white and designed especially to resist the onslaughts of weather conditions.

Besides the garden house, cottage rose arbor and so on, all ready to furnish shelter and enjoyment to the out of door lover, there are the gayly colorful garden umbrellas, shading a table and group of chairs. There are also couch hammocks and lawn sets for children in many different designs.

Other Pleasant Touches.

Where the budget allows there are numerous bits of stone work or terra cotta work which add enjoyable touches.

Terra cotta jugs, art stone bird baths, gazing globes, plant tubs, fountains, sun dial pedestals, and flower boxes all help to fulfill the garden's and lawn's present day mission—that of offering the family a charming place to look upon and an enjoyable place to live in. A place where the family can lounge in the afternoon and gather at tea time.

When the living room is extended into the out doors, space is usually included for the nursery or children's playground. Grown up furniture of all kinds and grown up architecture is being copied in diminutive form.

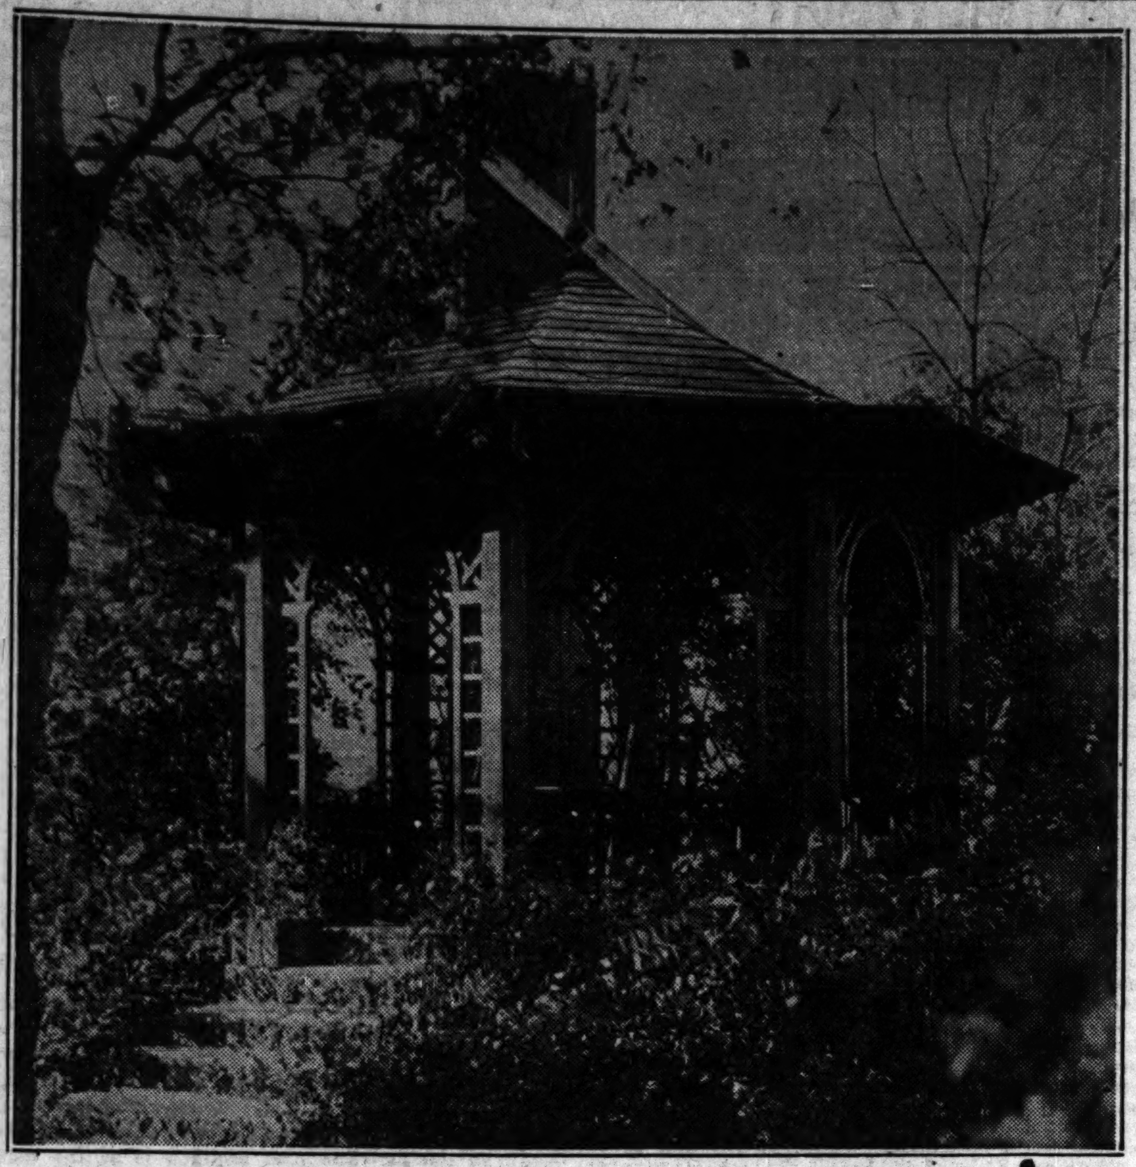
Real Play House.

The playground can have a real play house, always one of the first to be named of all children's amusements. These play houses are not unlike a grown up's garden house, with panels and pillars and seat and wood floor included if desired.

Where one does not wish to afford such a play house there are small portable houses for children. They are not unlike a portable screen, with clapboarded walls and windows and doors installed. Though it does not contain any real protection for the children because of the fact that the roof is not covered, it serves a year round purpose. It can be brought into the house in the fall and placed in basement, attic, or nursery for winter enjoyment.

There are also swinging seats and chaises longues with gay canopies and awnings for children, sand boxes with awning protection, deck chairs and swings, and slides. For grown ups and children—the grounds of a home can offer health and joy, sunshine and fresh air, for all the length of the summer months.

FOR REAL ENJOYMENT OF LIFE



Our homes no longer stop at our doorways, but are spilling over into the sun drenched spaces of our lawn areas. Could anything be more inviting than a garden house like this, with shrubbery and trees for its background, and offering to all the family members rustic inducement to a real enjoyment of the great outdoors?

NEW INSULATION BOARD MADE OF HARDWOOD FIBER

A new insulation board has lately been introduced, which may be used wherever insulation is required or sound deafening desired. This board, which has as its base southern hardwood fibers, may be stained or painted for interior or exterior use. It comes in various lengths. Its thickness is one-half inch and it measures four feet wide.

The arrangement of the hardwood fibers allows small air holes to exist throughout the board, and in this way not only can it resist heat and cold but absorb sound as well.

Incinerators Are Called Necessity for the Home

Incinerators have been described as being as "necessary for complete sanitation as the bathroom; as necessary for convenience as the laundry; as necessary for comfort as the heating plant."

Log Cabin Makes Cozy Retreat in All Weathers

Genuine log cabin construction, with field stone chimney, makes a cozy retreat for all kinds and conditions of weather.

A CHARMING FOUNTAIN

This charming little fountain would embellish any garden. It is only one of a myriad of objects—some inexpensive—with which one can decorate the grounds about his home.

Linoleum Floorings Offer Alternative to Hardwood

Linoleums, rubber tiling, and cork composition, in plain colors or marbleized effects and beautiful designs, are excellent floorings, offering attractive alternatives to hard woods in many styles of dining room.

Disappearing Stairs Help Make Attic Useful

The disappearing stair opens up lost space in the attic and makes possible, among other spring improvements, an extra room or two for all round year use.

Slat Porch Shades Give Protection to Furnishings

Porch shades of smooth velevty slats, easy to hang and to operate, are a protection to one's porch furnishings when summer rains pelt down from every direction.

FACE BRICK NOW CLAIMS COLOR OF FASHION EXHIBIT

Many Novel Effects Are on Market.

Face brick is offered today in hues and shades of colors which almost rival those seen on display at some modish fashion exhibit. Beginning with melting and lovely creams, buffs and grays and extending through pinks and reds, maroons, greens, and browns we come even to gunmetal blacks.

Dealers in face brick have developed ways by which they can show brick as it will actually appear on the walls of a house. For instance, some dealers use sizable panels of actual brick while others in the show rooms have walls of real brick with lighting systems so designed as to allow "daylight" to play on the brick at all times.

There are, of course, many different textures which play an important part in giving to the architecture of the home individuality and variety. Some home owners prefer ragged effects. Others prefer a smooth surface, equally and delightfully obtainable.

There are also many pleasing patterns which are employed in the bonding of brick. Pattern effects, which are particularly appealing to many persons, are obtained by laying part of the brick with an end exposed instead of all with a side out. Incidentally, the strength of the wall is increased in this way.

Any one interested or planning to build a new home this year will find a visit to one of these face brick display rooms an interesting and illuminating adventure.

Homes Now Installing Two or More Bathrooms

How our standards do move up! Now we see most houses of more than five rooms—and some five room homes—with an extra lavatory or toilet or shower or bathroom. And many a seven and eight room house today boasts three baths—and thinks nothing of it!

Give Thought to Awnings and Lawn Decorations

Consider your awnings and lawn decorations with care, for after all they should express your home's individuality, quite as definitely as do your interior decorations.

GAS IS SERVANT OF MANY USES IN HOUSE OF TODAY

Gives Heat on Chilly Day; Runs Icebox, Too.

BY HOMER GRANT.

In hundreds of remodeling jobs on old homes this summer as well as in the building of many more new homes, gas installations of many sorts will be seen. For there are many uses of gas in the home besides the increasingly popular use of gas for the central heating system.

In the mild weather of late spring and early fall gas heat of various sorts comes in play and is immensely comfortable without being expensive. This same "supplementary" gas heat is also much to be enjoyed in countless homes in sub-zero weather when the central heating system may be having its own troubles in keeping the temperature of the house up to seventy.

Among these supplementary forms of gas heat intended primarily for mild weather may be mentioned first the gas steam radiators. These radiators can be operated as separate units, being entirely self contained. Or they may be employed with a central heating plant. And even though connected with a central heating plant they may still be operated individually if only a room or two needs heat.

Radiant Gas Heater.

Right now is the kind of weather when a radiant gas heater is enjoyable in distributing warm heat rays night and morning. This type of heater may be called a successful offspring of its not so successful old parent, the gas log. For its elements assure complete combustion so it is absolutely safe and odorless.

Then, too, there are the gas fired space heaters, utterly self contained heating units which may be used to heat one or two rooms in houses or buildings where there is no central heating plant.

Now that the season of furnace heating is over, the need for water heating is imperative. This has been so successfully accomplished by the automatic gas heater that its advantages need scarcely be mentioned.

Cold from Heat.

As heat of various sorts and kinds is furnished by gas, so, paradoxically, automatic refrigeration is furnished by gas. The gas operated refrigerator works on the absorption principle, with ammonia, water and gas heat forming a continuous cycle of operation in which the ammonia absorbs the heat in the box, keeping it cold.

Gas as an aid to the home owner has penetrated practically every room in the modern home at the present time, and together with its twin marvel, electricity, is working night and day, the city and country over, to make a house a "real home" in every sense of the word.

Insulation Enables One to Save on Heating Costs

In considering the advantages of insulation relative to your new or remodeled home, it is well to remember that not only does insulation save in fuel bills but it also affords a saving in the original cost of your heating plant. A smaller boiler or furnace can be used in an insulated house than is possible in a home without such protection and when one is contemplating steam, vapor or hot water heating one can also save markedly in the amount of radiation required.

FARM AND GARDEN

NO ROOM FOR A GARDEN? PUT IT ON THE GARAGE

700 Acres Available in Chicago Roofs.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

It is estimated by a reclamation expert that at least 700 acres of space can be added to Chicago's back yard flower gardening area by using the roofs of garages throughout the city. R. J. Morfa's combination rock and water garden on the roof of a garage back of his apartment at 462 Briar place suggests a scheme of reclaiming hundreds of acres of gardens temporarily blotted out by garages being built at the rear of city homes and apartments.

Mrs. Morfa first conceived the idea of changing the blank graveled garage roof into a garden. That square of gravel became monotonous to Mrs. Morfa as she sat peering through her bedroom window at the top of the garage. Just as pictures or figures grew on the cloth she held in her hand, colorful gardens of different kinds took their place on the garage roof as Mrs. Morfa worked with her needle from day to day.

Landscape Gardener Summoned.

Then a landscape gardener was called in. He has made a garden that far surpasses any that Mrs. Morfa had imagined. What a picture! What a garden now to be seen from that bedroom window! Instead of the blank graveled roof that sent up intense heat waves during July and August there is a naturalistic rock garden in mist formed by spray that shoots out a canopy of water over the flowers and pool. Then on the roof sits a miniature barefooted boy wearing a blue coat, green pants and a brown hat fishing under a waterfall that empties into a small pool in the center of the garden. A celluloid duck as light as a feather floats around on the ripply pool, bobbing and nodding with every puff of the wind. And it isn't hard to imagine you hear croaks coming from the big frog on the shore opposite the barefooted boy.

Four tons of tufa rocks are heaped around the edges. Hundreds of rockery plants of nearly fifty different kinds are growing in the spaces between the rocks. The plants have been selected so that blossoms will open from week to week throughout the growing season. Sedum plants carpet the garden between the pool and the irregular border of porous rocks. Flagged stones are used on the lawn, forming a path around most of the pool.

The garden was started a few months ago and a few annuals have been used to help brighten up spots here and there while the rockery plants are becoming established.

Many Plants Used.

Below are the names of the plants used in the Morfa garden:

Calamithe, chrysanthemum artica, veronica incana, phlox amoene, menta regini, thymus coccineum, dianthus, phlox subulata, armeria, campanula carpatica, viola cornuta, silena shafta, heuchera sangunea, phlox amoena white, alpine aster, oxeye daisy, primula viris, irispumula blue, funkia alba, Siberian iris, ranunkelus plana, hemmoricalis, sedum sieboldi, sedum purperea, sedum middendorf, sedum stoloniferum, sedum acre [goldmoss], royal fern [3 to 5 feet], ostrich fern [2 to 5 feet], sempervivum, yucca philamentosa, hardy echeveria, spirea thunbergia, spirea froebelli, forsithia intermicha, sedum ewerri, miosotis, heliantheum flora, lisemachia and sedum for the lawn and juniper [large].

Ivy plants trail from pots hung at the two corners of the garage next to the apartment. Woodvines are used on the east side of the garage.

An eight inch steel beam is used under the roof of the garage to aid in holding up the extra weight. This is important where a rock garden is made on a garage roof.

Divided Into Two Units.

The Morfa rock garden is divided into two units, one on the top of the garage, 20 by 22 feet, and the other on the ground east of the garage. The ground unit is 13 by 25 feet. About six tons of tufa rock were used in making the latter rockery. A flagged stone walk leads from the back of the apartment between the garage and the rockery to the gate at the rear of the lot.

The roof garden is in full view of dozens of neighbors whose apartments overlook Pine Grove avenue, which ends at the Morfa garage.

The idea of building a flower garden on the roof of a garage can be carried out in various parts of the city. There are several types of gardens that can no doubt be used on the roofs of garages if conditions are made right for taking care of the plants.

FEWER SPRING PIGS FARROWED IN U. S., RURAL SURVEY SHOWS

Fewer hogs have been coming to market since the first of this year and the rural mail carriers' June survey indicates that the pig crop this spring is less than it was last year. But farmers are getting ready to increase the size of the fall pig crop.

The federal government's summary of the June 1 survey shows that for the United States there were 8.4 per cent fewer pigs saved this spring than a year ago. There was a 9.7 per cent decrease in the number of sows farrowed, but an increase of 17.8 per cent in the number of sows to be bred for fall farrowing.

The hog supply is expected to be smaller than a year ago, at least up to fall marketing time.

In the eleven corn belt states there is a decrease of 6.1 per cent in the pigs saved this spring compared with last spring. The sows farrowed were 7.7 per cent less than one year ago. There is an increase of 17.1 per cent in the number of sows to be bred for fall farrowing, according to the report.

MIDWEST CATTLE MEN WILL MEET IN IOWA JULY 30

Cattle men of Iowa will hold their annual feeders' day at the Iowa State college, Ames, Ia., on July 30. John M. Evvard in announcing the "Hey Day" event said that more than 100 test animals, mostly calves, will be ready to tell their story of the latest methods in beef cattle feeding by the end of July.

Comparisons will be made to give an idea of the profitableness of feeding calves as compared with yearlings and two years olds. Then some of the tests will show the relative profitableness in baby beef production where a limited grain ration is used and where the calves are put on full feed.

Mineral feed has been studied and will be emphasized on cattle feeders' day. Actual animals will be exhibited to show the effect of feeding bone meal, limestone, iron oxide, copper sulphate, potassium iodide and sodium bicarbonate.

Several selling experts from the Chicago market are planning to meet with the feeders and discuss the meat industry's situation.

This event is attended by 1,500 to 2,000 midwest farmers every year.

SORT CHICKENS WHEN THEY ARE TWO MONTHS OLD.

I have about 200 chickens hatched this spring and I would like to know when the cockerels should be separated from the pullets. H. O. O.

REPLY.

Poultry experts usually advise separating the cockerels and the pullets when they are from two to two and a half months old. Separating them at that age gives the pullets a much better chance to develop into good, healthy layers for winter egg production.

Often pullets need more room in the brooder house and taking out the cockerels is the most practical way to provide more space. With the cockerels out some poultrymen find it a good plan to keep the pullets in the brooders until it is time to put them in their laying quarters. Cockerels may be sold as broilers. Where they are kept for the breeding flock they should be housed and ranged away from the pullets.

HOW TO FIGHT HOG MANGE.

Recently my hogs have not been doing well. They go around rubbing the fences and scratching themselves. Red patches "break out" here and there on their legs. What is the cause of this? Could it be mange? If so, what should I do?—F. G. R.

REPLY.

Mange is likely causing the trouble. E. F. Ferrin of the animal husbandry department, University of Minnesota, recently issued a statement in which he said that hog mange has been increasing in your state [Minnesota]. He explained that mange is caused by parasites of microscopic size which burrow in the skin and produce a reddened thickened area with intense irritation. The skin between the legs and upon the lower part of the body is most often affected.

Perhaps this will enable you to determine whether your hogs have mange or not. Hogs that have mange rub and scratch themselves frequently.

Ferrin says it is difficult to eradicate but frequent dipping with lime and sulphur solution are effective. During the colder part of the year dipping is not possible. However, it is a mistake to neglect or suspend the fight against mange during this period because the winter season is the time when it progresses most. A mixture of seven parts flowers of sulphur and one part turpentine with enough light oil added to make the preparation sticky is an effective treatment during cold weather. By smearing this paste on the brood sows at several different times during the winter, mange may be controlled, according to Ferrin, who also emphasizes the importance of frequent and thorough cleaning and disinfection of hog houses and sheds to destroy the parasites.

FUNGUS MAY CAUSE CHERRY LEAVES TO DROP.

What could be causing the leaves on my cherry trees to turn yellow and fall off? K. A. N.

REPLY.

I can only make a guess at the cause of your cherry leaves dropping off the trees. It may be due to the work of leaf spot fungus. Experts recommend the use of lime sulphur for this trouble. The chemical is mixed at the rate of one gallon to forty gallons of water. Spray the trees the last time soon after the cherries have been picked.

Holstein Men to Meet in Illinois July 20

Black and white dairy cattle men will hold a field day meeting at R. V. Rasmussen's Elmwood farm, at the west edge of Lake Forest, Ill., on July 20, according to James B. Ball, field representative of the Illinois Holstein association. Dairymen from various parts of the country will attend.

A picnic will be held at the farm in connection with a special demonstration program which has been arranged to emphasize the value of a healthy herd, herd classification, show ring judging, and advanced registry testing. Various dairy authorities will discuss these subjects. The speakers include Axel Hansen, judge of the 1928 dairy show; Earl J. Cooper, and H. W. Norton of the National Holstein-Friesian association; Dr. Herbert Lothe, Waukesha, Wis., and H. W. Allyn, president of the Illinois Holstein association.

UNIVERSITY MEN DEFINE POLICY ON FERTILIZER

No Single Treatment for Sick Soils.

Farmers who keep a record of their production costs will go slow in investing money in fertilizing their soils to increase yields where they pay out more than they get back. On the other hand the wise farmer will buy fertilizer materials where they produce an increased yield at a cost that will return a profit.

Wit hthe soil fertility of the agricultural sections becoming depleted, fertilization takes a more important position in the farming field each year. Many farmers are seeking advice and ofter find themselves puzzled over the advisability of buying materials to use in enriching their soils. Helpful advice is given by the University of Illinois, whose soil experts recently defined the policy of that institution on the use of mixed fertilizers.

College Statement.

A statement issued by the college of agriculture men says that mixed commercial fertilizers no doubt may be used with profit in many instances, but it is just as certain that in many other cases their use would lead to financial losses. Their new publication, "Caring for the Fertility of Illinois Soils," defines the college's position on the general use of mixed commercial fertilizers in the light of recent developments. The college also outlines the underlying factors in permanent and profitable soil fertility.

Smith and Bauer of the college soil staff say that before farmers invest in mixed fertilizers they should carefully consider their costs. They announce that much more definite information than now exists with regard to the use of mixed commercial fertilizers under present day conditions is expected to come out of investigations which the experiment station at Urbana has under way.

These authorities say that the chief requirements for permanent and profitable soil fertility are adequate drainage, application of limestone where necessary, a good cropping system, including suitable legumes for soil improvement; provisions for organic matter by returning regularly animal and plant manures, and purchase of mineral plant food elements to supply deficiencies.

Tests Run for 30 Years.

Nearly thirty years ago the university started soil fertility investigations and it is upon the results of tests that the above basic principles have been worked out, serving as a guide in formulating what is known as the Illinois system of permanent soil fertility.

"The system does not, as is sometimes erroneously believed, definitely prescribe the application to the soil of certain specific fertilizing materials, none of which can be omitted or substituted for without a violation of the system," Smith and Bauer explain.

"There is no single system of treatment that will serve as a panacea for all soil ailments any more than there is a single remedy for all ills of mankind," the authors point out.

LONDON'S STOCK MART OUTLOOK STAYS CHILLY

Traders Experience Trying Week.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 29.—Another chilly and uncomfortable week has passed. The city has experienced one of the most trying sessions in months, very few optimists being about and plenty of pessimists.

Real stock market business has been negligible, both the insiders and the investing public being prone to hold aloof. And there are no signs of immediate better times, as most of the house talk is of a character calculated to check speculation, while an unusual number of dealers and brokers preferred to go on vacation rather than remain and be the receptacle for indiscriminate unloading from nervous holders.

One thing is clear, and that is that no sustained revival of speculative interest in the markets generally will develop until the monetary outlook is clearer. At present the situation is somewhat abnormal. In addition to the customary money stringency at the end of the half year the biggest disturbing factors continued in the heavy loss of gold, chiefly to Germany. The gold losses from the Bank of England in the last ten days total $37,-500,000. Thursday was featured by a shipment to America and Germany, this being the largest single day's withdrawal since England returned to the gold standard.

Creates New Fears.

The movement, combined with the fact that the sterling exchange remains weak not only in New York and Berlin but in other European centers as well, naturally created new fears concerning the position of the bank rate here. The influence which is creating the weakness in the sterling is attributed here to the fact that the German government has a $50,000,000 credit from American bankers of which a considerable portion, it is understood, will be transferred to Germany from London.

The placing of $15,000,000 worth of potash syndicate of Germany bonds on the London market recently may also have had a bearing on the exchange rate, while the end of the half year tends to emphasize the stringency in the chief centers of New York and Berlin. But relatively the Bank of England is said to be in a strong position and its gold stocks can be depleted by further large sums before real anxiety need be caused.

However, the position needs careful watching as at the present period of the year the sterling exchange usually tends to improve. With Thursday's gold withdrawal the gold holdings of the Bank of England were reduced to £157,402,518, about $763,-402,138, some £7,500,000 sterling, or about $36,375,000, higher than when the bank rate was raised, although this time last year the gold stocks stood at considerably over £172,000,-000 sterling.

Financial circles here in the meantime are indulging in considerable speculation and also hope concerning the governor of the Bank of England, Montagu Norman, and his impending return visit to New York. It is generally understood that the governor is on a vacation, but previous vacations of this kind have not always been devoid of important results. Some quarters insist that Mr. Norman's mission is to confer with the federal reserve authorities and also deal with the question of international gold movements.

Better at Close.

The markets closed the week slightly better with Friday's rally in the New York exchange and a consequent slight recovery of prices in the gilt edged securities from earlier low levels. The financial improvement is ascribed to the credit situation there and the fact that requests are no longer being made to the federal reserve board to increase the rediscount rate before the crop moving period.

With all of the above adverse factors it is not surprising that the gilt edged market and the British funds especially should have showed rather marked weakness with a pressure to sell and forced liquidation from quarters having to meet big differences in more speculative sections.

Four and a half treasury bonds were quoted a shade over 96 and are more than 3 points below the issue price when the loan was floated earlier in the year. Little of interest transpired in the foreign bond section, but the German issues were steadier following the $50,000,000 credit from the United States. Mexican bonds reflected some support from Wall street on the reported settlement of the religious struggle in Mexico and it is believed here that American interests will now be able to proceed to a debt settlement and a reorganization scheme.

PARIS BOURSE DEPRESSED

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 29.—Apprehensions of possible international complications resulting from the French chamber's insistence that the government ask Washington to postpone the due date of the war stocks resulted in new serious depression of the Paris bourse Friday after an unsettled week.

Heavy losses were taken all along the line. Rentes was unable to resist the general bad humor any more than other values.

There were a few timid buying orders during the week. A number of the favorite securities reached the lowest quotations known this year. Rentes, banking and other leading securities which have been giving way slowly all week took a sudden tumble in Friday's excitement following the chamber's debate on debts.

Tin Enables Silk Finisher to Prosper

BY SCRUTATOR.

Many a woman who believes she is dressed in silks and satins is really 40 per cent clothed in tin.

According to J. S. Ackerman of New York, who is interested in getting several of the leading cloth finishing concerns together in a merger, the weighting of silk, introduced into the United States on a commercial basis only eight years ago, has been one of the principal factors in increasing consumption of raw silks, principally because it has brought the price of silken fabrics to a point where they can be sold in dresses for $10 and $15 each.

As he explains it, the process of dipping a thin silk in a bichloride of tin solution and getting out something that has the draping qualities, beauty, and feel of the real article, with a weight nearly doubled, has brought prosperity to the finishing industry. Efforts to accomplish the same results by weighting silk with lead, he adds, have not been quite so successful. The attempt was made because lead is cheaper than tin.

Too Much Is Harmful.

The wide use of the fabrics thus treated has brought about an interesting situation, with the finishers and dress cutters as opponents. Some firms, it is said, have carried the proportion of metal in cloth too far. It doesn't dull the scissors, or anything like that, but the cutters claim that it tears more easily when the tin content is raised too far. Conferences have been held at which efforts were made to set definite standards for amounts of metal and silk in the mixtures.

Silk is but one of the fabrics treated by the finishing companies. Cotton, rayon, and celanese also are handled in enormous quantities, although their low cost makes it uneconomical to use any metal process. Washing, dyeing, and printing comprise the things done to the naturally colored or white cloths sent to the finishing plants from the looms of the manufacturers.

The finishing industry has apparently been able to show better profits than other textile activities. This is due in large part to the fact that it has eliminated a good part of the risks attendant on fluctuating price levels. Of all printed goods, whether cotton, synthetic or silk, 85 per cent is reported as passing through the hands of independent finishers, as against 15 per cent finished in the plants of companies that are engaged primarily in loom work. But the finishers do not merchandise as a rule. Instead they accept the work on a contract basis, avoiding the necessity of purchasing and selling the fabrics.

As patrons they also have some of the larger wholesale dry goods concerns, which prefer to buy their cloth and have it made up in patterns that are exclusive. The highly technical nature of the weighting, dyeing, and printing and the necessity of subdividing the work among factories which make a specialty of some particular part is said to have prevented the weaving concerns from trying to carry it out themselves.

Located in New Jersey.

Finishing plants are concentrated pretty largely in New Jersey, although the factories they serve are in various parts of the country. The presence of a skilled working force there and the added advantage of soft water supplies are given as reasons for this. New York's predominance as a market for dress fabrics gives the finishing plants an outlet with small transportation charges involved.

The rise of the rayon industry has been commented on frequently in recent years. With all of rayon's good qualities, the silk people with the aid of chemical science have held up their end in the race. In the five year period 1923-1927 raw silk imports to this country rose from fifty million to seventy-four million pounds annually. A good part of that record probably should be attributed to the benign influence of the tin in milady's dress.

New York, June 29.—Utility stocks continued to soar on the curb exchange today as reports of impending mergers are persisted. Trading in the shares of companies of the Insull and Morgan groups was particularly brisk.

Elsewhere in the list operations were dull and price movements uneven as a result of week-end selling. Insull company stocks held the limelight in the utilities division on rumors that a consolidation of properties of this group is imminent.

Commonwealth Edison, an Insull property, which spurted 14 points yesterday, extended its gains nine points today. Middle West Utilities, a large Insull holding company, soared rapidly to record prices. Reports in Wall street and Chicago credit the Insull interests with plans for a huge consolidation, possibly taking in the North American properties.

Commonwealth and Southern corporation, the chief contributor to the curb's record turnover yesterday, again was bought in big blocks, opening on a block of 85,000 shares at 28, unchanged, and gained fractionally before it reacted a little under realizing. It closed at 28.

INSULL DENIES PLAN TO UNITE CHAIN UTILITIES

But Issues Continue to Advance.

Reports circulated in the Chicago and New York financial districts of an impending merger of the Middle West Utilities and North American companies were emphatically denied yesterday by Samuel Insull, chairman of Middle West Utilities and head of the Insull chain of public utilities. Mr. Insull returned from New York and immediately put a damper on talk of a "two billion dollar merger."

"There have been and are no negogiations for such a merger," he said. "It is practically impossible for such a consolidation to take place. The reports are absolute stock market rubbish but they do much harm by encouraging people to speculate in stocks of companies with which I am identified. And then when the speculators lose their money, I am blamed. The Middle West Utilities company is going about its business and isn't concerned with consolidations with any other company or group."

Insull Stocks Advance.

Shares of the Insull companies again were conspicuously strong in the Chicago stock market yesterday. Middle West Utilities soared 11¼ points to a new peak at 215 on a turnover exceeding 7,000 shares. Commonwealth Edison jumped 6 points to 278, also a new peak, while Insull Utilities Investment made a new top at 54 and then eased to 51½, where it showed a net gain of 4¼ points on the day. Its turnover exceeded 19,000 shares.

In general, the Chicago market experienced one of the most brisk Saturday sessions in many weeks. Total transactions for the two hour session exceeded 100,000 shares.

Bendix Aviation improved 1⅜. Vincent Bendix last night announced the acquisition by Bendix Aviation of the Pioneer Instrument company of Brooklyn, N. Y. The firm is one of the largest manufacturers of aviation instruments in the country. The products of the company include an earth inductor compass, bank and turn indicators, magnetic compass, altimeters, and other accessories. The acquisition will be accomplished through an exchange of stock. Charles H. Colvin, general manager of the Pioneer company, will become a director of Bendix Aviation. The Pioneer company is ten years old and was one of the first to enter the aviation instrument field. It has offices in several foreign cities.

Gains in Radio List.

Ainsworth Manufacturing was up two points. Rights offered to stockholders in connection with the purchase of the Joseph M. Smith company are worth about $2.66 a share based on the closing price Friday. The Smith firm manufactures windshields, mouldings and various other automobile accessories. C. G. Selden and F. E. Brown Sr., officers of the company, with remain with the new firm. Ainsworth shareholders will be given the right to subscribe to an additional share of Ainsworth at $40 a share for each share now held. Rights will expire July 25.

Most of the radios were moderately higher. Sonatron dropped 1½ points under profit taking. Grigsby Grunow, Steinite, Wextark, Zenith and U. S. Radio each netted gains ranging from one to three points. Art Metal and Chicago corporation issues were strong in the general list and Poor & Co. was fractionally higher.

No public offering will be made of either the class A or B stock of American Cirrus Engines, which was recently acquired by Allied Motor Industries, according to an announcement yesterday by William R. Wilson, president of Allied Industries. Stockholders of Allied and its two subsidiaries, Great Lakes Aircraft and Van Sicklen corporation, will be offered the right to purchase one unit of American Cirrus for each share now held. Only class A stockholders of Great Lakes and Van Sicklen are included in the offer.

PRICES RULE HIGHER IN ABBREVIATED N. Y. BOND MART TRADING

(New York bond list page 8.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—Prices ruled mostly higher in the convertible bond division of today's market. Trading slowed up all along the line due in part to the absence of many speculators on week-end holidays. The week closed with all records for volume of stock privilege issues exceeded and with most of the securities of that classification in new high territory.

American Telephone and Telegraph 4½s, outstanding during the week, became less active, although more than $1,500,000 par value changed hands. Trading in this issue reached unprecedented proportions this week as the result of the designation of Monday for the expiration of the rights.

A new high price was recorded today in Anaconda convertible 7s which have experienced little trading for weeks. The issue jumped six points on a few sales. Other convertibles in demand were Atchison 4½s and International Telephone and Telegraph 4½s.

The investment market continued without attracting attention, although prices are slightly higher as the result of the easing trend in the time money market.

CHASE NATIONAL, EXPRESS MERGER EFFECTIVE TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—The plan for affiliation of the Chase National bank, the Chase Securities company and the American Express company become formally effective today. With the receipt of $83,875,000 from stockholders in payment for additional shares and the issuance of new stock in exchange for American Express company shares, the Chase bank and the Chase Securities corporation together will have approximately $298,000,000 in capital, surplus and undivided profits.

The Chase National bank and its securities affiliate will both have outstanding 4,000,000 shares of capital stock. Giving effect to the five for one split up the shares of the bank are reduced from $100 par value to $20 par value while the shares of the securities company will have no par value.

Capital funds of the Chase institutions will be further increased next month when action is taken on the proposed merger with the National Prk bank and its security affiliate, the Park Banc corporation. The enlarged organization will then have capital funds exceeding $340,000,000.

Will Resume Chain Merger Negotiations in September

New York, June 29.—(AP)—A. H. Neisner, president of Neisner Brothers of Rochester, N. Y., announces that negotiations for the merger of several chain stores including Neisner, F. & W. Grand and others have been temporarily abandoned, but will be resumed in September when he returns from an inspection of Neisner's European stores.

Offerings of Bond Issues Remain Heavy

New York, June 29.—Although total offerings of new issues of bonds this week did not eclipse last week's aggregate, which was the second largest weekly total for the year, it did top the $100,000,000 mark which has only been exceeded eight times this year. The week's total stands at $104,835,-000 against $140,396,000 last week and compares with $61,902,500 during the corresponding week last year.

As was the case last week, foreign financing made up the bulk of the new offerings. Encouraged by the success of the $40,000,000 Canadian National Railway company issue last week, the same banking group, headed by Dillon, Read & Co., brought out an additional issue of $20,000,000 of the same bonds at the original price. Another group placed on the market an issue of $30,000,000 Canadian Pacific Railway five per cent equipment trust certificates, the largest equipment trust issue ever brought out by a Canadian carrier.

Another important foreign loan marketed this week was that of $20,000,-000 Mortgage Bank of Chile 6s, priced at 92, to yield 6.60 per cent. An issue of $10,000,000 6s of Simpson, Ltd., the Canadian department store chain, with headquarters in Toronto, and an issue of $6,000,000 State of Rio de Janeiro Brazil 6½s completed the week's list of foreign issues.

As usual the largest number of individual issues marketed occurred in the state and municipal group, a total of ten, ranging in size from the issue of $3,000,000 State of Illinois fours to $155,000 Hempstead, N. Y., Union Free School District No. 28 5½s.

REPORT MERGER NEAR OF DEP'T STORES IN EAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—Negotiations for the merger of two of America's largest and best known department stores—R. H. Macy & Co. of New York, and L. Bamberger & Co. of Newark—have practically been completed.

The Macy company, it is understood, will purchase the Bamberger concern. Reports of the negotiations were confirmed by Bamberger officials, who said that Louis Bamberger was attending a luncheon conference today regarding the deal with Jesse Strauss, president of the Macy company.

The Bamberger store was founded in 1893 and at the present time is housed in a new fourteen story block square building in Newark. It employes some 3,500 persons, and its net sales for the year 1928 were nearly $34,000,000. Macy's was founded in 1858 by the late Rowland H. Macy. Its sales for the year ending in February, 1929, totaled nearly $100,000,000.

St. Regis Paper Company Considers Stock Split-up

New York, June 29.—Plans for capital adjustment of the St. Regis Paper company, involving the issuance of some additional stock to shareholders on a basis that would make for valuable subscription rights, are nearing completion, according to reports current in Wall street circles. The plan, it is said, calls for a split-up of the present stock on a four for one basis, and the offering of new stock at $25 a share to stockholders for subscription. While, of course, the basis on which the offering will be made was not known it was expected the ratio would probably be one new share for each four shares held. It is estimated that the company will earn between $13 and $14 a share on the common stock this year.

Little Change Is Noted in Business Failures

New York, June 29.—The number of business failures in the United States this week as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., varies slightly from those of the last two weeks. There were 425 reported this week, 427 last week, and 426 two weeks ago. The number reported for the corresponding week last year was 423.

New York, June 29.—(AP)—The Commercial Credit company of Baltimore has contracted with the Packard Motor Car company to finance retail sales for Packard distributors and dealers, effective July 1. It is estimated that the contract will bring to Commercial Credit a volume exceeding $20,000,000 annually.

BIG AIR MERGER WHETS BLADE OF COMPETITION

Research Is Keynote for Future.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—Formation of the $170,000,000 Curtiss-Wright corporation, uniting a dozen aircraft manufacturing and distributing organizations, brings to the fore a new and keen form of competition in the industry and will result in drastic realignment of the chief aeronautical companies, aviation executives believe.

Competition between the leaders in the industry will not take the conventional form of price cutting or underselling for the present, it is said. The struggle will be rather in the novel form of a race of research between forces of engineers, chemists and scientists employed by the companies to evolve aeronautical products superior to those of their rivals.

Experiments Expensive.

Richard F. Hoyt, chairman of the Wright Aeronautical corporation, and C. M. Keys, president of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor company, declare that the most important result of the merger is the prospect which it affords of greatly expanded research work. Experimental work in aviation is extremely expensive and by distributing the cost among the units of a huge holding company much more can be undertaken, Mr. Keys explained, than if each subsidiary worked separately on its own problems and paid for the research work alone.

In serving notice on the aviation industry that the Curtiss-Wright corporation would embark on an ambitious experimental program aimed at rendering obsolete the present aeronautical equipment, executives of the company are merely accepting the gage of battle thrown down by their chief rivals. When the contest is over, it is conceded, many small concerns will have been wiped out and some of the larger ones will have lost ground, but the public will be the gainer, through its possession of vastly improved flying equipment.

A warning of struggle in the industry was served by the recent tests of the Packard Diesel engine. While aeronautical experts do not agree on the conclusiveness of these tests, it is regarded as significant that many airplane engine builders are experimenting with Diesel engines.

Compact Alignment.

The problem of competition through expanded research work is only one of the questions which was raised by the Hoyt-Keys merger. The merger movement in the aviation industry has been greatly stimulated by the formation of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, it is believed. Hitherto the Hoyt and Keys interests have favored a loose type of grouping in which their companies have been affiliated by owner-

4 Companies Capable of Indefinite Expansion?

WE have been referring constantly to the long pull possibilities of certain companies. Sometimes in the vicissitudes of the stock market, investors lose sight of the possibilities in individual securities. While this year the stock market has been backing and filling in a twenty-five point level, some stocks have been continuously in a bull market. A feature of this year's markets has been its selectivity. Substantial rewards have come to the investor who has had the courage and the foresight to place his funds in certain stocks and then to hold them regardless of temporary fluctuations or the ups and downs of the stock market.

An outstanding example of this sort of thing has been General Electric's sweeping advance.

General Electric is the type of stock which will probably advance steadily over the years, because it represents the great development and progress in what has become one of the greatest of our industries.

There are other companies which are in almost the same position as General Electric. We have constantly referred to them this year and have advised clients to take advantage of market weakness to acquire these securities and then to hold them for the long pull.

Such companies are outlined in the latest issue of our bulletins which will be sent free upon request to interested investors.

MOVE MILLIONS IN LOOP TO FORM BIG BANK MERGER

In preparation for the actual merger of the National Bank of the Republic and the Chicago Trust company, which becomes effective tomorrow, more than $325,000,000 in coin, currency, and securities will be moved this morning under heavy police guard between quarters of the two institutions. The stockholders of both banks formally approved the consolidation yesterday.

As the quarters of both banks will continue to be used, a double movement of money and securities was necessary. All commercial divisions of the Chicago Trust company, the bank and bankers' division, and the bond department were transferred to the National Bank of the Republic. This involved transfer of $75,000,000. The trust department of the National Bank of the Republic was moved to the Chicago Trust building, resulting in moving of $250,000,000 in securities.

As a result of the combination the National Bank of the Republic becomes the third largest bank in Chicago, with resources in excess of $200,000,000.

New York, June 29.—With speculative enthusiasm fired by rumors of further big mergers in the public utility field, the stock market surged forward today in one of the most active week-end sessions in several months. The utilities, rails, rubbers, and some of the specialties were the big show and a number of them hit new peak prices.

While trading was more quiet in the general list, the strength of the leaders gave the whole market a good undertone and the usual week-end profit taking was readily absorbed. Such selling was moderate, as many traders were willing to carry their stocks over into next week in the belief that money rates will turn easier and that no reaction of any consequence is imminent.

Tenor of Reviews.

Cheerfulness also was inspired by the tenor of the weekly mercantile reviews, which referred to increasing activity in some lines of industry and the generally favorable trade situation, although still carrying modified estimates of agricultural purchasing power. So the volume of stock trading swelled to total transactions of 1,994,300 shares, or at the rate of nearly 5,000,000 shares for a full five hour session.

In the utility group American Telephone soared 7⅝ points to a new peak at 234¼ since the rights to subscribe to the new bonds expired. The top price before the rights came off was 238½. International Telephone jumped six points and net gains running from two to five points were established by American and Foreign Power, American International, American Power and Light, American Republics, American Water Works, Brooklyn Union Gas, Columbia Gas and Electric, Detroit Edison, General Public Service, North American, Pacific Telephone, Philadelphia company, Public Service of New Jersey, Southern California Edison, and Standard Gas and Electric. But Peoples Gas reverted several points following its rise of 25 points yesterday.

Rail Groups Climb.

WHEAT MAKES FURTHER GAINS; CORN STEADY

Oats Irregular; Rye Prices Register Advance.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Continued bullish reports regarding the outlook for the spring wheat crop brought in general commission house and local buying yesterday which lifted prices here around 3c from the finish of Friday and about 6c over the opening figures of that day. Heavy profit taking as the result of the sensational advance caused a moderate recession from the top, but the close was at net gains of 1⅝@2c with July, $1.15@1.15⅛; September, $1.20½@1.20⅝, and December, $1.26@1.26⅛. Winnipeg was 2⅝@2¾c higher.

Corn was firm early, but eased later and closed unchanged to ½c higher with July, 92⅝@92¾c; September, 94⅝@94¾c, and December, 92@92⅛c. Oats were ⅜c lower to ⅝c higher with July, 43⅛c; September, 44@44⅛c, and December, 47c. Rye gained ⅛@½c for the day with July, 88¼c; September, 93½c, and December, 98⅜c.

Grain markets showed considerable activity during the last week, and while there was a sharp break from the early high there was a strong rally toward the last with wheat 1⅛@2¼c higher for the week. Corn, however, was unsettled and finished ½c lower on July, and 1@1⅜c higher on the deferred futures, while oats were unchanged to 1⅜c lower, and rye was ⅝@2⅜c higher. Lard finished unchanged to 2½c lower; ribs, 30@32½c higher, and bellies, 10@15c higher for the week.

Expect Bullish Reports.

Wheat traders generally have given up hopes of even a moderate crop in North America, and Allan M. Clement of Curtis & Co. was out with a statement claiming that reports suggested a decrease of 225,000,000 bu in the yield as compared with last year. The trade took this as indicating Murray's report next Tuesday would be decidedly bullish. Taken as a whole reports from both the American and spring wheat areas were bullish during the day, and the forecast indicated generally fair weather over the weekend.

Weather conditions in the southwest continue to favor harvesting and thrashing of wheat with very irregular yields shown in Kansas. The crest of the Oklahoma movement is expected to be witnessed within about 10 days. Complaints regarding the outlook in Nebraska were received during the day, while hot winds were reported in Montana, and some damage was feared.

Liverpool showed considerable activity and advanced 3⅛@3⅜d, showing much more strength than due, with shorts nervous. Export demand at the seaboard was slow, with sales of 800,000 to 900,000 bu in all positions, and there were some sales of hard winter at the gulf; they were largely to fill the Greek order.

Corn Closes at Bottom.

Strength in wheat had some effect on corn early, but profit taking developed and the close was at the bottom with the December gaining fractionally on the September. Country offerings were fair with purchases of 105,000 bu to arrive, while the eastern demand was rather slow. Weather conditions over the belt were generally favorable for the crop, but the latter is generally reported as decidedly spotted. There was some selling of July against purchases of the deferred

Liquidation developed in July oats and prices declined sharply, causing a sharp dip in the deferred futures, but the latter rallied and closed fractionally higher with the July-September spread widening ⅝@⅞c at the last. Dry weather reports continue to come from the northwest.

Selling of rye against purchases of other grains to close spreads caused a reaction in the former. Trade was not large. J. E. Bennett & Co.'s report suggested a crop of 41,400,000 bu, against 43,633,000 bu last year.

COTTON PRICES DECLINE

Beneficial rains in the southwest, where little moisture had been received in recent weeks, influenced the course of prices on the cotton exchange today and final quotations showed a loss of 9 to 18 points. With a forecast for fair weather in Atlantic states over Sunday in addition, the market came under more selling pressure than in several days, although trading as a whole continued to be light.

With a slightly lower range of prices in Liverpool and private reports of overnight rains in the southwest, selling orders appeared at the opening, particularly in the January and March positions. During the recent July liquidation October was depressed in sympathy with the old crop delivery, going to a discount of 28 points under December at one time last week. Swapping operations narrowed the spread to 21 points, while October held within 3 points of the 18½ cent level.

Closing trades were about the bottom with prices here unchanged to 5 points lower. New Orleans finished 9@12 points lower and New York off 9@21 points. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat market continues to be regarded by a majority of operators as a weather affair, and with drought reports coming from the four leading exporting countries, and estimates on the prospective yields being steadily lower there is a growing feeling that higher prices will be seen utimately. However, very erratic price changes may be witnessed, as is usually the case in weather markets. Numerous sharp reactions due to profit taking are likely, but as many observers see it, the damage to the North American spring wheat is already a fact, and no amount of moisture will change this condition materially.

Private cables from abroad indicated that foreigners were showing considerable nervousness over the character of the crop reports on wheat from the leading exporting countries.

No general breaking of the drought in the American northwest was indicated by the weekly weather forecast which suggested local showers or thunderstorms the latter part of the week.

Germany has increased import duty on wheat equal to 10c per bu, effective July 10.

CASH HOUSES BUY PRODUCT

Buying of lard by local interests and houses with eastern connections resulted in a somewhat higher range of values yesterday, the strength in grains having some effect. There was scattered liquidation in the July delivery, with offerings of the latter absorbed by warehouse and cash interests, with the deferred deliveries sold as a hedge. Lard finished unchanged to 2½c higher, while bellies were dull and unchanged to 2½c higher. Ribs were 7½@15c higher for the day. Liverpool lard closed unchanged to 3d higher. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date aggregated 2,092,000, against 2,231,000 last year. Prices follow:

SAYS RAILWAYS HAVE ATTAINED HIGH EFFICIENCY

Improvements in methods of operation and betterments in mechanical equipment have raised the railroads of this country to the highest point of efficiency in their history, a report on locomotive operation before the mechanical division of the American Railway association states. Several items indicate this development. It was shown that while the volume of freight service increased 21 per cent in 1928 over 1920, the total number of active locomotives has been declining. Train speed was 25 per cent greater in 1928 than in 1920. Fuel consumption was reduced 12 per cent.

WALL ST. STOCKS SURGE AHEAD IN SHORT SESSION

Utility Merger Rumors Enthuse Traders.

the preferred mounted three points. Net gains ranging up to several points also were recorded by Chesapeake corporation, Chesapeake and Ohio, Northwestern, Delaware and Hudson, Kansas City Southern, New York Central, Pere Marquette, and St. Louis and San Francisco. On the other hand, Colorado and Southern, Erie, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and St. Louis Southwestern were lower.

The rubber group was buoyed up by a rise of 4¾ points in Goodyear and a two point gain in Goodrich. The standard industrials were moderately strong, with United States Steel, Allied Chemical and DuPont gaining a point or more. In the copper group, Greene Cananea jumped more than six points and smaller gains were made by American Smelting, Calumet & Hecla, Cerro de Pasco and Granby. But National Lead was off a point.

Among Specialties.

Among the specialties, Abraham & Straus performed spectacularly, soaring 13½ points, and Macy was a close second with a jump of 12⅞ points. Otis Elevator and Westinghouse Electric mounted 8 and 7½ points respectively, while net gains ranging up to several points were made by Allis Chalmers, Burroughs Adding Machine, Columbia Carbon, Commercial Investment Trust, General Cables A, International Business Machines, Liquid Carbonic, Newport Company and Underwood-Elliott. But American Bank Note, Case Threshing and Motor Products dropped five points or so.

In the general industrial list, sizeable gains also were recorded by American Bosch Magneto, American Home Products, American Rolling Mills, Barker Brothers, Bendix Aviation, Childs, Coca Cola, Columbia Graphophone, Commercial Credit, Davison Chemical, Dominion Stores, Eaton Axle, Electric Autolite, Fairbanks-Morse, General American Tank, the Keith-Albee issues, Kimberly-Clark, the Kinney issues, Lehigh Portland Cement, Lima Locomotive, Mengel, Mexican Seaboard, Michigan Steel, National Bellas-Hess, Park & Tilford, Penick & Ford, Remington-Rand and Sears Roebuck.

Busiest Six Months.

Losses of a point or two were incurred by the American Tobacco issues, Archer Daniels, Auburn Auto, Borden, By-Products Coke, Central Aguirre Sugar, Congress Cigars, Curtiss Aero, International Ink, Marmon Motors, National Biscuit, National Cash Register, Reynolds Tobacco, United Aircraft, and Warren Brothers.

With public interest in the market showing no sign of abating the New York stock exchange and the New York curb today rounded out the busiest half year period in their history. Transactions on the stock exchange in the first six months totaled 537,865,790, or at the rate of more than one billion shares a year, while on the curb the turnover was 207,882,034 shares.

Brokers in Wall street were predicting today that the billion share mark will be reached on the "big board" before Dec. 1 and that the curb's volume for the year will be close to 500,000,000 shares. The half year ended with the curb establishing a new high record for a Saturday of 1,564,600 shares. On the day before this exchange had set a new high for all time, 3,304,500 shares.

NORMAN MAY RETURN AGAIN TO TALK CREDIT

LONDON, June 29.—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, is contemplating an early visit to New York. The object of his trip is not stated but it is said that both the Bank of England and the British treasury are much worried about the continued flow of gold to New York. So far the Bank of England's reserve has not been dangerously affected, but it may be at any time, as the fluid reserve of gold over the requirements to guarantee the note issue is really very small.

The bank is also alarmed at the recent tendency of private capitalists to transfer their holdings from pounds to dollars, and this is said to have become slightly more marked since the advent of the Labor government.

Since Mr. Norman's failure on his last visit to America to secure a renewal of the late Benjamin Strong's policy of unvarying support of the Bank of England when he was governor of the Federal Reserve bank at New York, there has been much uneasiness about the tendency of the American money market, and the recent high price of money in New York has caused genuine alarm.

WABASH READY TO ASK TRUNK LINE TOMORROW

The application of the Wabash railway to form an eastern trunk line through the acquisition of other railroads, and of which the Wabash would be the nucleus, is ready to be presented to the interstate commerce commission Monday, according to announcement by William H. Williams, chairman of the Wabash board.

The proposal calls for the acquisition either by lease or the purchase of stock of the Lehigh Valley, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Western Maryland, Lehigh and New England, Akron, Canton and Youngstown; Elgin, Joliet and Eastern; Toledo, Peoria and Western, and Chicago and Illinois Midland roads.

International Projector Corp. Plans Consolidation

New York, June 29.—(AP)—Negotiations are understood to have been practically completed for the merger with the International Projector corporation of several other companies in the industry, the names of which have not been revealed.

GUARDIAN TRUST FOR INVESTMENT PAYS 1% INITIAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—Directors of Wilson Line, Inc., of Wilmington, Del., have declared an initial semi-annual dividend of $3.50 a share on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock.

An initial dividend of 1 per cent on the common stock of the Guardian Investment trust has been declared by the directors. This is in addition to the regular quarterly dividends of 37½ cents declared on the cumulative preferred and the convertible preferred stocks.

The Public Investment company has declared an initial quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock. The company was recently organized by Frederick Peirce & Co.

Directors of the International Projection corporation have voted to defer the dividend payment due at this time on the common stock. The stock was split five for one last May. The old common stock paid 25 cents a share quarterly. The directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred.

Armour Review Finds Lighter Meat Demand

Armour & Co. in its review of general packing house trade conditions, says: "With the continuance of warm weather the fresh meat business on the whole tended to be slow, with demand light, while smoked and ready to serve meats not only were in better current demand but also benefited in anticipation of the coming holiday. Continued light demand for beef forced a reduction in prices both of dressed beef and of live cattle. Fresh pork markets averaged only fair with big eastern centers tending to be lower than the middle west. Dressed lamb trade was slow in spite of rather light supplies, because of the extreme slackness of demand, and prices worked lower. Veal trade was moderate in volume at mostly easier prices. Export business for the week was good.

We Do Not Suggest Investments or Predict the Market's Course.

"We do not predict the course of the market."

That sentence has been appended to thousands of letters sent by THE TRIBUNE Investors' Guide in answer to inquiries.

It means just this: THE TRIBUNE Investors' Guide is not a tipster service. The department was established to provide distinterested advice and information for investors, not to indulge in palmistry, star-reading, or crystal-gazing.

The information dispensed is the most accurate available. It consists of facts in so far as they are obtainable. Where such facts are not obtainable we say so. We do not guess.

If we say that a stock is high grade we mean that it occupies a high position as an investment, that the financial structure of the issuing company is strong, that the stock is well fortified by earnings, that it has had a good record in the past. We do not mean that the market price for this stock is going up.

No one can accurately predict the course of the market. Many attempt to do so, but the best of them go wrong—often. In the long run a guess concerning the future market price of any stock has about a fifty-fifty chance of being right.

There is one other thing that we specifically refuse to do. We do not suggest securities for investment. THE TRIBUNE Investors' Guide has nothing to sell. It boosts no pet securities. It has no ax to grind.

This department has a fourteen-year record of disinterested service to the public. We guard that reputation jealously.

Many inquirers write asking that we suggest high grade stocks or sound bonds for purchase. Some even state in their letters that they will buy whatever securities we suggest.

We appreciate the confidence inferred in these requests, but we cannot comply with such petitions. To all who make them we say: "Go to any reputable investment house and ask them to suggest a number of high grade investments. Then, if you will send us the names of two or three of the securities which they suggest, we shall be glad to give you our opinion of them."

In abandoning this form of grouping and adopting the compact alignment of a holding company for their interests, Mr. Hoyt and Mr. Keys are following the lead of the United Aircraft and Transport corporation and the Aviation Corporation of Delaware. Both of these companies, formed early this year, are large holding companies affording diversification of output as well as many economies in management, distribution and research.

While it is admitted that the formation of these huge companies will hasten the end of weak independent units, the ability of well managed independent companies to survive is not questioned. The situation is said to be analogous to the one prevailing in the automobile industry where many independent companies headed by good engineers have maintained their positions successfully.

Curing Congestion

Almost every main highway leading out of Chicago is inadequate to bear the traffic strain of a pleasant Sunday...... The Tribune has advocated wider roads out of Chicago. In several instances, where roads have been widened, traffic congestion has been noticeably lessened. ... The Tribune will continue to work for broader highways.

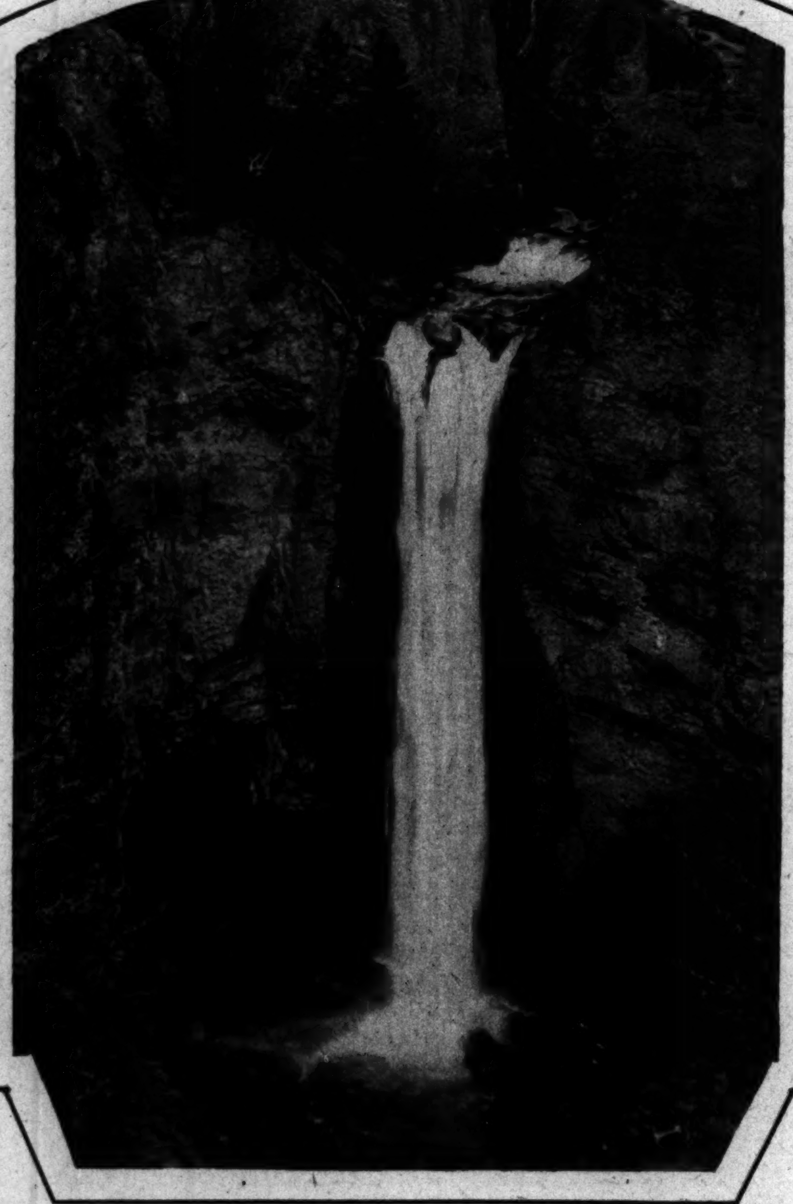
66 EAST SOUTH WATER STREET. The Chicago Motor Club building at 66 East South Water Street is acclaimed by critics a masterpiece of modernistic architecture. The club has been serving the motorists of Illinois and northern Indiana for almost a quarter of a century; it was organized in 1906. Telephone FRAnklin 1818.



TOWER FALLS IN YELLOWSTONE PARK. The club touring bureau keeps cars on the road the year round collecting the most complete and authentic touring information for members. More than one thousand clubs in every part of the country affiliated with the American Automobile Association also provide members of the Chicago Motor Club with free touring bureau service when traveling.

TRY THIS ROAD TODAY. The Waukegan road is a forty foot road. It didn't just happen. The Chicago Motor Club has been campaigning for wider roads for a number of years. Every motorist who wants to get the full use of his car on Saturdays and Sundays is urged to support the campaign of the club in behalf of wider roads. Wider Roads Are Safer Roads.

WORTH LOOKING AT IN CHICAGO In the heart of the new downtown of Chicago, the Chicago Motor Club building at 66 East South Water street is accessible to every motorist. A visit to the club building is well worth while. Under the caption: "Worth Looking at in Chicago," Ashton Stevens lists . . . "John Root's thrilling lobby for Chicago Motor Club."

NOTE THIS EMBLEM ON CARS TODAY. Eighty thousand car owners in Illinois and northern Indiana display this radiator emblem.

A MEETING OF STATE'S ATTORNEYS CALLED BY THE CHICAGO MOTOR CLUB. During a speed trap probe in which the club took part the TRIBUNE said editorially: "Many of the victims of illegal fines, physical attacks, official hold-ups, abuse and mistreatment were prepared to accept the situation as one without remedy until the State's Attorney and the CHICAGO MOTOR CLUB gave the opportunity for a thorough exposure."

THE DISPATCHER'S OFFICE ON A BUSY DAY. A rain storm or a cold wave brings an avalanche of calls to the club for mechanical first aid service. Members may call for first aid or towing service any hour of the day or night. The main office telephone number is FRAnklin 1818.

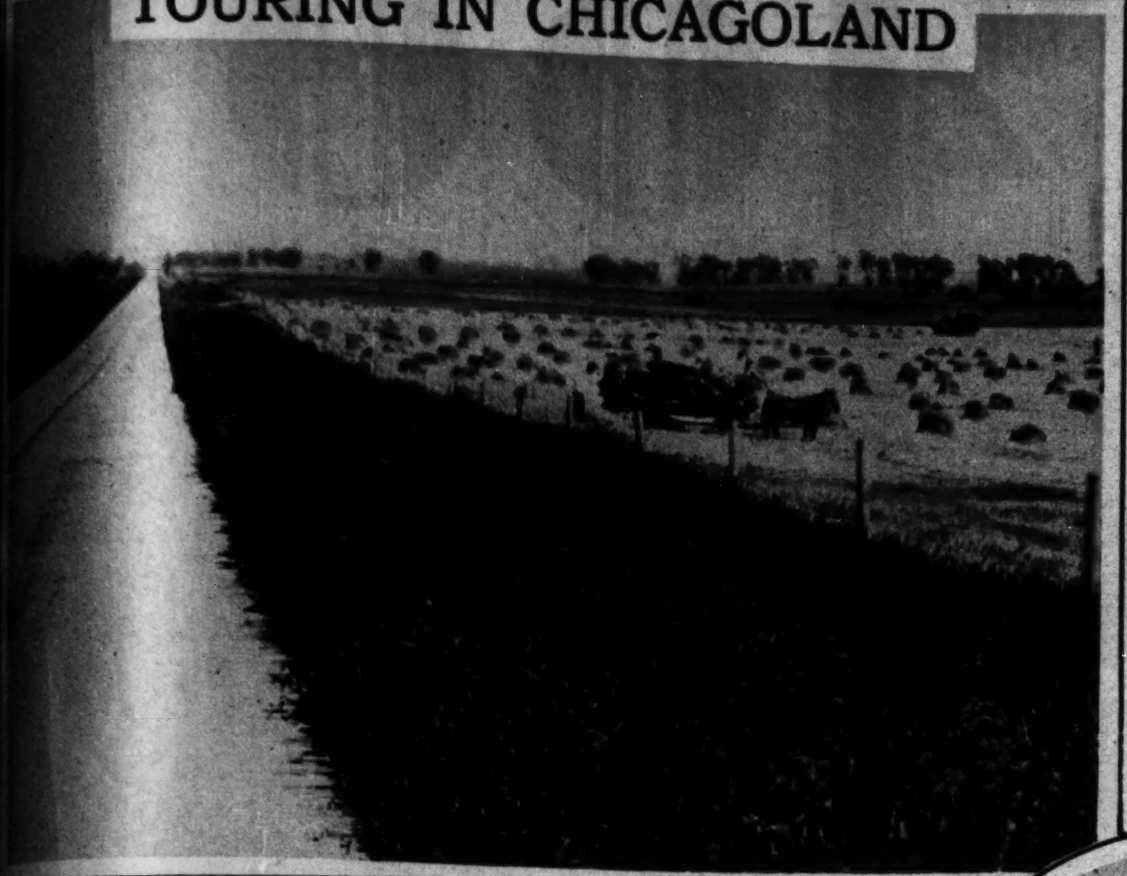
TOURING IN CHICAGOLAND



THIS ILLINOIS STATE HIGHWAY in the vicinity of Annawan carries motor tourists through the heart of a rich grain country. A field of golden wheat in shocks spreads out to the right.

THOUSANDS OF VISITORS from all parts of the central west make motor pilgrimages to Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago at Willams Bay, on Lake Geneva, Wis. The great dome, 90 feet in diameter, covers the giant Yerkes 40-inch refractor telescope, the largest in the world.

SAVING 80 MILES OF TRAVEL for Chicago motor visitors to Kansas City and points west, the Champ Clark bridge linking Pike, Ill., and Louisiana, Mo., was opened last year. The span across the Mississippi was built at a cost of more than $1,000,000.

THE CATCH OF THE SEASON—Here's Ed Miller, a Chicago motorist, with a thirteen pound wall-eyed pike he pulled out of Plum lake near Sayner, Wis., in the heart of the vacation belt.

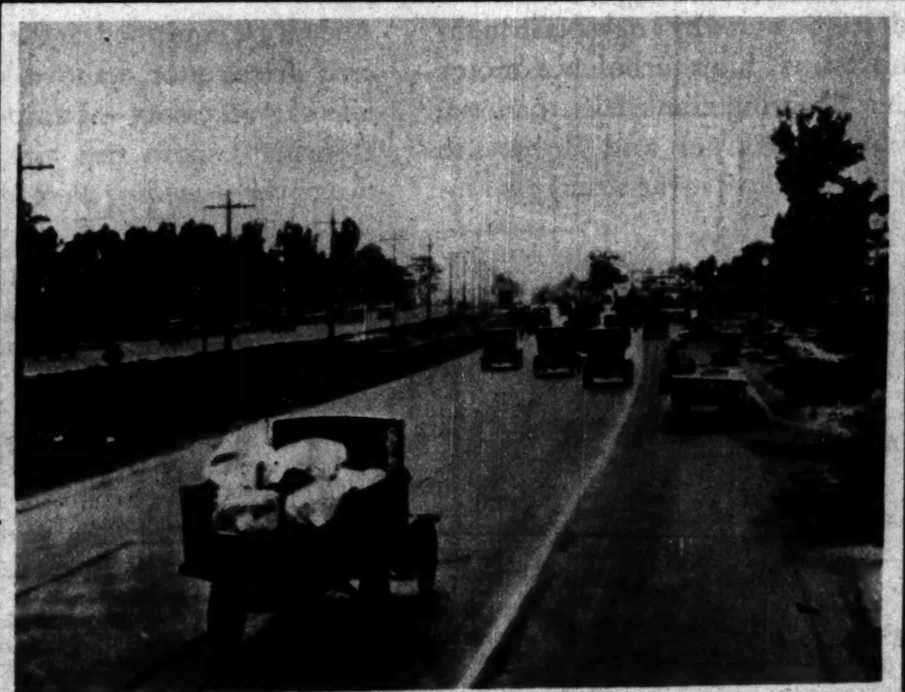
PICTURESQUE MINNESOTA, the land of 10,000 lakes and streams, lures thousands of motor visitors each year. Here is a swirling trout stream, one of the many to be found near the Canadian border.



DETROIT'S SUPERHIGHWAY, the envy of Chicago motorists. This roadway between Pontiac and Detroit, 200 feet wide, provides special zones for horse drawn vehicles and trucks, automobiles and electric trains.

THE SAND DUNES OF INDIANA, ever shifting, ever changing, are a constant lure to tourists of the Lake Michigan region. Nowhere else in America is such a diversity of plants, flowers and trees found in such close proximity as in this area at the south end of Lake Michigan.

STANDARD SIX	SPECIAL SIX	ADVANCED SIX
Delivered, Fully Equipped	Delivered, Fully Equipped	Delivered, Fully Equipped

All the Smartness of the Open Car . . . All the Comfort of the Closed

FOR people who wish they could own two cars—one open and the other enclosed—Nash has a suggestion—an answer to the wish—the new "400" Cabriolet convertible.

This is the car for every motoring mood and weather—an open car when blue skies urge you forth—a closed car at the first drop of rain—tight and comfortable when winter comes.

You have your choice of three of these charming Cabriolets, at three exceptionally attractive prices, in the new "400" Series of Nash motor cars.

There is the Standard Six Cabriolet, easily the most desirable car of its type in the $900 field. It is powered by a new Nash high-compression, high-turbulence motor with a 7 bearing crankshaft, torsional vibration damper and Bohnalite aluminum alloy (invar-strut) pistons. Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, outboard mounted, and Chromium nickeled bumpers, front and rear, are regular equipment, at no extra cost.

The Special and Advanced Six Cabriolets have the new Twin Ignition motor, Bijur Centralized Chassis Lubrication and every other fine-car feature which the "400" Series has introduced to moderate-priced motoring.

All three have a big, roomy rumble seat for occasional guests. All have the ease of control which identifies the Nash "400" as the world's easiest driven motor car. All have the smart, spirited appearance and performance which have centered public attention and public approval on the "400" ever since its introduction.

And all are equipped, at the low delivered prices quoted above, with every fine car accessory—bumpers, shock absorbers, spare tire, tire lock and tire cover—nothing more to buy!

Even with the top down, the smart nickel framed windows may be raised for wind protection.

If You're Driving—

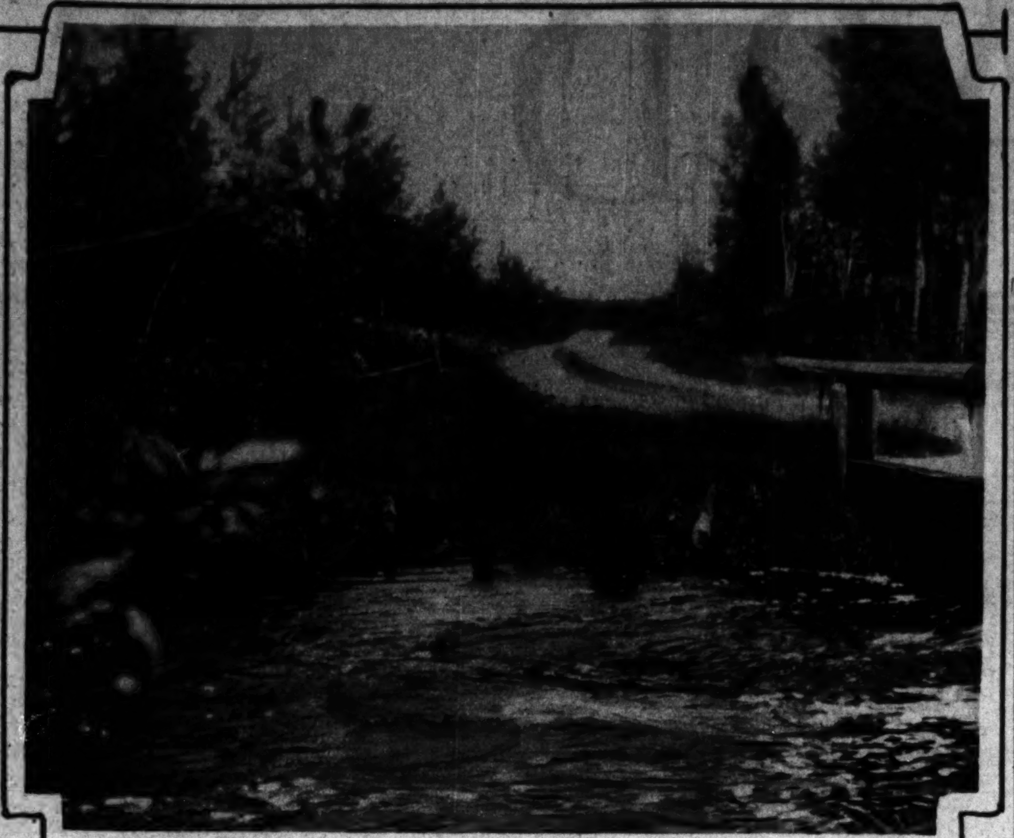
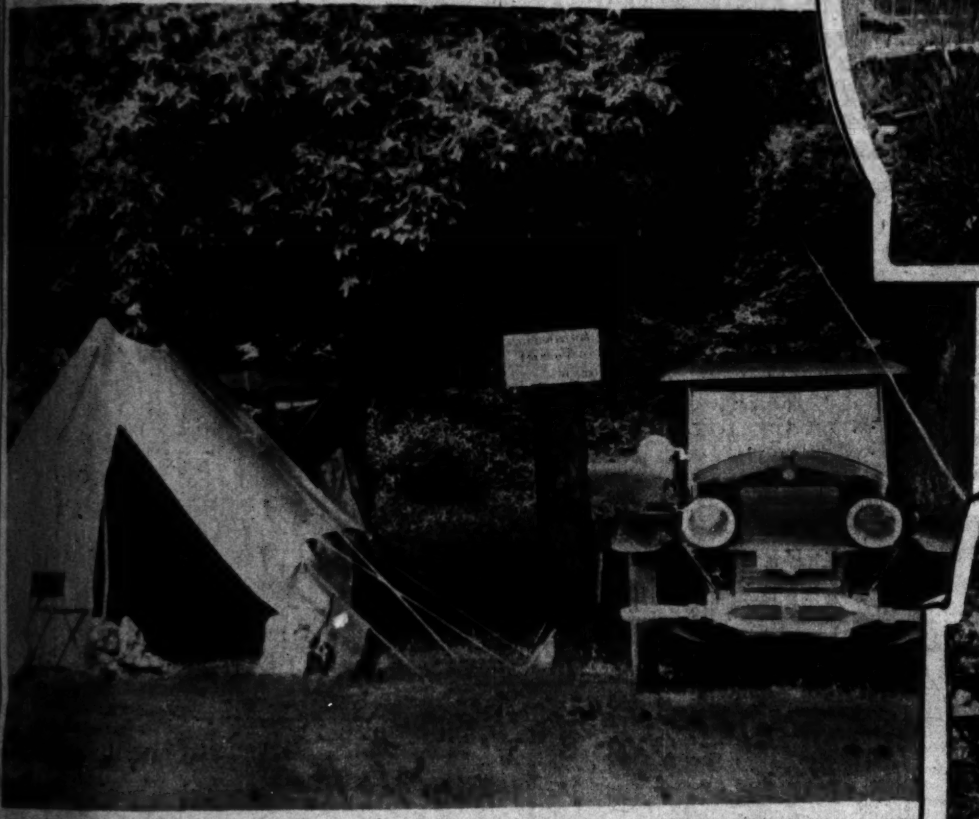
(All photographs from Pacific & Atlantic.)



EAGLE RIVER in Wisconsin is the fishing and hunting grounds of hundreds of motoring Chicagoans. Close enough to be handy, wild enough to be alluring, as you'll gather from this view of an Eagle River side road.

IT'S WORTH A LONG TRIP for any fond parent to provide such a treat as this for a youngster. Deer found by hunters in the woods around Woodruff, Wis., are kept in an enclosure until big enough to be turned loose on the state reservations. And these little deer are a great attraction for the kids.



THE OPEN ROAD—A typical camping scene along the scenic trail near Oregon, Ill.

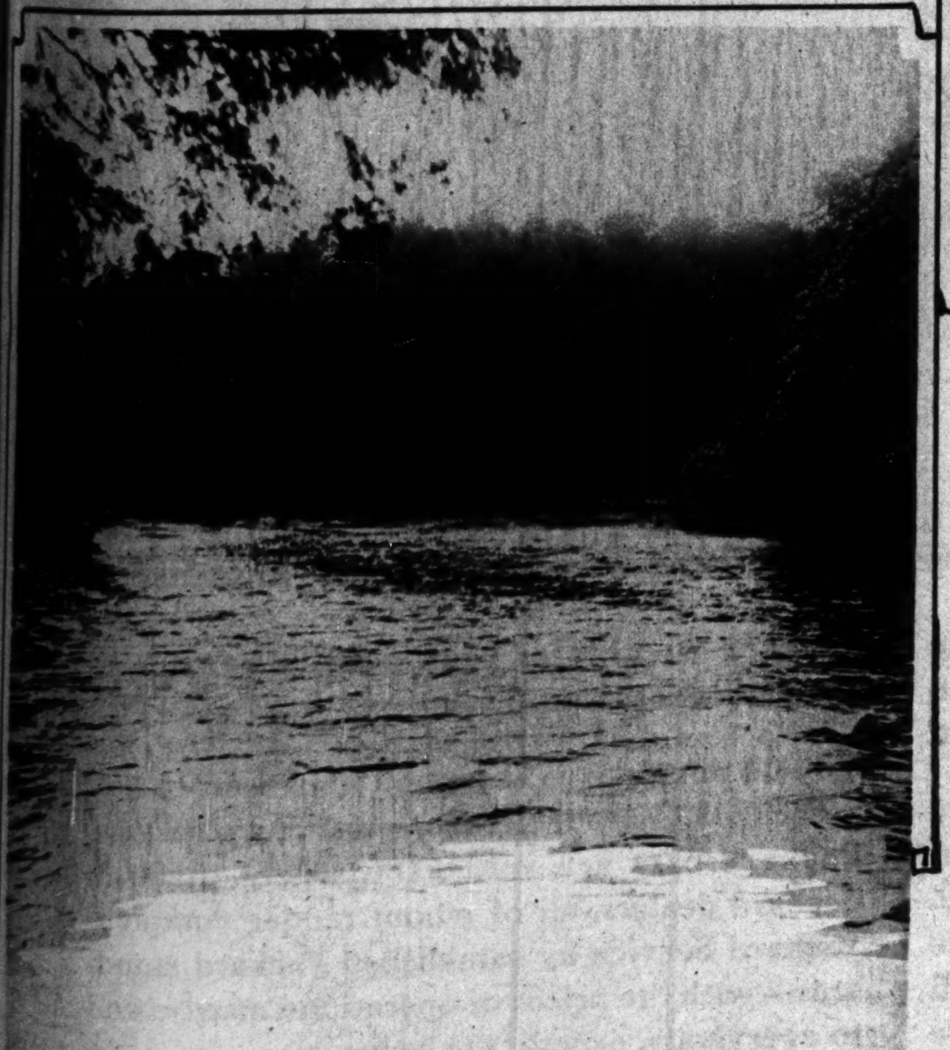
(Photograph from Pacific & Atlantic.)



THE RIPPLING WATERS of the Wisconsin river flow through the Menominee Indian reservation near Shawano, Wis. This region provides ideal camping sites for auto tourists who prefer out-of-door sleeping.

LEST WE FORGET the tremendous strides made by the motor makers in a few short years, let's look now at a relic exhibited this month at a military show in Baltimore, Md. We're told this dates back to the early '90's, and was a steam driven affair. How'd you like to tour to the coast in one of these?

In Cook County there are 15 Packard Service Stations. A booklet describing the Packard-Chicago service facilities is yours for the asking

PACKARD MOTOR CAR CO.
OF CHICAGO
MICHIGAN AVE AT 24 TH.

THE first Packard Service is to provide a fine motor car. The second and continuing Packard Service is to insure the satisfaction of each Packard owner. Both services express Packard's ability and willingness to make Packard ownership increasingly enjoyable.

More than seventy Packard Service Stations are operated by the branches and dealers of the Packard Motor Car Company of Chicago, in the territory shown by the above map. Each one conforms to the standard practices prescribed by the Packard Factory Service Department.

Packard Service Principles are definite and comprehensive. They provide for prompt attention and courteous, equal treatment to all. They require adequate parts stocks, up-to-date facilities and modern shop equipment—as well as properly trained mechanics. They assure Packard owners of high quality service at standardized prices.

You do not have to be a good "dickerer" to buy a Packard Car—or secure satisfactory service. Packard cars are sold exclusively through Packard dealers, all of whom render complete Packard Service by established Packard standards—with the prices of operations, always and to everybody, exactly the same.

CHEVROLET

BODY BY FISHER

The New Chevrolet Six offers BODY by FISHER

STYLE

Never in all the history of automotive design has a low-priced car provided such outstanding style and distinction as the new Chevrolet Six. The new Fisher bodies are long, low and graceful. Concave front pillars lengthen and smarten the profile—the effect of the steel side panels is carried well up over the roof line—and all rear quarters are artistically molded to conform to the modern vogue.

COMFORT

In comfort, too, these new Fisher bodies represent a marked advance in the low-price field. Each cushion and seat-back contains an average of 35 coil springs—enclosed with wire mesh to preserve the shape of the seat. Extra deep padding and "built-up" upholstering add to the luxurious seating comfort. And the adjustable driver's seat assures the most comfortable driving position.

STRENGTH

Another outstanding feature of these new Fisher bodies is their unusually sturdy construction. Built of selected hardwood and steel, the one reinforcing the other—and with the various units constructed separately and assembled in the same fashion as an architectural structure—they provide a measure of strength, endurance and safety that is unapproached in any other low-priced car.

QUIETNESS

As a result of their special composite construction, Chevrolet's new Fisher bodies are exceptionally quiet. The roof is padded to prevent rumble. Wherever wood and metal contact, a layer of insulation is used to prevent noise. Where steel braces join with wood, the wood is treated with a special mixture to eliminate squeaks. And all movable hardware is equipped with anti-rattle springs.

APPOINTMENTS

All hardware fittings on Chevrolet enclosed bodies are designed and built by Ternstedt. Each fitting is designed to follow a prevailing motif—and is both beautiful and practical. Door handles are of the remote control type—window lifts are smart and convenient—and all exterior bright metal parts are chromium-plated to retain their original lustre throughout the life of the car.

FINISH

No single feature of Chevrolet bodies has created more widespread comment than their beautiful finish—and no feature illustrates more clearly the value to Chevrolet of Fisher's great resources. For this marvelous finish is due to the smooth surface of the steel body panels—formed in the largest presses ever used in the body building industry. Applied against this silken surface, Chevrolet finishes are uniform, lustrous and permanent.

AND SPEAKING OF TOURING, here's how the girls travel in the Spreewald district near Berlin. The bedecked maidens were cycling their way to a festival in the hamlet of Vetschau when the camera happened along.

John T. McCutcheon's Journey Across the Andes and Down the Amazon

THE RUINS OF MACHU PICCHU, most extensive and best preserved of the Inca ruins, are in a most inaccessible part of the Andes. They were discovered by Hiram Bingham in 1912. It is necessary to climb on foot 2,000 feet up a steep mountain side on a trail which Senator Bingham says is a favorite resort of the fer de lance and the coral snake, two of the most venomous of all serpents.

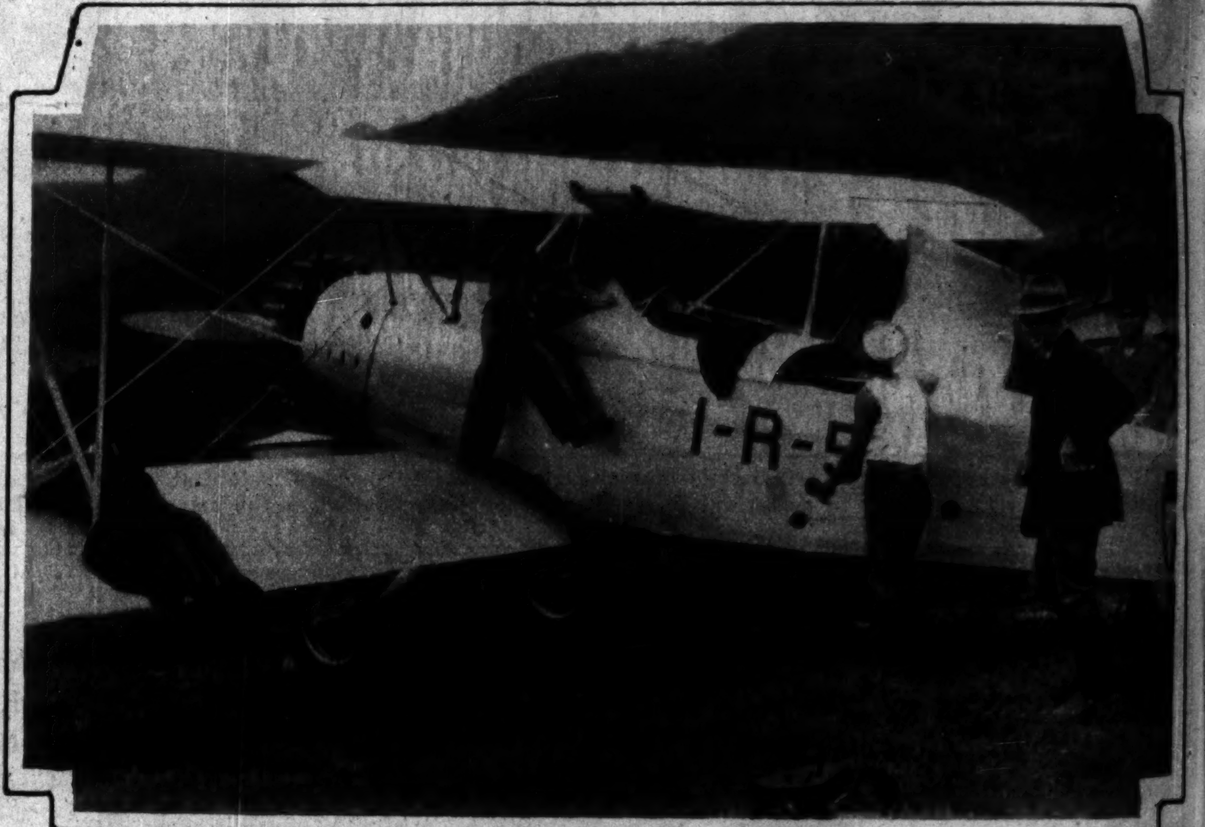
WE TRAVELED on a narrow gauge road to the end of the railroad, and stopped in a hotel in a construction camp. Our conveyance was a Ford car on railroad wheels. From this point you go by mules to the foot of the trail leading up to Machu Picchu. Then you climb and pant.

ON AN AMAZON RIVER STEAMER we carried an assortment of live stock—cows, sheep, pigs, wild turkeys, turtles, tapirs, monkeys, and parrots. Occasionally the steamer stopped to cut fodder for the animals.

HERE IS PART of the gigantic Inca ruins at Ollantaytambo. Like nearly all Inca ruins, they are perched high in the mountains. Numerous pieces of granite, weighing many tons each, are joined together with amazingly skillful masonry.

THIS IS PART of the San Ramon-Tarma trail. It is so narrow that cars cannot pass. One day they go down, the next they come up. In many places it hangs on an eight foot ledge a thousand feet above the river below. Dangerous and thrilling.

THIS IS THE COMMON TYPE OF BRIDGE encountered in the mountains of Peru. It sways dizzily when a car crosses it.



THIS IS THE LAND PLANE in which we flew the 250 miles between San Ramon and Masisea over mountains and dense jungle all the way. There are no places where a plane can land safely.

THE AMAZON WAS FULL TO OVERFLOWING. We passed 2,300 miles of dense tropical jungle, always interesting with strange bird life and extraordinary foliage.

ON OUR WAY HOME we stopped at the Island of Tobago and visited Robinson Crusoe's cave. Defoe's famous story was based on the experiences of Alexander Selkirk, who was marooned on Juan Fernandez Island, off the coast of Chile, but Defoe located his hero on Tobago, in the Caribbean.

CUZCO, THE ANCIENT CAPITAL of the Incas, is a strange mixture of the ancient and the modern. The early Spaniards, after conquering the Inca empire, built their houses on the old ruins. Flocks of llamas are a common sight in the streets.

"THE TOCSIN OF LIBERTY," rung out 153 years ago next Thursday to proclaim the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Cracked while tolling for the death of Chief Justice Marshall in 1835, the beloved Liberty Bell rests in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, where it pealed out its "joyful" tidings" on July 4, 1776.

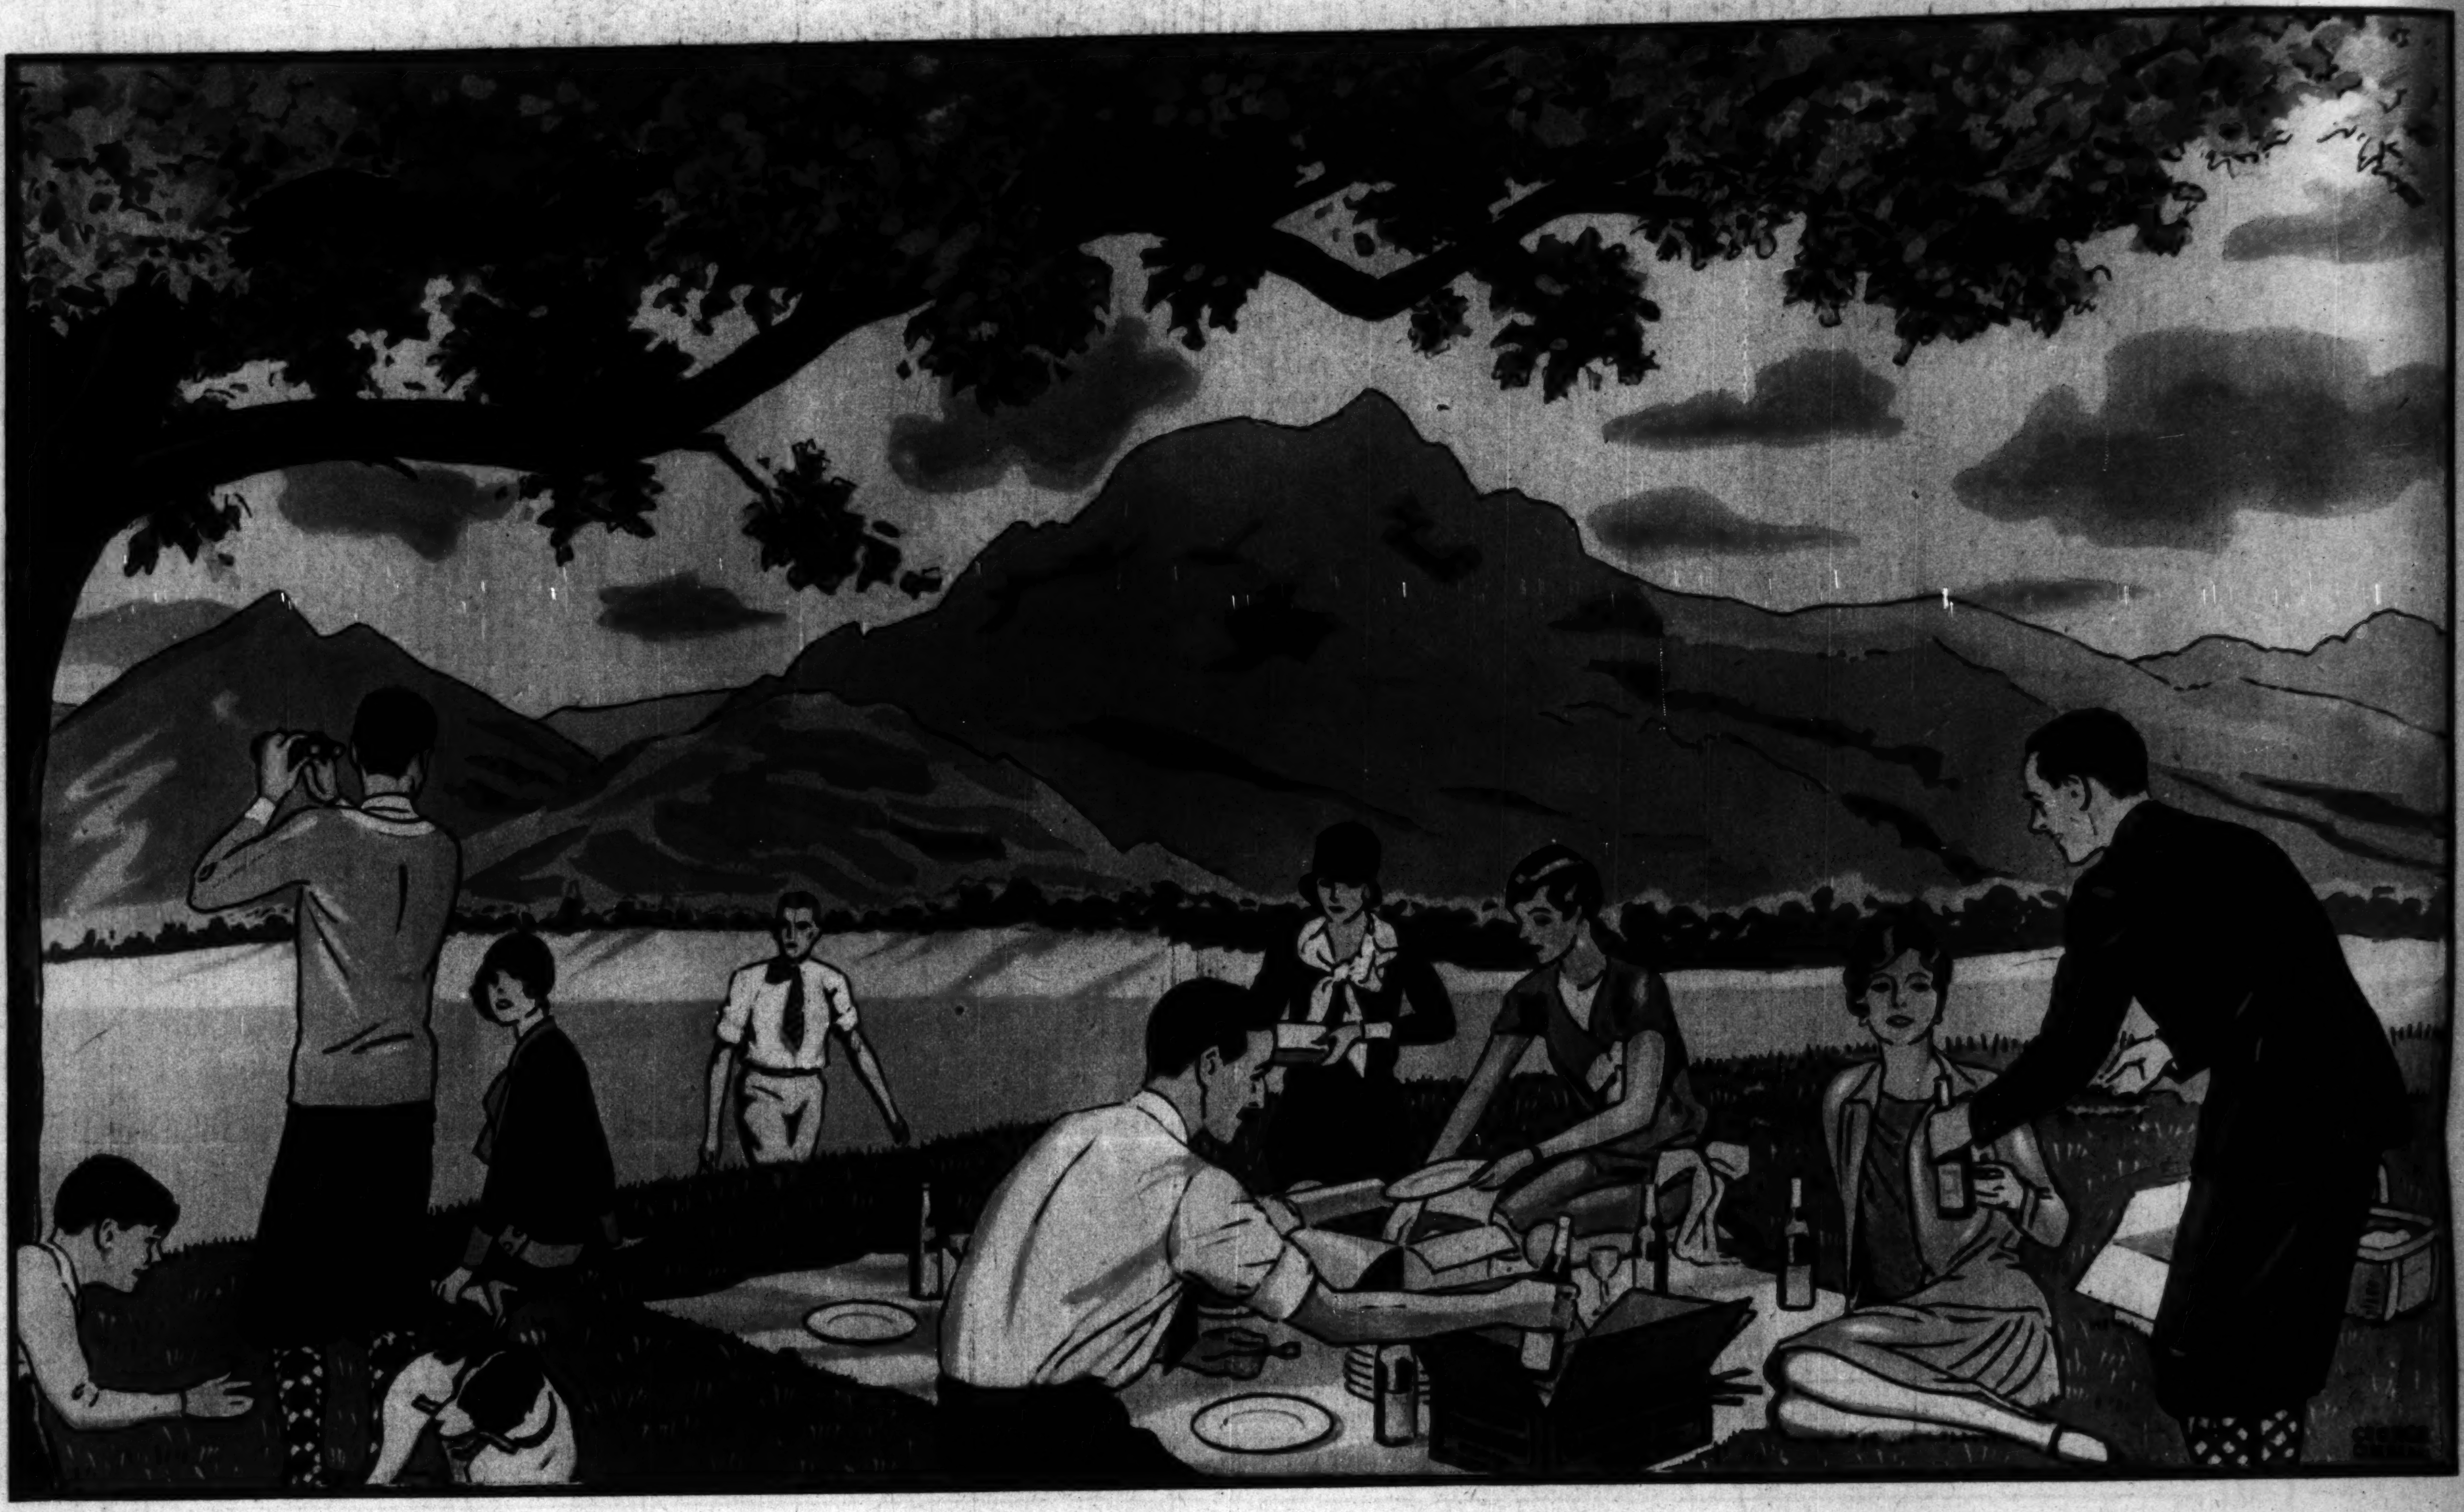
Like a mountain breeze Keen and Refreshing



THE FOURTH OF JULY PICNIC

ROYAL summer with its pomp of greenery and sun holds many happy days. In the afternoon while woodland and field lie bathed in golden calm, there's a shady spot on the porch made cooler with "Canada Dry." When the dewy grass glistens in the early light, there's a place in your car on that all-day picnic for plenty of "Canada Dry." And beneath the deep summer stars, for a dance, for a game of bridge in the cool of the evening, there's the sparkle and gaiety and real refreshment of "Canada Dry."

Expert chemists guarantee the purest ingredients to make "Canada Dry" an ideal summer beverage

Truly, a marvelous beverage to drink all the summer through! In the heat of the day it's as cooling as sweet summer rain after drought . . . refreshing as the breeze which blows before a thunder shower . . . sparkling as the play of light on blue water . . . mellow as a lazy canoe ride through calm inlets . . . and as gay and carefree and joyous as many a bright vacation!

The most careful methods result in a marvelous flavor

Drink "Canada Dry" this summer! It is a better, purer, finer beverage. It is made from high-quality Jamaica ginger and other absolutely pure ingredients. It is blended and balanced with skill. The proportions are exactly determined. Hourly check-ups prevent variation from those proportions. Daily tests are made under laboratory methods to assure purity. A secret process of carbonation enables "Canada Dry" to retain its delightful and uniform sparkle long after the bottle is opened. And the final result . . . mild, mellow, delicious, with a subtle ginger taste, is what you know as "Canada Dry"—the Champagne of Ginger Ales.

Serve "Canada Dry" on every occasion this summer. Its vigor brings zest to meals. Its marvelous flavor gives distinction to any dinner table. And like the aristocrat it is, it makes its quality quietly felt, adding new joy, new gaiety to this season. Stock up the refrigerator with "Canada Dry." Buy a generous supply of Hostess Packages to take in the car on picnics. Send some to your summer camp. Offer a glass to friends when they come to sit on the veranda of evenings. And remember that for any occasion here is the summer beverage.

"CANADA DRY"

For the Fourth of July

Take along a handy Hostess Package on that picnic. Use "Canada Dry" in the punch you make for a buffet supper. Serve it to friends on the lawn as they watch the fireworks. Order it with your meals if you go away for the holiday.

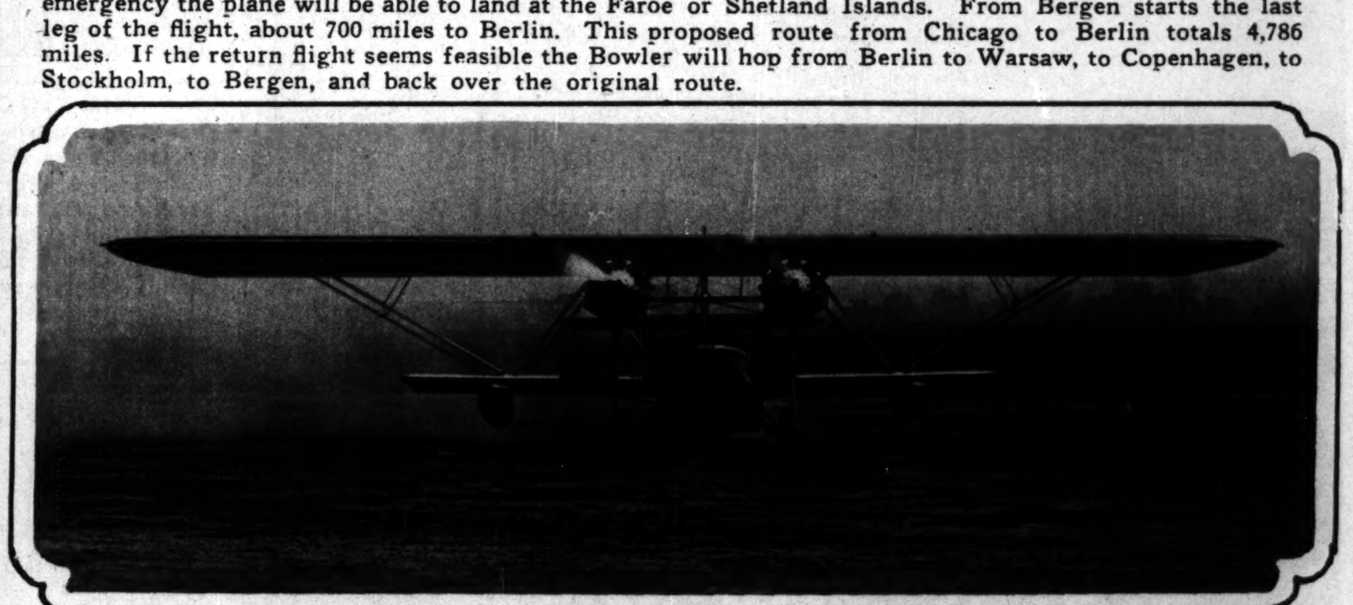
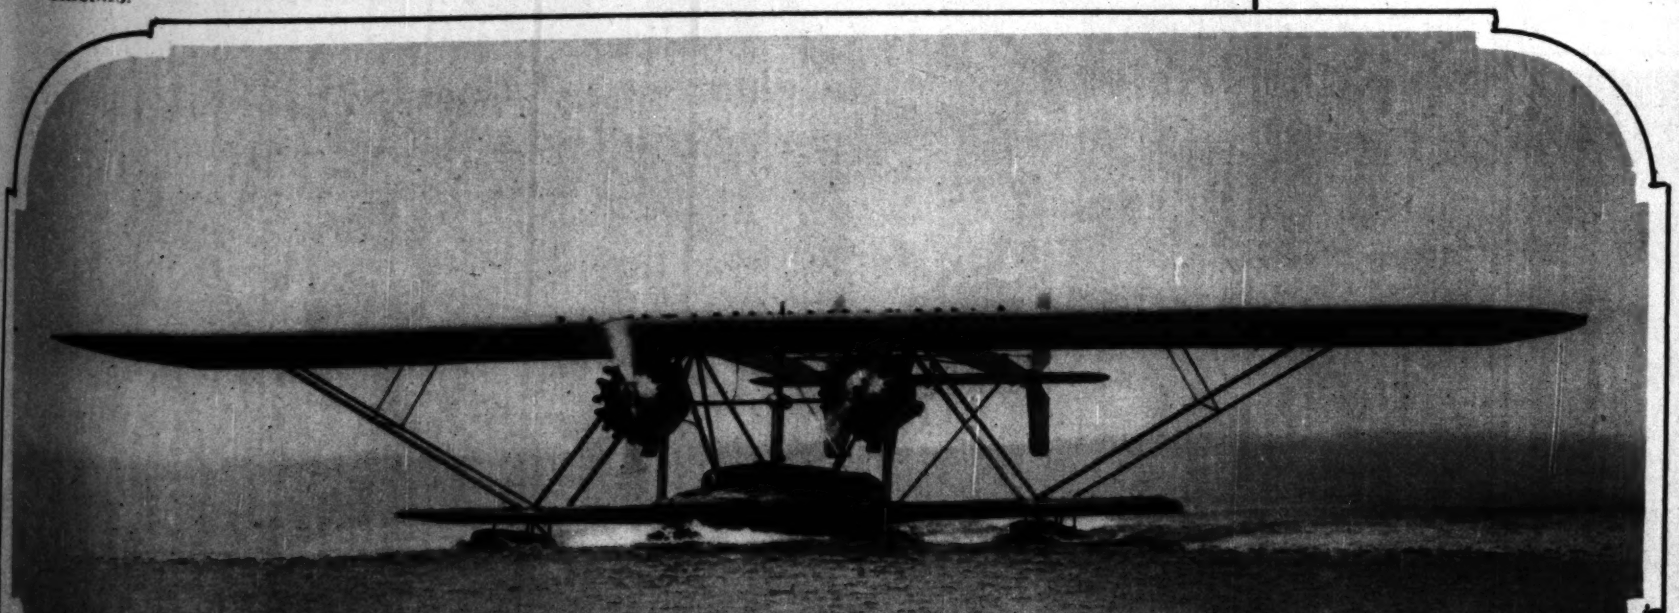
THE GREAT CIRCLE ROUTE over which The Tribune proposes to send its giant amphibion plane, the 'Untin' Bowler, on a circle flight from Chicago to Berlin and back. Weather permitting, the start will be made this morning off the lake front at Jackson boulevard. The first stop will be at Milwaukee. Stretch a piece of string across a map of the world from Chicago to Berlin and it will give you the general course of The Tribune flight. After the short hop to Milwaukee, the 'Untin' Bowler will fly some 500 miles directly to Cochrane, Ont., take gas and hop off again for Rupert House, 200 miles away. The next jump is to Cape Chidley, Labrador, 800 miles. The route from here to Mt. Evans is the only major deviation in the course. The route swerves northward to Cape Walsingham, on Baffin Island, and from there directly to Mt. Evans, something over 600 miles. The next hop, to Reykjavik, is 1,000 miles. From here the route lies across 900 miles of water to Bergen, Norway. In case of emergency the plane will be able to land at the Faroe or Shetland Islands. From Bergen starts the last leg of the flight, about 700 miles to Berlin. This proposed route from Chicago to Berlin totals 4,786 miles. If the return flight seems feasible the Bowler will hop from Berlin to Warsaw, to Copenhagen, to Stockholm, to Bergen, and back over the original route.

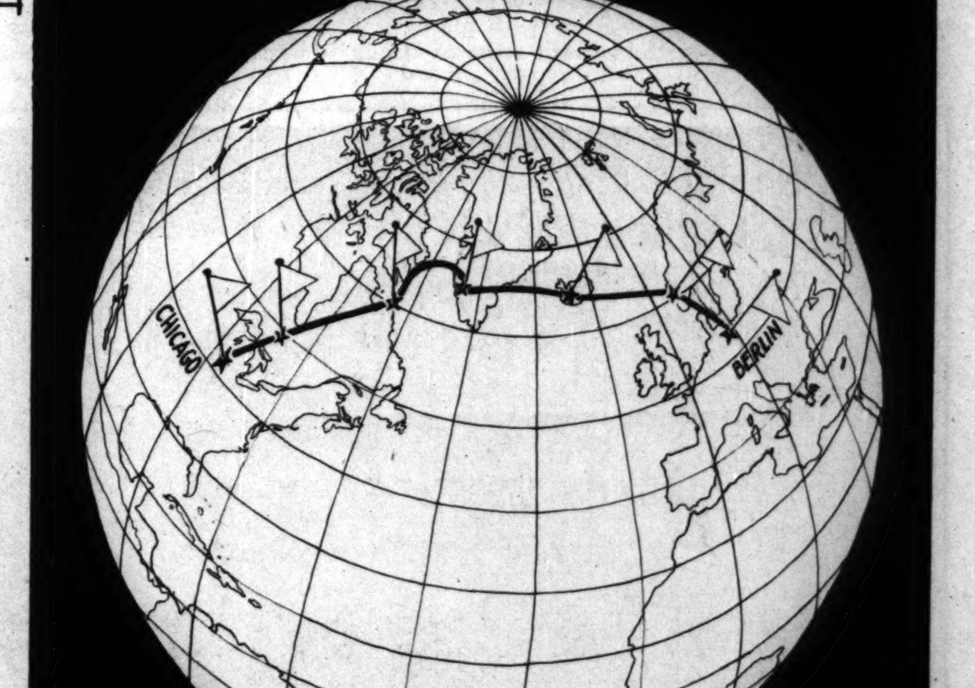
THE TRIBUNE FLYERS, Bob Gast and Parker D. ("Shorty") Cramer, and Robert Wood, aviation editor of The Tribune, who will make the flight to write the travel story of the voyage. Gast and Cramer, pilot and co-pilot, will alternate at the controls of the 'Untin' Bowler. Gast started flying with the Royal Flying corps during the war. Cramer, with Bert Hassell, last year attempted to reach Stockholm from Rockford. Both are former department of commerce officials.



ON THE TAKE-OFF—Here the 'Untin' Bowler, The Tribune flying boat, is shown sweeping down the runway while her twin Wasp motors kick up a dust storm behind. Gast and Cramer pin their faith to those motors, for if one cuts out the other will carry them to safety.



WATER OR LAND, it makes no difference to The Tribune Sikorsky amphibion. She alights on both. Here she is shown pushing through the quiet lake water off Oak street beach. In her flight to Berlin the Bowler will make use of lakes, rivers, harbors, and fiords as landing places. If necessary the plane will be able to negotiate a landing on the ice, the bottom surface of her boat acting as a sled. (Other pictures on next page.)



CHICAGO
BERLIN

ON TOP OF THE WORLD—The course of The Tribune plane crosses Davis Strait and Greenland not far from the North Pole. For a distance of some 900 miles the Bowler will fly along the Arctic Circle and over the frozen wastes of Greenland.

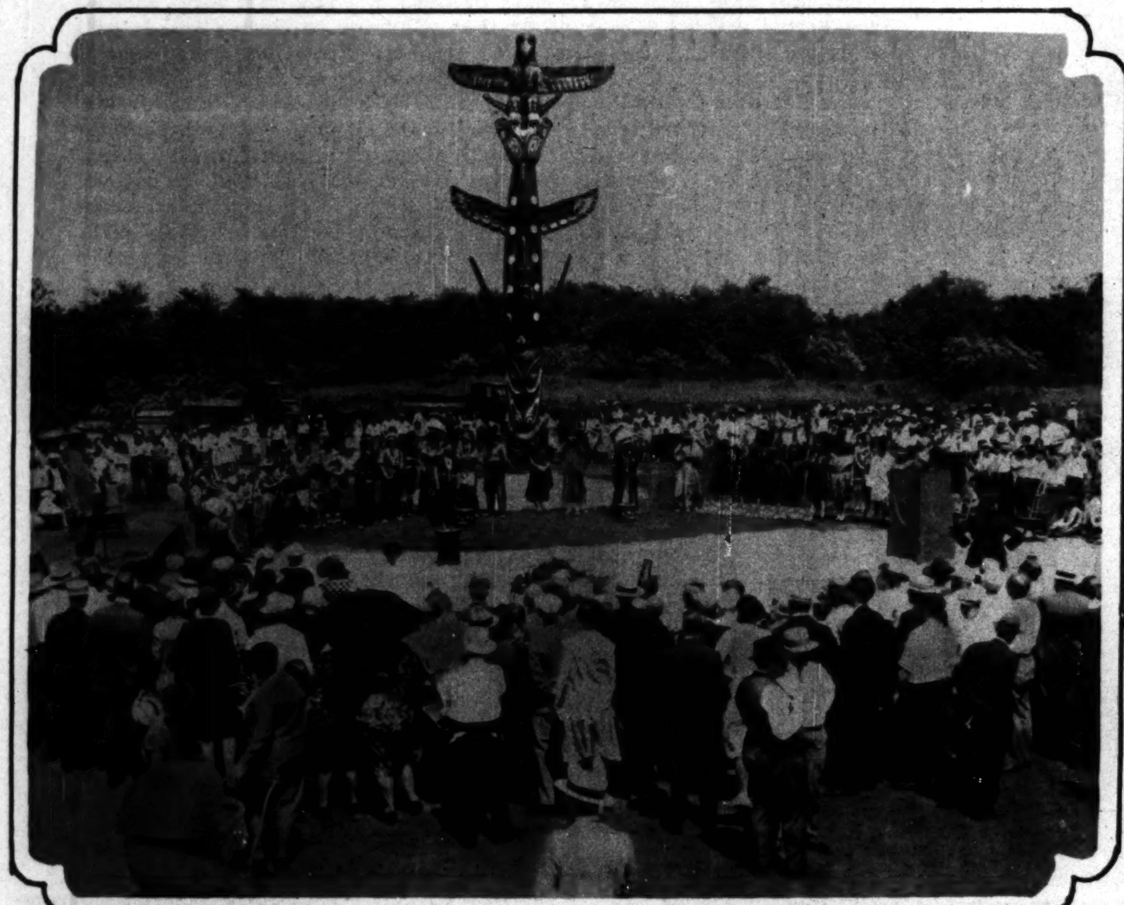
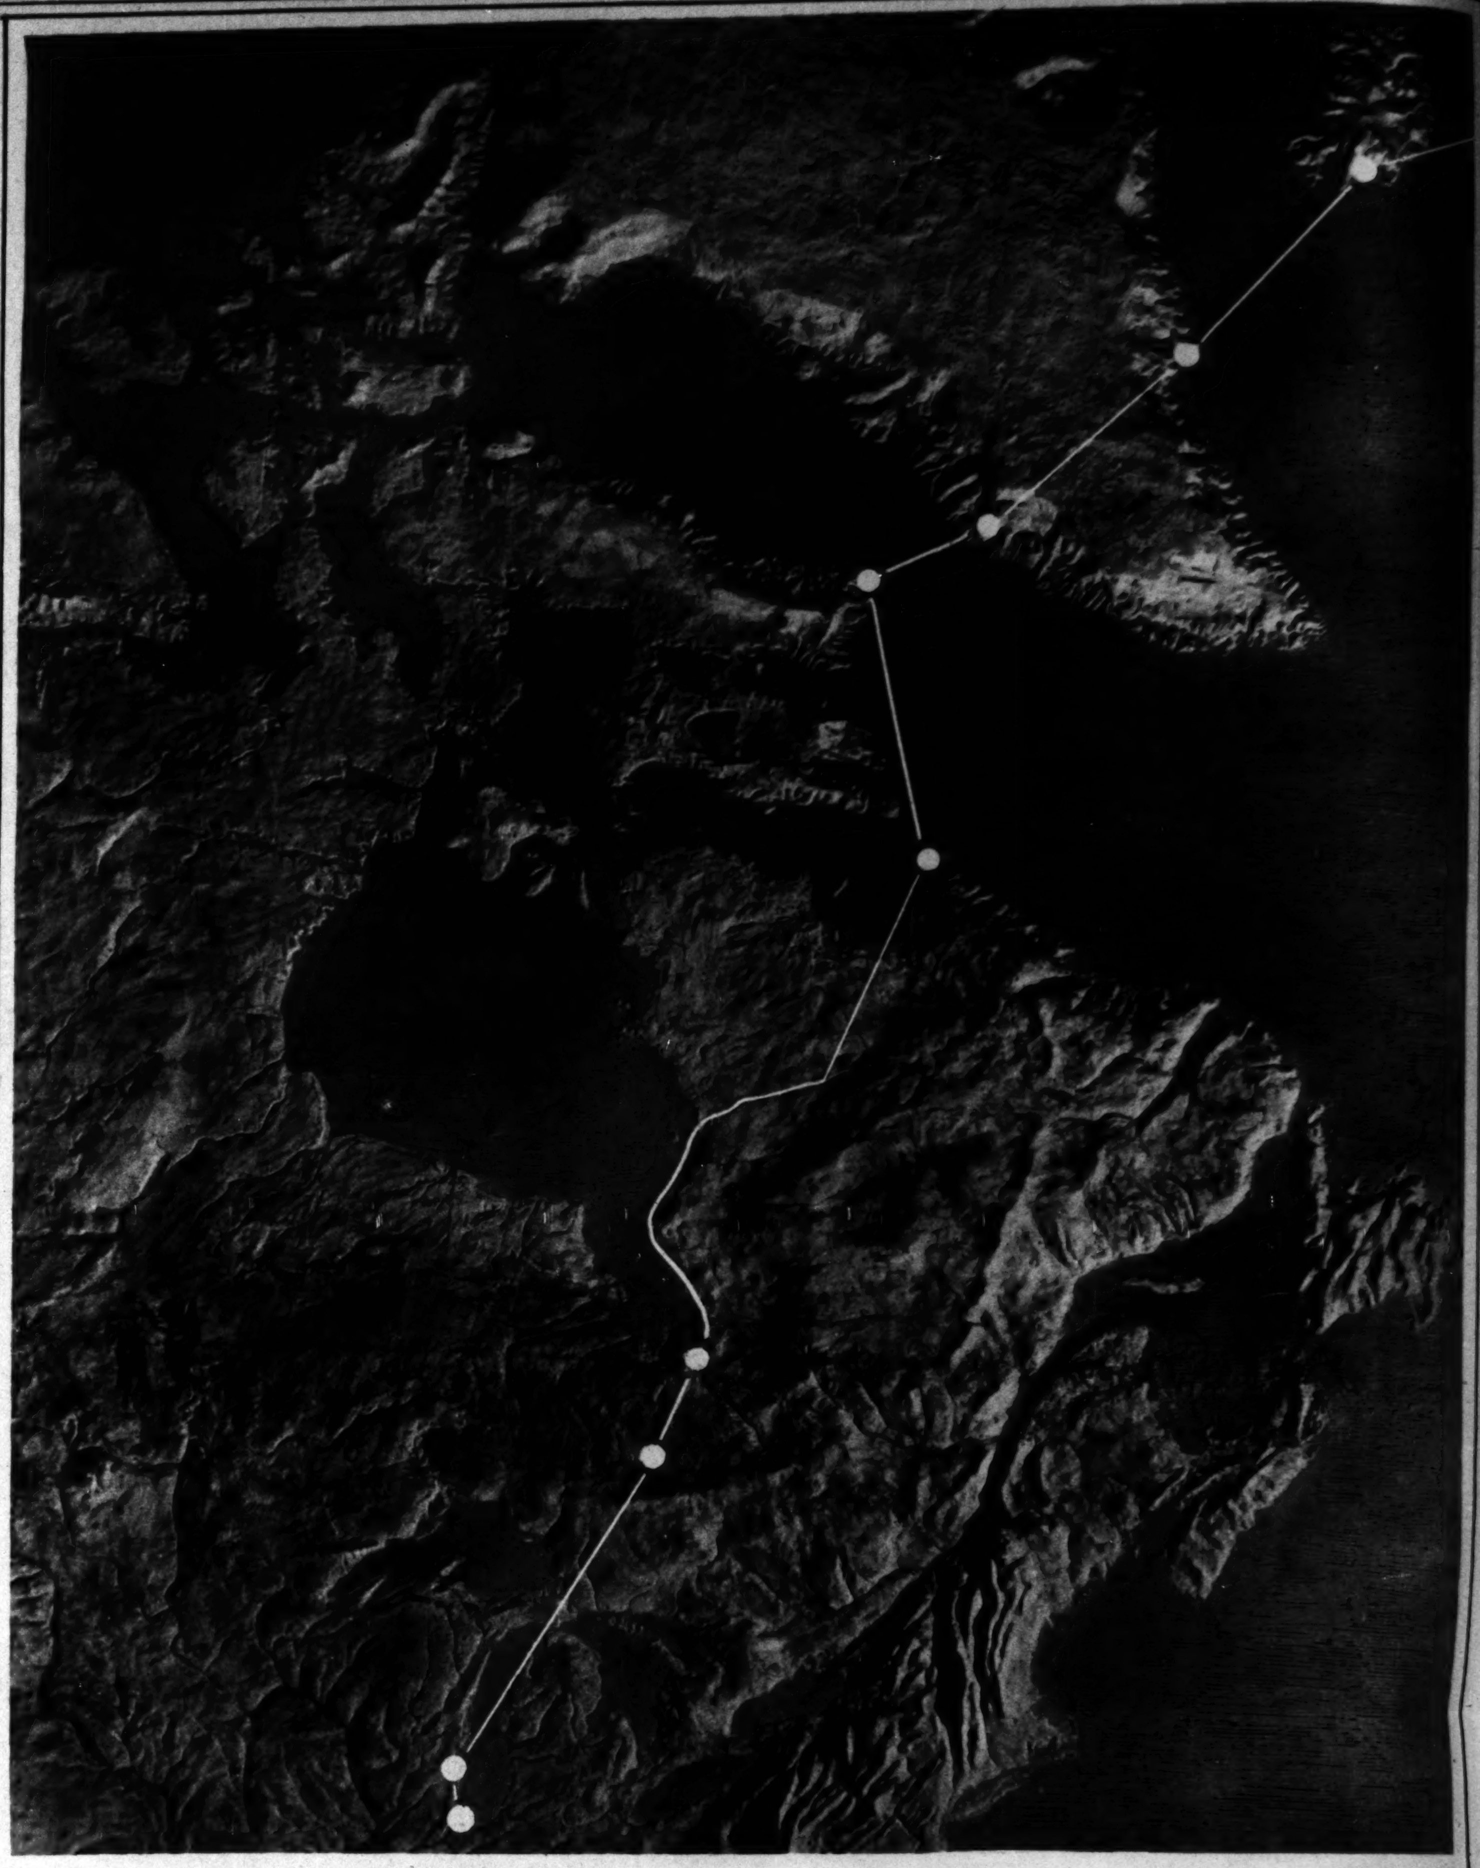
LINKING SKY LANE AND LOOP, officials of the South Park board last Monday dedicated the ramp which enables amphibions to take aboard and discharge passengers at Eighth street in Grant park. Five-minute shuttle service between the municipal airport and Chicago's front yard is thus made an actuality. (Tribune photograph.)



THIS TOTEM POLE, forty feet high and five feet in diameter, was dedicated recently in Lincoln park. Carved with hieroglyphics and weird pictures, this cypress log records the history of the ancient tribe of Haida Indians of the British Columbia northwest. (Tribune photograph.)

SUNK in the annual intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie last Monday, as 125,000 spectators looked on, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology shell was one of four unable to finish. The four boats filled until they were awash in the choppy Hudson as Columbia skimmed away to a two-and-a-half-length victory over Washington. (Photograph from Associated Press.)



THE CHICAGO ROUTE TO EUROPE avoids those terrors, the cloud-covered mountains that form aviation's deadliest hazard. This reproduction of the great relief map of North America which hangs in the lobby of Tribune Tower shows that the route of the 'Untin' Bowler stretches over almost entirely flat country until Greenland is reached. A ship flying by the conventional route has to pass through two thousand miles of fogs over the Grand Banks of Newfoundland and adjacent regions, and then to reach the middle west it has to traverse the high mountains of the east. These mountains reach dangerously close to the cloud layers, and between mountain top and clouds there is almost always dangerous fog. The Tribune route completely avoids the mountains, as the map and sketch show, and at all points keeps well under the average American cloud level. At Cape Chidley, also, the 'Untin' Bowler will go around the peak instead of over it, thus avoiding again the danger of the fog layer between mountain top and clouds. (Tribune photograph and sketch.)

In choosing a bathing suit ---

"Match" your skin not your hair!"

says Adrian

Creator and Director of Fashions at METRO-GOLWYN-MAYER STUDIOS in Hollywood

"the Lo-Back"
Star attraction
of the "Catalina" line
...In all the popular California colors—with deep-cut back and go-between straps. The swim suit "hit" of the season!

NOWHERE else does the color of the skin become so much a part of the picture as in a bathing suit. Hence the color of your skin—not the color of your hair—is the cue and clue to the bathing suit you should wear.

So says Adrian—the famous Adrian who daily designs and selects costumes worn by such outstanding movie stars as Norma Shearer, Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Renee Adoree, Anita Page, Bessie Love and many others.

To aid you in selecting the bathing suit that "matches" your skin, Catalina Swim Suits have been designed in an unusual variety of California sun-fast colors. You're sure to find your particular harmonizing pattern among these smart, correct, vivacious models.

And no pucker or wrinkle will mar the smooth and shapely beauty of your "Catalina Swim Suit." For these Catalina models are made by our original Ribstich process that prevents sagging.

Made, too, of specially twisted virgin wool—the same weight yarn found in all the best suits—but made doubly strong by our own twisting process. And what a pleasant price-surprise! Remember, you can pay more but you can't get more in a bathing suit.

Ask your dealer to show you the latest Catalina models. Then you will realize why they are called "America's Swim Suit Sensation"—a revelation in bathing suit style and value. Look for the Flying Fish on the label.

Free-this new idea booklet by ADRIAN

"Fair-skinned people, whether blonde or brunette, should wear PASTEL shades. Dark-skinned people should wear BRILLIANT shades like red, orange, yellow, etc. And,—never mix colors"—so says Adrian in his new-idea booklet on bathing suits. Every woman will treasure this book by this brilliant French designer, whose word on fashion is law at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios in Hollywood. It shows precisely how to select a bathing suit that will enhance your physical gifts and graces.

If you want to be in the mode but out of the ordinary, send for this booklet now. It is yours for the asking—simply mail the coupon below.

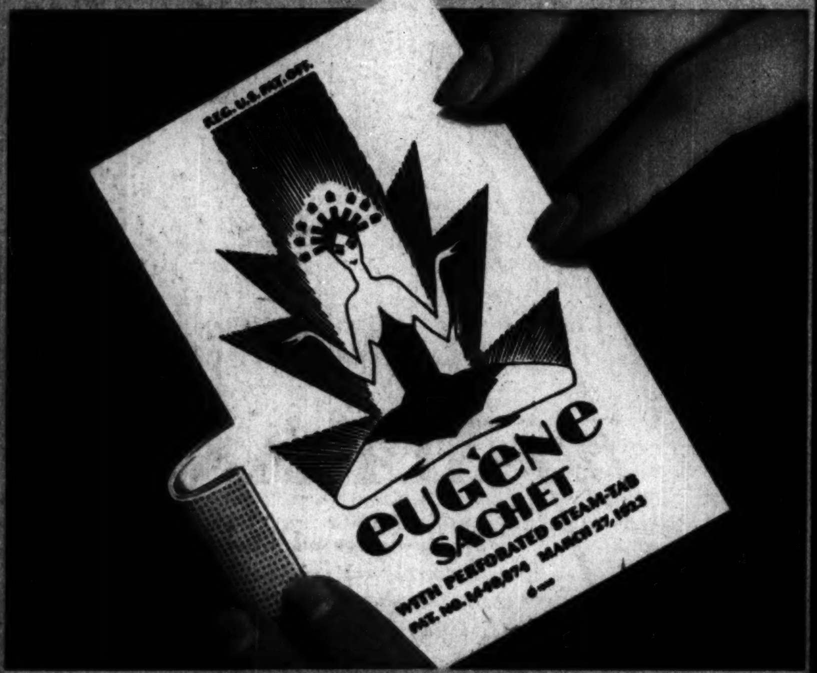
This Sachet is the Secret!

Great progress has been made in permanent hair waving, by Eugène. . . . Today, every woman may have beautifully wavy hair in either the deep-set English style or the wide, rolling ondulations Parisienne. And every woman should know the invention that made this possible — The Eugène Sachet.



The Eugène Sachet is the secret of gentle, beautifully natural permanent waves. Its patented perforated steam tab gives precise control of the steam, adapting itself to every type and condition of hair — and making it possible to wave the new growth of straight hair as often as necessary — without rewaving the old wave!

Avoid The Bargain Wave—Pay the price for expert skill and be sure your permanent waver uses genuine Eugène Sachets — 26 to 40 of them for each wave or re-wave. Look for the Eugène trade-mark symbol boldly stamped on each Sachet.

Would You Like to See One? We will gladly send you a sample Eugène Sachet for your inspection, together with our interesting illustrated booklet, "The Eugène Method," and a complete list of genuine Eugène Permanent Wavers in your vicinity.

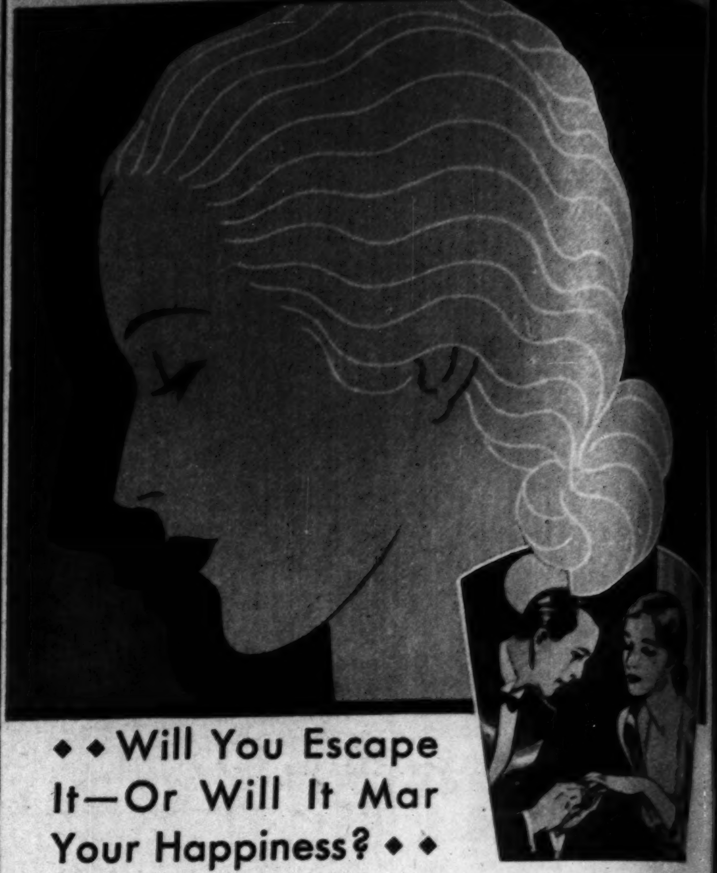
The Grey Shadow of 35



◆ ◆ Will You Escape It—Or Will It Mar Your Happiness? ◆ ◆

TODAY you are young and happy. You have beauty to spare—and love—and young shoulders that bear their burdens lightly. But what of the years ahead? Will your happiness decrease; your beauty be lost? What of your hair—and its appearance, five—ten—fifteen years from now?

Even now your hair may be verging on greyness. It may be too oily or too dry—its vitality waning. It may be losing its color—a drab shadow of dustiness stealing over it. All these are danger signals—forerunners of The Grey Shadow—conditions which, if not overcome, will surely lead to greyness, regardless of age.

Yet, Ogilvie Sisters have proven time and time again that premature greyness can be prevented. It requires simple, daily care. The scalp must be kept in a healthy condition. The roots of the hair must be properly nourished; the color cells thoroughly stimulated; the flow of oil glands regulated.

Oily Skin Physic

Oily skin, poor-color skin and blemishes are due to acid-skin impurities. And, everybody knows there is nothing like magnesia to neutralize acid. So, when the face is massaged with cremed magnesia the skin throws off even the most deep-set pore impurities. It physics the skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. That's why magnesia is called the beauty miracle of modern science.

Physicing the skin rejuvenates the complexion so quickly that any face looks years younger in five minutes. It changes old-looking, poor-color skin to youthful clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. It's astringent; it reduces enlarged pores to the finest texture and smoothes out the tell-tale lines of age almost as if by magic.

It removes make-up better than soap or cleansing cream. And, because it's so mild, it's a blessing for fine, sensitive skin that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. That's why mothers use it to bathe infants. No wonder thousands of doctors urge their wives, patients and nurses to use nothing but magnesia to cleanse their faces.

Thousands of delighted women send letters of praise and say they did not at first believe anything so simple could be so wonderful. But, they were convinced when they saw so many friends suddenly get lovely complexions.

To get genuine cremed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. When you use it you will at once see why druggists find it hard to get enough to supply the tremendous demand.

No More Ugly Nose Pores

NOTE: These facts about the amazing skin-beautifying virtues of magnesia were learned from the experience of the first hundred thousand women who bought it. The College Girl Film

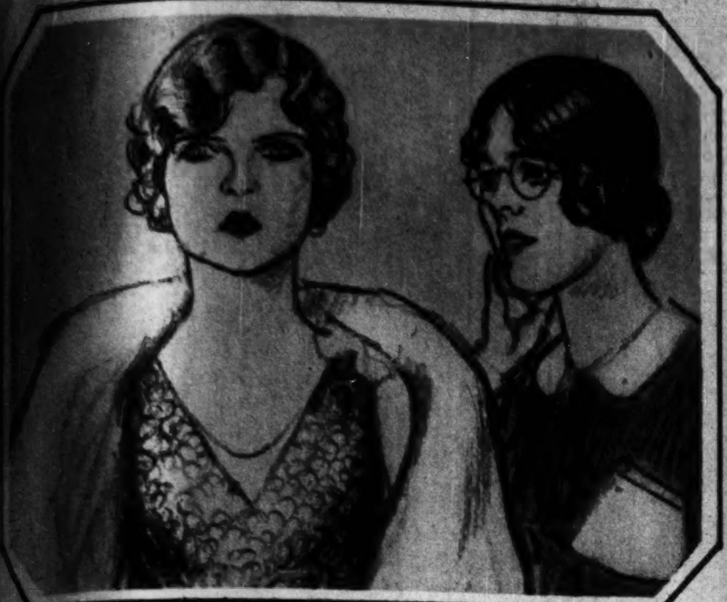
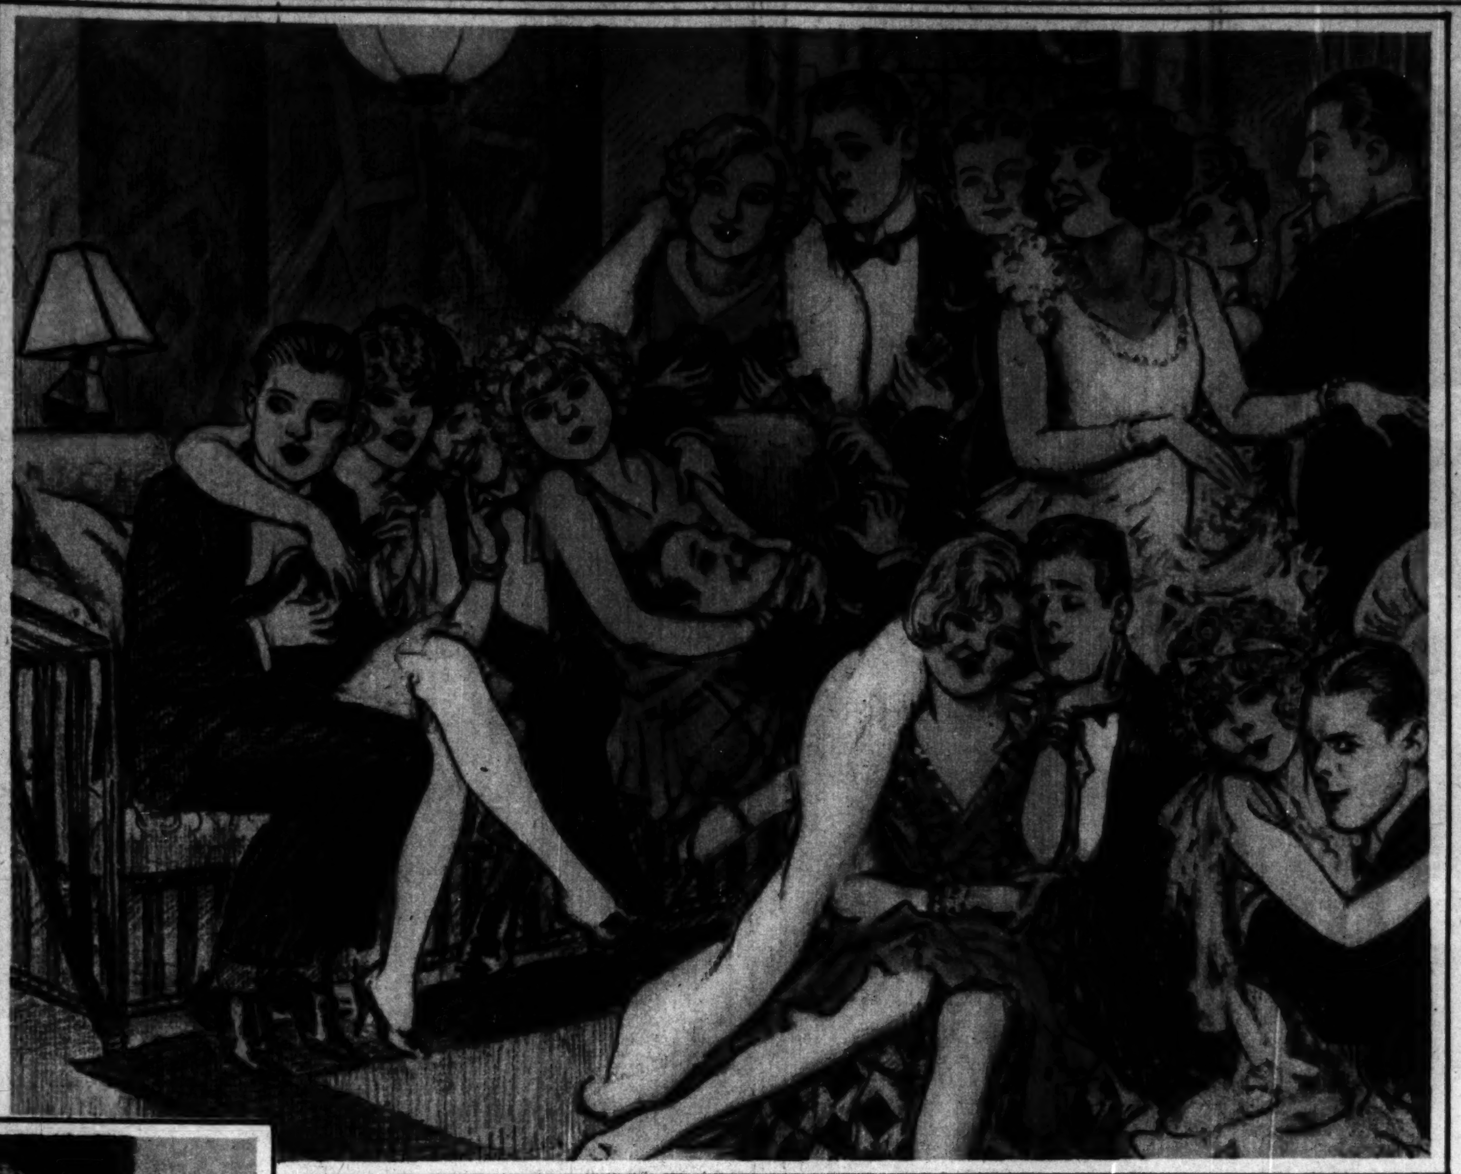
By W. E. Hill

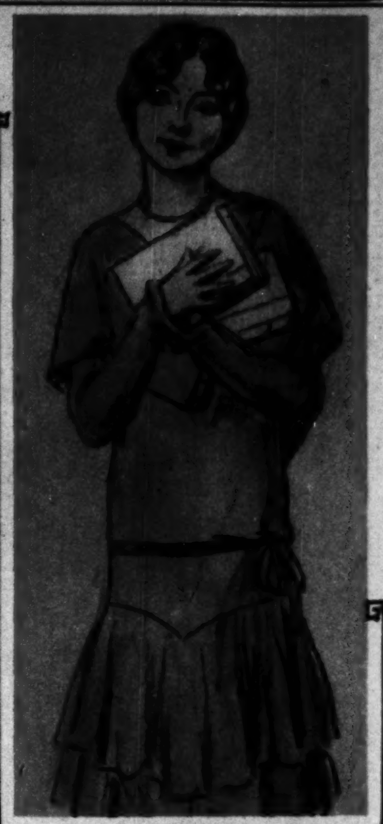
(Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.)



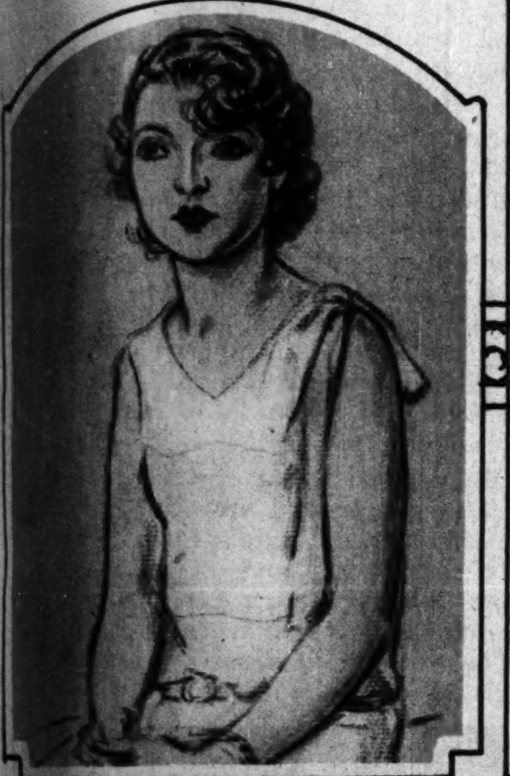
A college girl heroine, particularly if she is terribly wild and stays out raising Ned till four or five every morning, always has a studious roommate who is devoted to her. Often she will go straight to the administration committee when she ought to be reading up for the alumni award to plead for her flaming roommate. "If you only knew Dorothy as I know her," she will say, "you would realize that her blowing up the chemistry 'lab' was just her impetuosity, because she is noble through and through!" And the administration committee promises to let Dorothy off, just this once.



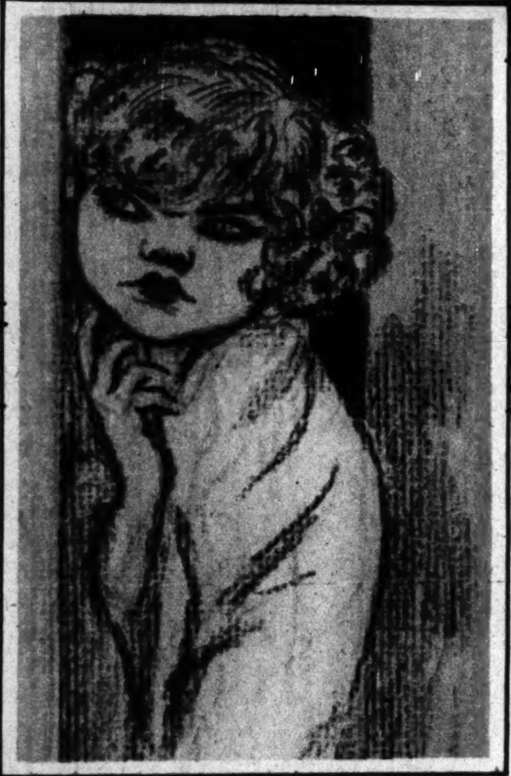
The wild college life, showing a sorority house party at close range, with all the hot stuff that is supposed to go on in collegiate circles. This is a swell chance for the microphones to get in a lot of dirty work with the ukes and the bangerines.



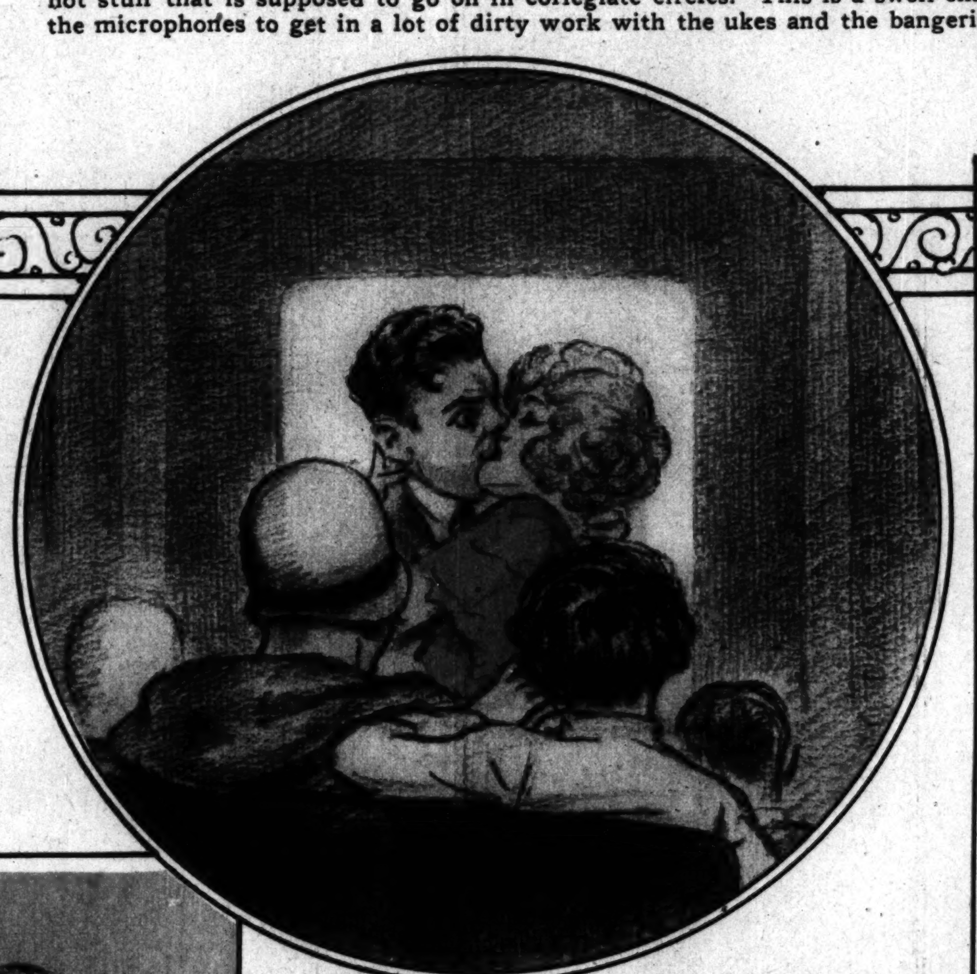
Lila is an old fashioned girl and doesn't go in for petting parties and hooch. Of course the right man comes along and they are excessively happy, and oh, the gasps and sighs that come from the microphone. And when her dream man is publicly disgraced for setting the economics professor's wife on fire and spanking the dean, Lila stands by him because she knows that "Clarence is good and fine, and if you knew him as I know him, you'd know that he couldn't do such a thing!" Well, it all comes out right in the end and Clarence is exonerated.



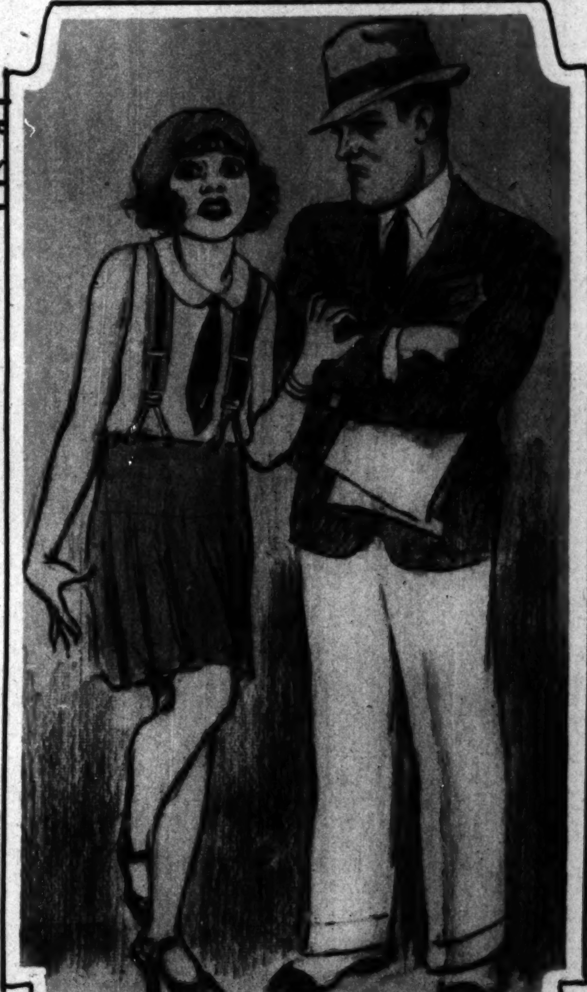
Gertie, the hard-boiled girl, says no end of snappy things, thanks to the gagmen, and when the dean of women reproves her for undue exuberance, Gertie tosses back something like, "Kid, you're the cat's ice cream, all right!" Very sweet and lovable underneath.



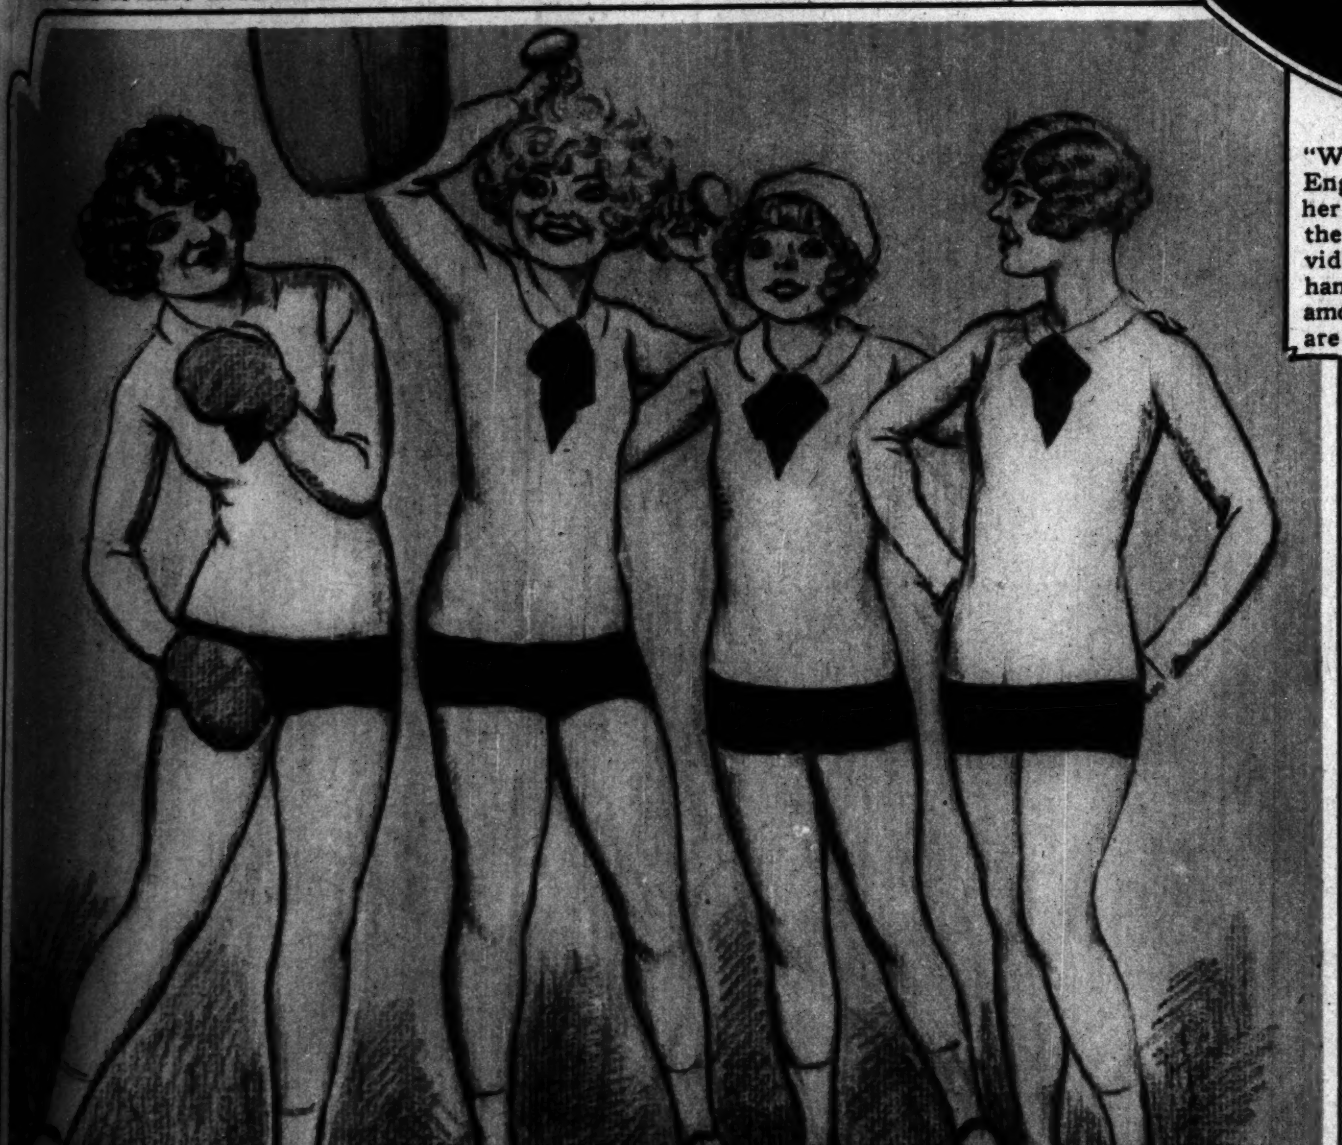
A blonde girl who reads other girls' letters, peeps through door cracks, and sneaks 'round sharp and blunt corners, means trouble ahead in a college girl movie.



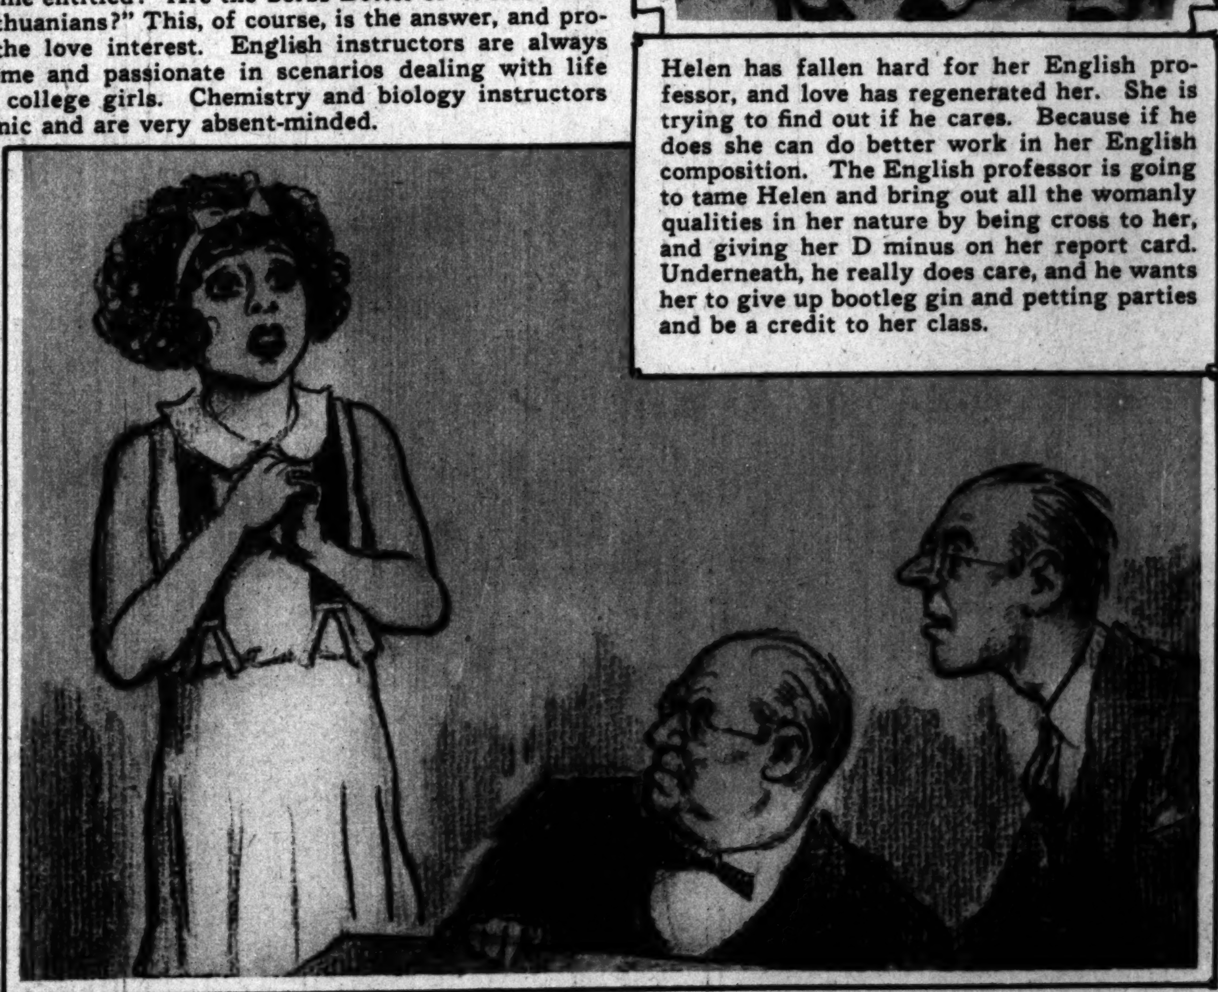
"Why do you hate me, professor?" asked Grace of the English instructor, when she came after hours to hand in her theme entitled: "Are the Serbs Better or Worse Than the Lithuanians?" This, of course, is the answer, and provides the love interest. English instructors are always handsome and passionate in scenarios dealing with life among college girls. Chemistry and biology instructors are comic and are very absent-minded.



Helen has fallen hard for her English professor, and love has regenerated her. She is trying to find out if he cares. Because if he does she can do better work in her English composition. The English professor is going to tame Helen and bring out all the womanly qualities in her nature by being cross to her, and giving her D minus on her report card. Underneath, he really does care, and he wants her to give up bootleg gin and petting parties and be a credit to her class.



Films showing college girls at work and at play never fail to show the gymnasium, with some of the girls doing their daily dozens in cute little gym panties. People in the audience with girl friends or relatives at college like to feel that the girls are taking good care of their health.



Noble little Helen! It seems some one has been sending poison to the college authorities, and Helen's roommate is suspected, because she was seen rinsing out a bowl in the kitchen. So Helen has come before the board of faculty arbitrators to say that she herself is the guilty one, and will they please expel her or penalize her or do whatever they must do because Laura her roommate is innocent, and it would kill her old mother, etc., etc. The board members are so impressed with Helen's deed that they promise to pardon Laura even if she did it, and everything is o. k., with Helen being married to the English instructor in the final close-up.

Details of Chic Mark the Smart Costume

Paris Takes Her Summer Fashions With or Without Sleeves, Belts, and Other Sundries.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—Paris is much concerned with commission and omission in the summer clothes line. You have heard a great deal about the omission of backs from summer sports frocks. Paris considers this a sin, if committed anywhere but on the beach. Aside from the sin there is the question of caprice of weather and the danger of taking cold.

The line of logic concerning sleeves is somewhat similar. It is, however, much more lenient. According to Paris, you may omit sleeves at any time, from any dress, but if you do leave them out, you must have jacket, coat, or little blouse ever ready to cover up such a deficiency. There is a formidable army of smart, sleeveless Paris frocks, each with its own unlined jacket, ready for any emergency when sleeves are necessary. As any little dressmaker can make the collarless, simple cardigan jacket, this addition to the sleeveless dress isn't a great problem.

Belts are another detail of Paris fashions that are involved in this omission and commission problem of dress. For the summer the belt, or sash, if you will, is generally accepted as a part of the fashionable frock. For next fall belts will find themselves much less important as adjuncts to the daytime dress, and from the evening mode they are already being listed under the items marked by Paris, "These omit." The overexaggerated waistline is being limited to such simple stressing as a line of piping or a band of self material, or, maybe nothing at all, except a seam. This for evening, now. Belts still draw a line around the waist on daytime clothes.

Jewelry is another accessory of fashion which is being restricted to certain periods of omission. There was a time when pearls had the run of any costume, from sports to evening. They have been, since then, put aside largely for larger and more decorative jewels. These were called "costume jewels" and they have created a new style category. There is costume jewelry for morning, afternoon and evening. The strain on chic women is correspondingly greater.

The sports jewelry you wear in the morning, made as it is of wood or bone, and of plain metal, has to be put off when the dress or ensemble you wear is of silk or in the slightest degree entitled to be called "elegant." For such frocks the lesser breed of costume jewelry is supplanted by crystals, rose quartz, amethysts, topaz, and other [illegible] stones. Pearls are also allowed. Evening brings out all of the bigger and better jewels that the woman who owns them can support. Emeralds, sapphires, pearls, rubies, etc., big as the stones that make up jewel accessories for an Indian prince, are the smartest of jewels for the evening.

There is a way out of all this jewel complication. The woman who cannot wear, or cannot afford costume jewelry, has the simple thing of replacing them with scarfs or other little detachable draperies. Scarfs and jewels are not worn around the same neck at the same time. Your bracelet problem is much simplified by the commission of your dress of sleeves. One bracelet will do where sleeves are worn. If you leave them off you should wear any quantity from a pair of bracelets to a baker's dozen distributed over the arms as tastefully as possible.

Below this Etlin shows us what is meant by smart sport jewelry. This necklace and bracelet are of highly polished cedar beads, egg-shapes and barrel-shapes, strung on a brown cord with a knot between each one and bright gold upright beads flanking the barrel-like ones. This jewel ensemble is distinctly for morning wear and is exactly the sort of thing to adorn your tweed suit as well as your shantung or linen sport outfit.

Next to it is shown one that Lelong has designed for more formal wear. It's made of perfectly flat barbaric gold loops which weigh no more than a feather, each one intersected by a flat little silver bar which stiffens the chain so that it forms a rigidly smart line around your neck.

The second figure shows one of those with or without sleeve dresses that serve a multitude of needs. This one was created by Jane Regny and it's made of slate blue shantung with encrusted bands of blue and white shantung around the deep V neck and on the pockets and edge of the hipline yoke. Notice the fitted hips and the deep flare of the circular skirt, as well as where the leather belt is placed, for this is an increasingly popular silhouette, this year.

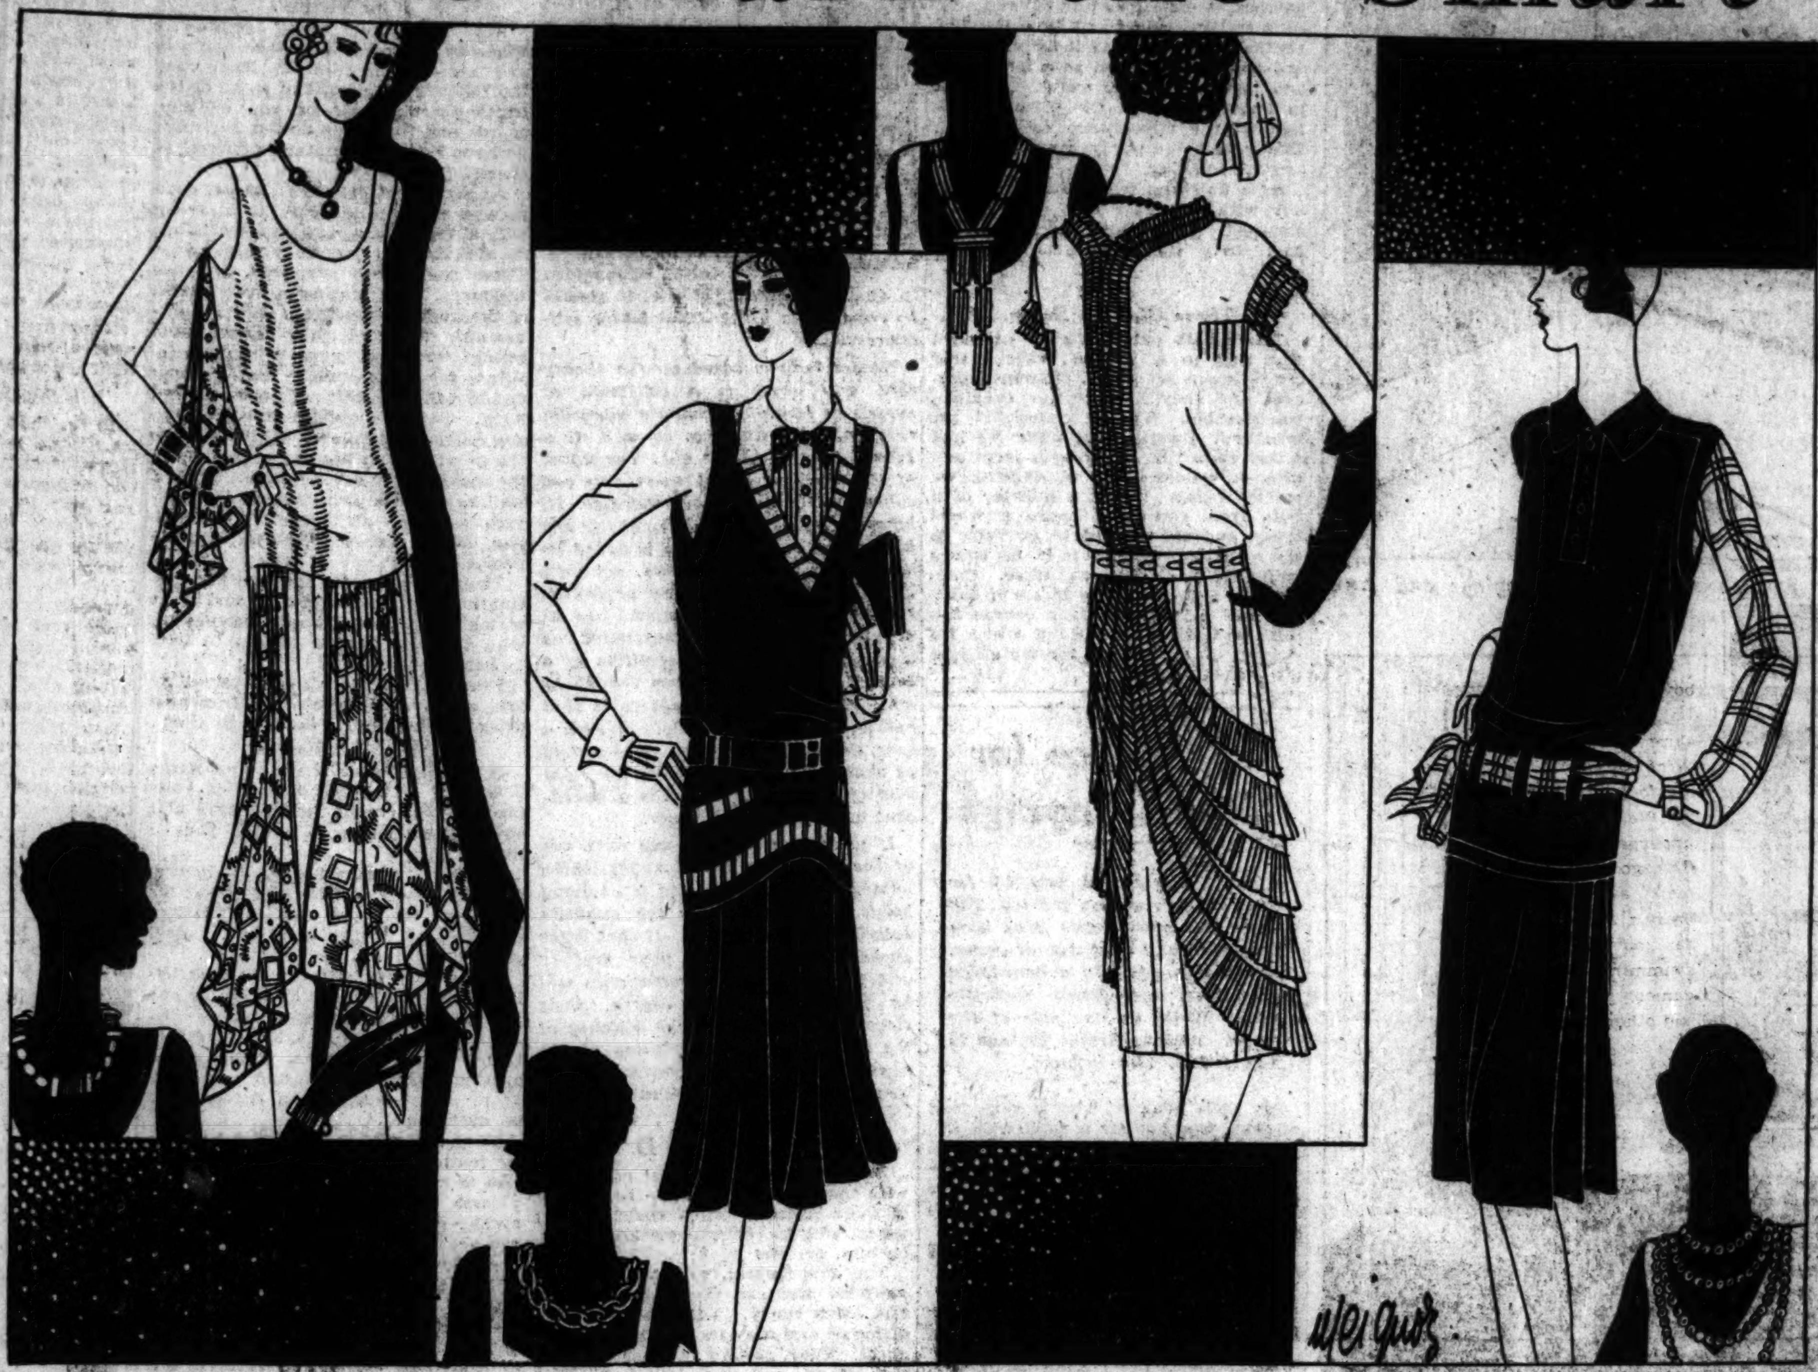
The well tailored shirtwaist is white linen with a black and white polka dotted tie at the neck. Worn without the waist, the dress immediately takes its place in the best sporting tradition. No jewelry is needed for this costume.

Lelong gives us the unusual chain shown beside our third figure for wear with your formal silk afternoon frock or with your informal evening gown. It is made of flat gold bars, each with a narrow silver bar bisecting it, and it's just the sort of thing to put around your neck when you're wearing the kind of dress shown just below it. The one pictured comes from Suzanne Talbot and it is made entirely of canary yellow georgette trimmed with plaited ruffles.

The hat which Suzanne Talbot designed to be worn with this dress is of yellow georgette as well, with violets sewn all over it and a bit of violet tulle serving to mask the face from the sun. The gloves are one of the newest things in Paris, and they are in this case made of violet chamois which harmonizes with the appliques on the yellow belt.

The last figure sketched shows one of Martial et Armand's dresses that can be worn sleeveless or with sleeves. It is made of linen in the new antique red and is worn over a silk shirtwaist in bright Scotch plaid, the same silk in the same pattern making the girdle that is knotted around the hips. Here, too, you have evidence of the smartness of the exaggerated waistline with a hipline snugly fitted by a yoke and the skirt flared in a circular movement below.

Below this sketch you see a necklace in unbreakable crystal, each bead enscrolled with a Chinese design of great delicacy. Agnes designed it and winds it four times around the neck of a very decolleté evening frock. It may also be worn with a chiffon afternoon dress.



Emeralds fit for an Indian prince accentuate the emerald color found in the design of this printed and plain cream chiffon dress seen recently at the Ritz and sketched at the left.

Third, a canary yellow georgette frock with plaited ruffles is signed by Suzanne Talbot, who designed, also the little violet covered hat with its pert mauve tulle veil. The chamois gloves are violet colored, too.

The flat gold and silver chain shown in the upper left hand corner is the sort of jewelry that Lelong designs for frocks as feminine as this one.

You can wear the plaid silk shirtwaist pictured next, with Martial et Armand's antique red linen dress, or you can wear the frock sleeveless, if you prefer.

The necklace below it is of unbreakable crystal beads which are delicately engraved with a Chinese pattern, and they wind their lengths four times around the neck. Designed by Agnes.

Paris Snapshots.

By Bettina Bedwell.

Paris subjects the snake anew for fashion. Sports necklaces of snakeskin, bound in gold, are made into flat necklaces and bracelets by Bucheron.

And ermine fur is another animal product to be treated in unusual ways for the decoration of the smart woman. The great Paris dressmakers are using ribbons of ermine to trim some of the smartest black frocks for summer.

Martial et Armand have introduced the cotton scarf in bright colors, embroidered in wool for the summer frock. This scarf is buttoned around the neck at one end and the rest of its length floats like a cape around the shoulders.

Over-size floppy hats of transparent horsehair braid, checked in pin-size checks of black and white, and trimmed with bright colored satin ribbon, are being worn by smart Parisiennes seen at Longchamps.

The civic traveler puts on her tiny knitted bonnet, fashioned just like a baby's cap, when she goes traveling to the smart French resort this summer. From Schiaparelli.

One Must Have Books—Hence Bookcases!

New Skyscraper Models in Silver and Black That Climb Up and Are Popular—Half Dozen Other Types Available.

By Edith Weigle.

NO house, great or humble, is complete without some provision for books. We may eat in the kitchen (because the small city apartment dispenses with a dining room); we may sleep in beds that hide coyly behind imitation French doors; we may forego the pleasure of a pocket handkerchief lawn and a row of radishes and lettuce all our own, but we cannot live without books.

"A blessed companion is a book—a book that fitly chosen is a lifelong friend," wrote Douglas Jerrold in the 19th century and Martin Farquhar in the same century said, "A good book is the best of friends, the same today and forever." Longfellow sang of > "The love of learning, the sequestered nooks,

> And all the sweet serenity of books."

To the cultured mind books are as necessary as food, and have been for centuries. Monasteries sheltered them during the dark ages, the castles of noblemen roofed them over during the Renaissance, and as far back as the end of the 14th century college libraries in Europe used the desk or stall system. But the average man could not indulge in the possession of books. They were too rare and costly.

Not until the time of Charles II. in England, and of Louis XIV. in France did the bookcase, as we recognize it, appear. By that time cheap printing had made many volumes available to the gentry and upper classes and so cabinetmakers set to work to design appropriate receptacles for them.

Built for the Centuries.

Boule was one of the chief craftsmen in France. He used fine woods and placed books behind elaborate glass doors to protect them from dust and dirt.

So perfectly were bookcases built in Queen Anne's day that in 1929 some excellent examples of them (originals) may be had. I saw a photograph of one recently, created between 1705 and 1710. It was called a "secretaire bookcase" and was made of exceptionally fine burr walnut with the simplicity of line and excellence of workmanship characteristic of the period.

Later Chippendale, Adam, Hepplewhite, and Sheraton designed cabinet bookcases of great beauty and enduring qualities. Mayhew and Ince, little known today, but designers on a par with Chippendale, also created some fine types. One of these, dating back to 1765, has been in Thorpe hall, Peterborough, England, for centuries, and is still as good as ever. It is mahogany with glass lattice doors and its ornamental treatment speaks of French influence. Of course, it is what is called a museum piece today.

The brothers Adam, being architects as well as cabinetmakers, employed the built-in bookcases, seen so often today in reproductions of English paneled rooms. These, being part of the room itself, were particularly beautiful, with arched tops, simple ornamentation, etc. Sheraton, too, was an important figure in the evolution of the bookcase.

And now, having taken a robin's sidelong squint at the history of this piece of furniture, let us see what is on the market today. What variety is there—great or small—what types are most popular, and what are the favorite woods?

Fewer Varieties Today.

First of all, there are too few bookcases for sale. It's a pretty bad indictment of American culture that this is true. There are a thousand and one radio cabinets, a million and one telephone desks, smokers' stands enough to please an amalgamation of all the cigarette companies in the country, but types of bookcases may be boiled down to a half dozen or more. We still find occasional copies of the Queen Anne and Chippendale types, but for the most part the Governor Winthrop secretary bookcase, in its true and adapted forms, the pier bookcase, the glassed in and open book shelves, and the art moderne skyscraper and other varieties, are the popular ones today.

Mention should be made of the fascinating little French night stands that have a shelf for books. A photograph of one appears herewith. Made of fruit wood, it has a little flat side drawer and two holes that serve as handles. Its simplicity and grace make it suitable for use in almost any bedroom.

Of course, the charm of the old fashioned secretary desk, with shelves for books above, will never disappear. I saw a perfect reproduction of a Governor Winthrop desk at the American Furniture Mart that for beautiful lines and excellence of wood would be hard to equal. Its red mahogany was a joy to look at, and when the slanting desk top was lowered there were all the compartments, even to the secret drawers that I used to explore as a child in an old Vermont house on an elm bordered street.

The drawers of these desks have a curving front, the glass doors of the book shelves are latticed, and the top has a graceful broken arch. Excellent copies may also be had in smaller scale, and these, perhaps, would be better adapted to the city apartment or small house. Woods used are maple, mahogany (both red and dark), and American walnut. No house designed in colonial manner is complete without one. And often such a secretary desk is used in a bedroom as well as in the living room or study.

Ideal for the Small House.

In one of the illustrations accompanying this article is a desk similar to the ones described. It would be ideal for the living room of an apartment or small house, for it does not take up much room, yet affords a great deal of space for books, writing material, and for anything you care to put in the drawer space below. The colorful bindings of the books add a decorative touch to the whole room and make it both more livable and more artistic.

Besides this type of bookcase it is possible for every house to have numerous others. Simple but attractive ones may be had unfinished at surprisingly low prices and with the aid of a little ingenuity and the modern miraculous paints and lacquers that dry in a jiffy they can be transformed into fascinating receptacles for books. These have the merit of fitting perfectly into your color scheme of wall paper and draperies, too. They are charming for bedrooms, hallways, or living rooms.

Pier bookcases are popular, also, because they occupy little space, being high and narrow, and most of them have five or more shelves that will hold quite a few books. A pair, one on either side of a fireplace or window, would be most attractive. Most of them have curved and decorative tops, but if you buy a flat topped one you have an ideal place for a favorite pottery jar or pewter bowl filled with flowers, or a modern bit of primavera.

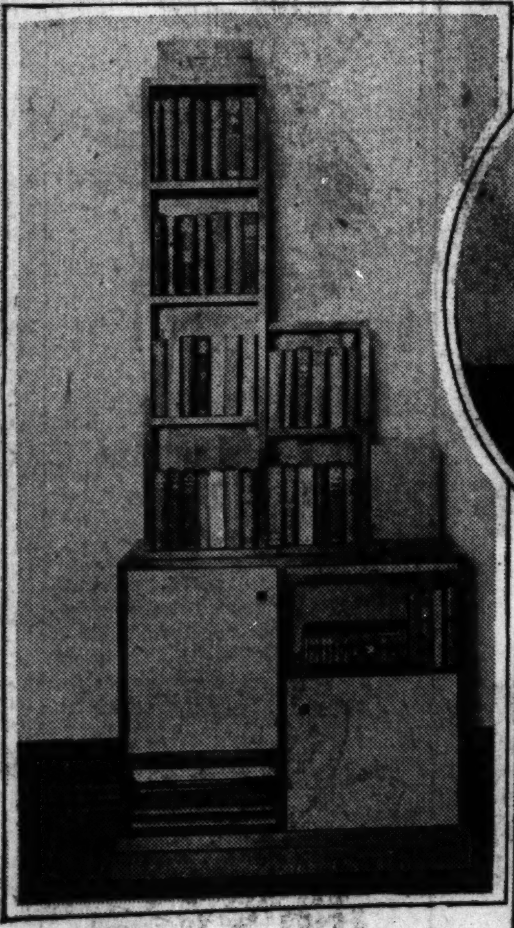
As Effective as a Tapestry.

Hanging shelves are decorative and have been much used in the last few years. They come in any wood under the sun. Put your choicest volumes in them and on one shelf put a little colored jar of trailing ivy and you have something just as effective as a tapestry or a painting.

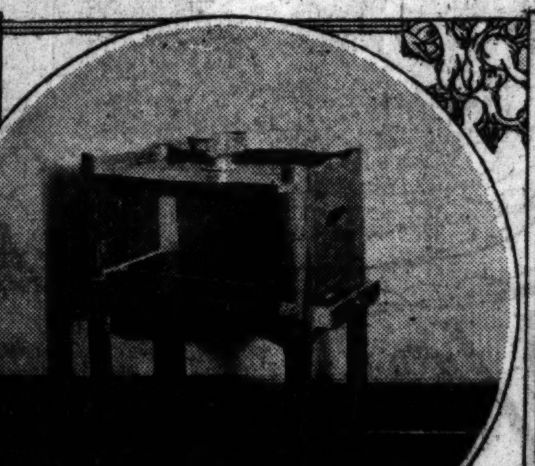
Have you seen the new skyscraper bookcases that go up and up, a step at a time? Paul Frankl, the New York designer, has made some fascinating ones, and of course they have been popular in Germany and France for a long time. Painted black with jade green lining, or silver with black, or blue and magenta, they bring color and the spirit of the times into any room.

Long, low book shelves, occupying almost an entire wall space, are also in the modern mood as are strange and rather weird combinations of desk and bookcase that are built to fit into a corner.

Try visualizing a room with no books in it and you see a cold, uninteresting, stiff apartment. Imagine the same place with books and what a difference! You may grow weary of a radio cabinet or a trick table, but you will never tire of a bookcase. The more you have, the more attractive your home will be.



The skyscraper bookcase shown above is one of the most popular examples of art moderne, and seems particularly adapted to the city apartment.



In the upper circle is a charming French night stand of fruit wood. It is intended for books, but may be used as a telephone stand. A small flat drawer appears at the lower right end.

Wall Paper Repays Careful Selection

WillElla de Campi will be glad to assist the homemaker in any problems pertaining to home furnishings. Address your letter to WillElla de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

By WillElla de Campi.

AMONG people of good taste and discernment in all parts of the country there is a rapidly rising tide of appreciation for wall paper. American wall paper manufacturers have had a great deal of influence in this renewed interest, because they have devoted their energies to the making of really good papers, priced within the reach of the average householder.

Not long ago the only American made papers were of atrocious design, crude coloring and inferior quality. The only really fine papers were those imported from abroad, which were, consequently, high priced and attainable only by the favored few who could afford them. Fortunately today there are excellent domestic designs with which we may make our walls decorative and interesting.

In making a selection the same care and attention should be given to wall papers as that used in buying new furniture. There can be no set rules laid down for governing a choice, as personal preferences differ widely. However, there are fundamental principles which must be considered. No paper can be called good or bad simply because it is of a certain period. The essential elements of good design do not change. The first element to look for in paper for any room is simplicity; the second is harmony of color and line, and the next is proper texture and quality.

After the paper has been passed upon as good, there must be a decision as to its suitability to the type of room in which it is to be used. The size of the room, exposure, and style of furnishings help to determine whether or not the coloring and pattern are appropriate. Very delicate designs and colors should be reserved for bedrooms or small, informal rooms, while dignified designs and colors may be used in living rooms, dining rooms and hallways. Large patterns and strong colors should be employed only in large rooms. If the room is dark, it should have light, warm paper, and if bright and sunny, it should be done in dull tones and cool colors.

Many modern wall paper patterns are based on principles of age old art or are adapted from foreign conceptions, with a freshness and simplicity of line reminiscent of old Greek or Japanese designs. Conventionalized florals of graceful lines and soft tones are greatly favored. These delightful patterns are a far cry from the garish papers of a generation ago, those truly awful papers with their gaudy flowers always demanding to be counted!

Geometric styles are also used a great deal. Diamond designs of various sizes are good in rooms of old or new style, as they have a definite dignity and at the same time a decorative quality which lifts them far above plain monotone backgrounds. Other geometric types which find favor are lattices, plaids, checks and blocks, plaid being the newest. Star papers, polka dots, various types of crosses or similar small geometric patterns in two tone effects fit in admirably with either quaint or ultra modern schemes of decoration.

Shaded stripes are being used successfully. These run horizontally and may be had in charming color combinations: lemon yellow shading to chartreuse green, shell pink to salmon, light blue to violet, etc. These are best used in rooms with high ceilings. Graceful floral designs, carrying interest upward and suggesting height, are more suitable for use in low ceilinged rooms. In all of these modern papers there is a marked absence of realism or naturalism.

Decorative wall paper borders afford fascinating opportunities for adding interest to a plain room. There are many lovely patterns in the market at present. They may be used to frame windows and doors, to outline or accent a dado or cornice, or to cover narrow wooden cornices topping window draperies.

Whatever the type of your own particular rooms may be, the wall paper must not be chosen lightly. It must be remembered that whereas the furniture in a room may be shifted about occasionally to relieve monotony, the wall paper must stay exactly as it is when first put up for an indefinite length of time. It is essential, especially in a room which is to be lived in a great deal, to use a pattern and coloring which will not quickly become tiresome.

An excellent idea, if possible, is to [illegible] or borrow one roll of the paper in question, take it home and hang it up in the room in which it is to be used, where it can be "lived with" for a few days. It is much easier in this manner to reach a decision as to whether it is the right kind of paper or not and many a long disappointment may be avoided.

Done in a pleasing version of art moderne is the city apartment bedroom shown in the first illustration today. The wall paper, in an unobtrusive fabric design, characteristic of the best of this period, is in cream, light gray and ecru. Furniture is painted café au lait, with trims of cinnamon brown, and the woodwork is painted to match this trim.

On the attractive bed there is a cover of cream colored voile, embroidered in ecru silk and bordered in plain voile. The same material is used for long full glass curtains which hang straight to the floor. To afford a note of contrast the overdraperies — looped back in graceful lines—are of lustrous rayon in a pale grape juice color. A little slipper chair is upholstered to match. Another chair, with a stool which converts it into a chaise longue, is done in an interestingly woven three tone fabric in gray, sand and ecru.

Modern lamps, occasional tables, side lights, and mirrors are in keeping with the spirit of the room. The floor covering, repeating the wall paper colors in deeper shades, is particularly interesting. It is of chenille, in strips of taupe, gray and ecru!

French provincial furniture is happily in keeping with a plaid wall paper background in the informal country house living room shown in the second illustration. The paper is in two tones of French blue and peach pink. Woodwork is painted to match the deeper of the two blue tones, and the floor is painted a very dark blue. Plain blue glazed chintz, trimmed with a triple binding of peach, mulberry and green, is used for draperies. Transparent peach casement cloth glass curtains may be drawn together at will.

The daybed in front of double French doors which open out on a terrace, is placed far enough inside the room not to interfere with passage but near enough to the doors for the enjoyment of the lovely view. Boxed seat cushions are upholstered in flowered linen on a blue ground, and extra cushions are of plain mauve linen piped with blue.

Near one end of the daybed is a French provincial arm chair with a seat cushion of tiny flowered calico on a peach ground, quilted and piped in blue. A small fruit wood table, shared by daybed and chair, holds a blue pottery lamp with a peach colored shade.

A few hooked rugs are advantageously placed. This makes a most comfortably cool and pleasant little room, and its plaid paper lends a happy, festive air.

The Fourth of July.

By Eleanor Jewett.

Torpedoes and firecrackers!
Pinwheels and rockets!
On the Fourth of July
There is need for some pockets!

Beware, dogs and stray kittens,
And all who hate noise!
For the Fourth of July
Was just made for the boys.

You may have your parade,
And thrill at the beat
Of the drum and salute
The flag's march down the street.

But the FOURTH of July,
With its glorious noise,
Was truly just meant
As a tribute to boys!

A Hat Trimming Party.

The most interesting and unique party I ever attended was a hat trimming party. All the ladies brought untrimmed hats and bits of trimming such as lace, velvet and feathers. The gentlemen were given these materials and they were placed at a long table and told to do their worst. The one to finish first won the prize regardless of the appearance of the hat. The results certainly were amusing and astonishing.

As a finishing touch the men came out with the hats on. Everybody shrieked. Everybody said it was the best party they had ever attended.

Three Glorious Hours.

The nicest party I ever attended was due to a broken wheel. Our crowd has a set of old fashioned parents and they hamper our evenings considerable. Twelve o'clock is the zero hour always. One night we had a hay rack ride party to a farm and after a couple hours of dancing we started home. About a quarter of a mile from the farm house a wheel broke and we all had to go back to the house. It was three hours before transportation was at hand, three glorious forbidden fruit hours of dancing and gayety. And of course the folks couldn't say a thing when we showed up at 3 a. m. for we all had the perfect alibi.

My little nephew, who is very fond of dogs, was out for a walk with me, last Sunday when we met a gentleman and lady who had with them a fluffy furred little dog. They seemed to know Bobby for they bowed to me and greeted him with a smile.

After they had passed by I asked "Who are those people?"

Mary Elizabeth always wanted to walk around the stone wall when they played in the park. Her daddy had warned her that she might fall, and one day she did take a tumble. She cried so hard that he tried to soothe her by saying:

"Well, you got too close to the edge, didn't you, dear?"

What's in Your Name? Numerology Tells

Numerology is a science of extremely ancient origin, coming down through Greek, Chinese, and Hebrew sources. Pythagoras made use of it. According to it, each letter in the alphabet has a number, each number a special meaning. A person's character, talents, and history can be read from his original name and birthdate. One's name should be numerically harmonious to one's birthdate. If not, it should be changed to bring about better self-expression.

Numerology is based on the theory that any name is a collection of sounds or numbers having a vibration or rhythm of its own, as well as a special meaning, and that the effect of its repeated sound upon any one called by it is helpful or otherwise. If, however, a person conditioned by one kind of numerical rhythm is called by a name in another rhythm, not only his nerves but his whole organism, and consequently his actions, are as definitely jarred and constricted as they would be by the repetition of a discord on the piano—even though he may have become so used to it that nothing is felt consciously. In such a case the name—the first one—should be changed to some other in the right rate of vibration. This has a beneficent effect upon the owner.

If your first name begins with one of the letters of the alphabet whose numerological significance is analyzed below you will possess the qualities described for that letter. If that letter appears anywhere in your first or middle name these characteristics will be yours, in some degree, their strength varying with the distance of the letter from the beginning of the name and modified, of course, by certain other characteristics in the name.

By Yvonne D

Does your first name commence with the letter O? Or does that of any of your friends? Then the following traits will be characteristic of you, or him, or her:

You are modest, and interested in spiritual matters. You are versatile and learn easily. You are very fond of music and may be gifted in this respect. Your powers of concentration are strong, and your will firm. You, too, like those whose names commence with the letter M, suffer in silence. It is not easy to convince you, and you gather knowledge from all sources—you learn by absorption rather than by rule, however. You should always cultivate a hobby and pursue it.

Your nature is strongly beneficent and you are always overshadowed and taken care of. There is apt to be some discord in your married life; but you have the ability to smooth and "to pour oil on troubled waters." This ability helps to straighten or alleviate these difficulties.

Beware at times of being too subtle or even crafty. And take care of heart and liver by proper eating and living.

P for Vitality.

Does your first name commence with the letter P? Does the name of any one of your friends? Then read the following for a list of some of the traits characteristic of you or him, or her, and see if you do not hereafter perhaps better understand yourself or them:

A person whose first name commences with the letter P has a strong will, a keen brain, and much vitality. He also has a very definite personality. These people can prophesy, and are dreamers. They are lovers, even slaves, of the home. Sometimes they are dictatorial, will not take advice, and cannot work out plans originated by others for them—unless this is modified by other qualities of the name and birth. They are erratic and eccentric, and seldom understood. That they are the great burden bearers of the world, the architects of other people's lives as well as of their own. Musicians, lawyers, painters—all in one. Poets, artists, and writers also—very gifted people.

They are given, however, to procrastination, and to speculation, and must watch these tendencies. Speculation with them is almost certain to lead to bankruptcy.

Brave, frank, loyal, however, they are, and very determined. Transcendental philosophy is natural to them.

Q for Art Lovers.

Is the first letter of your first name a Q? Or is it that of any of your friends? Then read the following and see if these traits do not fit you or him or her:

A love of music, poetry, literature, and philosophy. An excellent head for business. Gifts of speech, writing, cheerfulness, hope, and love. And psychic ability.

One with this letter as the first letter of his name must lead. He or she will take long journeys during life. All those bearing this letter first in their names, however, must guard against procrastination and uncertainty in themselves, and a tendency to be over hopeful.

They are good lawyers and bankers by instinct. And they almost always rise to eminence. They are good providers. Often they either marry too much—too often—or not at all. They are not apt to be happy in marriage—but this fact is modified by other letters in the name or birth date.

Their love nature is intense. And they seek burdens. They have a very definite mission in life, the nature of which they should endeavor to discover as early as possible. They are splendid orators. Often they are very sucessful in dealing with large corporations, railroads, hospitals, and this type of institution or business. They should deal also, to be successful, only with people of position.

R Indicates Discrimination.

Does your first name commence with the letter R?. Or does the name of any one you know? Then see if the following characteristics do not belong to either yourself or your friend. They may even perhaps make more clear an understanding of yourself and others:

Those who have an R for the first letter of the first name are born to heal and counsel others. They show very keen discrimination in everything and have a talent for law and for becoming physicians. They nearly always win in any law suit in which they become involved. Their love of home is great, but they are nearly always somewhat unfortunate in their home conditions, for one reason or another. Imagination is very strong in them, and a gift for writing. At times they are deeply melancholy, but even when most so they can be humorous also, or see humor. Wisdom, prudence, shrewdness, benevolence and tact are theirs, in some degree most certainly.

They may become great. They almost always stand out as superior to their associates or those around them.

S Suggests Thoughtfulness.

Is the first letter of your first name an S? Or is it the first letter of the name of any of your friends? Then the following traits in him or her or you will be evident:

You are thoughtful and easy to please generally. You have a quick temper, which is also very quickly over with. How much you show this depends upon other factors in your name and birth; but the impulse is there. You are also the born peacemaker. Your love for home is very strong and you are always trying to improve conditions in your home in every way. In thought and action you show originality. Your religious feeling is strong, but it is probably religion pure and simple, rather than doctrine.

You are something of a dreamer, as a rule easy to please. Headstrong but lovable, inventive, and literary, you are quite successful in handling real estate and buildings.

It is a letter that sometimes indicates a large amount of loneliness, so that if you marry at all—and these people are apt to marry rather young—even if happily married you have strongly the feeling of being alone. There is an ability to both soothe and sting in the owner of a name with an S for the first letter—the stinging is rather a desire to tease than one to actually wound.

T Stands for Leadership.

Does the first letter of your name happen to be a T? Or does that of any of your friends? Then see how many of the following traits you are familiar with in yourself, or in any one whom you know:

Capability in domestic art. A quick brain. Ability for drawing and sculpture. A good physician, a good parent.

Those with a T for the first letter of their first names are also the helpers of the world—they are continually taking people under their wings and continually trying to bring their various friends into contact with each other. They love to lead, and to have things their own way. They are very intuitional, rather exacting, and very devoted to their own.

To doubt and to investigate is characteristic of these people.

U for Exclusiveness.

Does your first name commence with the letter U? Does the first name of any of your friends? Then the following characteristics will be true of him or her or you:

You or he or she is an extremist, especially emotional. You will be way up or way down, though you do not stay very long in a depressed state. You are dignified and exclusive, warm-hearted, faithful, artistic, and erratic. And a good parent.

You dislike advice very much. You may listen, but you will probably pay very little attention as far as your action is concerned.

You desire travel, you see over large spaces mentally, and you have a quick brain, and are very analytical. You are not usually so very happy. You are proud-spirited and unsettled. Acting and music are your interests and gifts. You undertake many things but do not finish many. And you do not like to work with your hands, though you are often very capable in so doing.

Velveeta is made with most scrupulous care

There's a reason for the exquisite flavor of Velveeta; a reason for its velvety texture, and especially for its exceptional wholesomeness. It is first purely a milk product in the form of cheese.

But Velveeta is also something more. Velveeta represents the contribution of science to the art of cheese making. Through the aid of scientific research, we are at last able to combine in a cheese product all those precious health-giving qualities of the rich whole milk. By a special process we extract from the whole milk these additional Vitamins, Lactose (sugar of milk), Calcium and other milk minerals, and these we include in the making of Velveeta. The result is a product that looks like cheese, tastes like cheese, but which because of this added food value really should be called a super-cheese.

You can use Velveeta the same as you would use cheese. It spreads like butter. It can be sliced when chilled. It melts, dissolves and blends readily with other foods for all cooking purposes.

Children love it and it's as digestible as milk itself. Try a package—the family will remind you to buy it often.

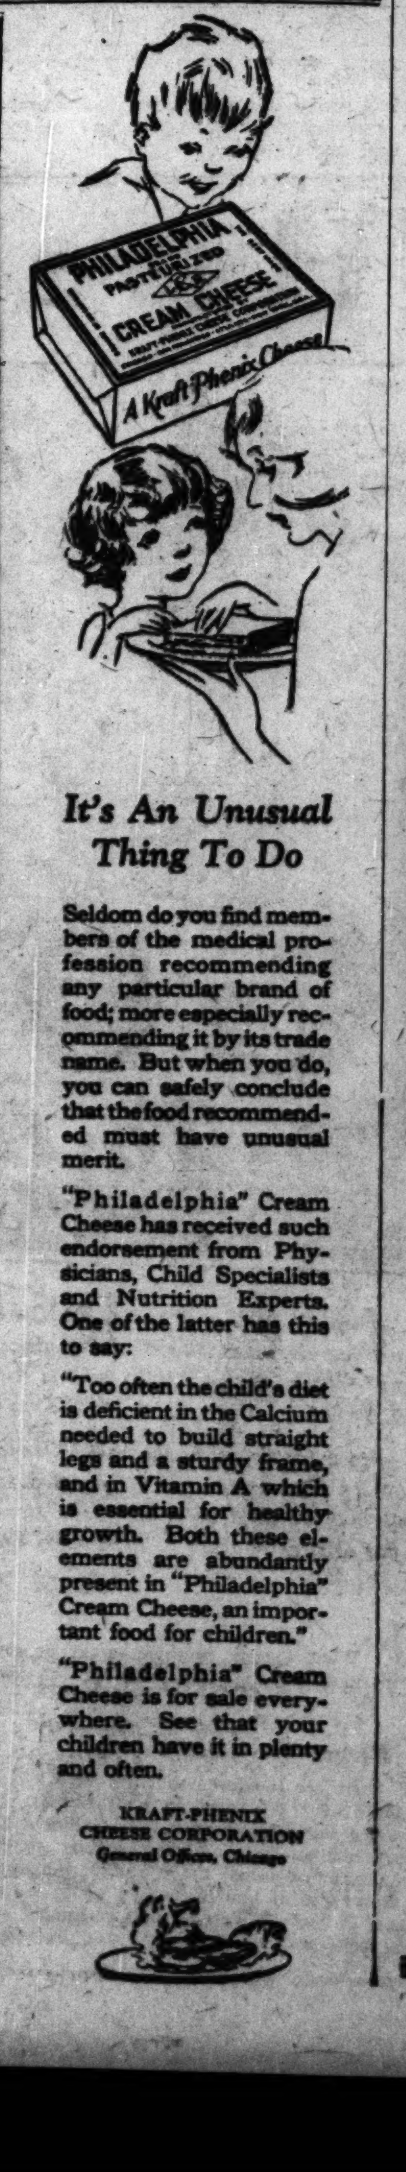
Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation



It's An Unusual Thing To Do

Seldom do you find members of the medical profession recommending any particular brand of food; more especially recommending it by its trade name. But when you do, you can safely conclude that the food recommended must have unusual merit.

"Philadelphia" Cream Cheese has received such endorsement from Physicians, Child Specialists and Nutrition Experts. One of the latter has this to say:

"Too often the child's diet is deficient in the Calcium needed to build straight legs and a sturdy frame, and in Vitamin A which is essential for healthy growth. Both these elements are abundantly present in "Philadelphia" Cream Cheese, an important food for children."

"Philadelphia" Cream Cheese is for sale everywhere. See that your children have it in plenty and often.

utting Away Age: What Plastic Surgery Can Do

by Donnelly

EW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.] — The subject of plastic surgery I have evaded for the simple reason that it [..] that has become pretty badly [..] with sharks, or, a word more [..]ly used to differentiate dis[..] surgeons from ethical ones.

It is natural that work, such as [..] surgery where it applies to [..]'s looks, would attract a body [..]tans to prey upon the female [..] upon frantic quest for youth. [..] secrecy with which the work is [..]ed on lends another feature for [..]ck to prey upon, for women [..] advertise among themselves, [..] the fact that they have been [..] a cosmetic surgeon.

However, from various quarters I [..] of the constantly increasing num[..] of women who are submitting [..] faces to this surgical form of [..]ment. Many have the work done [..] this country. Others use their Eu[..] vacation as a period for facial [..]ation.

Seek Information.

While I have bent backward a bit [..] a subject that undoubtedly [..] women, her beauty and treat[..] characteristic of the immediate [..], the pressure of requests for [..]ation does seem to demand some [..]tation on the topic. The demand [..] youth or its clever imitation cer[..]ly does not let up in public taste [..] as the days go on. And so [..] women are led to believe that [..] cannot afford to get old, in busi[..] life or domestic, professional cir[..] or non, they're going to grasp [..] straw that blows their way. If [..]formed, the chances are ten to [..] they will be persuaded into the [..] of nonethical practitioners.

[..] always held the conscientious [..]tion that information on this [..] of plastic surgery should come [..] reputable medical sources. And [..] there never would have been [..] difficulty getting the charlatans, [..] advertising practitioners to talk, [..] trouble has been to get ethical [..]geons of recognized repute to open [..] the subject.

However, in her widely informing [..] called "Ageless Youth" [Crow[..]] Dr. Charlotte C. West offers a [..] on the subject that fills a [..] for the bewildered lay woman. To begin with, the woman physi[..] reminds us that none of the [..]ods employed today for preserv[..] and beautifying the body are new. [..] common impression that plastic [..]gery—reconstructive work of the [..] and neck, particularly—originated [..]thin recent years as a result of the [..]ilations sustained by the soldiers [..] the world war is erroneous. The [..] resurrected plastic surgery, Dr. West says. It brought it into prominence in the occident. In the orient, as well as in ancient Rome, plastic surgery for cosmetic purposes was constantly being resorted to.

Greeks Believed in Exercise.

We have no records that the Greeks made use of it, Dr. West finds, and her doubts that they ever did are founded on the facts of their splendidly conducted lives, based on the most rigid hygienic principles of fresh air, sunlight and highly systematized, specialized exercises. These so beautified the Greek race that there was no need for renewing and restoring old tissues.

"They were never permitted to grow old," says Dr. West. "However, they led leisurely lives, which is impossible for us today. We are swept along by the oncoming tide, by the mad rush of our daily, hourly existence, and so plastic surgery for cosmetic purposes has grown in favor by leaps and bounds."

This is especially true, Dr. West adds, since some of our best surgeons, realizing the grave need for it and the graver need for ethical surgeons of recognized repute to lift it out of the hands of the unqualified into the realms of a highly specialized art in surgery, are practically devoting themselves to this work.

"Here in America," Dr. West continues, "we are particularly fortunate in having surgeons of the greatest skill located in various sections of the country."

Deformities caused by accidents or congenital defects, as well as loose, sagging tissues, due to faulty habits and many other causes, are dealt with by ingeniously carried out operations by various masters in their fields.

Restoring Youthful Lines.

To restore the youthful outline of the human face is, in Dr. West's opinion, a satisfactory operation. The tissue is lifted by a series of repeated incisions under the hairline at the temple and around the ear. The loss of the firm contour of the lower jaw is the bogey that drives women willy-nilly seeking relief. When the lower face begins to drop and the soft tissues sag below the bony framework, it betokens years despite one's age.

Dr. West outlines three types of neck that, in her judgment, respond satisfactorily to skillful surgical work. The "gobblers" neck, in which there is a mass of loose tissue extending from the chin to the line of the collar bone, is one. The lifting, when properly done, is made around the hair line, in front of and behind the ear, so that traces of operative measures are completely concealed.

Then the irreducible double chin, or triple, is another condition which lends itself well to operative procedure, in our authority's judgment. And the neck that has lines, wrinkles, and is otherwise broken down, usually the slender type which becomes scrawny with neglect, is a third condition which yields to plastic work. In such case the lines of incision are made behind the ears. The opposing surfaces are brought together perfectly by the skilled surgeon so that no trace of the incision should be discernible.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THE ultra new sun back tennis dress is much in evidence this summer, and pattern No. 2566 will be just the one for you to make such a dress for yourself by. This is one of the newest designs for a sports frock. The skirt and waist are cut separately and joined under a suede belt. The blouse is cut in two pieces, and has drop shoulders that form all the sleeves necessary. The neck is quite open at the front in V shape, and is trimmed with applied bands. This band extends below the end of the opening and is button trimmed.

At the lower right side of the blouse is a dear little inserted pocket. The skirt is cut in two parts, box plaited across the front, and cut with a circular flare at the back, to sway with every movement.

Lay the front of the skirt on a table to put the box plaits in, and after transferring every mark from the pattern to the material, lay the plaits, working from the top towards the bottom, and first pinning each one. Before basting, see that the under side of each plait is as smooth as the outside. If there is even a slight twist, remove the necessary pins and fix it.

Orchid rajah silk, white linen, pale blue washable flat silk crêpe, flesh colored cashmere jersey, or any of the beautiful printed cottons will be attractive looking. This dress can also be made with a high round neck at the back for general sports occasions.

Pattern No. 3118 is a charming design for a dress for small girls. It features the new round neckline, scalloped hemline, and yoke effect made by the soft shirring at either side of the front. The dress is cut in two parts, back and front, and has drop shoulders that form short sleeves. If full length ones are preferred, there is a pattern for a one piece sleeve that is joined to the drop shoulder, and at the wrist is gathered into narrow, fitted bands. The shoulders and under arms are the only seams, and French ones are always good when used on thin materials.

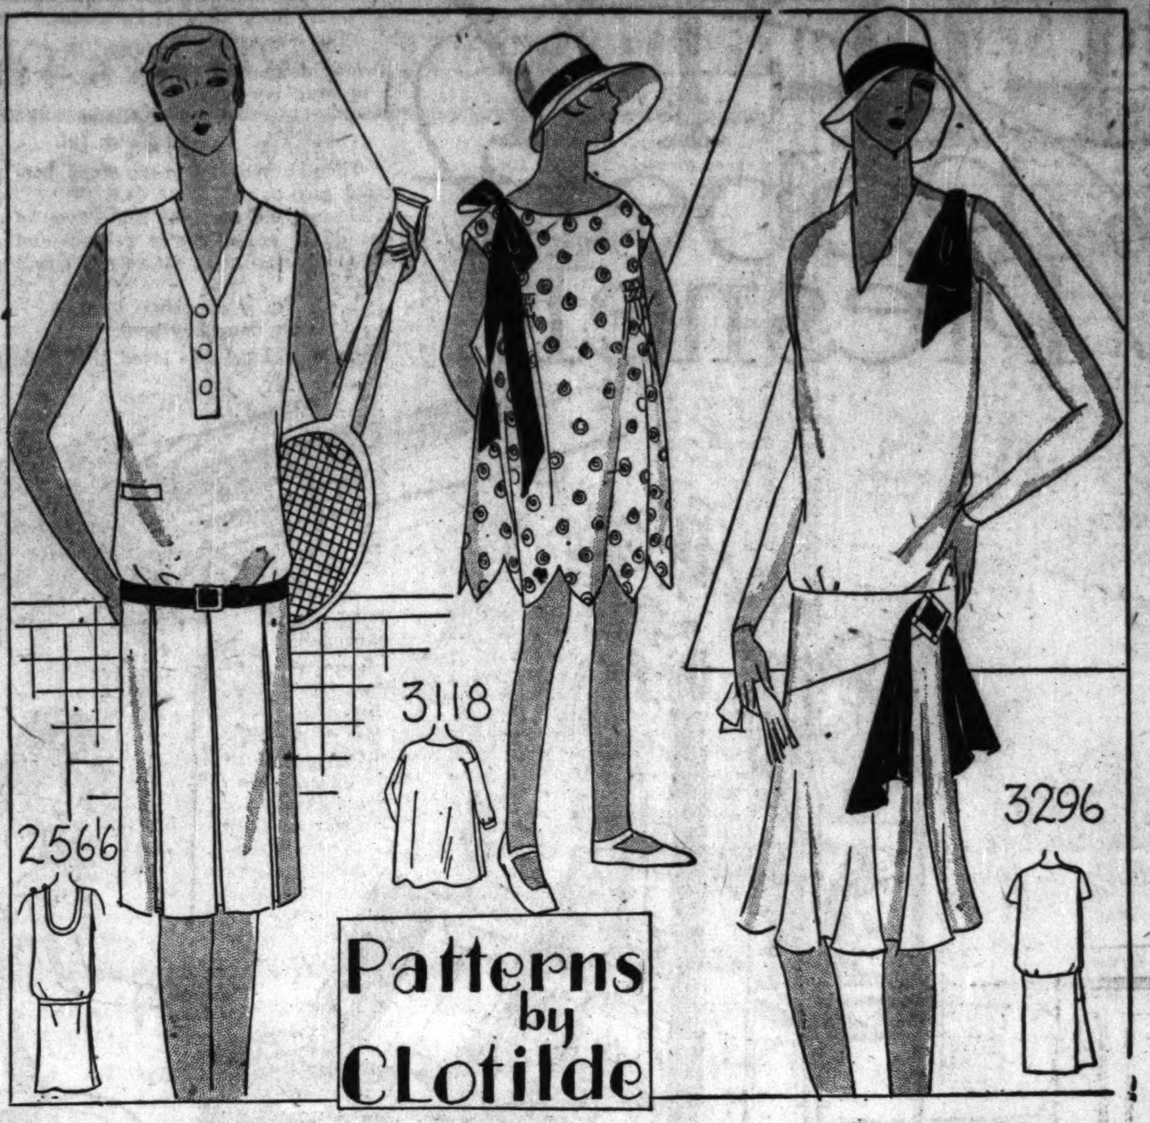
Where the front is slashed, shirred and stitched to the upper slashed edge, run several rows of small gathering stitches, pull the gatherings up close and lay the gathers well. Then pull out so as to be the same length as the upper edge. Sew in a wrong side seam, having it about one-quarter inch wide at the armhole and tapering it off to nearly nothing at the opposite end. Overcast this seam and lay towards the neck. Then cut a strip of the dress material just enough longer and wider than the stitched seam to allow the four edges to be evenly turned in, and baste this over the stitched seam so that the lower turned in edge just covers the stitching.

Then stitch this in place, stitching close to the edge. This will make this slashed place strong, and if you like and are using a plain material for the dress, it will be pretty to use a single featherstitch or small cross stitch on the right side, to give this the appearance of a trimming band.

Dotted dimity, orchid organdy, pale blue voile, flowered organdy, taffeta, printed sateen or tiny checked pink gingham will be smart for its development.

Pattern No. 3296 reveals a new arrangement of a hip yoke in diagonal treatment, with fluttering circular fullness below. The upper and lower parts of this attractive dress are cut separately and joined. In the back the dress is quite plain, and in the front the neck is cut in a deep V. This is generally becoming, besides making the getting into and out of it quite simple. A bow at the left shoulder and another at the left side of the yoke make the only trimming. The pattern provides for short and long sleeves, the long ones made close fitting by means of a dart. The neck may be finished with a wrong side facing, or a narrow bias binding used, and the sleeve edges should be finished in the same way.

It will be wise, after the dress is put together, to let it hang for a few days so as to give the front a chance to stretch. Then it can be evened off and hemmed or bound. Printed silk crêpe in capucine tones, with bows in an orange shade; flat silk crêpe in pastel tones, georgette crêpe, printed voile, shantung, printed rajah, and flowered chiffon are suggestions.



2566—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 40 inch material.

3118—Child's dress. Sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 8 requires 1⅝ yards of 32 inch material.

3296—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 40 inch material with ⅝ yard of 36 inch contrasting.

Saves the Sugar.

After having threshers for dinner, she told her daughter to save all the sugar left in the bottom of the coffee cups, saying she would use it to sweeten apple sauce. This surely was her pet economy. M. E. S.

Sally's Second Party Is a Talkie Full of Laughs

By Sally Joy Brown.

NOW for the news of our second party of the summer!

It's to be at McVicker's theater on Thursday, July 11, to see the first appearance in the talkies of the men who have been called "the funniest men in America"—the Four Marx Brothers! And we're going to see them in the same hilarious farce, "Cocoanuts," with which they scored such a hit on Broadway three years ago. It's a picture all Chicago will be talking about and we'll be among the first to see it!

I'll tell you more about the picture tomorrow—how the Four Marx Brothers—Groucho, Harpo, Chico, and Beppo—try to run a hotel in Florida, and all the funny things that happen to them! What you want to know now is how to win invitations, and here's how simple it is:

Write me a letter, just telling me why you'd like to come and why you'd particularly enjoy seeing this picture—whether you like the talkies or don't—all of you know what you like in the movies, so tell me about some of the pictures you've seen, who your favorites are, and why.

It all comes down to this: I want to find the hundred girls and boys who'll like this party most, and I can decide that from the best and most interesting letters written to me.

I'll choose my guests next Thursday and announce their names in Sunday's TRIBUNE—so your letter must be in the mail by Wednesday afternoon. I suggest that you get at them immediately, and be sure to give your name, street address, and age; otherwise you cannot be considered, no matter how much your letter may deserve it.

And the party will be a week from Thursday, July 11.

Here below are the winners for my White City party. I shall send a letter to each one, so if your name is in the list watch for your invitation with the letter telling you the plans for meeting.

The Story of Jack and Jean, Who Find Journey's End on Their Own Porch Swing

QUEST . . . that's what it was; a quest as old as men. Nothing to do with galleons plunging westward nor any fountain of youth in some far land. Neither did it concern the gold of vanished Incas nor treasures hidden away in the earth. It was the quest of a will-o'-the-wisp, an illusive, spiritual thing that had touched the hearts of a man and a woman with subtle magic. It had come . . . and gone . . . leaving them staring at one another in dismay. There was no road of earth to point the way. Money could not repurchase one tiny moment of its beauty. Yet Lieut. Jack McKimm tucked $50 in his inside pocket, all that he had, and set out in his dilapidated car. Quest!

His goal lay a thousand miles to the north. He calmly expected the car to do its part, for he had calculated everything to a nicety; so much for oil and gas, so much for blowouts, so much for food. It all came to $42, set aside in his billfold for that particular purpose. That much he could spend. He had been cleared at Fort Demming and relieved of duty, which meant that his bills had been paid—the post exchange, the officers' club, commissary, laundry and the mess. He was free; free for one long month before it would be necessary for him to report to another station. And his surplus, over all, was $50, buried deep in the inside pocket of his uniform. A month! It was enough time for what he wanted to do, it seemed to him.

As the car clattered over the dirt road he began to sing a doughboy chanty:

I'm a doughboy born
And a doughboy bred,
And when I die
I'll be a doughboy dead.
One stripe, two stripes, three stripes
Or none.
I'll take my bayonet
And a doughboy gun—etc.

It was a glittering day, still too early for the heat. The sky was fleckless. Across the great waste of parade ground squatted the summer camp of the regiment. Beyond, the administrative area began, a group of sunbitten, paintless structures, relics of 1918. One of them was the officers' club, a strange name for so barren a place. Only the night before he had been there to drink a pink drink out of a bottle and to say good-by. The officers' club! A broken victrola, half dozen magazines, a few chairs and a soft drink bar. "Good-by and be damned," he interpolated into his song.

The car rattled on past the post exchange, the postoffice, the athletic field and the hospital, the only modern building of the lot. "Large enough for the whole regiment to be sick in," he had said once.

Beyond headquarters he suddenly slowed down, then turned into a sandy lane bordered with parched grass. He rode a little way in silence, then stopped. There is a shack with a screened-in porch, one of a dozen all in a row; second lieutenants' quarters, all alike in structure, made of clapboards from the saw mill. They were often called "the slave quarters." It was the attempts at adornment that made the difference between them, for one had tried growing morning glories, another had used grass seed. Some had done a little painting and others had spent hours in the making of a cinder walk lined with whitewashed pebbles. But the sun was too strong and water scarce. The whitewashed pebbles looked the best.

Just why McKimm had interrupted his happy journey to come here he did not quite know himself. Some strange last rite, perhaps. He sat very still, looking at one of the little buildings. A chinaberry tree in front of it was in bloom. Its oriental sweetness reached him faintly. He breathed of it . . . and remembered how he and Jean had come to Demming, to this little cardboard house.

A SCREEN door slammed distantly. A dog barked; the same dog he had so often heard at night. In the rear of one of the buildings a woman's voice called, "Albert! Come here to me!" Mrs. King! He remembered when Albert was born. It didn't seem possible that three years had gone. A porch swing squeaked. My God! That porch swing . . . his porch swing. Jean had wanted it and he had bought it, gone into debt for it, too. That had been on their first day together.

On just such a morning they had come to this spot in a natty little roadster, gleaming new in the sun.

"O, how cute!" Jean had said, looking at the house.

"It'll have to do," he had answered. She was so new to the army. Curiously they had gone in and, hand in hand, inspected the three rooms that were to be their home, after which they had sat down close together on the top of the three sagging steps that led to the porch. The quartermaster had promised them their allowance of furniture and the truck was on its way.

"It's not much, honey, but we'll be happy, won't we?" How he had wanted assurance then.

"What's the difference? We can be happy anywhere," she had answered.

"Atta girl."

"Besides, I can fix it up a lot. You'll see——"

It had thrilled him to listen to her plans. Then the truck had come. They stood aside, all eagerness to watch each precious piece, but the quartermaster's grab bag in no way resembles a Christmas stocking. Two sweating bucks unloaded a few nondescript chairs, two tables, the tops of which had been scratched and ringmarked by preceding generations, two chests of drawers that were hard to open, one mirror in a painted frame, two iron cots with mattresses that were rust marked and old, several cheap, small rugs with an odor of dust and must. A two burner gas stove and an icebox with a broken hinge were already in the house.

She had directed the placing of everything, but when the men had gone he saw that her eyes were brimming.

"Darling, it's the best he had for us," he had said. "I—I am only a second lieutenant—and——" She had rushed into his arms.

"O, Jack—it's—it's all right—I had planned to make this such a pretty place—but I can't—with this—this junk——"

"We can buy some things, darling—this is just a loan till we get started——"

"Can we, Jack? O, that'll be grand! When?"

"Any time."

"Let's begin with the porch. We'll live out there, probably. We need a porch swing—wide and comfortable."

"Suits me."

"And some draperies—a couple of nice easy chairs——"

"Let's go to town and look."

"All right!"

"I'll open a charge account."

"That's a swell thought."

And so they had begun with debt.

WEEKS slipped by. The little world of an army post has its social whirl and Demming was a large post. For a time Jean's party dresses were more than equal to the occasions in their freshness, but as party followed party during the spring season she came to know the humiliation of wearing them many too many times, until she hated the sight of them.

McKimm had been assigned to a company decimated by special duty requests. Drill was a farce. His men were away mowing lawns, painting barracks, repairing, carpentering, everything but soldiering. He sulked about it. Meantime he became interested in a new device for the projection of a smoke screen from moving tanks, which was a thing that Jean could not share. He worked on it nights at the shack while she sat alone in the porch swing. He saw himself promoted and honored by his contribution to the service. She saw him detach himself from her and leave her quite alone.

The heat came. They moved their cots out on the porch, but it was of little avail against a breathless one hundred and three. The little breeze that blew was hot and dry, laden with a fine gray dust that covered everything like a gritty pall. It found its way into the shack through the doors and windows they dared not shut against it. The sun beat upon the sandy earth in a torrid blast. For weeks there was no rain. The porch swing began to squeak.

Winter came with a penetrating cold. The shacks had not been built for winters and the first frost was the signal for the installation of stoves; ugly squat little things. Jean objected, but one of them was placed in the living room. Beside it, enhancing the stove's beauty, rested a coal scuttle. Jean sighed.

Monotony crept in and sat with them before the stove. She had learned now to make over the party dresses many times. The others did it. The long evenings of intimate confidences were gone. They had become impatient with one another; with the army; with everything.

The boy, Albert, was born to the Kings. Jean had spent a great deal of time there and he had been jealous. Yes, he realized it now. He had said caustic things and lain awake nights listening to the wailing of the new baby, along with the barking of the dog.

AGAIN the awful heat had come. They might have taken a month's leave. But where? There was no money to go on. So they gasped through as before. Meals dwindled to the contents of cans. The water supply had been so chlorinated that it was barely drinkable. Intimate married annoyances crept in. He left his clothes on the chairs, his boots on the porch, his socks in the middle of the floor. She hung things to dry in the kitchen and disturbed his papers. Everything led to discontent. It was a structure of little, irritating things piled one upon another, like a child's blocks, until it toppled one evening, as blocks do.

The porch swing squeaked. The day had been a series of mishaps for both of them. Nerves, worn to the breaking point, were very near the surface.

"Can't you do something about that noise? It's terrible," she complained. He chose to remain silent. The swing screeched the louder, a high pitched rasp. "Jack! Did you hear me?"

"Yes. I heard you."

She stamped her foot.

"Then do something. All you do is sit—sit——"

The tension snapped.

"I do, do I? What do you do all day. Think I haven't anything to do but run around and fix furniture? Why don't you get it fixed? The water drips in the tub, too. The icebox drain's stopped up. My God! And there's a leak in the roof over the kitchen. You'd sit in the middle of it forever. Why don't you call the Q. M. and get 'em fixed. Can't even do that——"

"I've asked you a thousand times to stop in and tell the Q. M. You never did take any interest in this house——"

All the petty injustice of three years they heaped upon one another. It ended in a strange silence. The will-o'-the-wisp had fled, leaving them staring at each other in dismay. Silence.

The next day, at noon, when McKim had come home from the morning routine there was a note on the table.

"I've gone home," it said. Then a P. S. "Your lunch is in the icebox. P. P. S. I put clean linen and socks in your drawer."

He had not thought she would do it, but she was gone. For a few days he had lived alone, but he found it impossible. So he rendered unto the quartermaster the things that were the quartermaster's and the rest he moved to quarters in the bachelors' building, far away from the second lieutenants' row, all but the porch swing. He left it. The damned thing . . .

HE missed her deeply, not so much her physical being but the will-o'-the-wisp just beneath. After all, there had been some happy times there, moonlight picnics at the pond, dances on the general's lawn by the light of paper lanterns. Surely she would remember this and their own first happiness together—if he could find her and make love to her again. That was it. He had stopped making love to her in his mind. If he could find her and take her away to some hidden nook, some lovely spot, perhaps he could recapture the strange spiritual thing he wanted. Where could they go? It was then that he had counted his finances and gathered together the little fund that lay on his inside pocket—$50. It would take them somewhere and they could stay until it was spent.

With a happy smile McKimm shot home the gears and turned his car around. The smell of the chinaberry tree followed him faintly, faintly, as he drove out of the lane.

I'm a doughboy born
And a doughboy bred,
And when I die
I'll be a doughboy dead.

For hours he clung to the wheel, noting with grim satisfaction the miles speed by on his speedometer. He drove with a great need for haste, begrudging even the necessary halts for gas, water, oil and food. Three blowouts set him cursing and once he was forced to snatch a few hours' slumber in a small town hotel for fear of falling asleep at the wheel and going into a ditch or worse. Time after time he was torn between the desire to telegraph her that he was coming or to walk in unannounced; to take the citadel by storm. The latter appealed to him the more and he hugged it to himself, playing the scene in his mind, now one way, now another. It always ended the same way, though. Success. Happiness.

Dirt roads, paved roads, detours, gas stations, towns went by like a kaleidoscope. Nine hundred and eighty-two miles and the car was still going. Good old car. He burst into song again.

I'm a doughboy born,
And a doughboy bred,
And when I die
I'll be a doughboy dead.

IT was early evening. The last sign said, "Lynbrook, two miles." His heart pounded with anticipation. Two little miles. Now it was one—then, lights twinkling in a valley and a last rush over an open road. He knew the house. He thrilled at the sight of a light in a window as he drew up at the curb. Jean's home, where they had been married. Vines hid the porch, but he knew that some one was there sitting in the rockers. He jumped out and ran up the walk to the steps.

"Hello! Anybody home?" he called jauntily.

"Well for heaven's sake!" said a woman's voice. It was not Jean. Disappointment swept over him like a tidal wave.

"Where—where's Jean?" he blurted.

"I wish I knew. Fine man you are, letting your wife go traipsing around over the country."

"She's not here?"

"The little ninny took the train for Demming yesterday. If she'd listened to me——"

He stood aghast.

"You mean—she was coming back to me—there?"

"Yes. We always tried to give her a good home, too. You'd better come in. I'll fix you some supper." Mrs. Howell rose from her chair. "I thought you'd be along. I told her so, too. She should have stayed right here, so she should."

He was leaning against one of the white columns of the porch, bewildered, not hearing the tirade.

"Her father was of the same opinion, too. She shouldn't have married into the army at all." Mrs. Howell held open the screen door. "Are you coming in? Hurry up before the house gets full of bugs."

He roused himself.

"Don't bother about me. Thanks." She shut the door. "I won't come in—yet."

"You look tired, boy."

"No. I'm all right. I'm going to the telegraph office."

"Be back?"

"I don't know what I'll do."

He went out to the car, thinking. Suddenly, like a ray of light, he saw the truth. Jean had wanted him, too. He should have let her know. It was but a few moments to the telegraph office, where he addressed a dignified wire to the adjutant, not at all what he would have liked to have sent.

> Mrs. McKimm arriving Demming tomorrow. Kindly ask her to await my return.
> JOHN McKIMM,
> 2d Lieut. Inf.

Then he went out to the dingy, battered car.

"Listen, old son," he said, "you've got do it again—you've got to—and for God's sake don't eat so much, will you?"

O, I'm a doughboy born,
And a doughboy bred.

She loved him! She loved him! This was the song that he sang in his heart as the car rattled southward again. That night he was forced to take one ten dollar bill from his store for gas and oil. Forty dollars remained, and nine hundred miles to go. There would be no honeymoon in a secluded spot, only Demming again and broke, as usual. Poor Jean.

JEAN McKIMM hesitated beside the door of the adjutant's office. Her face was flushed with eagerness. How she had hurried to get there, stopping only long enough in town to breakfast on a chocolate soda. Demming seemed fresh and beautiful in the morning sun. How could she have thought it so ugly. Somewhere, not far away, was Jack. She pressed her hand to her breast, where in a little chamois bag lay a small nugget of bills—fifty dollars. Poor Jack. He was only a second lieutenant and never could call a dollar his own. With fifty dollars they might take a little trip together, and she could take care of him and tell him how silly she had been to leave him just because things had gone wrong. It had taken a long time to take pride out of the way of love. She did not mind what any one thought or said about them. She had come back to regain that happiness she knew was there. Perhaps she should have let Jack know. No! It would be best to take him by surprise; to look into his face and find there, in such an unguarded moment, the joy and love at being together again. She rearranged her hair under her new hat, patted her dress into place, opened the door and went into the adjutant's office. A captain, whom she did not know, sat at the desk sifting papers. Field clerks with their typewriters in another part of the room.

"O, are you the adjutant?"

The captain looked up and smiled at so pretty a girl in a summer dress.

"Yes. Can I do something for you?" He came forward.

"Capt. Summers was adjutant last year," she began.

"Yes. He's gone to China to join the 15th infantry. Sit down, won't you?"

"Thanks." She sat down a little uneasily. "Have there been many changes since—since—last year?"

"Quite a few. About half the post, I think. That's the army."

"Lieut. John McKimm?"

"McKimm? Let's see." The adjutant opened a file and ran his finger down the list. "McKimm. O, yes; he's gone to Fort Sheridan. That's near Chicago."

"Gone? He—he's gone?"

Something in the quality of her voice made him look at her anew.

"Yes," he answered, watching her face. "Left a few days ago. Said he was going to drive it."

"O."

"Sorry."

"That's quite all right. I—I——"

"Anything wrong?"

"No—I guess not." She rose slowly and went to the door, murmuring "Thank you" as she went.

Aimlessly she walked to the corner, her mind in a state of black chaos. What had he said? China? or was it some place near Chicago? What a fiasco. Tears gathered in her eyes. He was gone. And he had not told her. Why had he not written her one little line? Why had she not written him? She turned about and went slowly back. Her suitcase was in the hall at headquarters, she remembered. Lucky thing she had fifty dollars to get home with. Home! It was the last place she wanted to go just then. She felt of the little lump of bills in the chamois bag and gulped. It had meant so much to have that little fund.

At the door of the office she met the adjutant again.

"I've been hunting for you. Aren't you Mrs. McKimm?" he asked.

"Yes."

"I've a wire here. Thought you might like to see it." He handed it to her.

Slowly, with a tingling, the blood mounted to her face.

"O, thanks—thanks so much," she said.

"All right."

She seized her bag and rushed out into the street. He loved her! He had gone all the way to Lynbrook for her. And he was coming back now. Bless him. For nearly an hour she did nothing but hug the realization. Then she counted the change in her purse. One dollar and thirty cents, with three days to go, perhaps four. It must be done somehow. The treasure in the chamois bag was sacred. It must not be touched. How?

It was a long walk to second lieutenants' row. By easy stages she finally came to the door of the shack that had been theirs. She breathed deep the perfume of the chinaberry tree as she passed and remembered many things. She tried the door with an air of possession; it was hooked from within. She peered through the screen; quartermaster furniture. But the curtains were different and there were a few other pieces that she did not know. Suddenly she was aware that the shack was no longer theirs, and she turned from the door guiltily. She had hoped——

"When did you get back? You look just too swell for anything—come in!"

Chattering like a pair of magpies, arms about one another, they went in.

WEARY with driving, worn with lack of sleep and fantastic mirages that fluttered before his vision, Lieut. McKimm rode in at the gate of Fort Demming with a flat tire. He had come through rain, fog, and storm, and his car was bespattered with mud. The main bearing leaked badly, the front axle was bent, the engine labored with carbon, and the inside pocket of his uniform was empty. It was nearly ten o'clock, and the stars crowded together to watch him.

Somewhere, very near, was Jean. She must have gotten his wire to the adjutant. He would know. He stopped at the outpost and telephoned. Yes, she was there. Mrs. King, of course!

He jumped into his car. "Come on, baby, just a few hundred yards more." The flat tire gave him trouble in steering through the sand, but he managed as far as the middle of second lieutenants' row. Then the engine wheezed and gave up the ghost.

Mrs. King greeted him at her door. "She's back in your old shack," she told him in a whisper.

"But what became of the people who live there?"

"They're away on leave and—well, they let her have it for a couple of weeks."

"My God!"

Almost trembling with sudden madness, he bounded to the door of the "shack" and flung open the door. She was in the kitchen, totally unprepared. The filmy dress, the summer hat, were hanging in a closet. She wore an apron and a house dress and a little chamois bag on a string for a necklace. Her nose was not powdered. Her lips had not been recently rouged. But it didn't matter at all. He caught her up in his arms and searched her face.

"Jean!"

"O, Jack!"

It was journey's end.

They talked for hours, sitting on the porch swing; hours of sweet, satisfying understanding.

"And I had fifty dollars saved for a new honeymoon somewhere. But—it's gone now. I had to spend it to get back."

"I've got fifty dollars." She took out the chamois bag and counted out the bills before his wondering eyes. "I worked for a while and saved this. I thought we'd take a little trip together."

"My God—and the car's busted."

"We can get it fixed."

"It'll cost about fifty dollars."

"O!"

"And we've got to get to our next station."

"Well"—a pause—"get the old buggy fixed and let's stay here a couple of weeks—right in our own little place. Shall we?"

"You want to?"

"I'd love it."

"Then let's."

He leaned back among the pillows of the porch swing. His eyes closed with exhaustion. With her toe she set the swing in motion. . . . Silence. . . . Suddenly he spoke in a weary voice, "Who fixed this damned thing, Jean?"

Child's Food Needs Watching in Summer

Parents Must Guard Against Excessive Play in Heat, and Insist on Early Sleeping Hours

A book on the care of babies by Miss Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom, a noted authority on the subject, can be had at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 50 cents, or by mail for 60 cents. Two booklets by Mrs. Bevans, on "Prayers and Graces for Children" and "Books to Be Read to Children or by Them," will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

SUMMER is a wonderful season of the year for the children, and we should squeeze out of it for them every ounce of benefit we can. But whether we live in the city or country, if we want summer to work for our children, not against them, we've got to do it by being in the old watch tower. That's one of the drawbacks, so called, of being a mother—the job won't run itself.

Take, for instance, what we might think of as ideal conditions for babies and children in the summer time—a house in the country, with an adequate income, and most of the conveniences. You might think that children could be pretty much turned loose to gather health and happiness in these circumstances.

But they can't. Where parents do turn them loose, instead of being on the alert in the summer time, autumn finds many children in worse condition than when they went away to the country. And this by the findings of a number of children's doctors. Whereas they should be invigorated and reinforced to withstand what we must admit are the less favorable conditions, winter living.

Food Needs Watching.

For one thing, children's food needs watching in the summer. As far as the babies are concerned, the ghost of the dreaded second summer has long been laid. We know that if his milk and fruit and other foods are carefully chosen and guarded, and he is lightly dressed and frequently bathed in both water and sun, that the baby will have a happy, healthful summer. Also, generally speaking, mothers are more vigilant about babies than they are about the other children.

It is really for the eating habits of the older children that we need to keep a weather eye out, to jog ourselves up. Too much sketchy eating, too much cold food, irregularity because of the lack of appetite, due to heat and mistakes. Too many cold sweet drinks, and especially commercial ice creams covered with bananas, maraschino, marshmallow, chocolate, and fruit sirups should come under our watchful eye and be banned. Homemade drinks and homemade ice-creams being of pure materials are real foods for the children and taken in moderation are good for them.

Another thing we have to guard the children against in the country is their enthusiasm for play, which they will often follow regardless of heat, even of direct blazing sunlight. We must arrange their time if it doesn't arrange itself, so that they play without overheating and so that they have periods of quiet and coolness and rest. Children will often wear themselves out in summer if their energy is not directed into channels that will save it.

Must Insist on Sleep.

Which leads us to the matter of rest. The long hours of light, which are added to in the states where there is daylight saving make many mothers unconsciously shorten the children's sleep at night. It is hard sometimes to insist on early bedtime when other children stay up until all hours, but it has to be done if we're going to make summer work for the children, instead of against them.

Also many children, especially in the country, wake up earlier in the morning, because of the brilliant sunlight. With ingenuity you can place their beds and curtain their windows so that the early glare is dimmed. Children need their full quota of sleep in the summer time, but they do not always get it.

Sun is our great ally of health in the summer. Those magical violet rays which can't get through the glass of closed windows nor the heavy clothing of winter, must be made to work for the babies and children. But, like all powerful things, they must be handled with understanding. Sunburn and sun baths must be taken with discretion, and it is mother who must see that this is done. Especially with the babies must the greatest care be exercised in accustoming their tender and responsive bodies to the direct rays of the sun. We cannot take the space here to go into details, but the directions for sun bathing the baby will be found in the baby book which we have had written to complete the service of our department ("Building the Baby"). Or full directions can be obtained free of charge by writing to the United States department of labor, children's bureau, for folder No. 5, called "Sunlight for Babies." But sun baths should not be confined to the babies. All the children should have them and should be dressed so that all possible sun and air reach the surfaces of the baby at other times.

Advantage of Water.

Another wonderful advantage of summer in the country, which brings its disadvantage with it is the water—whether it is sea, lake, or outdoor pool. Children adore the water, and their tendency is to be in it much more than is good for them. Here's certainly one way in which it is hard to be adamant, but you've got to stand your ground. I've seen children in and out of (but mostly in) the water for hours, with purple lips and thoroughly chilled. This is too much of a drain on their vitality and should not be permitted. While I won't give it as a general belief, I know of several excellent doctors who attribute ear and skin troubles and loss of weight in the summer to children being too constantly in the water. We have found that in excessively hot weather the children could have two water sessions a day with benefit. We allowed a long interval between, in which the children rubbed down, dressed, ate one meal and often rested.

All these suggestions have to do with children in the country.

Of course every mother knows that one of the ways in which she can make summer pile up most health and delight for her children is to get them out of the city for the summer or part of the summer. And of course again, every family can't afford it. But it is surprising how much can be managed if you are determined to manage it, and if you yourself are willing to put up with some things and go without others—that is, if you will compromise.

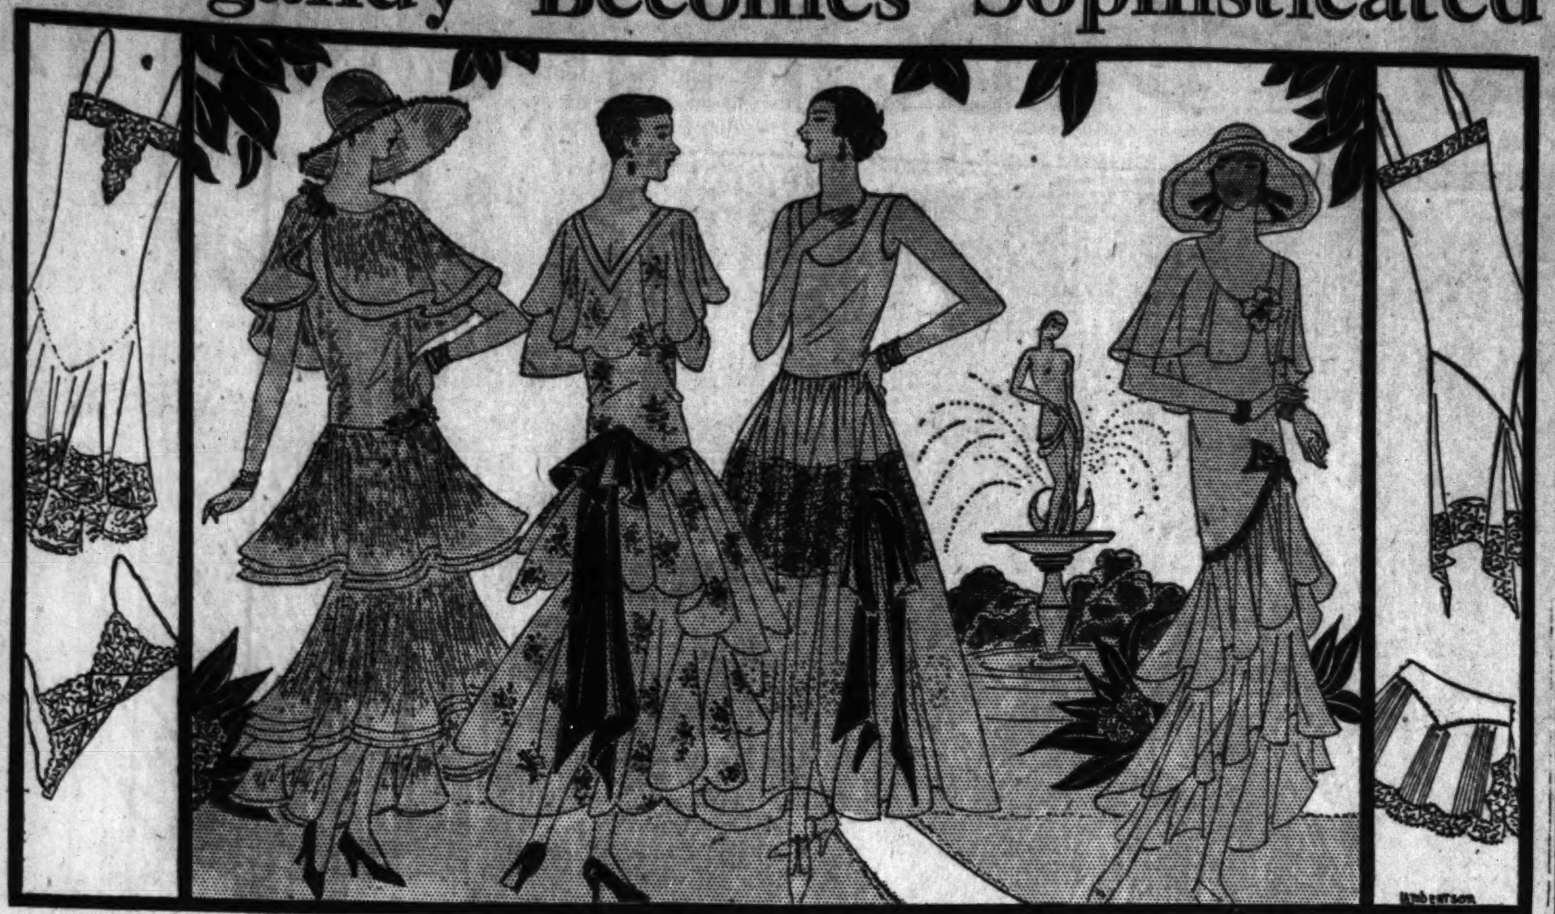
How I Bleach My Skin White

"The camera is a merciless eye," says Miss Genevieve Barr, noted New York model, "and we girls who have to face it have a method of our own for keeping our skins white and flawless.

"We buy no ready-made preparations, but get three ounces of Orchard White at the drug store and add to this the juice of two lemons. This makes several weeks' supply of a very fine skin bleach which softens, refines and whitens the skin without any harm or irritation. And because you use it while it is still fresh, it is twice as effective as any ready-to-use preparation. I find it a dandy bleach for tan and freckles, too. Every girl who takes up posing in New York sooner or later learns this simple secret. The bleach costs only a few cents to make."

"Simple" Organdy Becomes Sophisticated

It Is Worn by Smart Women Morning, Noon and Night, and It Has the Charm of Looking Fresh, Cool and Alluring



Three tones of blue organdy, innumerable "picked up" tucks and gardenias at strategic points represent the charm of our first gown. Next, a charming printed organdy in rose color and blue is finished by a sash of blue satin ribbon. Third, an evening creation of organdy employs seafoam green inset with matching lace for a gown worn over a gold tissue foundation. The bow is of green ribbon faced with gold. Last, a yellow organdy model trimmed with purple moir ribbon and purple flower is finished with the fashionable shirring.

BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK—[Special Correspondence.]—Organdy has no more age limitations than a bobbed head or a love affair. Being the uniform of Youth, it now suits all young ladies from 2 to 72. In every variation of color and cut, this loveliest of summer fabrics has achieved the most spectacular success of its career.

The cool simple little morning frock; the charming garden party creation and the elaborate evening gown—every one of these is construed in organdy. Some of the afternoon and evening modes are, of course, interchangeable. That is to say, the charming sleeveless model which we see among the marigolds at 4 p. m. may be chosen for the roof garden dance at 9 p. m.

Our page gives some idea of this varied destiny in two of its selections. For example, there is the lovely model at the extreme left. This frock which, by the way, would be delightful for the bridesmaid—especially she who serves at the out of door wedding now held in such increased respect—is developed in three different tones of the same color. This blending of tones is a favorite treatment of the organdy gown, one which is sanctioned by the tiers, flounces and peplums, the scarfs, capes and bows that prevail so widely in fashioning the present day organdy.

The color chosen here is blue and is used as the deepest tone used for the foundation diminishing the very light [illegible] of the top. The flounce, peplum and graceful shoulder cape are all in triple formation and they are set off by that elaborate hand work which makes the most costly of these "simple" creations. Here they take the form of fine picked up tucks which are pressed in [or by] the French laundry. Gardenias are used in wreath form on the shoulder to correspond with those at the waistline. Blue satin opera pumps matching the darkest tone of the frock and a hair hat with a single tailored bow of satin ribbon matching the pumps and with an edge formed by a frill of organdy in the same cerulean tint are the accessories.

Gown Gives Double Service.

In the same mood of adaptability to both afternoon and evening occasions is the model at the extreme right. This model, also one that may be adopted successfully by the bridesmaid, is in a lovely tone of yellow set off with touches of purple. The graceful top flounce is shirred and runs upward at the left side to meet a flat tailored bow of purple moire ribbon which extends to the side back to form a more pretentious bow. The flower of the shouler cape is in purple and so, too, are the moire ribbons trimming the under brim of a graceful hat in matching yellow organdy. The pumps are of yellow satin.

Never did the figured organdy enjoy a greater social success than at the present time—a word which may be extended to include all the embroidered types. Second from our left we illustrate the fabric in this mood in a frock which is charming for country club or roof garden dance. It occurs in a rose colored fabric with printed motifs in light blue and it is set off by the good old fashioned sash still represented among the modernistic asymmetric effects and the capricious loopings of the season. This sash is in satin of the same blue as the floral motif.

Our last example of the organdy seizure occurs in the short waisted bouffant style reserved exclusively for evening wear. Here, indeed, is the simple organdy in its most elaborate form. It chooses sea foam green and insets a wide band of matching lace at the top of the skirt. The frock is posed over a foundation of golden tissue and the matching gold lace of its border is just discernible through the sheer top skirt. A bow of gold lined green satin ribbon sets off the side.

For afternoon wear with the chiffon or organdy frock there is offered a greater variety among the large brimmed shapes than has been seen for many a year. Looking at some of these new models one begins to distrust women's strength of character. Are we really going to be weak enough to go back to our old basis of selection? Are we going to demand of a hat that it be beautiful—pictorial—glamorous—rather than that it be chic?

Hair Hats Are Popular.

These wide brimmed hats are carried out in a variety of media with fine hair as first choice. One of the newest movements in the capeline type is the brim turned back from the face. It is a mode which is becoming to many faces and the possibilities of variety in turning back that front brim are infinite. Whatever be the disposition of the front, the back is frequently elongated.

Uncurled ostrich feathers in the same tone as the hair hat have been revived as a "novelty" and the floating tinted fronds wreathing some of these wide brimmed hats are especially charming for the bridesmaid's millinery. Along with these, feathers, flowers, ribbons, and touches of lace maintain all of their former authority.

The large hat is not entirely confined to our formal functions. It is sometimes worn with the costume of the street or spectator sports type costume. For example, one smartly gowned woman at the recent Belmont races was observed under the shade of a wide brimmed straw hat. Incidentally, this hat observed one of the newest rules of millinery decorum by being placed above a fitted bandeau of black velvet. This bandeau effect is being used in a variety of ways and is a feature of some of the most exclusive collections.

The big brimmed velvet hat faced with straw of contrasting tone is one mode with which we are obliged to reckon, for here is a type stressed by some of the smart specialty shops recommending it, not only because of novelty but because of its adaptability to various needs. This hat may, in fact, top costumes of widely different persuasion.

Cloche Type for Street Wear.

For street wear and the spectator sports events the cloche type with wide side brim is chosen perhaps more widely than any other single offering. In leghorn these hats—perhaps with scalloped brim bound in the color of the band—are frequently selected to complete our small little printed crêpes for street and luncheon wear. They are also exceedingly good in the various kinds of rough straw. And do not forget that the rough straw has an exceedingly refined public.

All sorts of fabric hats enjoy a present day popularity disputed by combinations of fabric and straw. Thus, we encounter at the smart shops many medium sized shapes in stitched taffeta. These are matched up carefully with the accompanying frocks and are to be mentioned in the same connection as some of the crêpe hats. The latter, being so well adapted to the plaits and tucks and intricate treatment of this season, were never before so successfully demonstrated.

Linen is another fabric which is meeting with a cordial reception. This is, of course, reserved for sports wear and is usually combined with straw. The favorite type of combination allies a linen crown with a straw brim and sometimes cements the bond by a brim facing of the material. A straw often chosen for such linen inflected models is Chinese Bangkok which is also, in tone carefully dyed to match the costume, exploited for more formal wear.

At the beginning of the season we heard much of that fine, lustrous straw, Paris Même or Luciole. Then the talk died down. Not so, however, the medium itself. However, one does not find these Luciole models taking the place. Only by penetrating the more costly haunts of our New York summer population do we come upon these shy blooms. On expensive heads we are confronted by expensive models of Luciole dyed to match the frock and bewitching of aspect in many different tints.

As the season advances one is constantly impressed by the great common denominator of the midsummer mode and all those who wish to hold over their summer creations for autumn wear should lend an attentive eye and ear to this one universal theme. It is that of the seam. In every conceivable mode seams are employed on our new finery. Sometimes they encircle the figure in spiral fashion and sometimes they are content with their old geometric reserves. Most frequently the seams of today achieve slender top sections widening into the flare of the hem.

Practical and Fancy Needle Work

Chintz Slip Covers for Furniture Make Delightful Touches for the Summer Home

> What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework, write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

GLAZED chintz makes charming covers for beds, curtains, couches, and for chairs in bedrooms; and, as the bed covers are made with no fullness in the way of a gathered or plaited valance, it is quite a saving of time and material. Of course, the chintz isn't wide enough to go entirely across the top of most beds; so, where it is necessary to piece the width, this piecing is, of course, done evenly down both sides. A piping of a contrasting color is used with good effect.

The pieces that are joined on down each side can be made as long as required. On some beds these pieces clear the floor by a couple of inches, while on others they are tucked in across the bottom and on the sides. In making the bed cover you can allow enough length to act as a cover for the pillow or pillows, or you can make a separate casing for the pillow.

Slip covers for chairs will be easier to handle if the chintz is in a small allover design rather than something large. Take an ordinary arm chair, for instance. Lay one end of your material across the top of the chair and don't forget to allow for a seam there. Pin to the chair, then bring down to the seat, push in at the bottom for a depth of two or three inches, then lay the chintz smoothly over the seat.

Next pinch up a narrow tuck across the front edge of the seat, then let the material come over the edge of the seat to a depth of several inches and cut or tear off straight across. Before cutting the chintz off down each side of the back and seat push it down below the seat on both sides the same as you did at the back of the seat. Then pull it out at the sides so you can cut it. Lay a length of chintz across the top of one arm, first for the inside, then for the outside, and pin to the seat the lower part of the back and then pin a length on the outside of the arm to cut and down both sides, then across the inside piece that has just been the bottom.

If, in pinning pieces together ready to cut, you allow about three-eighths of an inch above the pins, this allowance can be turned in, both edges meeting evenly, and stitched together exactly on the turned in edges as well as where the pinning is done. This gives the effect of a French seam and matches the tucks that are taken up where cutting isn't necessary. You now have the cover cut and pinned together except down the back. Lay an inch hem down one edge of the chintz, allowing the length necessary for the back; then pin this length to the inside back length piece, letting the middle of the width of the hem come exactly in the center of the width across the top. Make a corresponding piece for the other half of the back and pin across the top and down each side.

These chair covers may be made with or without a gathered or box plaited lower edge. If made plain, let the cover come to the floor after an inch wide hem has been laid. Fasten together down the back with a couple of small snaps.

After you have made a slip cover for one piece of furniture you should see quite readily how to plan for any other, for the principle is always the same.

BLOOD ROYAL by DORNFORD YATES

In Foregoing Installments:

WILLIAM CHANDOS and his friend, George Hanbury, attended by their servants, Bell and Rowley, all of England, are spending a summer on the continent. They rescue Duke Paul of Reichtenburg, heir to the throne of the dying Prince Nicholas, from a kidnaper, Maj. Grieg. Grieg is a henchman of Duke Johann, cousin of Paul, who covets the crown. The kidnaping had been engineered by Johann to clear the way for a coup d'état. The Englishmen take Paul to Anger, castle of the Grand Duchess Leonie, the duke's fiancée. Leonie travels with them to Vigil, capital of Reichtenburg, to match wits with Johann. Their forces are strengthened there by the Countess Dresden of Salm and Baron Sully, lord president of the council. Chandos by this time is in love with Leonie and she with him. Grieg and a band of thugs trap and assail Chandos and Hanbury in a cabaret. Chandos throws Grieg over the balcony, with the result that both the major's legs are broken, and the intended victims escape. Anger is burned to the ground by Johann's underlings. With the assistance of Grimm, the royal sergeant-footman, the Englishmen enter the palace by way of a secret passage and pose as footmen. Chandos is startled by the entrance of Duke Johann.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

In Sheep's Clothing.

THERE is a Latin saying that those whom God will destroy He first sends mad. Dully I acknowledged the truth of the saw. That we had not foreseen that Johann would present himself argued that George and I were out of our minds.

Instead of watching the telltale, I looked round helplessly.

George Hanbury's door was open. He seemed to be receiving some message from some one without. Bell was watching him closely, ready, no doubt, to go for one of the Grimms. Of the two, George was the nearest, and he was twenty paces away. The lord in waiting was staring out of the window six paces from where I stood.

I made a frantic effort to marshal my wits.

For Johann to set eyes upon me was clearly dangerous. He would not know me from Adam, but he might very well know that Grimm had dismissed three footmen the night before. And if he knew young Grimm by sight—— Again the Duke Johann had need of no visiting card. I should have to announce his presence—and I dared not trust my voice.

Suddenly I remembered the telltale. This was dull, but I had no means of knowing whether it had lighted or no.

I dropped my salver.

When I had picked it up I saw that the telltale was glowing—to my disordered mind—as never before.

Kneller had turned and was staring. He was clearly a martinet. A footman's salver to him was the trooper's sword.

There was nothing for it—I went up to Kneller and bowed.

"My lord," I mumbled, "will speak with the Duke Johann?"

God knows what he thought of my accent, but my voice was husky with emotion, and maybe that covered it up.

In any event he followed me back to the door, and I swung this open directly and shut it as soon as I dared.

His manner was so hostile that I made sure that, on returning, he would take me to task, but I think that his speech with Johann put my failings out of his mind, for when he reentered the hall he did not seem to see me, and, very soon after, Brooch came to his relief and he went away.

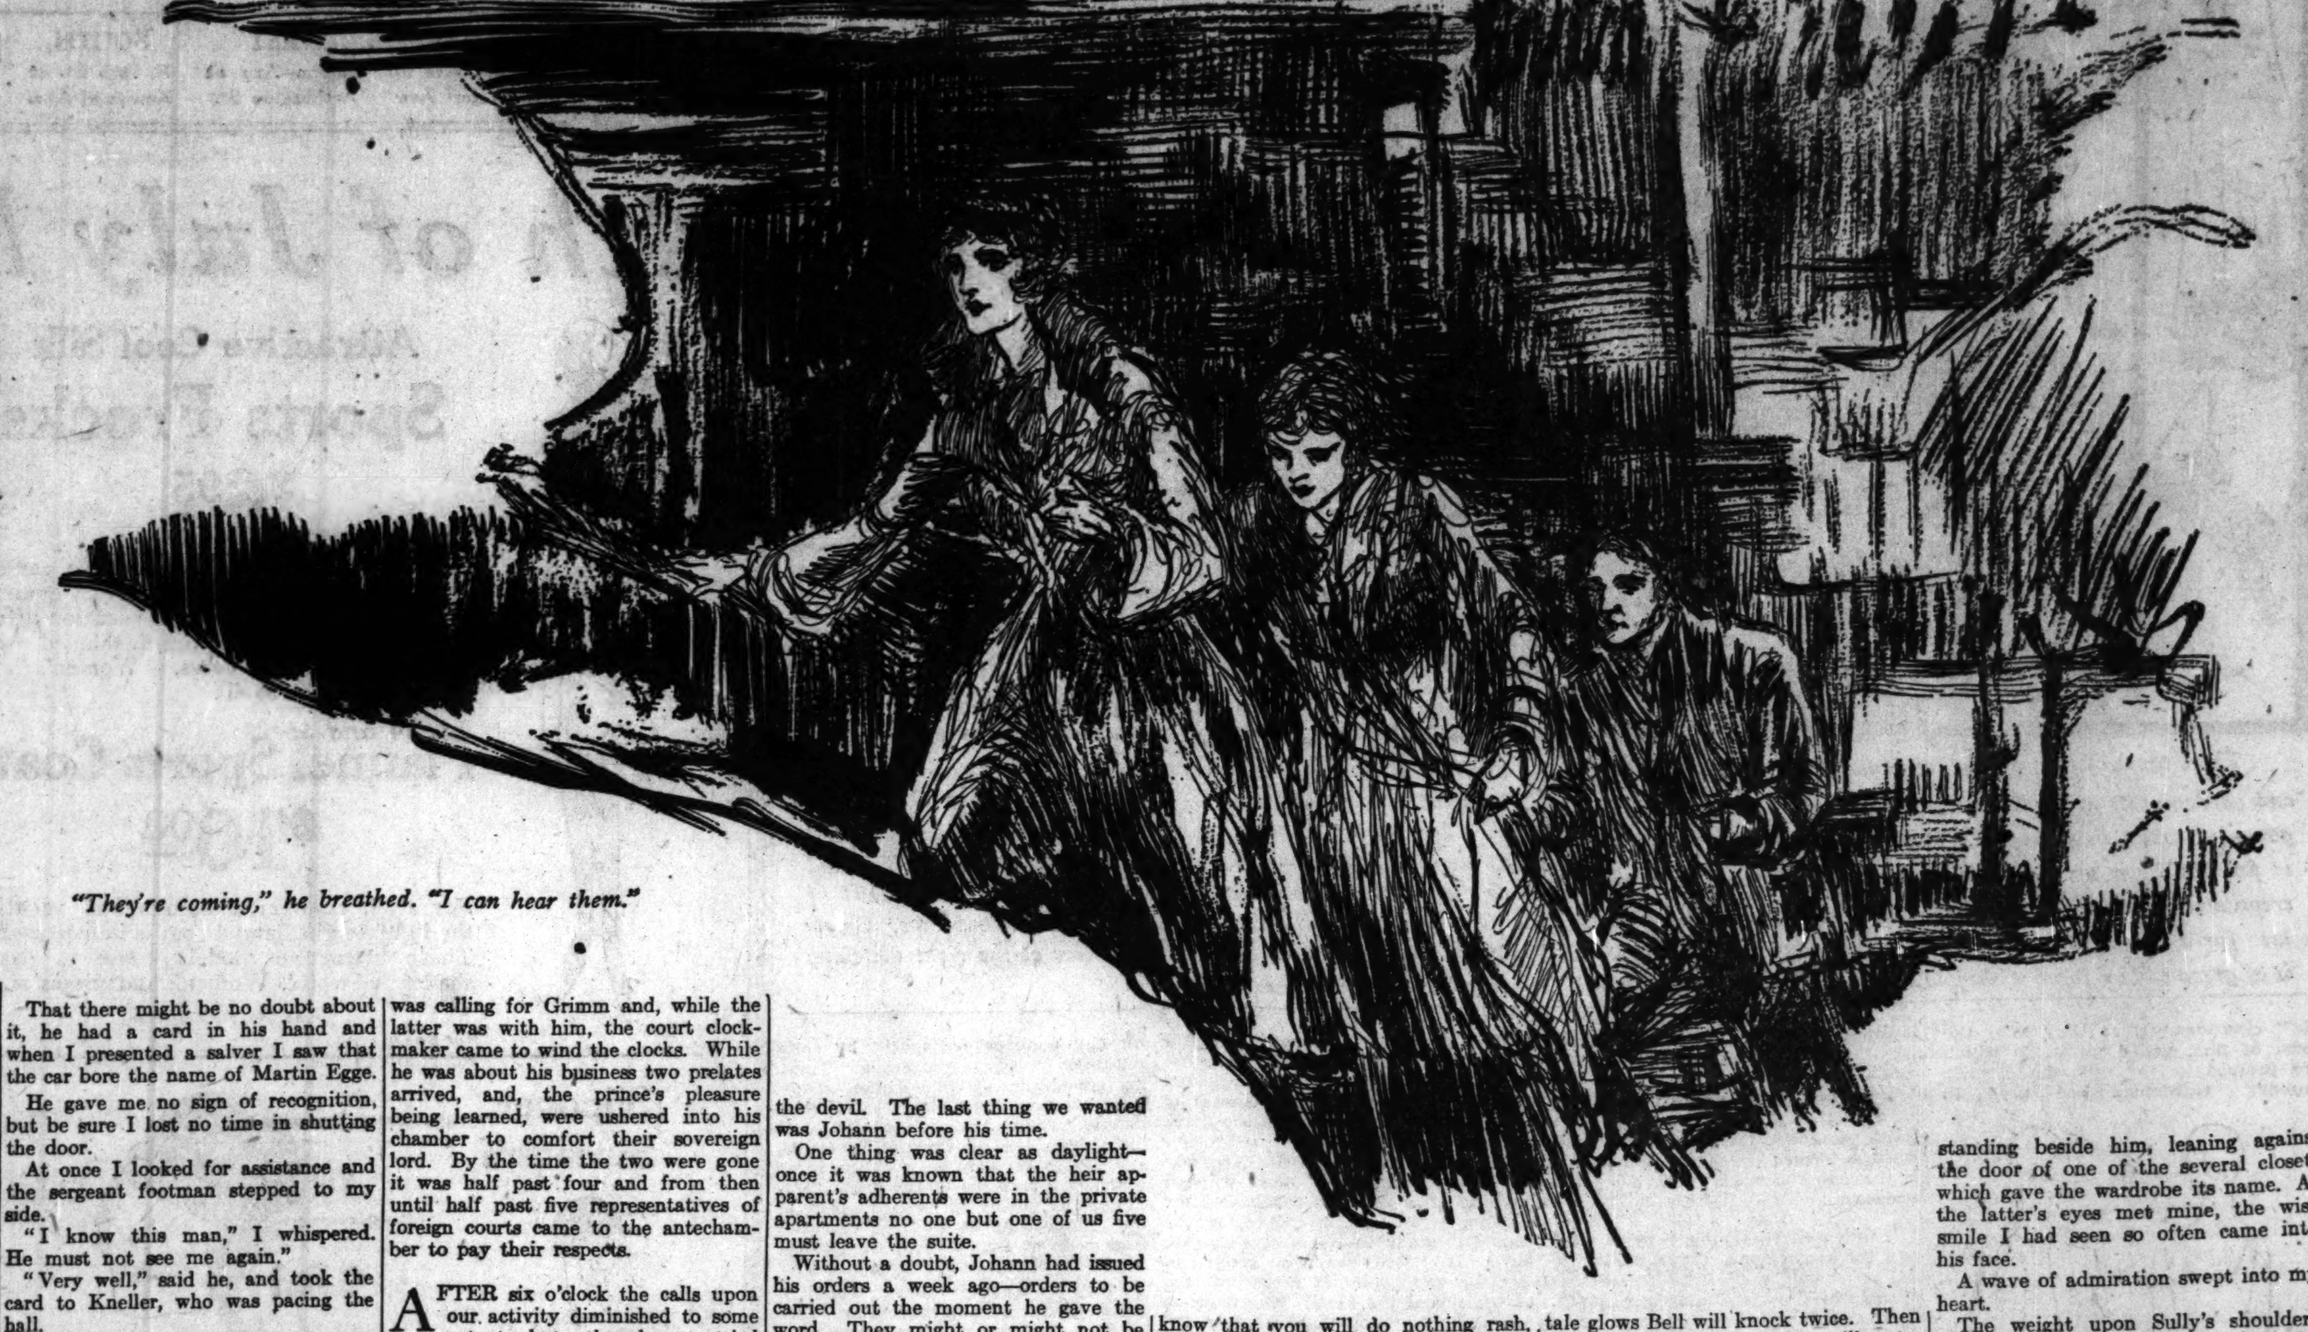
One ordeal we were spared and that was a visit from Duke Paul. As I have said, he had the right of entry into the hall itself, but, though he had been in the habit of coming to inquire for his great-uncle, if not of visiting the prince, Sully had stopped these visits when Johann took command of the bodyguard. Again by Sully's advice the grand duchess stayed away, and, though she had a lady in waiting who could come in her stead, no male of the royal house except the prince was accorded the honor of a regular equerry.

FOR the next three hours our hands were not quite so full, but we had no sort of respite and even the wretched meal we tried to make was so much interrupted that at last we cared not whether we ate or no.

Here let me say that the prince's sickness was accounting for this grievous load of duty, which I think twelve footmen could have conveniently shared. When he was well the prince, who was vigorous, was out of the palace for the greater part of his day, so that the four footmen, although occasionally pressed, had, in the ordinary way, leisure to spare.

Kneller returned to duty at three o'clock—to my inquietude, for, compared with him, Brooch was benevolence itself. The latter's eyes and ears were none too keen, and the one or two orders he gave me were pleasantly given and easy enough to fulfill. What was more, he spent his time reading, but, as I have said, Kneller was very restless and never sat down. Indeed, if Bell had known German I should have done my best to keep out of Kneller's sight, for I knew he had not forgiven me for letting fall my salver or for bungling my announcement of the presence of Duke Johann, and so was on the lookout for any misconduct of mine upon which he could pounce. The best we could contrive, however, was that I should man the door from the staircase and Hanbury that of the bed chamber, for, if the lord in waiting had any commands, he was not likely to call the janitor. Bell was to watch the back door, and the Grimms, so far as they could, would stay at the end of the hall, for from there they could see us all three and so could instantly respond to any signal of distress.

It was about four o'clock that I opened my door some six inches to see before me the man that I had hit in the stomach on the day that we came to Barabbas against our will.



"They're coming," he breathed. "I can hear them."

That there might be no doubt about it, he had a card in his hand and when I presented a salver I saw that the car bore the name of Martin Egge.

He gave me no sign of recognition, but be sure I lost no time in shutting the door.

At once I looked for assistance and the sergeant footman stepped to my side.

"I know this man," I whispered. He must not see me again."

"Very well," said he, and took the card to Kneller, who was pacing the hall.

When Kneller had read the name he showed signs of concern. I fancy he knew Martin Egge for a creature of Duke Johann's, and did not wish to see him, yet could not bring himself to send him away.

At length—

"Desire him to wait," he said.

Grimm returned to the door and requested the fellow to wait in the south antechamber.

"I cannot wait," said the other. "I must either be admitted or go."

"I may not admit you, sir. It is against the rule."

The visitor shrugged his shoulders and stood where he was.

As I shut the door—

"What does he say?" growled Kneller, three paces away.

"That he cannot wait, my lord," said Grimm. "He must either be admitted or go."

Kneller grew red in the face.

Then—

"I will go out," he said thickly.

I opened the door to the staircase and Kneller passed out.

I looked at the sergeant footman, who was frowning upon the door.

"Listen," said I. "He should not have left the suite."

"No," said Grimm. "He should not."

"You take the door," said I. "That was one of Duke Johann's men."

Before he could reply I was gone and had signed to George to follow me out of sight.

I cannot think how I smelled danger, but the sight of Egge had shocked me, and his inconvenient persistence had seemed to me something deliberate and not the instance of a man who has truly no time to spare. I felt that he had wished to lure Kneller out of the suite.

Be that as it may, as the sergeant footman stood to the door, every moment expecting his son to take Hanbury's place, he saw Johann enter the hall from the south antechamber.

Exactly what passed between them I never knew, but, though Grimm showed the man out, he was clearly badly shaken by the line which Johann had taken and his menacing air.

This much I learned.

Johann had justified his entry by declaring that he had been "ringing" for several minutes in vain and then had said that, now that Grimm was short handed, he had better have three or four sentries to keep the doors.

Grimm had replied that he would take the prince's pleasure upon that point.

Johann had then asked where was the lord in waiting, and Grimm had been forced to admit that he was not in the suite.

Upon this Johann had said that if the lords in waiting and servants were not at their posts he would have to consider his position and whether it was not his duty to man the apartments himself.

With that he took himself off, having had, to my mind, very much the best of the round, for, though he was clean out of order, he had caught Kneller napping and Grimm alone in the hall; he had proved "the nakedness of the land," and, if now he determined to relieve it, I did not see that his proposal could be reasonably condemned.

As the door closed upon him, young Grimm, who had been detained, arrived at the door to the stairs, and an instant later Kneller reëntered the hall. By the grace of God, therefore, Johann and the lord in waiting did not meet, and the former was spared the knowledge that there were, in fact, four footmen, as heretofore. But the keeping of this secret seemed like to cost us as dear as its revelation, and it was desperately clear that any moment now the ice upon which we were treading was going to crack.

Before, however, we could even discuss this very serious turn the prince was calling for Grimm and, while the latter was with him, the court clockmaker came to wind the clocks. While he was about his business two prelates arrived, and, the prince's pleasure being learned, were ushered into his chamber to comfort their sovereign lord. By the time the two were gone it was half past four and from then until half past five representatives of foreign courts came to the antechamber to pay their respects.

AFTER six o'clock the calls upon our activity diminished to some extent, but, though we tried more than once to hold a hasty council and have at the matter with Grimm, each time we were interrupted almost before we had begun and at last we saw that it was hopeless and abandoned the attempt.

Indeed, I shall never know how Grimm and his son were able to cope with the duty at this time the day before, but young Grimm declared that the calls had been much less frequent and that the prince had been dozing and so had not sent for his father for nearly two hours.

At five minutes to nine that evening I ushered the doctors out of the royal apartments, and two or three minutes later Brooch took his leave for the night.

I shut the door behind him, sank down on the bench beside me, and buried my face in my hands.

To make use of a slang expression, I was all in.

At half past two the next morning somebody touched my arm.

Dead asleep as I had been, I was wide awake in an instant, after the way of the soldier that is holding some hopeless lodgment and has his being in constant dread of attack.

George Hanbury and Grimm were beside me.

"There's a change in the prince's condition," said George quickly. "It's slight, but eloquent. The nuns are perfectly persuaded that this is the end."

"Have they rung for the doctors?"

"Not yet. They don't propose to until there is more to be seen. The doctors, they say, would probably laugh them to scorn."

"How long do they give him?" said I.

"They won't be tied down," said George. "But, so far as I can gather, from three to six hours."

I got to my feet.

"We must press for the minimum," said I. I turned to Grimm. "Will you go and ask them if they would be astonished if the prince were dead in an hour? Put it like that."

He nodded and disappeared, and I went to drink some water and bathe my face.

AS I returned he emerged from the prince's room.

"The prince will live for an hour, sir—most likely for two or three. He may live for six or seven hours, but that he should die under the hour they will not have."

"Very well," said I, "then Rowley must leave at once."

As I had half expected, the sergeant footman demurred.

It would, he maintained, be most awkward for her highness and Duke Paul and Sully to be waiting in the private apartments for five or six hours—there was no fit accommodation. Once there, they would be his charge and take so much upon him he could not at such a time.

"Listen," said I. "There's a risk of their coming too early, and a risk of their coming too late. We cannot take the second, and so we must take the first."

George supported me stoutly, and at length the old servant gave way.

We opened the door to the passage and sent Rowley off.

"And now," said I, "to business. Bringing them in is nothing. We've got to tie up Johann."

For the next thirty minutes we hammered and beat upon this problem, as a smith upon the red hot iron.

The doctors must presently be summoned, and so must Kneller and Brooch. Johann might have to be summoned, or he might not. Grimm had not summoned him before—the fellow had simply appeared. Whether a doctor had warned him, or one of the lords in waiting, neither Grimm nor his son could tell. It might have been one of the footmen that Grimm had dismissed. This, of course, was the devil. The last thing we wanted was Johann before his time.

One thing was clear as daylight—once it was known that the heir apparent's adherents were in the private apartments no one but one of us five must leave the suite.

Without a doubt, Johann had issued his orders a week ago—orders to be carried out the moment he gave the word. They might or might not be sealed—most likely they were. But that his adjutant had them, I was perfectly sure. And at a word from Johann he would instantly set to work to carry them out.

That word must never be given—must never be sent.

There were within call eight sentries—eight men at arms. Once he was in the suite their colonel in chief had only to raise his voice for them to enter the apartments and come to his side.

That voice must never be raised.

WHAT harassed us to distraction was how to deal with Johann. We dreaded his presence, yet we dared not leave him at large. If he did not come, he must be summoned, and then—what then?

Sandbag the man we dared not. For one thing only, the bodyguard was under his orders and would surely wait upon these. For another, neither Sully nor Kneller would countenance such an act. Johann was of royal blood.

Let me put it like this.

A pretender to the throne, Johann had to be crushed—as a duke of the royal house he had to be spared, but as commanding the bodyguard he had to be used.

The bodyguard held the palace. All the goings and comings, consequent upon the death of the sovereign, would be under their hand; they would provide, or withhold, the orderlies, escorts, and guards which a due observance of the passing of the throne would require; except by their leave the people of Reichtenburg could not be so much as informed of the death of the prince.

Even if Kneller stayed faithful, I found it hard to believe that the second in command of the bodyguard would take the general's orders, unless they came through Johann.

"Deadlock," said George, in the end. "I can't see any way out. If we all look ugly enough, he may find it rather awkward to call the guard, but we can't order them off and, if we do, I don't imagine they'll go. His game is to smile—and wait. Sully produces Duke Paul and says, 'Here's the king.' 'Right-oh,' says Johann. 'You play him.' And, if he says that, Sully's stuck. He damned well can't play his king. For one thing, he's out of touch. Postoffice, press, and public are out of his reach. Even the telephone's gone. But Johann's not out of touch——"

I shall never forget his coming.

Instead of the agitation which I had made sure he would show, he was as calm and unruffled as I had ever seen him, and his cool, dignified bearing and the steady look in his eyes put me to shame.

Before we could speak, he set his hands upon our shoulders and lowered his head.

"If I were married," he said, "I should pray that my sons might have your courage, your wit, and your address—and I should pray in vain. If I had not seen it myself, I would not have believed that the spirit could so dominate the flesh."

"Courage and address." Had he seen me when I dropped my salver, I fancy that he would have chosen less shining words.

"Don't believe it now," said George. "We're a couple of broken reeds."

Sully smiled.

"I have learned of you," he said. "You have given me confidence, and nothing that you can say can take it away."

"I'm thankful for that," said I, and began to examine the problem which George and I could not solve.

To my surprise he stopped me.

"If we had six months," he said, "we could preconceive no plan. We must deal with what happens when it happens, as best we may."

"I think," said I, "that you may need our support."

"I depend upon it," said Sully. "I know that you will do nothing rash, and of that knowledge I shall question nothing that you do."

With his words, Grimm came out of the bed chamber. In his eyes was the look of distress you may see in the eyes of a dog.

"The prince is worse, sirs," he said. "I think that the doctors should be summoned. He—he does not know me."

George and I looked at one another.

"If we summon the doctors," said I, "we must summon the lords in waiting. And that may mean that we are summoning Johann."

"Let it be done," said Sully. "We must ourselves be in order at any cost."

A BELL in the prince's study would summon the lords in waiting. Grimm told his son to ring this and then to man the door from the staircase, instead of Bell. Bell would man that of the bed chamber.

I entered the wardrobe and, kneeling by the door from the passage, strained my ears.

I could hear nothing.

It was now nearly forty minutes since Rowley had gone.

I returned to Sully.

"Do you know," I asked him, "whether they have a car?"

"Yes," said he. "In case that of Madame Dresden was not ready, I sent mine to the duke's lodging and came here on foot."

There was nothing to be said.

Within five minutes I heard the doctors arrive.

A moment later Grimm came out of the room.

"The prince is sinking, sirs. He will not live for two hours. When they said that, I asked the doctors to tell me when I should summon the chaplain and Duke Johann. They promised to give me the word."

"Well done," said I.

"But I think the Duke Johann may come, sir, without we send. My Lord Brooch may give him the word."

"So do I," said I. "For that reason Bell must come in and you and your son alone must appear in the hall. If Duke Johann comes, is there any reason why he should not be put in the dining room?"

"Between that and the bed chamber, sir, there is a connecting door."

"I know," said I. "Put him into the dining room. He won't demur. If he does—it's the prince's pleasure. We must keep him as far from the sentries as ever we can."

"I'm in your hands, sir," said Grimm.

With that he went off and I returned to the wardrobe, where George and Sully were standing by the side of the open trap.

I raised my eyebrows, and Hanbury shook his head.

Rowley had been gone fifty minutes—to be exact, fifty-two.

Bell came to say that the lords in waiting had arrived. The sergeant footman had met them and made his report.

I could not stand still waiting, but went after Grimm. He was, of course, in the hall.

"Tell me," I whispered, "if Duke Johann has to be summoned, whom will you send?"

"I have thought of that, sir. One of the holy women can seek the chaplain and she can tell one of the servants to fetch the duke. And now will you take my place? I should be in the bedchamber."

I did not know what to do.

The man was quite right. His place was in the sickroom. More. Unless he was in the sickroom, we had no means of knowing the state of the prince. Yet, in case Johann should arrive, he must be in the hall."

"Listen," said I. "I will send Bell to stand here, by the bedchamber door. You also will stand by the door, but inside the room. The instant a telltale glows Bell will knock twice. Then he will disappear and you will enter the hall."

"Very well, sir."

By the time the change had been made another five minutes had passed.

George was on the floor of the wardrobe, with his head overhanging the opening, straining his ears. Sully was standing beside him, leaning against the door of one of the several closets which gave the wardrobe its name. As the latter's eyes met mine, the wise smile I had seen so often came into his face.

A wave of admiration swept into my heart.

The weight upon Sully's shoulders was far more heavy than any we sought to bear. The master he loved lay dying; everything that he cared for was in the scale; this hole and corner business was as strange and odious to his nature as is the sunlight to the owl. Yet of us all he was the calmest, the most assured.

I saw George thrust down his head. For a moment he listened intently. Then he nodded and rose to his knees.

"They're coming," he breathed. "I can hear them. In half a minute you'll see the light of the torch."

"Praise God," said I, and meant it, and Sully's lips moved as though he had said "Amen."

IT was now exactly an hour since Rowley had been dispatched.

As I stood to the top of the steps I heard a double knock fall upon the bedchamber's door.

The footfalls were clear now.

The three were hastening—almost running. As luck would have it, the floor of the passage was smooth and, indeed, the whole of the tunnel was very well done.

The grand duchess was mounting the steps.

She had jewels in her hair, and a cloak of gold and crimson overlaid the black of her dress.

Her face was most white and set, and when she saw me she instantly looked elsewhere as though to avoid my eyes.

Wondering, I put out an arm, for the steps were high, but, though she lowered her head as though to acknowledge the gesture, she made no use of my help.

I moved to one side, dazedly.

As she stepped into the wardrobe she covered her eyes.

I glanced at the Countess Dresden, behind on the steps. In her face was plain tragedy.

I returned to the grand duchess, to see that her mouth was working against her will.

"What is it?" I breathed. "What's the matter?"

Twice she strove to answer, but no words came.

Then she drew herself up.

"Gentlemen," she said, "it is finished. Duke Paul, the heir, is not with us. I am here to tell you, to my shame, that he is afraid to come."

The silence which succeeded her words was that of death. Sully, George and I stood as though turned to stone. And the grand duchess stood in our midst, like some Andromache, stricken, desperate and incomparable.

The sergeant-footman entered the wardrobe and came to my side.

Though I heard what he said, he seemed to me to be speaking from a great way off.

"Sir," he whispered, "I have done as you said. His highness the Duke Johann is in the dining room."

Etiquette for Vacation Days

By Helen Bartlett.

THIS week's mail brought a number of letters from readers who have vacation time problems, and because just at this time they're likely to be of general interest they and their answers are published.

"A school friend of my daughter, a boy, has invited her to be his guest, with several other young people, for a week-end. His mother has written to me and to her. Would it be correct to let her go? Mrs. E. K."

Yes, it would be quite all right, particularly if the trip to his home and back is a short one and if the party will be chaperoned, which it undoubtedly will be. The boy's mother shows a knowledge of good manners when she writes to the mothers of her son's guests and she would surely see to that.

"Is it always necessary to write to one's hostess after being entertained for a week-end? F. H."

Invariably. Never feel that you know your friends so well that you can omit such gracious gestures. If you are entertained by a school chum write a note to her and one to her mother.

"What constitutes summer formal dress for men? Is this worn at country club dances. J. M."

A sack coat in dark blue, white flannel trousers (sometimes with a thin black stripe), soft shirt, white shoes and straw hat make up the costume called "summer formal." It is correct for parties in the summer time.

"What form do invitations to a house party usually take?

"HELEN M."

The hostess usually writes a note, giving all information about transportation and a general outline of her plans for the party.

"What shall I take with me when I visit friends over the week-end? They are at a summer resort. Shall I bring a gift to the mother of the family, whom I have met several times? JANE L."

In the invitation your hostess should have given you an idea of what you will need in the way of clothes. If she neglected to intimate what you will be doing, you need not hesitate to ask her. Find out if you'll play golf, if you'll go swimming, if you'll be dancing in the evenings—and pack your bag accordingly. You may bring a gift to the hostess' mother if you wish. Some small thing for her house or her garden or a personal gift will suffice.

No. The girls pay their own fare. It would be all right to permit the boys to pay for their luncheon on the train, but they must pay all other expenses themselves. If they stop at a hotel the girls must pay their own expenses.

"What sort of entertainment would you suggest that I have for my daughter just home from school? She would like to resume contacts with young friends whom she hasn't seen for a year or more, but our circumstances and the size of our home prevent an elaborate party.

"MRS. C. O'D."

I suggest a Sunday night buffet supper. You can invite different groups for different hours so that your home will never be too crowded for comfort and you will find that young people enjoy this informal entertainment. If this is impracticable, why not have a series of afternoon teas inviting different groups on different days?

"On one evening of a houseparty I am planning I want to take my guests to entertainment in town—theater and supper and dancing. How shall I arrange about paying the checks?

"L. W."

You can get your theater tickets beforehand, of course. Leave them at the ticket office or else give them to a young man in the party to take care of. You can arrange with restaurant managers to send you the bills or you can give money to a young man in the party and let him pay all checks.

"My son and daughter are giving what is shaping into a hilarious evening party early this vacation. Would it be all right to have one or two young married couples serve as chaperones? My husband and I feel that our middle-aged presence would dampen things a bit but that the young people would fit in well and serve their purpose. Mrs. J. H."

I think it's an admirable plan and it would be entirely correct.

"My husband and I are invited to a summer formal dinner dance at the opening of a country club. What is the proper dress for both of us?

"MRS. J. G."

You can wear a summer dinner dress or a light, summery evening dress with a light weight wrap. You do not wear a hat. Your husband can wear white flannels, with a dark sack coat.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Cherries Make a Gay Decorative Feature for a Small Fourth of July Dinner Party.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

By Jane Eddington.

IT is easy to visualize a handsome pile of cherries with their incomparable glaze and exquisiteness, and open finger sandwiches with a cream cheese spread, and some small dishes of blueberries as the red, white and blue and edible decorations for a Fourth of July meal of some sort, a dinner, a supper or a picnic spread. We could make of these a central feature or a beginning or an ending for the meal. If we choose to set a buffet table they could crown it, while the rest of the refreshments would be served on a plate. A buffet luncheon of this type would be easy to manage. These also might be the central decorative feature for a small Fourth of July dinner party.

These items are all highly seasonable and therefore as easy to procure as to visualize. We get wonderful cultivated blueberries from the south, often early in June, though the wild blueberry comes later than the Fourth of July. And both the sweet and sour cherry are now at the climax of their perfections.

Plain Cherry Service.

Many pretty ways can be devised for serving raw cherries plain, as an appetizer or a dessert, and the whole idea of the service for the Fourth of July should be bringing out the patriotic red. If leaves are procurable the cherries are wonderfully pretty if served in little baskets which are not edible, or we can make edible baskets of meringue for them. They are really the prettiest of company fruits, and therefore suitable for the most festive meals.

There are a number of ways of making them entertaining, and as the Fourth of July is so eminently a children's holiday, some of the childish ways of preparing them or exploiting them can be used. It is our own opinion that they are so handsome in themselves as an appetizer that it is a pity to put them into a mixture that may ultimately be a bit messy. They can be used plain not only for the appetizer, but as a plain garnish for any fruit salad and for many types of dessert.

With imagination we can make a dessert salad of cherries on white lettuce leaves with a garnish of blueberries and cream cheese, or we may have the fruit salad and the cheese sandwiches. The latter in particular goes well with the inevitable Fourth of July lemonade, or the lemonade goes well with it.

Sweet Cherry Jam.

A sweet cherry jam is delicious served hot with the clotted cream of summer. It is made by cooking the sweet cherries in the simplest way. After washing and taking out the pits, weigh them, add half their weight in sugar, set them over a hot plate or over the slowest of fires, and when the sugar commences to melt, stir the whole carefully and thoroughly, and finally when the sugar is well dissolved turn up the fire and cook the cherries to 220 degrees, skimming with discretion.

When cooked to just the right point, two drops will form when a spoonful of the sirup is taken up in a teaspoon and poured back. This two drop test is an old fashioned and common one in cooking jams and jellies. If one has no kitchen scale one may have reasonable success, perhaps, by taking half the measures of sugar that there is of the cherries.

We could recommend this hot with clotted cream and some simple hot cake for some Sunday supper, or a holiday supper like that of the Fourth of July.

Candied Sour Cherries.

This is one of our favorite repeaters because cherries prepared in this way are such excellent garnishes for desserts. They also make an appetizing nibble, and while they keep fairly well, are superior and portable for garnishing the summer picnic sandwich or some molded cream or even ice cream. Wash sour cherries and drain well. Stone them and save all the juice. Weigh the cherries and allow one pound of brown sugar to three pounds of the fruit.

Add the cherry juice to the sugar and stir until it dissolves, then cook to sirup stage, add the stoned cherries and cook them gently for fifteen or twenty minutes. Take them up and drain off the sirup and put them on buttered and then well wiped off plates, that is, have just a thin film of butter on the plate. Let them dry for a day or two in an oven that is just warm or in the sun if they can be protected from dust. The sun drying is the ideal.

While they are drying now and then add the sirup which was drained from them a little at a time, and turn them several times on the plates. The sirup added thus keeps them from shrinking. When they are finally dry enough they may be put away in layers of granulated sugar.

The drying in the sun is best because they have a better flavor if dried in one day than when the process is prolonged and it is not necessary to use up all the sirup in keeping them swollen to the natural size. But it is difficult to dry them in one day with oven heat. This is an excellent sweet sour confection for a hot day.

The Picnic Basket.

The Fourth of July picnic basket is a national institution. For it we like a great variety of sandwiches, and maybe cold fried chicken, each piece wrapped in paraffin paper and some of us would always include little individual bags of peanuts. The bag of peanuts is a Fourth of July institution anybody can afford. It has been as much an institution in some sections of the country as a Fourth of July lemonade.

Some people, instead of one basket, prefer to use as many small baskets as there are people to eat the picnic luncheon. In this case there is no spreading of the food on the ground, and none of the mussiness that sometimes prevails when the attempt is made to lay a cloth on a humpy lawn or spot by the roadside.

Potato Salad.

We hate to acknowledge it, but we do know that potato salad is almost a national picnic affair. Here is one recipe of several that we can more or less recommend: Boil enough new potatoes to make a quart of salad. Peel and while hot cut the potatoes into thin slices. Slice some new onions fine and cover the potatoes with them, adding a slight sprinkling of salt and a little white or red pepper. For the amount of salad for four or five people, beat one egg yolk with two tablespoons of salad oil and two tablespoons of vinegar.

When this is well beaten, pour it over the potatoes and onions and then pour over the whole one-fourth of a cup of boiling water, or better, a cup of boiling meat broth and with a wooden fork and spoon lift and mix the whole well. A tablespoon of parsley chopped fine may be scattered over the salad, which is best if it stands for two or three hours in a cold place.

Chicken Sandwich Filling.

The following filling is for small picnics rather than large, or for those which have a dainty collection of items rather than the larger portions and fewer in number: Grind or pound to a smooth mass one cup of cold cooked chicken. Work into this about three ounces of unsalted butter and one or more tablespoons of cream, according to need, then a tablespoon of grated Herkimer cheese or some cheese of equal piquancy.

Add a little salt and just a grain or two of cayenne pepper, and if you choose you may have a dot or two of dry mustard. This can be made as smooth as butter, and therefore can be spread as thin as the cover of a true canapé. If it is not thin when mixed it can be put through a coarse strainer and thus made enough so that it could be piped on elegant open sandwiches.

It is one way to make cold chicken go far, and also gives us something extremely dainty. Whole pieces of chicken used for sandwich filling will dry out a little unless marinated, and much more is required than when this mixture with butter is made.

Pressed Egg Filling.

Pressed eggs sliced make an excellent sandwich filling and an easy one. Plain bread and butter sandwiches may be made and the little loaf of pressed egg can be taken along separately and sliced as used. For this little loaf allow one teaspoon of melted butter and a bit each of salt, pepper, and mustard for each hard cooked egg. Cook the eggs by starting them in cold water, brought to a boil at the end of twenty minutes.

Take them off, put them into cold water and when they are chilled a little remove the shell, chop, and season, and press them into a mold. After an hour they will slice well. The melted butter both seasons and binds them.

Easiest Stuffed Eggs.

Cook eggs hard, mash the yolks, mix the yolks with mayonnaise, and fill the whites. To vary this use finely chopped tomato with the mayonnaise, or chives, or what you like for seasoning, but a mayonnaise made with a little mustard is plain and satisfactory.

A lemonade foundation may be made of six large lemons. Add three cups of sugar, mix thoroughly, and take to a picnic. One or two tablespoons of this per glass of water will make a satisfactory drink, but there is no objection to more lemon juice, or better yet, orange juice. The antique saying for it when offered is: "Ice cool lemonade made in the shade."

Mint Flavoring.

Mint flavorings may be made with boiling water, as when we pour a cup of boiling water over a dozen sprigs of mint and allow it to stand for five minutes, but an infusion made with cold water is superior. Wash the sprigs of mint and shake off the water from them. Sprinkle or rub with sugar, cover with cold water and allow to stand until the water is daintily flavored with the mint.

For one glass of water flavored with this sweetened mint use three or four teaspoons of lemon juice. Garnish with a spray of mint in serving, and, if you can, "freeze" the glass. Mint added to a strong mixture of lemon juice will give a haunting aroma and make it blander, though the taste of mint disappears. When you learn just how to use mint with lemonade you are likely to think it indispensable.

Blackberry and Raspberry Sirups.

These sirups are almost indispensable in our summer cabinets of beverage supplies: Wash, thoroughly drain, and mash the berries. Measure mashed berries and add an equal quantity of cold water. Let stand for one-half hour, then strain off the liquid, measure, and add twice as much sugar to it as it measures. Cook this to a sirup, skimming if necessary.

A second or even a third extraction can be made from the pulp of the berries by adding to this half its measure of cold water and cooking it for five minutes. Strain off and treat like the first. This gives a sirup of pronounced flavor, but without the color and delicacy of the first.

A Hop Tincture.

This is for people who like to put their noses into foams: Add one tablespoon of ground ginger to one-half ounce of dried hop leaves, add one pint of water and boil gently for one-half hour. You will or should get a cup of water at the end of the half hour, but hop leaves swell a good deal.

Strain off this bitter water, add one-fourth pound of brown sugar (it is always best to weigh rather than measure brown sugar) stir these until the sugar is dissolved and cook to a sirup stage. When it has cooled add to it one cup or a little more of cold water. This is enough for eight glasses and the recipe can be multiplied to suit the need.

In serving it put one-fourth cup of sirup into a glass and add seltzer water or something of the sort till the foam reaches the top of the glass. To make a milder drink add cream to the sirup before adding the fizzy water, even as much as there is of the sirup or just as little as you choose.

A Dollar for Your Dreams

Have you ever had a dream which later came true? If you'll mail us an account of your prophetic dream we'll pay $1 for every dream published. Address "Dreams," Chicago Tribune.

The Dog Followed.

My old dog Trix was so much care that I finally gave him to a friend, just before leaving for an automobile trip. They were to keep him locked up until I was well on my way.

All day as we drove along, I kept thinking of Trix, so it was no wonder that that night after we made camp, and went to bed I had a dream of my dog. In my dream I was glad to see him, and he kept jumping at me, and licking my hand.

You may guess my pleasure upon being awakened in the morning by Trix licking my hand. As he wasn't breathless, it is possible that he had been there sometime and had really licked my hand, and had so suggested it in my dream—anyway, I was glad to get him back, and took him with me. H. J. M.

Acted on Impulse.

My husband and I lived in furnished apartments when we were first married. In one small city where we went to take a new position we found only one furnished apartment available. We took it.

One night, a few weeks later, I dreamed that the landlady and I had a violent quarrel, as a result of which we were asked to move. We were greatly distressed because there was no place to go. The dream was so vivid that it woke me and I had difficulty in sleeping anymore that night.

The next morning a small furnished apartment, the first since our arrival, was advertised in the paper. Unable to forget my dream, I went to see the place and rented it. When I returned to my own apartment the landlady met me and told me that she would have to ask me to move at the end of the month because her father and mother were coming to live with her.

You may be sure I was glad I had heeded my dream. M. A. H.

Query Answered.

Through the Red Cross I was given the address of a disabled veteran in a government hospital. I sent him a Christmas package and a friendly letter. This started a delightful correspondence. Because of a certain probably mistaken sense of delicacy, I did not ask him what sort of injury had brought him there, although I often wondered.

One night, in a dream, I saw him surrounded by doctors and nurses, who were fighting desperately for his life. It seemed natural to me that I should recognize this stranger and feel a terrible fear when it seemed that the struggle might be in vain. I asked one of the anxious doctors what his trouble was, and he answered, "Tuberculosis—a fatal case."

In my next letter I mentioned the most harmless part of my dream. In his reply he assured me that he was actually suffering from tuberculosis and that I was quite an accurate dreamer. A few months later his letters ceased. L. O.

Shooting Foretold.

When I was a high school co-ed my home was in a small western town always infested with "tramps."

My mother seldom fed them, but one day a young red haired fellow told a particularly pitiful tale, so she gave him dinner. The next morning mother said that she had dreamed of a shooting affair in which our red haired guest seemed to be participating. That evening the local paper contained an account of a battle in the railroad yards between the police and an unidentified bandit whom they had slain. The writeup stated that the dead bandit's hair was red.

Mother was so impressed that she insisted on visiting the morgue. We could not identify him, but there on a slab rested the body of our red haired "tramp" F. A. S.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD morning!

There are a number of reasons, it seems to me, why the spirit of mortal should be proud. Specifically referring to "The Black Watch"—Fox should be proud to have produced it; John Ford should be proud to have directed it; the photographer should be proud of the photography in it; Victor McLaglen et all should be proud of their performance in it; the movietone experts should be proud of the splendid sound effects they have obtained in it; you and I who love the movies and have to defend our love so often, should be proud of "The Black Watch" because it justifies our passion.

Here is a picture with class. It is the magnificently photographed, audible version of Talbot Mundy's story, "King of the Khyber Rifles," and tells of what happens when the captain of a Scottish regiment is sent—bearing necessarily the stigma of cowardice—on a secret mission to India at the beginning of the world war.

It is his task to prevent a threatened holy war, knowledge of which might work havoc with British control of its Indian colony and have a lamentable effect on British war activities in France. So—believed a quitter by his fellows—Captain King, slinks off—apparently—to safety on the eve of his regiment's departure for the front.

A Scene You Won't Forget.

And when the regiment departs in the fog of early morning—Ah, what a scene; what photography for you!—you're all clogged up again, for there's a wee Scotch lassie crying "Tak' me wi' ye, feyther! Tak' me wi' ye!" and there's Captain King motheringly adjusting the knapsack of his adoring young brother who doesn't understand what it's all about—this strange action of his hero in deserting the bunch—but who is marching away with a stiff upper lip just the same because he knows that his hero COULD do no wrong.

Great stuff!

Well—Capt. King goes to India. Here he discovers trouble brewing hotly and the conspirators working under orders of one they believe to be a goddess—a beautiful, mysterious, and utterly captivating woman. (Portrayed as Myrna Loy WOULD portray her.)

You will find Capt. King torn twixt love and duty—but not neglecting duty.

The love scenes between the captain and the "goddess" are the weak link in the picture's golden chain. They are never in the least convincing and the dialogue is, to speak most kindly, uninspired.

Some Wonderful Work.

It's over in Khyber Pass that camera and movietone score their greatest triumphs. There are some marvelous out of door views and out of door sound recording and the scenes in the Cave of the Echoes, where Yasmani and her followers hold their ceremonies, present something new—or at least it was new to me—in the march of [illegible].

The producers sure are getting brave in their use of the sound machine! They just don't care where they take them, any more. And "The Black Watch" proves beyond doubt that it's on no fool's errands they are taking them.

From the stirring events in India you are carried on the magic carpet of the movies back to the mess hall. The war is over, and it has rung pitiful changes on the group you met when the picture opened. But again they sing:

"For auld lang syne, my dears
For auld lang syne
We'll tak a cup o' kindness yet
For auld lang syne."

The door opens. And Captain King comes into his own.

See you tomorrow.

THE STUDEBAKER THEATER is being wired so that it can exhibit talking films as well as stage productions. The sound installation will, it is expected, be completed this week.

THREE BEAUTIES IN FEATURE FILMS OF THE WEEK

MYRNA LOY

NORMA SHEARER

GILDA GRAY

THREE beautiful ladies are on the screens of the town this week. Norma Shearer you will see in "The Trial of Mary Dugan," the film the censors have been having such a fit about—which has opened at the Roosevelt; Myrna Loy, who is in "The Black Watch," starring Victor McLaglen, which is at the United Artists; and Gilda Gray, who is not only in the picture "Piccadilly," over at the State-Lake, but is appearing there on the stage as well.

Talkies' Studio Sets Crowd Great Outdoors Off Screen

By Rosalind Shaffer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 29.—[Special Correspondence.]—The current spell of hot weather in Hollywood has been ideal "location" weather. In any previous year, before talkies, it would have found most of Hollywood out in the desert or up in the mountains, or along the seashore, making location shots.

But nowadays a weary traveler over the foothills or prairies accessible to Hollywood will find nary a discarded horseshoe or scrap of film, for the film companies aren't going on location any more. The talkies have changed all that.

Several big companies announcing their programs for the coming year make no mention of the outdoor type of picture so prevalent a year ago. It's theme song time in Hollywood; murder mysteries have broken out in the studios and chorus men have begun to appear, no doubt letting overripe revues lie around in every studio.

Negro Shows on Every Lot.

Negro shows are being made on every lot, either blackface or real; the soul of newspaper folk is being stripped bare for the public, the screechies — those thriller dramas where one goes to hear the women in the audience yell—and all the old favorite melodramas in course of resurrection have crowded the great out-door space entirely off the screen of the talkies. No sunbeams are needed for this new sort of film fodder.

Fletcher Norton, once a Broadway musical comedy star and former lead man to Valeska Surratt, is an extra in the movies now. So is Pauline Curley, who used to be leading woman for Antonio Moreno. Both she and Norton are extras in the same production at United Artists. Pat Somerset is working as extra and double for a rather insignificant minor actor on the Fox film lot.

Sam Hardy's popularity is not confined to film fans. Hardy has been unanimously reflected president of the Masquers club, which is the Hollywood counterpart of the New York Lambs. He is the first masquers prexy ever to succeed himself.

Colleen May Retire.

When Colleen Moore made "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," she grew so fond of the old Irish wishing well that ornamented the foreground of many scenes that she had a van drive to the studio, take the wishing well away and set it up in the front yard of her home. Incidentally, although Colleen has made no announcement, it is whispered about that she intends retiring as a film actress in the near future. Colleen has built up a personal fortune out of her movie popularity that would make her envied in any financial circle and is said to be relieved and happy rather than reluctant to gradually move out of the camera eye, now that the talkies have come in and changed old popularities.

So far, according to tabulations here, only 1,850 motion picture theaters of the 17,000 American film houses has been wired for sound. The prediction is that 5,000 additional houses will be wired by the end of 1930.

A BONNY SINGER

It is the duty of every well-conducted opera company to have good looking as well as good singing artists on its staff. A view of this French soprano will indicate how well the Ravinia management has lived up to its obligations in this respect. She is well liked by the north shore audiences, and the picture shows one, if only one, of her varied qualifications.

Two Incidents Show Good Music Is Gaining in American Favor

By Edward Moore.

IN the course of going through the mail addressed to this desk, the music department recently came upon a pair of statements having more than usual bearing on the musical situation. They were entirely disconnected; they came in separate envelopes, but each bore its bit of evidence that musical conditions are changing in this country.

The first was in a pamphlet sent out from the office of one of the leading musical managers of the land. It told how one evening in a night club one of a group of "typical business men"—whatever a typical business man may be—remarked upon the extraordinary charm of a tune to which he had been dancing. It turned out to be the Pilgrims' Chorus from "Tannhäuser" dressed up in the disguise of a fox trot.

The other incident comes from Musical America. Its editor, Deems Taylor, relates that manufacturers and retailers of talking machine records tell how their business has been transformed. Gone is the day when a famous soprano or greatly acclaimed tenor sold a new record in carload lots simply on the strength of his or her name. Leaving out for the present those who buy jazz and waltz records merely for dancing purposes, the purchasers of today would seem to be interested, "first in the music; second in the performer; third in the composer."

Music for Own Sake.

The call is now for string quartet records, or scenes from operas, or even whole symphonies. In other words, American interest is apparently turning toward music for its own sake rather than performances by glittering virtuosi, and this, Mr. Taylor submits, is a sufficient occasion for the ordering of a round of cheers.

A bit of qualification is necessary here. Good music needs a good performance for its projection, and no performer is ever better than his own endowments and acquirements permit him to be. The information that Mr. Taylor seeks to transmit is that the virtuoso performer, the one who distracts attention from the actual music to its manner of performance, is rapidly going into the discard, and this is as it should be.

Music Is Well Performed.

In both of these items there is a considerable bearing upon what is going on at Ravinia these days. One finds a good many of the good tunes of all ages in the répertoire of this company; one finds them performed in a way that projects them with all their charm. Naturally the artists indulging in this manner of performance discover that their personal restraint increases their personal standing among music lovers, but that is not the point, admirable though it may be. The point is that the music, and all of it, is well performed.

Would any one in these days go back to the operatic manner of forty years ago? This was the time when a Patti, let us say, was the one reason for attending an opera. There was one star to whom everything else was subordinated. That star could do no wrong, and no one, the star least of all, ever cared in the slightest who else was in the company or what they did as long as the stellar ray was in no way obscured. So when my seniors say to me, "You should have heard Patti," I bow in reverence to memories, but I know they did not hear anything else. I know, because several times I have asked.

But imagine putting on "Manon Lescaut" or "Marouf" in that manner. These two works are chosen because they are a pair of the finest in Ravinia's long répertoire, full of good tunes and resilient, youthful personality, also because they come to mind as being examples of just about perfect casting. And by perfect is meant the kind of casting that does each rôle, great or small, so well that it blends with all other rôles and turns out as part of a fine performance. In baseball this is known as teamwork, in music the favorite expression is ensemble, but the two mean the same thing.

Lesser Artists Add Much.

Lucrezia Bori and Giovanni Martinelli lead the cast in the one, Yvonne Gall and Mario Chamlee in the other. In both cases the leaders are surrounded by a host of lesser artists not one of whom could be lost with-

Critic Picks "10 Best" from 150 Dull Plays

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—You can't keep the folks in our set from talking about the theater, however dull it may have been or however dead it is at the moment. Four letters this week, two from a couple of old New Yorkers and two from remoter places beyond the applejack farms of New Jersey undertake to place this correspondent on record as to just which were the "best" plays of last year.

The general impression has held for some time that there were no "best" plays last season, and general impression in this particular instance is nearer right than usual.

But there were a hundred and fifty old comedies and dramas produced in New York, and, naturally, a lot of them were better than others. On the other hand, if you try to pick ten out of the hundred and fifty and say that these were the outstanding plays of the year you discover the task to be much harder than usual. Also you find yourself more surely embroiled in the annual dispute as to why this play was included and that one left out.

However, this is a hazard to which we have become accustomed. The season could not be brought successfully to its June conclusion without this selection and the fights that follow after.

Therefore, here are the plays that

This and That Thing About the Theater

And This Means 'About the Actors, Also.

By Frederick Donaghey.

NOTHING in the matter of something new for the Chicago theaters is on the books until four weeks from tonight, when "Follow Thru!" will be placed into the Apollo for a run expected to be at least as long as was that, in 1928, of "Good News." . . . George M. Cohan's play named "Gambling," a success in Philadelphia, may meanwhile be brought into the Blackstone; but that is not definite. It is Mr. Cohan's present plan to exhibit it in August in New-York.

Meanwhile, there is theater-going in Chicago for the shows that are liked. "Pleasure-Bound," with the Saturday matinée out, had an immense second week in the Grand Opera-House, where it is likely to have high prosperity until the final night of August. . . . Mr. Skinner, popular since the late 'Nineties as a star in this town, last night rounded out ten weeks in a piece so thin and so nearly motionless that it seemed on the opening-night in the Harris to be good for merely a slim fortnight.

Reverting to "Follow Thru!" the cast designed for Chicago is to have in it Miss Lillian Bond, an importation from London who is said to be among the notable stage-beauties of today. She took part in New-York in the costly and ill-fated "Fioretta," and then was in the cast of "Stepping Out," which lasted less than a month.

The four gentlemen who are credited with putting Hoboken on the social map with their revival of "After Dark" have been quarreling, much in the manner of regular manners; and two of them have withdrawn from the venture, which, it is stated, will now be carried on by Christopher Morley, the novelist, and Cleon Throckmorton, who designs scenery and such. Mr. Morley, explaining that he is in deadly earnest, and not indulging a whim for kidding, in this strange enterprise in Hoboken, says that he will, when "After Dark" runs out, revive another old-time melodrama—perhaps George R. Sims' "Harbor-Lights" or, perhaps, Wilkie Collins' "No Name." Also, he says, he will probably put on his own play named "Where the Blue Begins." Furthermore, he will replace "The Black Crook," which is to be reëxhumed for two weeks in September, with a revival of "The Belle of New-York." And, just to show how varied is his interest, he will put on what he terms the Shoestring Revue.

"Talent" is the title of something new by Rachel Crothers, once of Illinois, who, after a number of failures, appears to have again caught the popular fancy—in New-York, at least—with "Let Us Be Gay!"

"Button! Button!" "Handsome Is," and "She Got Away with Murder" are the respective titles of three plays soon to be tried out in one of the Long Island towns.

Miss Claire Luce, at one time a Chicagoan and afterward in an issue or two of the Ziegfeld Follies, is mentioned for a rôle in a dramatization by Arthur Richman of "Jerome; or, The Latitude of Love," a novel which had a large measure of vogue. A. H. Woods is to put it on. Also, he is to put on a piece named "Scarlet Pages"; and he thinks Miss Luce might be in that, also.

Miss Audrey Maple, Nick Long, and Huph Cameron are well-knowns who will be in "The Street-Singer" with Miss Queenie Smith, Guy Robertson, and Billy House.

"The Front Page," with the text measurably bowdlerized, is to be sent on tour in the Autumn. Lee Tracy and Osgood Perkins, who headed the New-York cast, will be in their original rôles of, respectively, the duty-driven reporter and the unflinching managing-editor.

New things this week in New-York will be "Sketch-Book," written by Eddie Cantor for Earl Carroll, with Will Mahoney as the principal performer; "Bed-Fellows," by Louise Carter, who has written other plays; and "Show-Girl," with Miss Ruby Keeler [Mrs. Al Jolson], Miss Harriet Hoctor, Miss Barbara Newberry, Eddie Foy [junior], and the "team" of Clayton, Jackson and Durante . . . This juxtaposition of "Sketch-Book" and "Show-Boat" is held by Broadway to be screamingly interesting because Mr. Cantor, a Ziegfeld star, wrote it for Earl Carroll, whom Mr. Ziegfeld is said to hate.

Miss Elizabeth Risdon, last in Chicago as the rebellious daughter-in-law of "The Silver Cord," is now acting Nina Leeds in the touring-cast of "Strange Interlude." She has replaced Miss Judith Anderson, who in turn replaced Miss Pauline Lord. . . Expectation is that Miss Anderson will have the rôle when, in the Autumn, "Strange Interlude" is given here in the Blackstone.

Dish Up Opera as a Fox-Trot; Public Eats It

By Edward Moore.

out serious damage to the performance as a whole. Imagine, I say again, what would be the result if these works were put on in the manner of a former generation. You might go away liking Bori or Martinelli or Gall or Chamlee, but would you like the operas? The chances are excellent that you would not.

Incidentally these two operas have flamed the imaginations of two first class conductors, Gennaro Papi, to whom "Manon Lescaut" has been assigned, and Louis Hasselmans, who sets out the oriental melodies of "Marouf." And do not believe that the conductor is not an important element of the performance. Perhaps he is the most important, though the good conductor, like every other good artist, subordinates himself to the music. The only thing you are conscious of while Toscanini is conducting is that here is an extraordinarily fine representation of the music. The same is true of Papi in "Manon Lescaut" and Hasselmans in "Marouf."

Both works are to be given again this week, and the statement classifies as good news. It is not the only good news, however. One of the most interesting items is that there will be two Manons, Puccini's and Massenet's, and that Miss Bori will be both of them. It was four years ago, the summer of 1925, that Mr. Eckstein decided to present the two in one week, and the experiment was so successful that it will be done again now.

Short on Geography.

It is an interesting contrast, for while the two tell the same story, they are widely different in spirit and treatment. The Abbé Prevost set for all time the story of the gold digging young vamp whose moral sense was represented by a cavity, and who, in order that morality might be preserved, came to a bad end "in a desert near New Orleans." Whatever the author's ethics may have been, he seemed a bit shy on geography. Wherefore Puccini gave the story a thoroughly Italian treatment, direct, forceful, realistic, while Massenet a few years earlier had surrounded it with the romance and grace of France.

It is curious to see how Miss Bori treats the two. She is the Manon of both, yet she is a strangely different person in each. The truth is that she has a rather extraordinarily acute imagination. Where many another artist might be pardoned for getting lost in the resemblance of the two stories, she analyzes their two spirits and makes distinct portraits. When you see her in both you will realize how well she is worth seeing.

There will be other operas this week, complete details of which will be found in another column, and they are all promising and attractive. They range in character from "The Barber of Seville" to "Andrea Chenier," from "Lohengrin" to "Romeo and Juliet," and all the fine band of Ravinia artists will at one time and another be on view.

Musical Bits.

It is learned through publicity emanating from the steel pier at Atlantic City that the performances of Opera in English there has "substantially" verified the facts that English is a singable language. This would seem to classify under profound scientific discoveries.

This column not long ago printed the information that two Chicago singers, Maria Matyas and Marion McAfee, had been engaged by the American Opera company for the coming season. Vladimir Rosing, director of the company, now sends word of the engagements of four more Chicago singers and one Chicago conductor.

The conductor is Isaac Van Grove, formerly of the Chicago Civic Opera and now director of the summer opera company which is appearing at the Zoo in Cincinnati. The singers are Helen Golden, contralto, really a reengagement, since she appeared here last fall as Martha in "Faust" and Mercedes in "Carmen"; George W. Gove, basso; Eunice Steen, soprano, and Willard Schindler, baritone.

Miss Matyas is known here through some excellent recital singing. Miss McAfee recently returned to Chicago after a course of study and public appearances in Europe which brought her rôles at the Covent Garden opera, a solo appearance with the Philharmonic orchestra in Paris, some radio singing with the British Broadcasting corporation, and recitals with the English composer, Cyril Scott. Miss Golden received her musical training at the Rochester School of Music, whose opera department afterward developed into the American Opera company. Mr. Gove made some appearances last winter at the Central theater in opera performances of the Chicago Musical college which were directed by Mr. Van Grove. Miss Steen and Mr. Schindler were also instructed at the Chicago Musical college and are members of Mr. Van Grove's opera company at Cincinnati this summer.

The Chicago Musical college sends word of three performances at the Central theater this week. Tuesday afternoon there will be a farce comedy in four acts, "For One Night Only," presented by the school of acting under the direction of Walton Pyre. On Thursday afternoon Dorothy Kendrick will give a piano recital, presenting a Bach-Hess chorale, the Beethoven andante in F, the Schumann "Carnaval," a group by Chopin, and another by Juon, Debussy, and Liszt-Busoni. On Saturday morning Leon Sametini, violinist; Alfred Wallenstein, 'cellist, and Richard Hageman, pianist, will play a program of chamber music. Trios by Mozart, Beethoven, and John Ireland are announced.

The National High School orchestra and band camp is now again in operation at Interlochen, Mich., with Joseph E. Maddy of the school of music of the University of Michigan as musical director and T. P. Giddings, music supervisor of music of the Minneapolis public schools as supervisor of instruction.

It looks like an interesting center of activity. The first class playing and singing of these organizations that took place at the Auditorium a year ago last April is still a vivid memory. The camp this summer will contain an orchestra of 150, a band of ninety, and a choir of sixty. By doubling, the orchestra can be built up to 220, the band 150, and the choir 100. They say that the students represent all but about half a dozen states of the union. It is sponsored by the Music Supervisors National conference, the National Federation of Music clubs, and the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music. Outstanding musicians and well known conductors will give the course of study.

The schedule for the summer will include regular Sunday afternoon and evening concerts, with special features for each. Frederick Stock is spoken of as one of the guest conductors, though this seems unlikely on account of his engagements in Europe, but some of the others will be Leo Sowerby, Howard Hanson, Edgar Stillman-Kelley, Earl V. Moore, Carl Busch, Albert Stoessel, and A. A. Harding. Dr. Hanson and Mr. Sowerby are writing symphonic works which will be given their first performances there this summer. Among the soloists will be Theodore Harrison and Ernest Hutcheson.

Other items on their program include the Gilbert and Sullivan, "The Pirates of Penzance," a massed band concert, Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and request programs every Wednesday night.

Members of the camp are chosen on the basis of ability from their individual schools, and their expenses are paid by their schools, parents, community organizations, or individual philanthropists. Scholarships have been furnished by the National Federation of Music clubs, the Carnegie corporation, and the Julliard foundation.

FROM THE ARABIAN NIGHTS

MARIO CHAMLEE

[De Gueldre Photo.]

THIS is Marouf, the cobbler of Cairo, who went adventuring, as the Arabian Nights tell, and met with shipwreck, jewels, a beautiful princess, a benevolent djinn, and many other things of extreme oriental nature. The story has been turned into a highly diverting opera, which is one of the striking successes at Ravinia. Mr. Chamlee is famous on two continents for his performance of the name part.

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

AT RAVINIA.

This week opera goers may hear two versions of the famous story written by Marcel Prevost and called "Manon Lescaut." Tomorrow night the Puccini score will be sung and on Saturday night the one by Massenet. Both are beautiful, although they are quite different in text and treatment. If you have not already become acquainted with this classic you may read it in the modern library edition or in the series of classics published by Alred Knopf.

On Tuesday "Lohengrin" will be given. Miss Butcher said about it last year, "It is the work of Wagner himself as far as the book is concerned as well as the music, but there is a legendary background for the story, which you may find, if you care to dig for it, in the King Arthur legends of the Holy Grail. The most adult version of the King Arthur tales is found in Malory's 'Morte d' Arthur,' which is translated and available in many editions."

"Romeo and Juliet" is scheduled for Thursday evening and no lovelier setting for the Shakespear idyl could be imagined than the Ravinia stage with the trees whispering on three sides and the moon shining through the leaves. If you enjoyed the production in drama form seen here several years ago with Jane Cowl as Juliet and Rollo Peters as Romeo you will find the opera even more exquisite, just as music is more thrilling than the spoken word.

"Andrea Chenier" will be heard on Friday evening and although it cannot be found word for word in any one book, yet all the famous stories and accounts of the French revolution have something of this tragic romance in them. "The Tale of Two Cities," Dickens' picture of the epoch, would be appropriate to read in conjunction with the opera as would the more recent "Charlotte Corday," which gives most vivid sketches of the leaders of the revolution and of the unforgetable events which inspired "Andrea Chenier." "Charlotte Corday" is by Marie Cher and is published by Appleton.

Dig Up Emperor's Bust.

BUTRINTO, Albania.—(AP)—A marble portrait bust of a Roman emperor, believed to be Diocletian, was unearthed here by Prof. Luigi Ugolini, Italian archeologist. Albanian historians claim that Diocletian was an Albanian so the find has been presented to King Zog.

AT LEAST Adolphe Menjou looks as if the earth of bachelorhood were slowly crumbling away under his feet and he is about to be plunged into denedictdum. The lady with him is Miriam Seegar. The two of them are in "Fashions In Love" which is the Chicago's feature film for the week.

Soph Voices Opinions.

Dear Miss Tinee: As I sit here this beautiful cold, rainy morning [such ideal June weather, it is] and pound upon my typewriter, the only one left in existence that came out of the ark, I've decided to tell you a little about running th movie critic business.

First, I had better tell you that I'm just a high school soph, so you won't feel too badly about what I have to say.

Second, what's the matter with Bill Haines? Just show me the person that says anything is the matter with that adorable smart-aleck. The last I saw him in were "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and "The Duke Steps Out." List me as one of the many who have fallen, slipped, and stumbled for that baby's comedy.

Third, WHY did "In Old Arizona" get four stars? It's just a Hi-school soph's opinion that there have been others just as good that didn't get the four-star honor.

Fourth, let's see more and yet more of Buddy Rogers. Any second to that motion? Don't all speak at once. Really, Miss Tinee, don't you like that boy a lot? I do. The same goes for Gary Cooper and Charlie Farrell.

Fifth, if I must be numerical, the She-stars which strike me the hardest are Norma Shearer, Nancy Carroll, Irene Rich, and Bessie Love. "The Broadway Melody" put over the latter for me. In "Wild Orchids" I saw, for the first time, why people rave about the Great Garbo. I never cared much for her, maybe it was because the parts she took didn't appeal to me. Anyway, it was something.

Sixth, or is it sixty, I adore Mary Brian. Somehow, I feel she's kind of a kid herself. Don't know how wrong I may be, that's just my fancy. And I never could like Myrna Loy. Guess that's just fancy, too, but it's true.

Ninety-ninth, and lastly, is Joan Crawford supposed to be a movie star, and new wife of Doug, Jr., or an advertising campaign?

Your admiring reader,
A HIGH SCHOOL SOPH.

Editor's Note: How should I know everything?

She Begs to Differ.

Dear Miss Tinee: Usually I agree with you, but not always. Now, how on earth could you give "My Man" three stars and "Weary River" only two?

This last had a fine story and beautiful music. The only thing that saved "My Man" from being a lone star was the singing. Yes, that might have pulled it up to the level of a two star movie, although the story was a worn out, moth eaten, stupid old thing. Really, Miss Tinee, I didn't think you would fall for such a rotten excuse for a story.

The character was not a particularly lovable one either, that of a woman forcing herself on a man who didn't love her. In "Weary River" the characters were all convincing and some of them were appealing, too.

Ho hum! I'd better stop now before it's too late!

Sincerely yours, A. M.

Paris Cab Driver Sports a Monocle

PARIS.—(AP)—The monocle for taxi drivers is the latest in Paris.

Thus far the innovation is confined to one lone knight of the steering gear, a well dressed chauffeur driving a new and magnificent car, who parks his vehicle near the Opera.

Some say he is a member of the former Russian nobility while cynical boulevardiers are inclined to think that the monocle is a mere bait for bigger and better tips.

"How can any one offer a few paltry sous to such an aristocratic bemonocled driver?" they ask.

Favors Women as Saloonkeepers

LONDON.—(AP)—The equal rights for women movement in England has spread to the proprietorship of British licensed houses where liquor is sold. At a recent meeting of the Licensed Victuallers Defence league a masculine member lamented the fact that police oppose the transfer of licenses to women, who, he said, were "quite as capable of conducting a licensed house as a man."

"I knocked," he replied, meekly, "but couldn't make nobody hear, so I came around to the back."

Plays and Such of Ten Years Ago in Chicago Theaters

SUBJOINED are news of and comments on plays and shows printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of June 29, 1919—the date most nearly corresponding to today. The excerpts are verbatim, and not rewrites or summarizations.

Frank Carter, the musical-comedy [illegible] who recently took Miss Marilyn Miller to wife, has been engaged by Henry W. Savage for a rôle in "See-Saw," by Earl Derr Biggers, author of "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

"See-Saw" is forgotten. Mr. Biggers has tried occasionally to write for the stage, but without notable success. The play of "Seven Keys to Baldpate" was not his, but George M. Cohan's. As to Frank Carter, he died in an accident shortly after his marriage to Miss Miller.

The gossip of Broadway is that "Welcome, Stranger!" when it is revealed here in the early Autumn will be in large measure the work of George M. Cohan. The piece, in its original form, was a farce by Aaron Hoffman, and was played out of town by Cohan & Harris a month ago. Mr. Cohan, according to report, had sufficient faith in its central idea to undertake the complete making-over of the play.

If Mr. Cohan had any real part in "Welcome, Stranger!" he did not take credit for it. The piece was quite successful. Aaron Hoffman owed no part of his reputation to rewriting other men's plays, and was hardly humble enough to take a lesson from even so expert a dramatist as Mr. Cohan.

"The Gold-Diggers," Avery Hopwood's new play for David Belasco, is a comedy about chorus-girls. Ina Claire appears in it as a musical-comedy figurante whose [illegible] with a New-York youth is frowned upon by the young man's rich uncle and benefactor. Bruce McRae plays the uncle. One of the scenes pictures Mr. McRae's visit to the apartment where a number of chorus-girls live.

Twenty Years Ago

GOING back through the files to twenty years ago, or to the corresponding Sunday of 1909, the interests of theater-goers were catered to in THE TRIBUNE of June 27 by the paragraphs that follow.

[From The Tribune of June 27, 1909.]

A triple bill of one-act plays written by amateur local playwrights will serve to introduce the Hermann Lieb Players at the Bush Temple Theater tomorrow evening. The three playlets are: "The Greatest Gift," by Charles W. Collins; "Dope," by Joseph Medill Patterson; and "The Devil, the Servant, and the Man," by William Anthony McGuire. Mr. McGuire, the author of the third play, is a young Chicago writer whose play, "The Heights," has been accepted by an Eastern manager, and will be produced in the Fall with Frank Keenan in the leading rôle.

"Dope" won a measure of attention and the little piece served Mr. Lieb many years in the variety-theater. It was the first of Mr. Patterson's plays to be staged. Mr. Collins' short play had already been acted at a special performance on the West Side. Mr. McGuire, now librettist-in-chief under Mr. Ziegfeld, had not clicked; nor did he do so when, in the season of 1909-'10, his "The Heights" had a New-York showing.

The Colonial Theater will be dark until Wednesday evening, when Richard Carle will put forward a revival of his first real success, "The Tenderfoot." Six years ago, the piece enjoyed a run of twenty weeks at the Dearborn Theater, now the Garrick. Since then, it has been presented by different traveling companies in the popular-priced houses, but not with Mr. Carle in the rôle of Prof. Pettibone. The cast selected for its revival Wednesday night will have as its members Pauline Perry, Frances Kennedy, Ada Gordon, Ella Stanwood, Harry Fairleigh, Harry Cashman, Harry Williams, Hugh Fay, Abbott Adams, and a large and active chorus.

Mr. Carle was an amusing figure in "The Tenderfoot," which was a nice little piece with one good song, "I Met My Love by the Alamo." However, this revival didn't hold up at the box-office.

Evidently New York's reception of "The Boy and the Girl," even with Marie Dressler in the cast, was no more cordial than that given by Chicago play-goers when the piece was put on at the Whitney early in the Spring. The last sad rites were performed when it was withdrawn from the stage of the Aerial Gardens, and now, amid moth-balls and camphor, it lies in a cedar chest, taking a long and deserved repose.

"The Boy and the Girl" was just a bad show, although written by the same Mr. Carle.

National Dramatic Notes.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, seen last Summer in "She Snoops to Conquer," is now featured in "A Comedy of Errors."

These plays are best suited to Mrs. Willebrandt's peculiar talent. She was a total failure in "Broadway," although this might be chalked up to the fact that she had a lot of pretty-good actors supporting her.

Senator Jones has made possible the production of that charming travesty "Trial By Jury" all over the country. This elegant burlesque by Gilbert and Sullivan has lost none of its satire as it is being done today.

The United States Coast-Guard Service is rehearsing Harry Wagstaff Gribble's unusual comedy, "Shoot!"—Carroll Carroll in Judge.

John Writes Bad Plays.

The Theater I'd like to see—the Theater that would have the intellectual and physical equipment necessary to justify the ways of the machine to me—would combine the qualities of High Mass and a prize fight, of a vaudeville bill and a Communist meeting in Madison-Square Garden.—John Dos Passos in Life.

Mantle Chooses "Ten Best" from 150 So-So Plays

By Burns Mantle.

represent my choice of the season's dramas:

"Street Scene," by Elmer Rice.

"Journey's End," by R. C. Sherriff.

"Wings Over Europe," by Robert Nichols and Maurice Browne.

"Holiday," by Philip Barry.

"The Front Page," by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur.

"Let Us be Gay," by Rachel Crothers.

"Little Accident," by Floyd Dell and Thomas Mitchell.

"The Kingdom of God," by G. Martinez Sierra.

"Gypsy," by Maxwell Anderson.

"The High Road," by Frederick Lonsdale.

"Street Scene" Is Depressing.

These plays are as usual, arbitrarily a personal selection. I make no claim for my choice than that it is representative.

Mr. Rice's "Street Scene" is the Pulitzer prize winner of the year. A somewhat depressing study of the human comedy, tempered by its tragedies, as it is lived on the east side of New York. It is a play that frequently develops dramatic values that are impressively holding.

"Journey's End" is the simple narrative of an English under-officer living over again the romance and drama of his weeks in the trenches just before the big push that brought the armistice. This play becomes to me, by reason of its very simplicities and lack of conventional theater, one of the great war documents brought to the stage.

"Wings Over Europe" is a sort of triumph of intelligence over emotion. A fascinating fantasy touched with satire and written above the heads, it is charged, of we common folk, you will find it an absorbing exhibit of what can be done with the discussion drama when it is touched with imagination and staged with skill. The story, you may recall, is that of a youthful superscientist who stands the British cabinet on its collected heads by threatening to blow up the universe unless a way is found honestly and wisely to better the conditions of humanity.

"Holiday" is a smart social comedy in which the author strips the fourth wall from the home of one of our oldest, richest and most shallow families. Also the veneer from the souls of the worthiest members of the family group.

"The Front Page" is a rough copy of life among the police reporters. It was written for those who find their emotional stimulations and intellectual satisfactions in exposures that shall be honestly ruthless and without regard to what formerly was referred to as good taste.

Society Exposed in This One.

"Let Us be Gay" is another smart social comedy which amusingly exposes the reactions of a curiously assorted house party. An attractive divorcée has been unwittingly brought to the part to vamp the man she has divorced to save the daughter of the house from marrying him.

"Little Accident" is the only light comedy of the list. It is a sort of high farce relating the adventure of a man whose suddenly awakened paternal instincts impel him to kidnap his own illegitimate offspring to save it from adoption by strangers.

"The Kingdom of God" is the episodic study of the life of a young nun which was made interestingly revealing by the performance of Ethel Barrymore.

"Gypsy" is included even though it failed of a popular success because it is one of the few seriously written American plays to bring credit upon a native dramatist and because this editor liked it.

"The High Road" is put in because it is certainly quite as important as any of the plays left out and because it is one of the few comedies of the year that developed anything resembling a romantic story of the type upon which the older theater used to feed. This public, I think, is still entitled to a little romance.

Fewer Plays Produced.

I find nothing startling in the statement that there were something like fifty fewer productions this year than there were last year. I have a strong suspicion there will be seventy-five or a hundred less next year than there were this year.

The theater, as has been pointed out, is experiencing a salutary deflation and as soon as we can rid ourselves of a lot of plays and a lot of producers of plays that have been variously attracted to what they know as "the show game" the sooner will the theater begin to amount to something again worth talking and worrying about.

The significant things that are happening include the success of such enterprises as the Theater Guild and the Civic Repertory theater. The Theater Guild gave five hundred performances last season not counting those of "Strange Interlude," which held over from the season before and though five of the seven plays produced were popular failures not one of them played to a losing week. The subscriptions held them up, and the subscriptions, in spite of the unpopular plays produced, are heavier this year than ever. Which can prove but one thing—that playgoers with a serious interest in the theater had rather spend their money on an intelligently played failure under Guild auspices than take its chances with the current run of other attractions.

Eva Le Gallienne's civic repertory has been in existence for three years playing in a cheap theater at a cheap price but not producing cheap plays. The first year this company gave 226 performances with a single popular success, "Cradle Song" to sustain the box office. The second year they gave 235 performances without a popular success and only the frequent revival of "Cradle Song" to see them through. This year they have given 244 performances, scored two popular successes, with "The Cherry Orchard" and "Peter Pan" and are richer in bank account than they ever dreamed of being.

Shortage of Colored Talent.

Another development that is interesting is that of the colored revue. There were nine white revues last season and four black. The percentage of colored shows has been steadily increasing despite the fact that with each production of a black revue it becomes increasingly apparent that all the real colored talent has long since been used up and that few Pullman porters are good comedians.

There were twenty-three or four or five musical comedies. The exact number depends upon what rightfully should be considered a plot. Musical comedies must always have a plot—preferably the one about the girl who is engaged to papa's choice but prefers to sing and dance with the one who is a common chauffeur or something. She wins him in act one, loses him in act two, and in act three he proves that he owns a tuxedo. "Whoopee," "Follow Thru," and "Hold Everything" were the choice of the lot, because no one of them used any more of this plot than adequately necessary.

"The New Moon" was the best of the operettas and the current "Little Show" though a late starter, the best of the intimate revues on the Charlot order. Of all the plays produced 80 per cent were failures in a money way. But even that discouragement has not helped greatly in reducing the number of would-be showmen with faith and bank rolls.

HEROINE

MISS PRISCILLA PAGE

She's Eliza in "After Dark"; and Eliza in Dion Boucicault's old melodrama has a time of it at least as tough as has that other Eliza of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Miss Page acts the rôle in a spirit of subdued but obvious burlesque in the performances in the Woods.

Women Declare 3 Year War on Rio Mosquitoes

RIO JANEIRO.—(AP)—Women have been playing important rôles in recent weeks in the civic coöperative movement of the Brazilian caiptal aiding the health authorities in an educational campaign on how to exterminate the yellow fever bearing mosquito.

Chief among these workers is Miss Bertha Lutz, who was the guest of many women's clubs in the United States not long ago. She gave many radio talks on mosquito fighting and was a leader in the organization of the committee aiding the authorities.

It will take three years of concerted effort, according to Prof. Miguel Conto, to wipe out entirely the stegomyas. He made this statement in a radio talk, in which he traced yellow fever in Brazil since the first cases were brought here in December, 1849, by the American bark Navarre. Two sailors were taken from the ship with the disease, and it spread until 9,600 persons were attacked. The epidemics of 1892-3-4 claimed 13,000 victims, Dr. Conto said, but he said that such conditions could not be visualized at the present day, with health services such as Rio possesses.

In May there was an intensive campaign of leading citizens to bring home to the people that it was their fight to wipe out the mosquitoes, and that the health authorities must have their coöperation. The telephone operators in answering calls responded, "Kill the mosquito!" Boy Scouts paraded with banners with the same slogan and distributed tens of thousands of cards with instructions on eradication of breeding places of the insect.

Alfonso "Dunks" Doughnuts; Queen Gives Him Razz

MADRID—(AP)—Visitors to Spain henceforth need not fear to follow the national custom of "gadunking" the luscious churro, a species of sweet doughnut, in their coffee. It is quite good form and they will be only following royal example.

It is related in circles close to the royal palace that none likes the coffee-dipped churro quite so well as King Alfonso. This fondness is the subject of a story which Spaniards tell with great gusto. Queen Victoria Eugenie, English born wife of the king, recently remonstrated with her husband about dipping his churro in his coffee, but Alfonso, staunch nationalist, is said to have remarked that he only felt sorry if it wasn't done in England because they didn't know what they were missing.

The traveling American may not, however, eat with his fork in his right hand unless he wishes to be considered insular in his eating habits. The fork must be manipulated here with the left hand, as is done generally all over the continent.

Youth from Coal Mine to London Stage Via Pantry

LONDON.—(AP)—A 17-year-old pit boy from a Welsh mine has exchanged poverty and coal dust for fame and gold through the discovery that he possesses one of the finest tenor voices in Britain.

Three years ago Tommy Sandilands was thrown out of employment when his mine closed down. He came to London and got a job as a pantry boy in a West End hotel.

Tommy sang as he worked. A concert manager, who was staying at the hotel, chanced to overhear him and immediately booked the boy for a National Sunday League concert.

Tommy knew only three simple songs, but he made such a success that he was offered other engagements. The manager sent him to a teacher for training, and now Tommy sings arias in Italian.

Yes: They Help.

And, now that Boston has banned Voltaire's "Candide," we want to apologize for all the harsh things we've said about censors. They've taken the first step toward popularizing the Classics.—From Judge.

Yank Dentist Wins Paris Art Honors

PARIS.—(AP)—Doctor William S. Davenport, one of the leading exponents of American dentistry in Europe, is, in his leisure hours, a painter of distinction. His pictures, exhibited for many years at the "new" Salon in Paris, have won for him the honor of election as Associate Member of the French National Fine Arts Society. The committee also elected to full membership the American painter Cameron Burnside, and the Canadian sculptress, Mrs. Kaherine E. Wallis.

Woman Is Police Chief.

BERLIN.—(AP)—Fraulein Dorothea Freudenthal has been named as Berlin's first woman police commissioner. She at once declared in favor of uniforms for policewomen.

More Letters from Film Fans

A Kick for a Kicker.

Dear Miss Tinée: After reading "criticisms," "reform movements," etc., of "Mamie G.," "Louise," and "Mr. Cox," it seems about time for some one to stage a comeback. (Now, is that vulgar?) Wake up, movie fans, for heaven's sake! Where are you? And as to the reform of theater goers, why not start in by teaching people (especially children) to laugh properly? Nothin' worse than have some one give a cowboy's "Yippee" in your ear—right or left, it doesn't matter. It's good for headaches, provided you have a large supply of aspirin. Who started this, anyway?

Has "Louise" any children of her own? Do they chew gum or talk at the shows? Why blame it on the women? Two sides to every story.

And to "Mamie G." the "Yours cordially" certainly topped off that letter. No hard feelings. This is a free country and we are all entitled to our opinions, but for heaven's sake give the other fellow a chance! Is it Mae's fault that people go crazy over this or that star's bob, dress, etc.? She speaks from experience, and as for being "old or something" don't be "ridic." Mae at least can take criticism standing.

The hard truth is that people do act foolish over certain stars, but why not blame the right person? How about giving us all a treat on that money you got for Mary Pickford's writeup, Mae? ("A joke is not a joke unless it's funny," they say.)

A word about "Our Fans Column." In that one little column we find almost everything that makes the world go 'round. That's more than can be said of any one other column.

Long live the honest critic! Ho! Hum! If people could only appreciate the one we have. M. J. G.

P. S.—To Whom It May Concern: I am in no way associated with THE TRIBUNE and I wouldn't know Miss Tinée if I met her on the street. I know there are others who think the same as I do. M. J. G.

Editor's Note: I have a friend, quoth she.

Roses for Mary Astor.

Dear Mae Tinée: I would like to put in a few good words for Mary Astor. I think she is by far the loveliest star, and not only that! Can she act? And how!!

I think her acting surpasses that of Dolores Del Rio or any of the other supposedly great stars. Well, hope you publish this. I think your write up of "The Woman from Hell," was excellent, only I think it deserved four stars.

I hope you and I agree on the subject of Mary Astor. Sincerely,

PHYLLIS PAMPERIEN.

Great Outdoors Does a Fadeout; It's the Talkies

By Rosalind Shaffer.

one Sunday. A cow may look like a nice, comfortable bucolic bit of scenery to some folks, but such a sight would give Conrad or Jack the heebie jeebies nowadays. Both men are defendants in a $50,000 stockholders' liability suit, the aftermath of an unsuccessful ranching venture.

The opening of the "Hollywood Revue of 1929" at the Chinese theater was the biggest social event of the season. The turnout of M-G-M stars who made the picture was augmented by the Fox stars as well, for the Chinese theater opened its doors for the first time as a Fox theater. Such a large event drew stars from every studio, even including Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

The revue was the most spectacular made in Hollywood so far with success, with highly trained choruses executing maneuvers that Ziegfeld will gasp at when he sees them. One special act that brought applause had Marie Dressler, Pollie Moran and Bessie Love singing and dancing. The three girls' number aped a preceding specialty done by Cliff Edwards (Ukulele Ike), Gus Edwards and Charley King, who worked as a comedy song and dance trio. Marie Dressler showed that time cannot age, nor custom stale a good comedienne.

THE BEST MOVIE I EVER SAW

If you will tell us what movie, in your opinion, rates above all the others you've seen, and why this particular movie is deserving of praise, we'll pay $1 for your letter if we print it. Address Best Movies, Chicago Tribune.

Liked "Warming Up."

I am a baseball fan. Perhaps that is why I liked "Warming Up," Richard Dix's acting was like that of a regular ball player. The grandstands filled with excited people and the two teams fighting to determine the winner of the world series gave me a big thrill. It showed the life of a ball player when he off the diamond.

I think these movies of baseball, football or any other sport are much better than those picturing shooting and crime. H. V.

Full of Color and Melody.

The best movie I have ever seen is "The Broadway Melody." Not only does it show dramatically and beautifully back stage life, but it presents an on the stage show that for beauty, color, magnificence and melody is equal to shows costing five or even ten times the nominal admission price of that picture supreme, "The Broadway Melody." D. F.

Wild Orchids "Entrancing."

"Wild Orchids" was one of the most entrancing pictures I have ever seen. It seems that with every picture Greta Garbo gets better, for in this picture she was superb. The story was laid in a foreign country and the odd singing and dancing was unusually interesting. The scenery was gorgeous and the jungle scenes were thrilling. The plot concerned a married man who was so interested in his business that he paid little attention to his beautiful wife. They go to Java on a business trip and only after believing his wife is in love with a prince does the awakening come. A. R. Y.

An Ideal Picture.

When we say the talkies have come to stay, it is really a fact. After having seen "The Desert Song," well, I feel sure it is only a matter of time when wt shall have the great pleasure of having grand opera in the talking cinema.

I have always loved the movies and of all the pictures I have seen, "The Desert Song" has made the greatest impression.

The singing of John Boles was wonderful, and the beautiful voice of Carlotta King, with the splendid chorus made it an ideal picture. J. T. B.

Full of Suspense.

In my opinion one of the best pictures ever made was "Alias Jimmy Valentine." Every one in the cast was wonderful.

You could have heard a pin drop in the theater during the time Jimmy Valentine worked to open the safe in which the little sister of the girl he loved was locked. I'm sure every one was relieved when Detective Doyle said, "Well, Mr. Randell, I'm glad to have met you." H. C.

Miss Vickery and Miss Cook Sit for Their Portraits

By Eleanor Jewett.

It is rather interesting to note a coincidence in portraiture. The principal figures in two important schools in Chicago have sat for their likenesses this season. Miss Mabel S. Vickery, retiring head of the Girls' Chicago Latin school, was painted by Frank O. Salisbury, the English painter, in May, and Pauline Palmer finished the first of June a superb portrait of Miss Flora Cooke, active head of the Francis Parker school. Both canvases are interesting pieces of work from the characters of the sitters and also as being excellent examples of the type of work each artist is famed for.

The portrait of Miss Vickery is full of sweetness. It is reserved and dignified and gracious. You are conscious of her strength and courage shining through it; the personality that makes her the person she is speaks to us from the canvas. The blue eyes, the white hair, like a soft crown, the soft rose-petal transparent cheek, the firm mouth with its swift humor, the straight body—so slight and frail and yet so marvelously strong—these several features are presented in a straightforward and earnest way that resolve them into Miss Vickery's own person, as true a person as the gentle voiced flesh and blood Miss Vickery so many of us have known and loved these many years.

Pauline Palmer has done an equally notable portrait of Miss Cooke. She has made her intelligent, sympathetic, understanding, not without humor, and possessor of an inexhaustible fount of patience. Miss Cooke is shown seated, as is Miss Vickery, but there the likeness ends. The pose of the body and the placing of the hands is entirely different in the two portraits. Miss Cooke is composed enough to speak from the canvas. She waits with a smile on her lips for us to listen, then she will take up the thread of our thought and gently set it right. The portrait is well arranged and well painted. The values of the dress, the hair, the flesh are true and fine. It ranks with the best of Miss Palmer's work.

"PORTRAIT of Miss Flora Cooke," by Pauline Palmer. Miss Cooke is head of the Francis Parker school and the portrait is the latest piece of work Mrs. Palmer has completed. It had a recent viewing in her studio.

The painting was presented to the school and unveiled during the commencement exercises. The likeness is unusually fine and the simplicity of the black gown, with its touch of color in the rose and green of the scarf, sets off to splendid advantage the dignity and scholarly values of the face.

Summer Quiet Prevails.

A summer hush has fallen on most of the galleries. The Arts club has sent out cards announcing that the club rooms will be closed until Oct. 1; at the Art institute the school exhibition rules in the east wing galleries; in the various commercial galleries temporary shows are being dismantled and, with few exceptions, nothing of notable interest will be attempted before fall. The Marshall Field gallery has just closed an exhibit of house beautiful cover designs, the seventh annual exhibit of its kind. At Knoedler's the portraits by Paul Swan have given place to a superb exhibition of works by American artists. You will find a stunning Winslow Homer, a gorgeous Inness, a Gari Melchers, and a Robert Henri and a Leon Kroll, among others, all of them good examples of each man at his best.

Aside from these, there is little to tempt a visitor into a search for new emotions in the art world. Those who create pictures and sculpture are many of them bound for or already arrived at fresh fields of beauty for their palettes and chisels. Robert Lee Eskridge writes from a fascinating address, "Papeete, Tahiti, des Etablissements de l'Oceanie." Does not that intrigue you? And the opening sentences of his letter are nearly as replete with magic:

"The banana leaves are slowly moving in the late afternoon light—and the cocoa palms and breadfruit leaves, with their scalloped edges, nearly screen a view of the harbor. Down in the yard next door Papu-Ping is feeding his noisy ducks and a Tahitian boy rides by on a bicycle with a flask of hot coffee hanging on one handle bar and a couple of loaves of French bread tied to the other."

Detained by the Weather.

May in Tahiti means rain sometimes, and it did this year. Mr. Eskridge was held up a number of days in his attempt to get to the Taumotus, a distant island where one lives practically alone except for natives of cannibal inclinations, by hurricane and rain. The sea outside of the reef was nasty and his boat did not dare put out. When he does arrive he will be about 800 miles from Tahiti in the Gambier islands, of which one is Mango Reva, at the mercy of the thoughtfulness of a half-breed pearl trader who is leaving him there and returning for him in September—unless he forgets.

Mr. Eskridge will probably bring back a number more of those delightful water colors which created a sensation last winter when he exhibited them at the Chester Johnson galleries. Mr. Eskridge is beyond doubt one of the most talented and the most skilled and the cleverest of the younger group of painters.

Holidays in Europe.

Several members of the Art institute staff are spending their summer vacations in Europe, studying the development of art in the various centers in England and on the continent. Miss Helen Parker and Miss Barsaloux of the museum instruction department and Helen Mackenzie, curator of the Children's museum, left Chicago June 6, and are planning on three months in England, France and Germany. Daniel Catton Rich, editor of the Art Institute Bulletin, is in Spain looking up the old masters and exploring old and modern architecture in the streets of Barcelona and Seville and Madrid.

Mrs. Grace Scott of the Needlework Guild and Miss Mildred Davidson of the decorative arts department are in England and will visit Holland and the Rhine country before setting their faces towards home. Dudley Crafts Watson, head of the museum extension department, is leading a party of tourists through the capitals of Europe; he met his second party of about thirty members the middle of June at Oslo, in Norway. Mr. Kaltenbach, another member of the Art institute staff, is traveling with Mr. Watson.

Laura van Pappelendam, an instructor in the Art institute school, is leaving for Mexico, where she will paint the primitive people in their rugged mountain setting. She goes into the hills about a day's ride from Mexico City, and has no fear of the warring Mexicans, who last year took all the Pullman coaches from the trains and ran them only in the daytime. Several of her paintings from last summer have been exhibited this winter at the Art institute and in various other exhibits.

Poster Prize Winners.

With the closing of the city-wide competition for a poster making an appeal to the public for gifts in behalf of the Infant Welfare society, two Art institute students were announced among the winners. Harold Olson won the first prize of $150 and Margery Baker won the $50 prize.

Two prizes of $25 were awarded in the Art Students' league exhibition, which is hung in the far room of the east wing galleries of the Art institute, where the school exhibit is current; the water color prize went to Eugene Claussen for his amusing "Is Dat De Guy?" and the other award went to Charles Beiderman for the good work shown in his three lithographs. The prizes were given by the Municipal Art league. Serving as jurors were these members: Mrs. William F. Grower, Paul Schulze, Allen Philbrick, Douglas Hall and F. De Forrest Schook.

The newly elected officers of the Art Students' league are: president, A. Kenneth Ness; vice president, Catherine O'Brien; secretary, Paula Hotchkin; and treasurer, Kam Young Wong.

Two graduates of the Art institute school have recently been appointed directors of art organizations. Edmund M. Kopietz, who after graduation became an instructor in the life and composition classes in the institute school, has been appointed director of the Minneapolis School of Art. He is a native of Kansas and studied at the University of Wichita.

R. J. McKinney, also a graduate of the Art institute school, has been appointed director of the Baltimore Museum of Art. Mr. McKinney has just served for eighteen months as director of the High Museum at Atlanta, and previously he was director of the Davenport Museum in Davenport, Ia.

Prague Resumes Work on Church 1,000 Years Old

PRAGUE.—(AP)—Czechoslovakia is celebrating this year the one thousandth aniversary of its national hero, Prince Vaclav, a saint of the Roman Catholic church. As part of the observance it is trying to complete the Cathedral of St. Vitus which was founded by the princely saint and which has been in an incomplete state on a high hill overlooking this city for many centuries.

War and the fury of the elements have at intervals attacked the historic church and seriously damaged it. The chief tower, once 520 feet high, was reduced to 323 feet by a fire in 1541. The whole church and its monuments were seriously damaged by a Prussian bombardment in 1757.

An historic reminder came to light when workmen, engaged this year in reconstruction of the chapel dedicated to St. Mary Magdelen, uncovered two 17th century coffins. Armorial bearings on them showed they contained the bodies of Matthew of Arras and Peter Parler, two famous architects who came to Prague to superintend reconstruction of the church after it had been damaged by lightning. It had not been previously known that they had died in Prague.

The bodies were re-interred on the scene of their labors in the presence of the architects directing today the completion of the age-old task.

Camp Meeting at Des Plaines Will Start This Week

> With this issue of The Tribune I close my active connection with the paper, a connection which began on Oct. 13, 1908, somewhat more than twenty years ago. If it were possible I should like to thank personally all who have assisted me by furnishing news and "religious editorials," but I must content myself with a word of general appreciation and good will. I think it is due Mrs. Norton to say that during the year and more of my illness she has written the church news and has furnished the editorials and considerable other news as well. I feel deeply grateful also for the unfailing courtesies of the editors and staff of The Tribune. My address for an indefinite period will be: Columbia Villa, Troutdale, Ore. (Troutdale is a suburb of Portland.) Sincerely, W. B. NORTON.

DES PLAINES camp meeting, for seventy years a factor in the religious life of Chicago and vicinity, will begin on Friday evening and continue for ten days. Three camp meetings will be held, as heretofore, the Swedish being in session since last Friday, and the Norwegian-Danish to be held at the same time as the English section.

Four bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church are on the program: Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, resident bishop of Chicago; Bishop Edgar Blake of Indianapolis, Ind.; Bishop Francis J. McConnell of New York, and Bishop E. L. Waldorf of Kansas City, Mo. Among others of prominence there will be: President Oxnam, De Pauw university, Greencastle, Ind.; Prof. W. D. Schermerhorn, Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston; Dr. Merton S. Rice, Detroit, Mich.; the Rev. H. Clifford Northcott, Champaign, Ill.; and Ernest H. Cherrington, Westerville, O. Dr. H. V. Holt has charge of the program and Edward T. Clissold is director of music.

A director of older girls' activities, a new member of the staff, will begin work and Georgia McClure Coyne will continue as worker among the children. Robert W. Maser is director of boys' work and the aquatic club has been made possible by the completion of the new swimming pool. F. A. Pribbenow returns as supervisor of the pool and Tom Robinson Jr., son of Tom Robinson, swimming coach of Northwestern university, is senior life guard.

Aside from the three camp meetings, regular religious services are held throughout the summer, and each Sunday afternoon a camp Sunday school is conducted, Epworth league in the early evening, and a vesper service, at which some guest preacher speaks. Des Plaines camp ground is the oldest continuous summer resort within the Chicago and Great Lakes region, just outside the city limits. Aside from its religious object, it is the custom of more than fifty families to spend each year the entire summer and part of the fall in this grove on the Des Plaines river. At least three generations of the same families have been keeping up this custom for over fifty years. The Rev. Charles H. Draper is manager and Raymond G. Kimbell is president of the board of trustees.

This is the day which is to be observed by Presbyterian churches throughout the denomination as national loyalty Sunday. "The recent general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America was deeply impressed by the public word of the President of the United States regarding the threatened breakdown in the moral sentiment of the country by reason of widespread disobedience of law of which the most conspicuous example is the prevailing attitude toward the 18th amendment." A national loyalty commission appointed by the general assembly under the leadership of Dr. Cleland Boyd McAfee, the moderator, met last week in an interview with President Hoover, who urged that the issue now is not one of enforcement of law so much as the obedience to law and the obedience must issue from the hearts of the people.

The commission consists of twenty-five prominent leaders of the Presbyterian church, seventeen of whom are ministers and eight are ruling elders, and this body is calling upon ministers everywhere to observe in their churches three special Sundays of national significance to this end for the year. Today is the first one, immediately preceding the Fourth of July; Nov. 24, immediately preceding Thanksgiving day, and Feb. 16, 1930, falling midway between Lincoln and Washington birthday celebrations, are the others.

The commission urges that earnest attention be given the great issue of law obedience and that each member of the church place himself and all his influence on the side of obedience to law. It is requested that all pastors who observe loyalty Sunday today in any way communicate the fact to J. H. Ambruster, 77 West Washington street, so that a tabulation of Chicago churches may be made for use in national compilation.

The chorus choir of St. Paul's on the Midway, 60th street and Dorchester avenue, under the direction of Carl Craven, is giving a special musical program this morning at the usual service in honor of Frances Gund, dramatic soprano who was formerly a member of the choir and who has recently returned to America from operatic work in Europe. Miss Gund will sing "Hear Ye, Israel," from the Elijah and will assist the choir by singing the obbligato in the "Inflammatus" from the Stabat Mater and "How Marvelous" from the Creation.

The Fourteenth Church of Christ, Scientist, North Paulina street and Sunnyside avenue, announces the dedication of its church edifice today in three services at 10:45 a. m., 3 p. m., and 7:45 p. m. Christian Scientists dedicate their churches when they are paid for. Easter, 1914, seventy-five members attended the first service of Fourteenth church, Ravenswood, and Easter, 1923, the new auditorium was opened for services. Today the church will be dedicated, seating 1,200 and costing $300,000.

NEWS OF CHURCHES

THE REV. GROVER C. WHIMSETT, LL.D.

The Rev. Grover C. Whimsett, pastor of the South Chicago Presyterian church, has accepted a call from the Glen Ellyn Presbyterian church and will begin his new work on Sept. 1. Dr. Whimsett has served the South Chicago church for seven and a half years since his return from the world war. As naval chaplain he made twenty-six trips across the ocean, was torpedoed while on the U. S. S. President Lincoln, and floated on a raft eighteen hours in mid-ocean before being rescued.

Before coming to South Chicago he was national speaker for the American Legion. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago and is now chairman of the social service department of the presbytery of Chicago.

Fred B. Smith of New York City, moderator of the national council of the Congregational churches, in a call for the observance of today as "Support the President Day" says: "It is 117 years ago that Dr. Lyman Beecher introduced into the Connecticut Congregational conference the resolutions with which our churches made the declaration of war upon the traffic in intoxicating liquors. In this conflict we were soon joined by churches of other communions. It is incumbent upon us as good citizens as well as members of Congregational churches to give all the support that lies within our power to President Hoover in the law enforcement program which he has courageously and vigorously undertaken. I, therefore, urge that all our churches, as recommended by our national council in formal vote at the triennial meeting at Detroit recently, join with churches of other communions in the observance of this Sunday, today, as 'Support the President Day.'" With the power of prayer and the prophetic message of the pulpit the Congregational churches are asked to support President Hoover's law enforcement program.

The International Christian Endeavor convention will bring together the youth of the church with its various groups of coöperative denominational societies in great numbers at Kansas City, Mo., on Wednesday and the meeting will continue until Monday evening of next week. More than 100 men and women leaders in the religious and civic life of America and foreign lands appear on the program. Among these are: Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt for one of the main convention addresses; James Kelly of Glasgow, general secretary of the World's Sunday School association for Europe and India; the Rev. W. A. MacTaggart of Toronto, Can.; Fred Ramsay, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; Dr. A. E. Cory of North Carolina, formerly of China; Hon. Frederick A. Wallis of New York City, former United States commissioner of immigration, on "How to Succeed"; and Senator W. E. Borah has consented to speak on July fourth, when the great crusade parade of the convention will be held.

Not less than 20,000 Christian young people of Kansas City and from all parts of America will join in this demonstration.

Lester G. Morse, world war veteran, and recently graduated from Nashotah seminary, Wis., will be ordained to the Episcopal priesthood at the Church of the Holy Comforter, Kenilworth, this morning at 10:45. The Rt. Rev. Frank E. Wilson, recently consecrated first bishop of Eau Claire, Wis., will officiate. The service is of interest because of the fact that it will be Bishop Wilson's first ordination of a priest since his consecration and he is also a world war veteran and a former Chicagoan. He was rector of St. Augustine's church, Wilmette, at the time he entered government service during the war.

The Rev. Leland H. Danforth, rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter, will present the candidate for ordination. The Rev. E. G. Hunter and Mr. A. E. Riddle will take part in the service.

Rogers Park Presbyterian church, Greenleaf and Greenview avenues, is one of the churches observing National Loyalty Sunday today and has the honor of the moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, the Rev. Cleland B. McAfee, D. D., LL. D., as preacher at the morning service.

Under the direction of Mrs. Clara Carr, a worker among white children, and Mrs. Catherine Keith, one among colored children, a Sunday school parade is being planned for this afternoon. The line of march will start at 2:30 from the corner of 30th street and Wabash avenue, proceeding south on Wabash to 60th street, then east to South Park avenue and the entrance to Washington park where all will disband.

Church and Sunday school workers of all races and denominations will take part; cars and trucks decorated in red, white, and blue, bands and orchestras playing "America the Beautiful," and other church and Sunday school hymns will make points of interest. The object of this parade is to enlist all children as attendants to some Sunday school.

The opening sermon at Des Plaines camp meeting will be preached by Bishop Waldorf, Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The preachers for next Sunday, July 7, will be as follows: Bishop Edgar Blake at the morning service, Dr. Fred D. Stone, afternoon, and Bishop Edwin H. Hughes in the evening.

The Very Rev. F. Victor Hoag, dean of Christ Episcopal cathedral, Salina, Kas., formerly of Chicago, tomorrow becomes dean of the new Christ cathedral at Eau Claire, Wis., under Bishop Frank E. Wilson. The Eau Claire cathedral was established recently with the inauguration of the new diocese of Eau Claire. Dean Hoag was born and reared in Chicago and is well known here. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Hoag of La Grange.

Libertyville Presbyterian church, the Rev. Guy E. Smock, pastor, will make today a special anniversary occasion to celebrate the first year of occupancy of their new building.

Ravinia Park Has Unusually Brilliant Record

Opera Makes It Known the World Over.

Mme. X.

FOR nearly thirty years Ravinia Park has been the setting for high class entertainment. The original builder of the North Shore electric road, which connects Chicago and Milwaukee (he was [illegible] C. Frost), had ideals and when he built this popular line he set apart a good sized tract of thickly wooded land on the east side of the tracks and at the south end of the village of Ravinia and there established a garden modeled on that far famed institution, the German beer garden.

Here he undertook to give fine music interspersed with high class drama of the "little theater" type. Damrosch, Stock, and other distinguished orchestra leaders directed their orchestras there. Many of the earnestly striving theatrical companies of those days presented their carefully written plays to what it must be confessed were rather indifferent audiences. If I use this adjective to describe the gatherings there it is to preface the statement that failure was the founder's sole reward for his high ideals. Alas that this is so often the case among us Americans! We travel far to support similar movements in European centers of culture, but when we have the opportunity to promote music, drama, art and literature in our own land we are too prone to neglect it.

The railway and Ravinia Park went into the hands of a receiver. Rumor hinted at the park's being taken over as quarters for a circus, or being turned into a clamorous Coney Island. To the residents thereabout, and they included a large number of wealthy and fastidious people, the idea of such neighbors spelled the ruin of the district as a site for their lovely country estates. Among these north shore dwellers was Louis Eckstein, who had a charming summer residence in nearby Glencoe. A meeting of the dwellers from all that region was called to discuss the direful situation. The outcome was that a society was formed to take over the park. It was not long before Mr. Eckstein became president of the Ravinia Park association, a position he has held ever since.

A Place of World Renown.

During the eighteen years of his administration he has developed in this arcadian summer garden an institution of worldwide renown which is the pride of all intelligent people living along Chicago's north shore. Nowhere else on this round globe of ours is there just such an exquisite musical institution as this open air opera. Grand opera of a splendid quality thrives in Chicago and New York, as well as in European capitals, but anything like this ideal combination of perfect music and God's lovely open air in a beautiful park is not to be found elsewhere.

You may think that I dwell too much on Ravinia's opera and that I should emphasize more in this pillar of polite piffle the sports and social dissipations of this community. If I do not do so it is because I take it for granted that all my readers know quite well the gay outdoor and indoor life of today's fashionable world. But there is yet lacking a complete appreciation of the exquisite culture to be gained by a personal acquaintance with a summer season of our open air opera. Do you need to be told and told again of the chief recreations of the people of wealth, of their luncheons and dinners followed to their great delight by long hours of "contract bridge"; of their continuing golf games; of their animated tennis; of their hunt meets and horse shows? I always announce when these events are taking place so that the readers of the W. G. N. can escort in their minds our smart set in its amusements. But I especially try to present to the newspaper reading public the gradually growing knowledge of and taste for the best music that is being, willy nilly, developed among even our most uncultured smart set.

Encouraging Signs.

Love of music is not innate in us Americans. But we are not incapable of acquiring a genuine appreciation of and taste for it. And this, though few suspect it, is really developing among Chicago's so-called fashionables. At least, I think I see signs of it, though one has to look for it with the strongest kind of magnifying glasses. Of this I am sure: one can love both sports and grand opera. One can be a connoisseur of the fine arts and also delight in cross country riding. Too great an emphasis on any special interest or pursuit tends to make a mortal one-sided and ill proportioned. To be a citizen of the world it is well to develop many outlooks on this tremendously interesting adventure called life.

On Ravinia's opening performance, eight nights ago, a great audience attended a great presentation of Puccini's "Manon Lescaut," a brilliant, melodious and colorful opera well adapted to set off Mme. Lucrezia Bori's exquisite voice and person, Martinelli's splendid tenor and his dramatic talent and the delightful and perfect training and equipment of the entire troupe. Never did our lovely Lucrezia appear more entirely charming and completely mistress of her art. She looks even younger than when she first sang for Ravinia—was it five years ago?

Opera Singers Lease Houses.

She is occupying a most attractive place in Lake Forest, where behind a high white wall she can live the secluded and independent life necessary to any great artist. She has a lovely house large enough to accommodate the many distinguished guests who will come from the east to visit her. She has a more worldly outlook than most prima donnas, being wherever she goes a tremendous favorite with the socially conspicuous. Many of her operatic contemporaries, while being great in their profession, are not as interested in the give and take of social life. Music is an exhausting calling and makes large demands on its votaries, demands that prevent their taking much part in any life outside that of their profession. Mme. Bori is both an artist and a woman of the great world.

Giovanni Martinelli, who is here with his wife and children, is occupying, as in previous seasons, the Victor Elting house in Winnetka. Again will his neighbors have the pleasure of listening to his great voice ringing out across gardens on summer nights when he is not due in Ravinia. When he heard of the many who sat on their porches to listen to him sing he is reported to have said with a gay smile: "Can I not charge them for this?"

Edward Johnson and his attractive looking daughter, Florenzina, also are keeping house on the north shore. So

THERE was a brilliant representation of society at the recent Lake Forest horse show at Onwentsia. Mrs. Samuel J. Walker, Mrs. Howard Linn, Miss "Libby" Chase, Miss Jean Schweppe, the Charles H. Schweppes' daughter, Mrs. T. Clifford Rodman, and Laurance H. Armour were among the riders. Mrs. Arthur Reynolds Jr., Mrs. Charles Hines, who was Miss Pussy Notz before her recent marriage, Mrs. Allen Kempe (Hester White), Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr. (Daisianna Smith), and Mrs. Rush Clark Butler Jr., composed one of the box parties on the opening day.

Alexander-Tilton Nuptials Draw New York Fashionables

By Nancy Randolph.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, June 29.—[Special.]—What would June be without its weddings of much importance? To be sure, there haven't been quite so many this year as in past seasons, but Monday saw the chapel of St. Bartholomew's filled with a most fashionable gathering when Susan Dimock Tilton, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Trowbridge Tilton, became the bride of Archibald Stevens Alexander, son of the late Archibald Stevens Alexander of Castle Point, Hoboken, and the late Mrs. Frederic N. Watriss.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. S. S. Drury, headmaster of St. Paul's school, where young Alexander prepped for Princeton, from which institution he was graduated last June.

Susan, a deb of three winters past, attended Miss Chapin's school in town, and the Walker school at Simsbury, Conn. Coming down the aisle at St. Bart's, on the arm of her father, she was decidedly lovely in her princess gown of ivory satin. The bodice, long sleeved, had a V neckline and her tulle veil fitted into a little cap, held in place with clusters of orange blossoms.

Attendants Wore Chartreuse.

Mrs. James Wadsworth of Geneseo, N. Y., the former Harty Griggs Tilton, was matron of honor, and Maud T. Tilton was maid of honor. Both wore gowns of chartreuse Romaine with large hats trimmed in velvet to match the gowns.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Reginald P. Rose, Katherine L. Barnes, Bessie Morgan Belmont, Edyth C. Elliman, Sophie M. Gay, and Elsie Yandell Barber. They all wore frocks of a deeper shade of chartreuse than those of the matron and maid of honor, with hats to match and carried bouquets of delphinium, talisman roses, and lotus.

Archie Alexander, of the famous Stevens family of Hoboken, and a descendant maternally of the Barneys and Whitneys, had James W. Barney as his best man. The ushers included George R. Jackard Jr. of Philadelphia, T. A. Whelan III of Baltimore, James H. W. Thompson of Wilmington, Redmond C. Stewart Jr. of Baltimore and Robert L. Stevens, Courtlandt D. Barnes Jr., F. Livingston Pell Jr, and Howard Clark, all of New York.

Young Alexander at present is attending Harvard law school and after the honeymoon is over the newly married pair will most probably settle in Boston until Archie has received his degree at the university.

Plans Stage Career.

Speaking of Bessie Belmont, one of Susan's bridesmaids, reminds me that the news of her going into the

Arlington Is Big Attraction for Tomorrow

Race Enthusiasts Will Be Out En Masse.

By Mildred Jaklon.

THE horses continue to occupy much of society's attention. The opening of the Arlington Park race track tomorrow will attract many of the enthusiasts who have been betting on and watching the ponies this last month at Washington Park. The Post and Paddock club of Arlington, the membership of which is privileged to occupy the ritzy inclosure at the far right end of the grandstand, includes a long list of prominent citizens, and the boxholders' list, those who have reserved boxes for the season, is likewise a lengthy and impressive one. There will be many lunch parties tomorrow before the initial session.

The boxholders include the Stanley Fields, Harry H. Lobdell, Selden White, Earle H. Reynolds, Thomas E. Wilson, Warren Wright, Charles F. Glore, Armin W. Brand, J. Lynch, Edward N. Hurley, John D. Hertz, are Mme. Yvonne Gall, the Lazzaris, Pasi, Mojica, and others of the company. They like to have this taste of outdoor summer life in what is a strenuous career.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

On this opening evening occurred one of those minor catastrophes to which open air opera is subject. Near the close of the performance a summer storm arose such as must be accepted as one of the inevitabilities of the season. The lightning began flashing around the horizon. Heavy clouds covered the late rising moon. As is the way with crowds, many took sudden fright and rose as one mass and fled from the pavilion. It was an error of judgment, as those who stayed until the end of the performance found that for the time being the rain had stopped and they did not have even a drop of rain to disturb or harm their "glad rags." On the other hand, those who rushed for their motor cars or for waiting trains got pretty wet and disheveled. It was an exciting scramble for chauffeurs and cars in that great field to the west of the tracks and added a spice to the evening which could be looked on as a real addition to its enjoyment.

Notables Attend.

An existence of entire and undisturbed comfort and protection from untoward incidents would be a dull and tedious affair and would make a lot of stodgy bores out of us mortals. That summer shower at Ravinia added to the evening's poignant delight just as pepper adds to a salad's exquisite taste. Let no one stay away from that enchanting garden for fear of nature's pranks. Variety is the spice of life. A temporary panic makes a sense of security the more precious.

Among the well known society people who attended this first operatic presentation of the 1929 season were the Charles Edward Browns and their daughter, Miss Betty Brown; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Poole, who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eckstein, as were Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Sargent and Edward Zeigler of the New York Metropolitan Opera company.

Mrs. C. T. Boynton was in her box across the aisle from the Ecksteins with a party of friends.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Eckhart, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Schweppe, Mrs. James A. Patten, who had as her guests Gen. and Mrs. C. H. Conrad of Fort Sheridan and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott; Mr. and Mrs. James M. Douglas Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Granger, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown Jr., Mrs. Henry Tuttle, Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Julius Rosenwald, Albert M. Day, and Herman Waldeck.

Last Tuesday evening the members of the Ravinia Opera club were the guests of Mr. Eckstein when Charpentier's opera, "Louise," with Mme. Yvonne Gall in the title rôle, was beautifully given.

The Swedish Club.

One of the recent discoveries made by the X family is the Swedish club of Chicago, an institution that has flourished here for some fifty-five years. Its habitat is an old mansion on Dearborn street, on the corner of Schiller. This has been added to in the course of time, a large ballroom on the main floor and underneath a spacious restaurant, giving space for the good sized membership. The assembly hall is adorned with a set of effective frescoes which depict scenes of Swedish life in this country. And our Scandinavian citizens have a much larger and more ancient claim to a part in our history than most of us realize. Not only were their ancestors undoubtedly the first Europeans to discover this continent—they were also active in the early annals of our history.

They came over in 1638 and settled New Jersey. They called it "New Sweden." Later the Dutch came and drove out the Scandinavians and took possession of that part of the country, giving it its Dutch, or rather its German, traditions, for what we know as Pennsylvania Dutch were really Germans. The oldest church in Philadelphia, "Gloria Dei," was built by these early Swedes and has been maintained by their countrymen ever since.

In our first continental congress John Morten, a Swede, threw the deciding vote for the Declaration of Independence, while John Hanson was the president of our first congress after the revolution was won and transferred his powers to George Washington, the newly elected and first President of the young republic. Even in Illinois the Swedes were among our early settlers. The village of Galva was named for the town of Géfle (pronounced "Yevla"), on the Baltic sea, while another settlement near it, Biskops Kuller (Bishop's Hill), was established by a band of the same race seeking religious liberty.

Still another Swede who made a great name for himself in our history was Ericsson, who built the famous Monitor, which many think turned the tide in our civil war to victory for the northern forces. Therefore the Swedes of today have a right to claim an important part in our national development.

Worthwhile Citizens.

Gotthard Dahlberg, attorney for the board of local improvements, is president of the Swedish Club of Chicago. The association has 400 members. Our Swedish residents are among our thriftiest, ablest, most industrious citizens. They have contributed little or nothing to our criminal annals. There are no Swedes in gangland; none of them is implicated in the disgusting outfits that are today winning for Chicago a reputation for lawlessness that puts us on a par with the wildest, most untutored races on earth. Just compare, for instance, London's statistics of murders and their punishments in 1928 with those of Chicago for the same period. None of our records of acts of violence is traceable to Scandinavians.

By the way, and before I turn to another subject, I want to say here that the Swedish Club of Chicago maintains the high standards of this race as to what constitutes a good cuisine. All over Europe the Swedes are famous for their delicious food. Wherever you go in Sweden, even in quite remote districts, you'll find good cooking. It hasn't the complicated art of the French, but in some ways that makes it appeal more to the dyed-in-the-wool Anglo-Saxon. We like to know what it is we are eating, a fact likely to be concealed by the rich sauces of the French chef.

The Swedish cooking is delicious, well flavored, and admirably balanced. If they eat more than we do, it is the tradition of a people whose winters are long, cold, and dark, so that protracted feasts are a godsend as a way to pass the time. Their food is more delicate and therefore more acceptable to us than that of their neighbors, the Germans and Russians.

A Narrow Escape.

Many are the narrow escapes of horseback riders in the records of this most ancient of sports, but none was ever a closer squeak and a more marvelous escape from death or permanent injury than that which happened to Miss Elizabeth Chase in the closing hours of the Lake Forest Horse show, eight days ago. She is one of the most expert women riders in the entire U. S. A. and even enjoys an international renown, having made good last winter in England's sportiest hunting communities.

She was riding one of the in and out jumps toward the end of the show on the Onwentsia club grounds, when her mount hit its knees against the top of a V shaped obstacle, tripping itself, upturning the obstacle, throwing Miss Chase to the ground, and rolling over on her. By one of those flukes such as don't happen once in a lifetime, she fell under the arch between the animal's hips and head, so that, while the breath was knocked out of her, she was not injured beyond having a knee bruised.

To the onlookers death, or at the least a broken back, seemed the only possible outcome. Her father, from one part of the ring, and her mother from the boxes, hastened toward her with hideous fears. It was one of the most disastrous looking accidents that has ever occurred in that ring, but after a few instants the plucky young woman was helped to her feet and walked off the course. She reappeared in the next event with the same horse and won a blue ribbon and the enthusiastic cheers of the crowds assembled there.

At a similar horse show held at Devon near Philadelphia, lately, there were side line attractions which might be copied by our local shows. The Philadelphia affair, like that of Lake Forest, was for the benefit of a local hospital. Besides an exciting set of jumps and obstacles set before the riders there, there were all sorts of supplementary features. There was an open air bazaar, with booths where all sorts of things were for sale, as well as candy, ice cream sodas and all day suckers.

There was a fashion show wherein mannikins strolled about clad in the latest modes, for which privilege local dressmakers were glad to pay lavishly. There was a well-patronized tea tent and other pleasant episodes, all of which netted the hospital a goodly sum. It might be worth while to try something like these additions at our nearby horse shows next summer.

Picturesque Sporting Event.

This year's horse shows will close with that to be held at Fort Sheridan, July 12 and 13. As always, this will be one of the most exciting and picturesque of the sporting events in this part of the country. The military never fails to invest its affairs with the glamour of smart uniforms, trained riders, lively horses and all the rest of the romance with which the civilian endows his protectors, the army and navy. The fort is a picturesque setting for such affairs, though if I were a millionaire citizen desirous of contributing to the outward air of our fine military post I'd dedicate to it a sum sufficiently large to have all those rather shabby brick buildings painted a uniform white. That place would look very smart all dolled up with white brick structures. Red roofs would complete the picture and make Fort Sheridan the best looking post in the entire country, especially if the little gardens were the outward adornment of the officers' and soldiers' quarters.

Gen. C. H. Conrad, commandant at the post, heads the board of directors of the Fort Sheridan association. Others on this board are Col. T. A. Siqueland, Laurence H. Armour, Chauncey McCormick, Clarence Norton Goodwin, Otto W. Lehmann, Fred Pabst, C. C. Daughaday, and C. G. Ellis. Honorary members of this committee are Col. George Tayloe Langhorne, Col. Noble B. Judah, Col. R. R. McCormick, Col. A. A. Sprague, Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, Lieut. Col. Laurence B. Robbins, Lieut. Col. Irving Odell, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Wood, Austin H. Niblack, William E. Wrigley Jr., Benjamin Leslie Behr, Eugene V. Byfield, George A. Strom and Lawrence H. Whiting. A long list of patronesses also accompanies the announcements of the affair, an alphabetical list headed by Mrs. B. F. Affleck and concluded by Mrs. Arthur A. Small.

Proceeds Divided.

The proceeds from the sale of tickets will be divided between the Army Relief society and the School Fund for Post Children, both much needed organizations. Our legislators are lavish when asked for funds for their local improvements, but when it is a question of providing for the most fundamental and imperative requirements of those who compose our army or navy they are niggardly to the point of destruction.

Just why any man should want to follow a military or naval career I

Turkish Officials Garbed in Old Yankee Clothes

SAMBOUL, Turkey.—(AP)—The United States is doing a flourishing business in supplying old clothes for new Turks, a business which centers in a rambling picturesque old khan in a corner of Stamboul.

From America come yearly some three million pieces of second hand clothing which are dumped into the 400 workrooms of the ancient khan to be repaired by 1,900 workers and then shipped to peasants and townspeople throughout Asiatic Turkey.

The most expensive costume after it has been refurbished in the khan sells for three dollars, and the cheapest for about twenty-five cents. Often an Anatolian village dandy sports a frayed American dinner jacket which he has purchased for the equivalent of a quarter. Many, too, are the government officials, required by the new régime to don frock coats on state occasions, who, because of their puny salaries, patronize the khan.

Hospital Bars Liars, Lunatics

LONDON.—(AP)—Innocence of conversation, as befits widows and spinsters over 50, is one of the requirements for admission to the new Jesus hospital charity in Hadley wood, just outside of London.

Nor can liars, lunatics, or witches be admitted, according to the stipulations made by James Ravenscroft, who founded the charity in 1679.

The board of visitors has announced that it will follow closely the wishes of the founder in making its selection of inmates.

The Gann Case May Light on British Premier

MacDonald's Proposed Visit Intrigues Society.

By Maxine Davis.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—It may be the British prime minister who will precipitate settlement of Washington's most pressing problem: the status of Vice President Curtis' sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann.

The prospect of a visit from the Hon. Ramsay MacDonald to the capital in July or August, fillip enough in itself to the social dessert of midsummer Washington, has to the gossips the added charm of the Curtis-Gann complication.

If there should be a dinner at the White House for Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, which would naturally be in order, it would afford the first opportunity for a presidential ruling on the Gann-Longworth controversy over precedence which enlivened capital conversations for many weeks.

Of course, should the prime minister come alone, unaccompanied by his daughter and hostess, Miss Isabel MacDonald, it is conceivable that all the affairs given for him might be unlightened by the ladies, and Mrs. Gann would be as much at sea as before.

The fact that Mrs. Gann was given the place of honor at the right hand of the British ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, at his dinner recently settled nothing, as the diplomatic corps had already made clear its position.

Hoovers Fête Veterans.

One of the most delightful functions of the Hoover administration was the fête given the disabled veterans at the White House. Wounded men from Walter Reed hospital and other clinical centers, hobbled or were helped into the gracious presence of the first lady of the land and the President of the United States.

The first White House garden party for veterans was given in the Wilson administration and since then it has become an annual event, with a few exceptions. Last year Mrs. Coolidge was in poor health, and the previous year the White House was being renovated and President and Mrs. Coolidge were living in the Schlesinger mansion.

Aged Women Honor Guests.

An enchanted ceremony occurred at the marriage of Miss Mary Jane Williams to Representative Henry St. George Tucker in the ancestral home of the bride at Culpepper, Va.

The occasion was quaint, and fraught with pathos, for the residents of the Louise Home for Old Women, of which Mrs. Tucker was superintendent for fourteen years, were the honored guests.

Early in the morning all who could attend set forth in the motor bus provided by the bridegroom and journeyed for three hours to the wedding.

Such a display of heirlooms, of rare old lace, and exquisite old jewelry has seldom graced one function. For nowhere in the country is there a group with such romantic and interesting histories as these aging folk who truly merit their title of "gentlewomen," whose memories reach many decades into a bright, memory mellowed past.

Representative Tucker, who is no youngster himself, found a warm place in the hearts of these women during his courtship, and on one occasion brought his eight grandchildren to call on them for tea.

An Egyptian Birthday Fête.

A birthday fête given by the Egyptian minister, Mahmoud Samy Pasha, in celebration of Mme. Samy's anniversary was one of the gayest festivities of recent days. Under the waving Egyptian flag 100 guests gathered, dancing to American jazz and drinking pleasantly alcoholic beverages served by red-turbanned, dark-skinned servitors.

Another amusing party was given by Mrs. Sydney Cloman just before she sailed. The function was held in a miniature garden built on the roof of her garage.

Belles Seek New Beaux.

Washington belles "view with alarm" the necessity of securing new uniformed beaux. The White House aids assigned from the army and navy are the most popular bachelors in the capital's military circles, and a whole series of shakeups and reassignments amongst them seems to be in progress. White House aids are the most elaborately gold laced and wholly attractive young men about town, and are always in great demand. New bachelors come in as the old ones go out, but the fair members of the younger set are loath to see their old friends go.

Maj. Alvin Sandeford, who is being transferred to Governors island (happily, within commuting distance of Washington), has been here six years and has been the mainstay of many a smart party. Maj. Louis O'Donnell, another one of the most popular of the White House aids, has been assigned to one of the most coveted posts in the service—the Ecole de Guerre in Paris. And Lieutenant Commander "Cub" (Charles Baltimore Calvert) Carey started last week for the orient via Victoria, B. C., to the weeping and wailing of the debutantes. And, of course, the Mayflower took away many coveted dancing partners, and marriage robbed the younger set of a few more. It is tradition that the White House aids, with the exception of the President's own military and naval aids, must be bachelors.

Senator Walter E. Edge joined the now famous bachelor colony of semi-detached husbands congregating in Edgemoor in the Walter Tuckerman house for the summer.

Mrs. Edge and her children have gone to Bath, Me., for the hot months, but the head of the family will remain in Washington to attend to his senatorial duties. He must work on the tariff legislation, while the majority of his colleagues are enejoying a recess.

Senators Stay in Town.

Others of this little coterie are Senators Hiram Bingham and Frederick C. Walcott of Connecticut, Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, all of whom have committee assignments which will keep them in town.

Senator Bingham is already there, as his wife went home some weeks ago. Senator Walcott will move out of his winter lodging in the Hoover house on S street shortly, and join his colleagues. He has been elected housekeeper because he states he is young and innocent in the ways of the senate, which has a way of giving its undesirable assignments to its youngest members.

Since Mrs. Wolcott's departure, he has lingered on in the residence he took over from President Hoover, frequently dining in the pleasant garden at the rear, and spreading the while a bountiful meal for the birds which came to haunt the place at the Hoovers' invitation these many summers. The factotum of the establishment is a manservant who worked for Mr. Hoover and Mr. Walcott when they lived together years ago, and who was with Mr. Hoover the twelve years before he moved into his present domicile on Pennsylvania avenue.

Ochre Court, Owned by Robert Goelet, to Be Open Again

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEWPORT, R. I., June 29.—[Special.]—The important event of the next week will be the opening of Ochre court, which has come into the possession of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet through the passing of the former's mother, the late Mrs. Ogden Goelet.

It is several years since Ochre court has been open. Mrs. Goelet, the former Roberta Willard, has been the guest of her father, Col. Willard, at Fair Haven, superintending the preparations for opening Ochre court. It was at Fair Haven that Mrs. Goelet's marriage took place, several seasons ago.

Many Arrivals.

Mrs. J. Nicholas Brown gave over the gardens of Harbour court this week for the benefit of the Civic league. At present in Greece with her son, John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. Brown will return to Newport late in August.

Many arrivals are recorded this week. Mrs. Herbert C. Pell Sr. arrived to spend a month at Pine lodge annex. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman arrived on Friday to occupy Pine lodge. Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth Wickes and Miss Marian Wickes are at Zeerust. Miss Wickes will make her debut at the Clambake club on Aug. 17.

NEWS OF SOCIETY

can't see. It condemns him and his family to lives of constant self-denial. Compared with the rest of their kind, our fighting men have less to wear, less to eat, less to enjoy, less recreation, less beauty, less safety, less comfort, less education for their children, less than any of their kind of what even the lowliest consider their birthright in the brief interval between the two great silences that precede and conclude this mundane career.

I am told that Uncle Sam makes absolutely no provision for the education of the children at Fort Sheridan, though at many posts this is provided for the offspring of both officers and privates. It casually leaves this important service to the nearby localities. Up to a year ago, if reports were true, Highwood and Highland Park, the nearest villages to the post, charged the post for the schooling their children received at the local public schools. Whether this still goes on I don't know. I believe there was a movement on foot to do away with the charge. The Army Relief society does an infinite amount of good among the women and children of our national army. Mrs. William H. Hubbard is president of the Chicago branch of this nation-wide society and Mrs. Arthur A. Small is one of the most active workers in this organization.

Doing a Splendid Work.

The army and navy are the greatest and most important bulwark of our precious national institutions and ideals. By their aid we are enabled to lead the most universally comfortable and happy existences ever enjoyed by any nation in the world. If history be any guide, such prosperity as ours would lay us open to attack from all sides were it not for the protection afforded us by these two branches of the national service. Yet we let the families of the men in this service want for many essentials, and when, as is more apt to happen in this than in any other profession, women are left widows and children are left half orphans, our rich government allots as the largest pension to the widows of even our great generals $30 a month, with $10 additional for each child until the child reaches the age of 18.

To help make up for the flagrant neglect of our national government this Army Relief society is doing splendid work. It is to be hoped that a huge attendance on this Fort Sheridan horse show will fill their coffers brimful.

The show itself will be a fine one. There will be thirty-five classes, of which seven will be entirely military. The drill and deploying of mounted troops never fails to be a thrilling spectacle. Soldiers always have a dashing manner of riding envied, but seldom copied, by even the pluckiest civilian. A polo game between army men and any civilian team is quite the hardest test of the latter's skill, as the former have an almost brutal fashion of pursuing and hitting the ball. So this military horse show will be one of the summer's most interesting events.

School Is 50 Years Old.

This column has frequently dwelt on the splendid work being done for boys at the Allendale home for boys. A similar enterprise for girls, the Park Ridge school, is celebrating its 50th birthday this year. It started as the Evanston Industrial school, and was founded to take care of those girls who were too wild or unmanageable for the regular, every-day career allotted to girls. One of its earliest supporters was the late Mrs. William R. Linn, who gave to it generously of her time and money. Much reference to her and her benefactions was made at a recent celebration at the school. A luncheon given to the board of trustees was followed by a pageant staged by the girls, themselves.

One of the latest innovations there is the military drill which is taught by an officer of the American Legion and to which the girls are devoting much attention.

Among those who have helped this school by their gifts are the Cyrus H. McCormicks Jr., who have presented it with a swimming pool set in the midst of the cottages. Near by is a miniature pool and fountain fringed with water loving plants which was the work and gift of a grateful window washer, whose motherless daughter was a student at the school.

A pavilion known as the Potter Palmer playhouse is a record of the interest in the institution felt by the late Mrs. Potter Palmer, who also donated to the school two great glazed cases of fine embroideries and laces. These cases are in the beautiful living room given by Marvin Pool in memory of his late wife.

Like the Allendale boys, the Park Ridge girls carry through life a loving loyalty to the school, and when they marry they often visit the school in later life. There they learned self-respect and had training in household arts as well as the every-day schooling. Also, there they acquired a taste for music, reading, and pictures.

The guiding force in the school, Miss Ruby K. Badger, is alternately known as "Mother Badger" or as "General Badger," according to whether they are talking of her as head of the drill squad or as the guiding force in their lives. Down through the long avenues of future ages the influence of such institutions as the Park Ridge school for girls and the Allendale school for boys will be felt. Coming generations will reap what is being sown today by Mother Badger of Park Ridge and Captain Bradley of Allendale.

Isle of Man Lures Many Newlyweds

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man.—(AP)—Happy honeymooners have booked virtually all available accommodations on this little island for the summer of 1929.

The island has each year increased in popularity with the newlyweds, until last year the 50 couples who chose it for a retreat taxed the tiny place to its very limit.

The proprietor of a hotel on the more secluded side of the island reports that his bridal suite now is almost fully booked until October.

Couples from all over the world come to the island which is just far enough from the mainland to provide that seclusion necessary to a honeymoon, and yet lively enough to provide a few gay resorts on the eastern shore.

Embarrassing Moments

The Tables Turn.

I had been long interested in prison reform. I had been to the movies to see "The Honor System," and was so impressed that I began thinking out a plan which I hoped would be an improvement. I studied everything I could find on the subject, and during the time I was walking to and from my work my thoughts were busy with this problem.

I climbed one day out of the drizzling rain into an interurban car and took the only vacant seat. I could go no further with my plan because of lack of knowledge about prisons and their management. A nice appearing middle aged man occupying the seat with me remarked on the dreariness of the day and the monotony of traveling. It suddenly occurred to me that he might know something about prisons; and without waiting to formulate my question I looked straight into his face and said, "Were you ever in the state prison?" I opened my mouth to correct my question, but no sound would come again. Again and again I tried to speak, but something clutched my throat so tightly that I could not. I sprang up, pulled the bell and got off at the next corner. The cold rain soon brought me to my senses. One day in late summer I was going over the same road again. Imagine my embarrassment when the same man, whom I recognized as soon as he spoke, took a seat beside me and said, "I am glad to see you again, for I have some interesting data on prisons. I was sorry you went away so hurriedly that day. I understood perfectly what you want to say, and I was greatly amused at your embarrassment." M. K. K.

The Motor Died.

Upon deciding one morning to take a little workout upon one of our small park tracks, I donned my track suit, hopped into my car and drove away with only an overcoat as protection. Upon finishing my exercise I again donned my overcoat and started on the return journey home. Just at the busiest intersection in our section of the city, my car gave a gasp and died. I attempted to start it but the starter would not work. So to my embarrassment I was forced to get out and crank the car in my track suit with a crowd gathered all around me. W. R.

Wins $400 for Plan to Shoot Man to Moon

PARIS.—(AP)—A tourist from the earth might arrive on the moon within one year, it was calculated by members of the Aeronautic Society of France at a meeting here, after they had examined the plans of a German scientist, Prof. Hermann Oberth, for shooting a man to the moon in a rocket.

The French savants had offered a prize of $200 for the best solution to this problem of interplanetary communication, and they were so enthusiastic about Prof. Oberth's scheme that they gave him a prize of $400 instead.

Prof. Oberth's plan called for a rocket machine, to be propelled at a rate of 4,000 yards a second by ejections of hydrogen gas.

Scientists from many countries submitted papers. An American, Noel Deisch of Washington, was awarded honorable mention for a plan to supply interplanterary voyagers with oxygen en route.

This voyage to the moon, it was commented, is one of the few dreams of Jules Verne which have not been realized.

MY GREATEST THRILL

Moments of Terror.

I was spending the summer with my parents in Kansas. One day my mother and I were jogging along the country road in the family phaeton [this was before automobiles became common in the country]. We saw what looked like a cloud of dust about the size of a large haystack.

"It's a cyclone," said mother, as she began whipping the horse. Poor old Nell was astonished out of her sleepy trot into a jerky gallop. The cyclone moved toward us until quite close, then backward, then forward again, then sideways, all the time getting larger, and the "goose neck" stretching out until it seemed to reach almost to the sky. All the time other people with faster horses were passing us in the road, whipping their teams into a run.

Strangely, all at once my fear left me and I said to mother, "Don't whip the poor horse, we are in God's hands." Soon we came to a turn in the road, then to the river bridge, and home in safety.

A few barns and chicken houses were torn down by the cyclone. That was fifteen years ago, but when I think of that wild drive I still feel some of the terror of that experience. E. M. S.

Uninvited Company.

My wife and I were taking an auto trip through the mountains. We were traveling off the beaten paths as much as our machine would permit.

We stopped one day for lunch just at the edge of a forest. My wife saw some beautiful wild flowers which she greatly desired, so while she was gathering them I proceeded to lay out our lunch. I had everything ready and had sat down on a log to wait until she came back.

I had been sitting there about five minutes when I heard her coming up below our machine. As soon as she saw me she gave a terrible scream, and as I jumped to my feet she yelled out "Bear!" I thought one was after her, but she pointed behind me.

Turning around, I saw a big, black fellow, not twenty feet from me, up on his hind legs and coming toward me. Maybe we didn't both move for the auto! The bear had scented our lunch, which contained a glass of strained honey, and decided he would join us. We let him have his way—in fact, gave him the whole lunch, and did not wait to see whether he enjoyed it or not. Some thrill, I can testify. R. W. C.

Activities of Women

The bronze bust of President Hoover unveiled recently at the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, in New York City, is the work of Mrs. W. D. Leys of Yonkers.

Devoted to mothering, Mrs. Louise Sullivan of Pasadena, Cal., has cared for 168 homeless children since 1915, when her own son died, and she renounced all to protect lone kiddies.

Smoking a pipe full of tobacco every day since she was 12 years old is a record of Mrs. Eliza Jane Gould, who recently celebrated her ninety-fifth birthday in Hillsborough, N. H.

Mrs. Hannah Poole of Hollywood, Birmingham, England, who lost her husband in the world war, earns a living sweeping chimneys. She cycles twenty miles and sweeps an average of six chimneys a day.

Lady Mary Heath, the British flyer who plans to become an American citizen, has received from the department of commerce the first aviation mechanic's license ever issued a woman. She also has a transport license.

According to Miss Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau of the United States department of labor, "house employés" are to take the place of "maids" and "hired girls." The "housewife employer" will engage this "house employé" to work eight hours a day for six days, with extra pay for overtime.

Miss Mary Bonner, famous etcher of cowboys, who was born and reared in San Antonio, Tex., was awarded a medal at a recent salon in Paris. This is the first time the medal has bene bestowed on an American etcher since 1888. She is one of the few artists to be represented in the British museum of London.

Iowa claims the distinction of having one county — Washington — in which women fill all the county offices except those of treasurer and sheriff.

...mance has occasioned quite a bit of interest in town.

Bessie isn't breaking into the cold light of Broadway. Rather, she is to be gently ushered into the theatrical limelight at Southhampton, where the audiences will be made up of members of society. The organization, however, known as Southampton's "summer theater," will have Madge Kennedy as it bright particular star, and Bessie will get the training needed to qualify her for Broadway.

Every one sees the hand of Bessie's great-grandmother, Mrs. August Belmont, in the move. That famous lady, who is better known as Eleanor Robson, has been fostering Bessie's ambitions, and decided that since the child was determined to go on the stage she should make no mistakes. Just how much talent Bessie has I am not prepared to say—not now, at any rate. But by the time the season is over and the summer theater at Southampton has had its run we shall know whether or not Bessie is to make her mark on the stage. She has quite a handicap to overcome, since it is a well known fact that most society girls who have gone on the stage have had little—if any—real talent.

A Summer Romance.

Newport always has a belle, and it looks as if Nadedja de Braganza, daughter of the late Duc de Braganza and of the former Anita Stewart, is destined to be the toast of the Rhode Island spa.

Even as a sub-deb Nadedja has been somewhat of a belle. She has played with other girls and gone on many more parties than her less fortunate subdebutante sisters. Now Newport is wondering if Naddie may not be tagged and ticketed before the summer is over.

William Wallace Fleming, still among the undergraduates at Princeton, is giving Nadedja a fearful rush, and scarcely a week-end passes that does not find him a guest at "The Moorings." Nadedja's mother seems quite pleased with Willie, and it only remains for Naddie's uncle, Willie Stewart, to give the swain an inspection. One never knows about summer romances, but it does look as if Naddie might be among the engaged ones before the arrival of September.

Eleanora Sears Is Back.

Eleanora Sears, who does most of the walking for society, came back from Europe on the Olympic this week, and will do her best to accept some of the horde of invitations to Southampton, Newport, and Bar Harbor.

Eleanora, having given up competitive tennis and settled down to walking as her forte, still clings to her mannish tailored clothes, and observes with a smile the fashions of the day. No bother about port courtesy for her. It doesn't take long for the customs inspectors to go through her things—and as to appraisal of Paris frocks—there aren't any.

While abroad, Eleanora is often in the company of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, which is a compliment for Eleanora, since Alva Belmont is notoriously hard to get along with.

Eleanora made a dash for Boston, but is certain to bob up shortly at Newport, where her appearance at any dinner table is a cause for gratification to the hostess.

Celebrities Sail for Europe.

There may be many notables arriving from abroad for the summer, but, conversely, there are a lot departing. When the Paris left this week she carried a distinguished list of celebrities, including Prince and Princess Eric of Denmark, Mrs. Huntington W. Jackson, Miss Audrey Jackson, Leonard M. Thomas, Gen. Cazenave, Ogden H. Hammond Jr., Count and Countess De Perigny, Count and Countess Buffa, and Mr. and Mrs. James Carstairs of Philadelphia.

German Collapse in 1918 Is Laid to Von Tirpitz

BERLIN.—(AP)—The German navy failed in the world war because of the caste spirit of its officers. This in a nutshell is the conclusion of Emil Alboldt, founder and first president of the Federation of Warrant Officers, who has written an exhaustive treatise which is about to appear in English under the title, "The Tragedy of the Old German Navy."

Alboldt, who is the expert of the Democratic party on all matters affecting the navy, was requested in 1926 by the reichstag committee investigating the German collapse to submit an expert opinion on the causes of the naval breakdown. It will be recalled that the revolution really started by the mutiny of the marines at Kiel. Alboldt's exhaustive opinion has now appeared in book form and is a strong indictment of the policies of Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz.

The volume brings evidence after evidence that the spirit of the navy was wrong. The line officers would have nothing to do with the common sailors and would not even recognize the warrant officers as worthy of their company. Unlike the American navy, where, from the beginning of the war, as Alboldt points out, the officers tried to foster comradeship between themselves and their men, the German officers retained their aloofness, indulged in good food when the men were hungering, and manifested an arrogance which embittered the crews.

Alboldt charges that when the first mutinies occurred the officers did nothing either to suppress them or to cure their causes.

Summer Theater Gives First Play at Southampton

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., June 29.—The Summer theater had its opening here on Friday night with the presentation of "The Happy Husband," starring Madge Kennedy. Among the subscribers were Mrs. William K. Dick, Mrs. Ten Broeck M. Terhune, Mrs. Patrick F. Murphy, Mrs. William A. Rockefeller, Mrs. Harold S. Vaughn, Mrs. T. Arthur Ball, Mrs. Jeremiah Maguire, Mrs. George Dewitt and Mrs. Lawrence McKeever Miller.

Mrs. Robert Franklin Adams entertained at her home, the Mooring, in honor of Mrs. Bradish John Carroll, who arrived at Southampton this week. Mrs. Adams' daughter, Mrs. Jay Robinson Duff joined her this week for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rogers Benjamin are to take possession of their new home this week. Since purchasing the former home of Dr. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin have converted it into a colonial mansion.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Copley Thaw, who returned last week from Europe, arrived at Southampton this week, and will remain for the summer. Miss Eileen Ames is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. Denny Pierce at their Meadow Lane home. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mitchell arrived at Overdune on Thursday, while Mrs. Thomas H. Barber, who was in Rome all winter, is now at her villa, Claverack house.

Women the World Over

Miss Wilhelmina Robinson of Boston, England, who recently reached the age of 100 years, credits her long and happy life to the fact that she "was never foolish enough to marry."

Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, chairman of the Washington committee of the American Merchant Marine Library association, is occupied in the collection of books for the men of the merchant marine.

Women have now invaded another of man's "exclusive" domains—prospecting for gold and other valuable minerals in Canada. Miss Katherine Rice, a university graduate, has made a valuable strike after years of prospecting in the mineral belt of northern Manitoba. Two other girls, Miss A. P. Powers, a school teacher of Iowa, and Miss Mary Messington of Portage la Prairie, Man., recently made a six weeks' trip up the Hayes river to Oxford lake, where they staked what they hope will be valuable claims.

Laverys Back in London After an Irish Interlude

LONDON.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gerard Leigh, the former Helen Goudy of Chicago, is, of course, since the death of her mother, doing no entertaining this season. She has instead rented her house to Mrs. James Corrigan, who is one of the famous American hostesses from Ohio.

Sir John and Lady Lavery have just returned to London after a visit to Ireland, where Sir John completed the gift of thirty of his best pictures to the new Belfast Art gallery. Not only was Sir John born in Belfast but as a young man he studied in the Ulster capital and always spends part of every year there.

In paying a huge compliment to an actress lately a well known critic wished to attribute to her the distinct and various charms of French, English, and American women. He said that in appearance "she is a little bit like June, and a little bit like Lady Lavery, and a little bit like Yvonne Printemps. Could I say more?"

Americans answered "No."

Entertains at New Club.

Miss Mary Landon Baker was one of the hostesses entertaining at the opening of the New Hungarian club at Maidenhead on the Thames. It has captured the atmosphere of Viennese waltzes, strawberries and cream, and Hungarian wines. It was increased by the lovely flowered chiffon dresses of the women dancing on a glass floor in the illuminated gardens with the black line of the river picked out by the lights swinging in the trees.

It was another incident of the successful entertaining the "shy bride" is doing in London.

Among the topsy-turvy results of the general election was the victory of Lady Cynthia Moseley, the Socialist candidate at Stoke over John Ward, the Conservative candidate. Lady Cynthia is the second daughter of Marquis Curzon of Kedleston and Mary Leiter of Chicago and John Ward is an organizer of the Navies union!

At the same time Lady Alexandra Metcalfe, her sister, is organizing a midnight revue given by Mr. Cochran in aid of a charity. The duke and duchess of York will be present.

And the Baroness Ravensdale, the oldest sister, is doing extensive entertaining in her black and red glass pillared Chinese ballroom.

Most Important American.

I understand Mrs. Marshall expects to do some entertaining in her Grosvenor Square mansion. Her parties are very exclusive and invitations will be much sought after. Mrs. Marshall, the mother of Mrs. Marshall Field, is considered the most important American hostess in London.

I saw her at the opera, the other night, with the blue and silver bandeau she so frequently wears around her forehead. She has unmistakable Parisian chic and is most popular with the English.

Not many years ago Mrs. Marshall was the victim of a terrible accident, of which her love of music was the indirect cause. She was leaving the opera house at Munich when a motor car got out of control and dashed up the steps. It hit a number of people, including Mrs. Marshall, who was seriously injured, and even now occasionally feels the effects of the accident. Lady Paget was among those who rendered first aid on this occasion and a lasting friendship with her has sprung from it.

Detroiters London Residents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mooney of Detroit have been enjoying a holiday on the continent. Mr. Mooney is the London representative of General Motors and Mrs. Mooney is prominent as a hostess in the Anglo-American colony here. She was lucky enough to win the American Derby sweepstakes this year.

I saw Mrs. Walter Hateley and Mrs. Furness Hateley of Chicago enjoying tea in the beautiful Italian garden of the American Women's club, the other day.

The American Women's club in London accepts members of the Chicago women's clubs as visiting members and it is a privilege many of them take advantage of. Another Chicagoan enjoying this privilege is Mrs. W. F. Lamphier, who is staying at the Mayfair hotel.

Mrs. P. M. Moody, also of Chicago, has been entertained at the American Women's club, by Mrs. William Gourlay, formerly of Chicago but now of London since her husband has been the general manager of the American Express here.

White Sulphur Is Still in Favor

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Donald McGuerney of Chicago were among those arriving at the Greenbrier this week. Others included Mr. and Mrs. Griscom Bettle, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Quarrie, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. McKinley of Pittsburgh, and Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hunt of Baltimore. Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Mortland arrived to remain at Road's End for the summer.

New Dunes Club Elects Officers

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., June 29.—At a meeting this week of the members of the new Dunes club, the officers elected were: Thomas Pierrepont Hazard, president; Craig Biddle, first vice president; Kenneth Murchison, second vice president; G. Pierce Metcalf, third vice president; and Howard L. Hitchcock, secretary and treasurer.

London Dancers Revert to Waltz

LONDON.—(AP)—With memories of moonlight and roses, modern London society is firmly turning its back on the contortions of the latest one-step and reverting to the waltz.

The very smartest parties boast at least three or four waltzes in an evening's dance program, and all the dancing crowd seems very well pleased.

At a ball given recently by the Marquis and Marchioness of Londonderry at Londonderry house, with the Duke and Duchess of York, Princess Helena Victoria, the Aga Khan, and Winston Churchill among the guests, the waltz tunes outclassed all others in popularity.

Perhaps the whispered preference of the Prince of Wales has something to do with society's adoption of the swining rhythm. At any rate he is always among the first on the floor when a waltz is struck up.

Maharajah's Fete Lures Elite of Paris and World

By May Birkhead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, June 29.—One of the Paris summer's most keenly anticipated events has just taken place, delighting a large gathering. The Maharajah of Kapurthala's garden party has become almost an annual institution. There is nothing to compare with it here in perfection of setting, richness of color, and mundane splendor.

Last year, the maharajah, departing from his yearly custom, entertained instead at the Union Interalliee with moving pictures of his golden jubilee celebrated on his Indian estates in Punjab. But this week his home in the Boise de Boulogne became the setting for a superb fête combining oriental glamor with the sylvan landscapes of the old régime.

His house and grounds form, curiously enough, an extension of the celebrated Bagatelle whose little temple, built by the Comte d'Artois, was intended to rival the Petit Trianon as an amusement center for the court. In fact, the maharajah's house, to which he has built some additions, was once the hunting pavilion of the Comte d'Artois, and an ancient wall divides the grounds from those of the Bagatelle.

1,500 Guests Attend Fête.

Fifteen hundred guests gathered here to enjoy the effect of the sunlight filtered through the trees, and let their eyes wander over magnificent stretches of greensward, part of which was spread with a red carpet. Here the maharajah received almost all the notabilities, including many of our countrymen who come to Paris at the height of the summer season. While the potentate and his sons wore mufti, some of the attendants were resplendent in cloth of gold with turbans of similar hue. One venerable figure with a long silvery beard wore a costume and turban of white China silk.

The crown prince of Kapurthala and his brothers, the youngest of whom is on a vacation from Cambridge, were there to welcome the outstanding figures of the world in letters, art, diplomacy, war, and statesmanship. In so large and representative an assembly every one found many friends for conversation, while for the younger set there was a dancing pavilion with several orchestras.

Those intent on the beauty of the scene and interested in the maharajah's chief hobby strolled about the grounds and looked over the exotic birds which his highness gathered from his travels all over the world.

Two of the largest cages had specimens of the famous lophophore of the Himalayas with their crested crowns and bright greenish-blue plumage showing wonderful effects of iridescence. Pheasants were represented in great variety, some from Argentina and some from South Africa, while pigeons, doves, partridges, and guinea hens were brought together from many countries, and the parrots were especially magnificent with their shades of green, yellow, blue, and red.

All who count among the intelligentsia of the capital joined in the eager throng, among them Marshal Petain, who was receiving congratulations on his unanimous election to the French academy to succeed the late Marshal Foch. There were Russian grand dukes and duchesses, Greek princes and princesses, oriental royalties, and Spanish infantas.

Ex-Maharajah of Indore Entertains.

On the next night the Maharajah Holkar, former ruler of Indore, and his American wife, the former Nancy Miller, now called Maharani Sharmishthabai, gave a dinner and al fresco ball at their magnificent château in Saint-Germain-en-Laye. This was another wonderfully brilliant scene with many guests, such as the queen of Sarawak, in rich oriental costumes.

American hostesses, also, including Chicagoans, chose this big society week for entertaining. Mrs. Carleton J. Holdrege gave a large tea for Mrs. Paul J. Healy. Also present was Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, just back from Spain, where she was a commissioner for the Barcelona expedition.

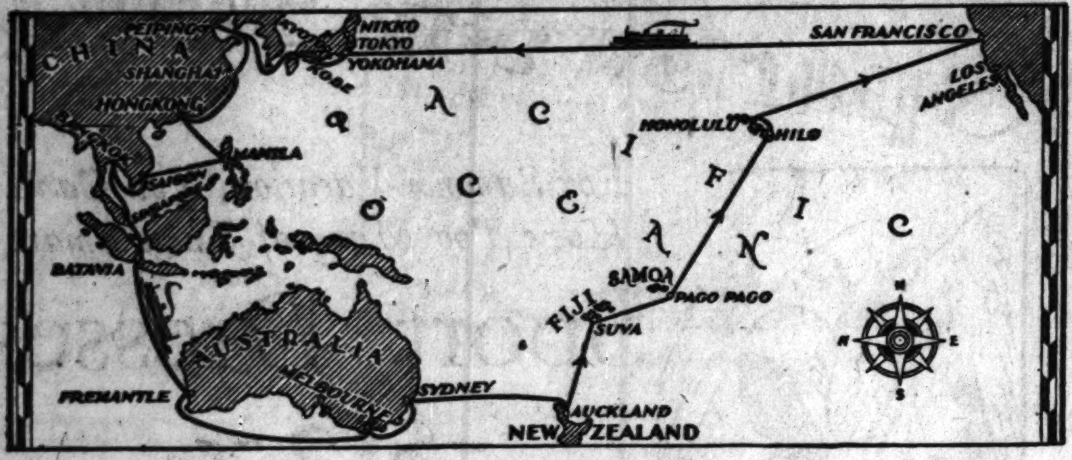
Around Pacific Cruise



On September 21st the magnificent 22,000-ton liner "MALOLO" of the Matson Line will sail from San Francisco on a glorious cruise which circles the Pacific Ocean. Reaching Japan in chrysanthemum time—then to the age-old cities of China—the Philippines—Saigon, the Paris of the Orient—the Temple of the Emerald Buddha in Siam—visiting a thousand-year old shrine in Java—mighty Singapore; down the old seaway to Australia and around to Melbourne and Sydney. Across to New Zealand—to Fiji and Samoa, gorgeous isles resting in the sea like jewels—northwards to delectable Hawaii, returning to San Francisco December 20th. Fourteen countries, twenty-eight cities—a leisurely pageant of colorful lands like maps come alive.

This memorable cruise is under the auspices of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, and the business men of America and their families are cordially invited to participate. In many respects the cruise carries out in the Pacific, the objects of the President's recent trip to South America, and those forming this unique gathering will be looked upon as ambassadors of international good-will.

Never before has it been possible to take such a cruise without a change of steamer. The entire arrangements are under the expert management of the American Express. Rates as low as $1,500 according to accommodations selected.

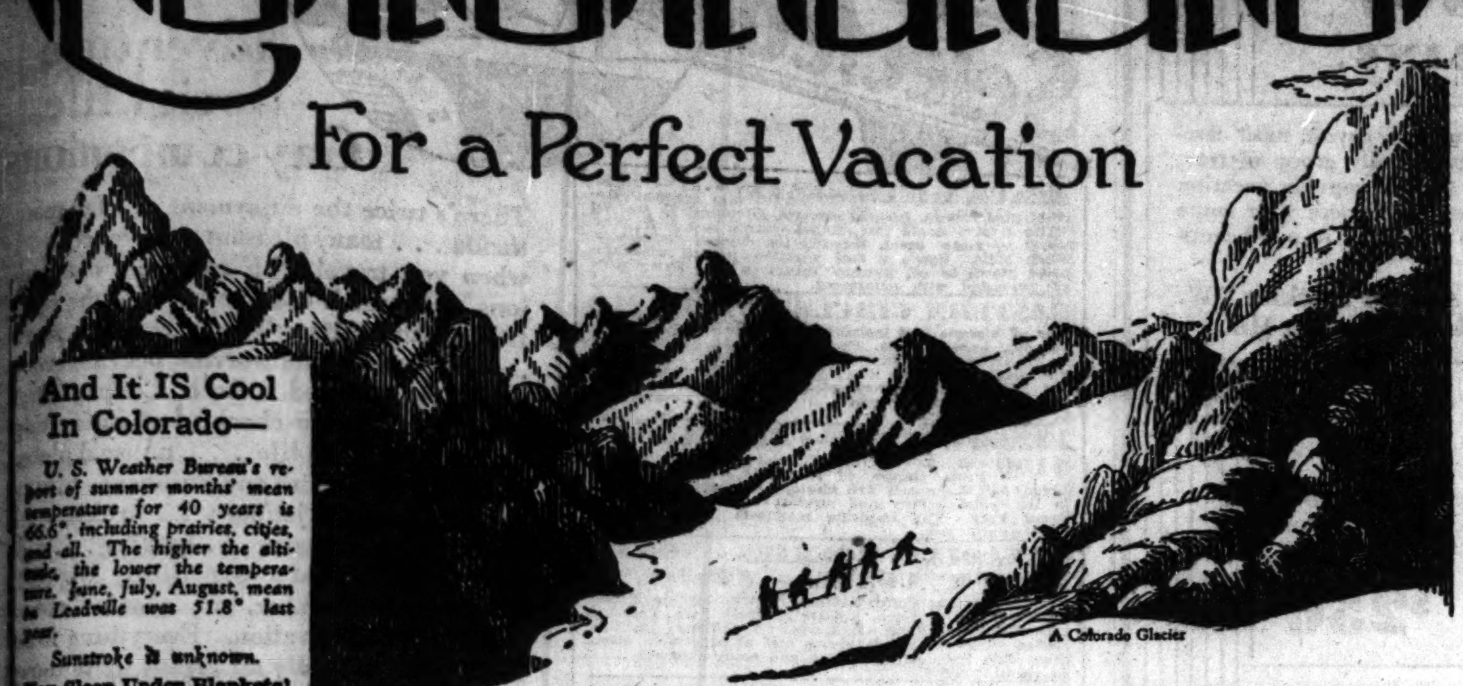
Cool Colorado
For a Perfect Vacation



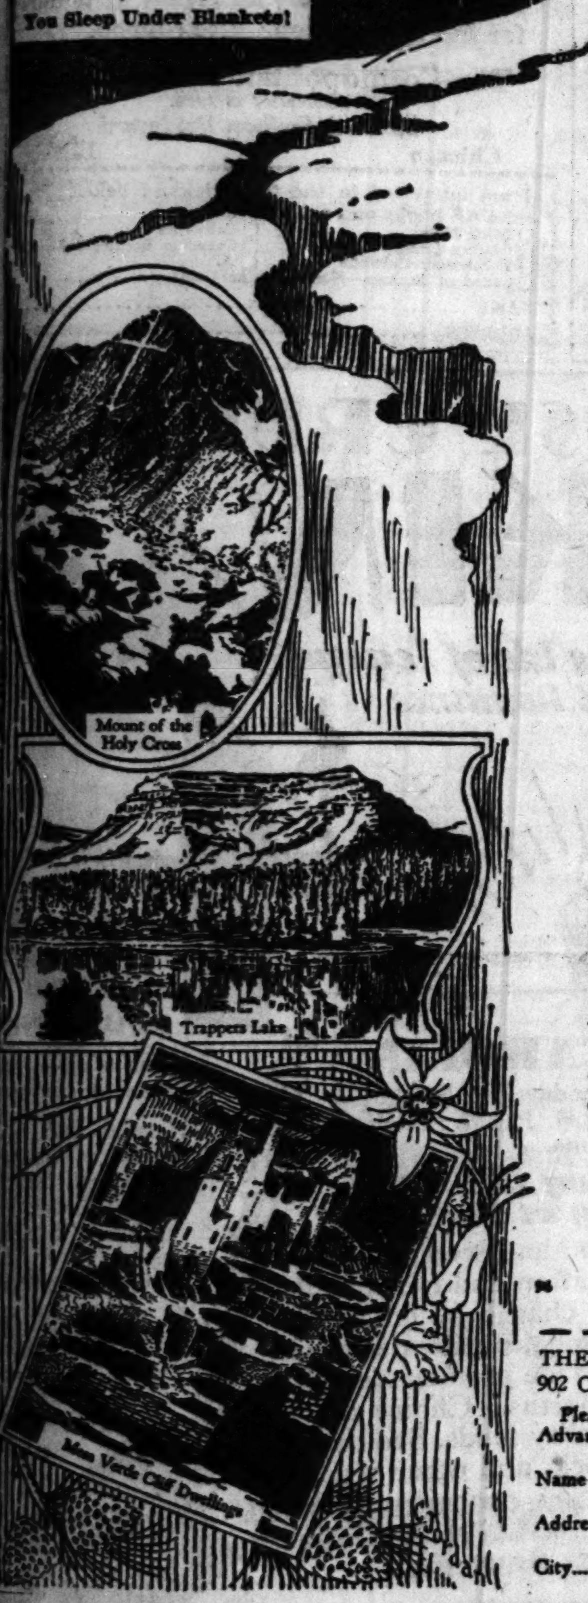
A Colorado Glacier

And It IS Cool In Colorado—

U. S. Weather Bureau's report of summer months' mean temperature for 40 years is 66.6°, including prairies, cities, and all. The higher the altitude, the lower the temperature. June, July, August, mean in Leadville was 51.8° last year.

Sunstroke is unknown.

You Sleep Under Blankets!



Mount of the Holy Cross

Trappers Lake

Mesa Verde Cliff Dwellings

Come Up for a Long Stay!

COLORADO is a blessed haven from sweltering heat. If it had only cool summers it would be a glorious vacation place, but beyond that it has sublime natural beauty and endless interest, is easily accessible and warmly hospitable, and its crisp, high air is an elixir for tired minds and bodies.

A Joy for All

Those who want rest, relaxation and peace find their perfect vacation in the mountain fastnesses, far from the madding crowds.

Those who want recreational excitement may indulge in many amusements.

Good Times Unescapable

The quiet of the wilds brings rest, and an eagerness in you to be doing. The sharp air whets your appetite. You are revitalized.

The country challenges you to feats of climbing, motor tours, fishing, snowball fights, trudging to a virgin forest to camp under the stars, a beefsteak fry or a sunrise breakfast on the heights.

Dancing, cards, games, moonlight hikes and tours, picnics and parties have an added lure in the great playgrounds.

Awesome Beauty Everywhere

No matter where you go in Colorado you are enthralled by the vastness, and endless things-to-do excite your interest.

North Park and the Medicine Bow Range . . . Rabbit Ears Pass . . . The new "Moffat Tunnel" country . . . Mount of the Holy Cross and the two highest peaks in the state, Mount Elbert and Mount Massive . . . The Valley and Canon of the Colorado River . . . Grand Mesa, a recreational empire on its own plateau . . . Indescribable views along Chief Ouray ("Million Dollar") Highway . . . Prehistoric cliff dwellings in the Mesa Verde National Park . . . La Plata, San Juan and Sangre de Cristo Ranges . . . the upper Rio Grande River . . . San Isabel National Forest . . .

Motor Rides to Glory

The famous Royal Gorge . . . Magnificent Pikes Peak Region . . . The highest auto roads in the world to the tops of Pikes Peak and Mount Evans . . . Rocky Mountain National Park and Estes Park . . . The most southern glaciers in the Glacier Region where the snows of yesteryear live on and on . . .

Colorado has these and many other places of equal fascination, but a summer is too short to see them all. Come up and stay as long as you can.

A Vacation to Suit You

You'll find hotels—from the smartest to the simplest—"dude" ranches, lodges, cabins and camps to fit your vacation purse. Come in your own car or you can rely on railroads and auto lines to carry you to scenic wonders. Motor roads are broad, safe and numerous.

You'll never be satisfied until you have had a vacation in Colorado. Write today for illustrated and informative booklets. They will lead you to the time of your life—"your vacation in Cool Colorado."

For a Vacation in a Car

Here's a playground which has about everything that you can wish for on a motor vacation.

Splendid paved roads—3,606 miles of them; good hotels all the way; woods and streams for sportsmen; in less than a day's driving distance of city comforts, but providing such fishing, hunting, camping, as you would otherwise go hundreds of miles further to find—golfing, canoeing, bathing. Drive in from anywhere, Toronto to Chicago, and enjoy yourself any place along either trail—the Lake Erie-Niagara Falls, or the Michigan-Wisconsin. Whether you stick to main roads or follow the paved byways, you'll be glad you came.

You'll find it an economical vacation, too, if that appeals to you.

SHERIDAN ROAD GOT START AS BIKE SPEEDWAY

Expected to Thrive on Cycle Menders.

This is the third of a series of articles concerning the origins of the names of streets and suburbs of the north side.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

The finest route for bicyclers in the world Sheridan road was termed thirty-five years ago and its future was brightly pictured because "the silent steed has come to stay and it is very likely that the road will become the Riviera of the west, lined with taverns and wheel repair shops."

Sheridan road of today, one of the busiest of our thoroughfares, would be hardly recognizable to the writer of that day in its fulfillment of the promise of thirty-five years ago. A silent steed of a different sort crowds its wide highways and gasoline stations have sprung up where wheel repair shops were to bloom.

The road, with a fort stationed north of Highland Park, took its name from Gen. Philip H. Sheridan, Little Phil, a familiar figure in Chicago for twelve years, a hero of the civil war and of the Chicago fire and a friend and companion to many of Chicago's most able men.

Desired Troops for Emergencies.

It was a group of these men who purchased and deeded in 1888, to the government the plot of ground where now stands Fort Sheridan. The added glory that such a fort would give Chicago was their avowed purpose. In reality, according to Edward P. Brennan, who has made an extensive study of Chicagoans and who assisted in street changes in 1908 and 1913, their purpose was to have troops near at hand in case of riots such as the one in 1877, which Gen. Sheridan had suppressed and the Haymarket riot in 1886.

With the building of the fort came the thought of constructing a pleasure drive that would skirt the shore. Tradition, as yet unsubstantiated, has it that the route was to be the exact length of Sheridan's famous ride from "Winchester, twenty miles away," to Cedar creek in the civil war.

Volney W. Foster is considered the father of the road. He was active in the North Shore Improvement association, headed by the late Potter Palmer at that time, and in the Sheridan Road association, both working chiefly on the one proposition.

Others active in the work were Daniel H. Burnham, Alexander Clark, J. McGregor Adams, and Robert A. Waller.

Foster an Evanston Civic Leader.

When Foster died in 1904, The Tribune of Aug. 16 said of him "he gave Evanston its squirrels and a carload of California pheasants. The smart appearance of Evanston cabmen today is due to the efforts of Mr. Foster, who gave prizes several years ago to encourage the regeneration of the appearance of the station jehus."

But his main interest was the road—the great Sheridan road, of which Gov. Altgeld said, "It is one of the great achievements of the century. There will not be such another road in the world and it will bring a harvest of honor to the men who are giving it time and effort."

Although the first plan was for a drive from the north end of Lincoln park to Fort Sheridan, later plans included a circular route up the shore to Milwaukee and back by way of Lake Geneva, Elgin, Aurora, Downers Grove, and Riverside, the whole to be given the same name.

Of this route the old accounts say "a good lady driver could readily make the 250 mile trip in two days, stopping overnight in Lake Geneva, while a gentleman could accomplish it in 18 hours."

Strip of Cemetery Dedicated.

One of the first obstacles in the path of the new highway was Calvary cemetery, but Archbishop Feehan dedicated a strip 100 feet wide and the riparian rights to the association and that hurdle was passed. The road was continued through the various north shore towns, each town cooperating in the paving and several private owners paving strips outside the limits.

Two propositions of the early days still being worked out are the formation of a park board all along the line of Sheridan and the filling in of the lake where possible for an outer drive.

It was only recently too that the statue of Sheridan on horseback has been placed at the south head of the road in Lincoln park, at Belmont avenue. "Little Phil" is shown there in his most romantic role, riding back from Winchester, but one of his most important deeds as far as Chicago is concerned was in the fire of 1871.

Gen. Sheridan had just been stationed here as head of the military division of the Missouri and not only helped in the rescue work and the quenching of the fire, but in the dreary days that followed he and his soldiers gave out rations and assisted in the rebuilding of the city.

MRS. W. F. BRAND NAMED TO HEAD CHURCH SOCIETY

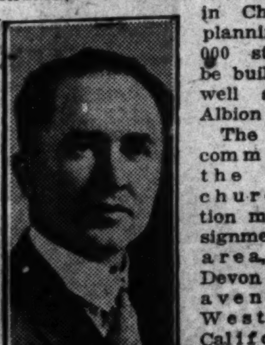
NEW ST. JAMES CHURCH RAISING MONEY TO BUILD

Plans Structure at Albion and Rockwell.

Members of St. James Evangelical church, one of the newest churches in Chicago, are planning a $20,000 structure to be built at Rockwell street and Albion avenue.



THE REV. A. F. SCHEMMER.

The comity commission of the Chicago church federation made an assignment of the area, between Devon and Pratt avenues and Western and California avenues to the Evangelical synod early in 1926.

Brought Minister from Downstate.

In October, 1926, the mission board of the Evangelical synod obtained the services of the Rev. A. F. Schemmer, who came from Hinckley, Ill., to take over the work in the new field. The Rev. Mr. Schemmer is a graduate of Elmhurst college and of Eden Theological seminary at Webster Groves, Mo. He entered the ministry in 1912 and has held previous pastorates in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois.

Services by the new north side congregation first were held in a store room at 2644 Pratt avenue. The first Sunday, seven members gathered. This number has grown to 71, and the Sunday school has an enrollment of 100. In December, 1927, the church moved to its present location, 6433 North California avenue.

Building Fund Nears $2,000.

O. J. Allerton is president of the congregation and the church board. Mrs. O. J. Allerton is president of the Ladies' Aid society, which has been instrumental in raising a building fund of close to $2,000. Melvin Schwartz is president of the Young People's league, the work of which is of a devotional, social, and recreational nature. The Willing Workers' group is headed by Miss Ione Schmidt.

The congregation plans to start its new church building this summer and hopes to be in the new quarters before the first of next year. Present facilities have been outgrown, especially by the Sunday school. A "loyalty campaign," to be carried on through the month of June, is being conducted under the direction of Ira D. Vayhinger.

Congregation B'Nai Zion to Go on a Picnic Today

The annual picnic of Congregation B'Nai Zion will be held today at the Glenview forest preserve, Harms road and Harrison avenue.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

SAMUEL HENNEPIN of Albany Park gloatingly writes that he attached a pedometer to his right foot as he started to perform the weekly chore of pushing the lawn mower about the yard and that at the conclusion of five and a half hours he had pedometered 10¾ miles. Why Sam worries us with this useful information we can't imagine, but it recalls the statement of a kitchen cabinet manufacturer that a housewife on an average morning in an average kitchen, not equipped with a cabinet, travels in the course of her household duties, from five to six miles or around 30 miles a week; which ought to silence Sam, and if it doesn't his wife probbaly will.

Bill Harrah lofted with his mashie over the clump of elm trees at the Chapel Hill Country club to reach the green in one on the fifth hole—120 yards; par 3. He lay 12 feet from the cup. Quoth he, gripping his putter, "If I sink it will you mention it in the paper, Fred?" You can picture our reply, gentle reader. The boy missed by an eyelash. Such a try deserves mention anyway, and besides, Bill's follow through was beautiful—too beautiful for words—as far as we listened we would have to use asterisks to tell you.

A COUPLE of weeks ago we published Mrs. J. L. Sullivan's discovery of Chicago's champion station announcer on the elevated lines—conductor No. 1239 of the Wilson avenue run. Mrs. Sullivan stated he called the stops clearer than any conductor she had ever heard. Now J. W. Guilfoyle writes in to say that No. 1239 is none other than Peter M. Schmitt, who has been with the north side division 22 years, "was born down in the center of the loop, knows his Chicago and is one of the best conductors on the road."

Joseph Kacena Jr., our hard working chief of police of the sanitary district, is conducting an investigation of the hot dog situation. He has detached two stalwart motorcycle policemen from traffic duty to guard the barbecue tavern on the west side of McCormick road, just north of Devon avenue, while the quiz is pending. Motorists are warned they can't stop to buy anything there. Joe's theory is said to be that the mystery surrounding the hot dog has never been properly solved and that an investigation might disclose scandal. We shouldn't be surprised, Joe.

THE baby girl born to Mr. and Mrs. George Sanderhoff May 24 is getting prettier every day, we glean. Mr. Sanderhoff is the popular plumber at 3904 Armitage avenue.

Well, A. H. Silverman, the paint store proprietor at 322 West North avenue, has finally decided to bid a long farewell to the Studebaker he bought in 1906 and which has served him faithfully for the 23 years ensuing. This appeals to us as a long distance record and we have no doubt Henry Ford will seize the vehicle for his museum of Americana. By the way, Mr. Silverman traded the Stude in for one of Henry's flivvers. He was allowed $40 for it.

* *

Officer Joe Saam, night patrolman of Libertyville, discovered a door open at the National Tea Store while making his rounds last week. The management was notified and the door locked.

NO June in our village is complete without a remark about Paul L. Battey's peonies and here it is almost July 1 and we haven't recorded that the annual exhibit of Battey peonies has converted the lobby of the Illinois Merchants' bank building into a veritable garden. Paul hails from Glencoe.

O. T. Perfect, the insect exterminator of 1935 Grace street, has left for a two weeks' trip east with Officer H. C. Stolke of the North Robey street station to visit Baltimore and probably Washington. They expect to have a good time.

Mrs. John W. Fisher Heads Wilmette Church Guild

Mrs. John W. Fisher heads the list of new officers of the Wilmette Congregational woman's guild elected for next year. Mrs. E. W. Scheidenhelm will assist her as first vice president in charge of missionary work; Mrs. L. L. Perry is the new second vice president in charge of educational work; Mrs. F. R. Kilner, third vice president and social chairman; Mrs. C. A. Eldridge, fourth vice president and program chairman; Mrs. Warren Commens is secretary; Mrs. Albert Tucker, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Gale M. Brooks, treasurer.

Northtown Ass'n Hears Judge, Police Captains

Judge Walter P. Steffen of the Superior court, Capt. Thomas Condon of the Hudson avenue police station, and Capt. John P. Horan of the Sheffield avenue police station were the speakers at the meeting of the Central Northtown Business association Friday evening in the Germania club, 108 Germania place, Harry A. Miller, secretary, announced yesterday. Among the subjects discussed were clean streets, new street lights, and riddance of peddlers and beggars.

Ban Backless Bathing Suits in Rogers Park

The North Shore Park board, the group that has jurisdiction over several small beaches between Devon avenue and the city limits has joined other park boards in the 1929 revision of rules for bathing suits. In an ordinance passed at a recent meeting of the board the new sun back suits were barred to bathers on the Rogers Park beaches.

Theo rdinance provides that bathing suits for men and women must cover the wearer from a line drawn on a level with the armpits to near the knees. No white or flesh colored bathing suits will be permitted, the ordinance reads. The park commissioners also included in the ordinance a clause designed to stop the practice of bathers dressing in automobiles, by making it illegal to draw curtains on the windows of automobiles. Finally the ordinance stated that bathrobes must be worn by bathers while on the boulevards and the cloaks must be kept closed.

Eleven Life Guards Named.

The beaches under the jurisdiction of the North Shore Park board are located at the foot of Farwell, Morse, Lunt, Greenleaf, and Estes avenues. Charles Rogers, 1621 Touhy avenue, was recently appointed captain of the life guards and ten assistants have been named to guard the small beaches.

Numerous other ordinances and regulations have been adopted recently by the board, which is composed of Howard Savage, Frederick Chetlain, Harold Leopold, James P. Ward and Hyman Kinzelberg.

Joshua D'Esposito, 6933 Sheridan road, consulting engineer, has been appointed to draw up plans for the development of the lake front in Rogers Park. Mr. D'Esposito will serve without pay. John B. Sharp, 7645 Sheridan road, has been appointed chief clerk of the board, and Jerry Kosatka has been appointed superintendent of North Shore park, Farwell avenue and the lake. Mr. Kosatka also will serve without pay.

Pupils Impersonate Characters in Literature

The literature classes of the seventh and eighth grades of La Salle school presented a playlet, "On the River Styx," written by Mrs. Helen E. Linder, instructor of the classes, last week in the school auditorium, 326 Eugenie street. The members of the cast represented characters in the poems and prose studied by the pupils during the last five months. GREAT PARADE TO OPEN SPAN, HAIL NEW ERA

Clark Bridge to Be Ready July 10.

A large civic parade and public demonstration is being planned by the North Clark street merchants as a part of the dedication ceremonies at the formal opening of the new Clark street bridge on July 10. W. F. Krahl has been appointed chairman of the celebration, which will be held under the auspices of the North Clark street committee of the North Central association.

The committee plans to organize all the merchants of the near north district during the week to prepare for the celebration, which, the business men believe, will be the beginning of a new era of business activity in the district. The demonstration is also being staged by the merchants to show their appreciation to the department of public works for its cooperation in making possible the completion of the bridge six months ahead of time.

The parade will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning at Clark street and North avenue and will proceed south on Clark street to Kinzie street, east on Kinzie street to Dearborn street, south on Dearborn street to Jackson boulevard, west on Jackson boulevard to Clark street, and north on Clark street to the bridge, where Mayor Thompson will dedicate the new span and open the bridge to all traffic. Following the dedication ceremonies the parade will pass the reviewing stand containing the mayor and civic leaders of the district. Plan Program to Dedicate Flagpole Base

Honoring heroes of three American wars, the flag staff war memorial gift of the Fort Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be unveiled and dedicated in Patriots park, on the lake front in Evanston, next Thursday, the 4th of July.

Dr. Frederick Grant of Western Theological seminary will give the invocation and Dr. George Craig Stewart, rector of St. Luke's church, the address. Two minute talks by William P. Turner, commander of the Evanston G. A. R. post; Thomas H. Bullock, Spanish-American war veterans; Richard Chamberlin, American Legion; and a representative of Carl O. Rosequist post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are also scheduled.

Presentation by Mrs. Richardson.

Mrs. Gair Tourtellot, regent of the Fort Dearborn chapter, will preside and Mrs. Frank L. Richardson, chairman of the memorial committee, will present the flag staff to the city with Mayor Charles H. Bartlett responding.

Young Pierce Richardson, who is a member of the Children of the Revolution, will officiate at the raising of the flag, followed by the Evanston Township High school band playing "The Star Spangled Banner." Taps by fife and drum corps of the Legion will close the program.

The memorial is in the form of an organization flagpole base, surmounted by a drum shaped bronze frieze depicting soldiers and sailors from the time of the revolution marching round and round. Stephen S. Beames of Evanston is the sculptor and Thomas E. Tallmadge designed the base.

Bears Names of Evanston Heroes.

Names of the Evanston men who died in the three wars are inscribed on the memorial. In a list of these printed in the Metropolitan section several weeks ago the name of Arthur T. Cooper, who died in the Spanish-American war, was omitted.

The name of the park in which the memorial will be placed was changed by the city council at the request of the D. A. R. from Bell park to the present Patriots' park. Next Thursday will be the first official use of the name.

TRIBUTES PAID TO DR. STEWART ON ANNIVERSARY

St. Luke's Reviews 25 Years' Growth.

From a struggling congregation of possibly 200 to a thriving organization of 3,000 members, from a bit of a shack to one of the finest churches in metropolitan Chicago—that is the unusual record attained by St Luke's Episcopal church, Lee and Hinman streets Evanston, during the last twenty-five years under the leadership of Dr. George Craig Stewart, rector.

THE REV. GEORGE CRAIG STEWART.

In recognition of the phenomenal growth of the parish and the twenty-fifth anniversary of Dr. Stewart's rectorship, the vestry and wardens of the parish gave a reception in the parish house Monday evening.

St. Luke's church is the largest parish in the Episcopal diocese of Chicago in point of membership. It attained this record several years ago and has maintained the lead by steady growth each year. The parish also has the reputation of giving the largest sum of money to work of the Episcopal church outside of parochial obligations.

Soon Started Building Program.

When Dr. Stewart went to St. Luke's in 1904 the parish occupied a little wooden church on the west side of southern Evanston. It had slightly more than 200 members and was struggling to keep going and pay its bills. It was not long after Dr. Stewart, then a young priest who had been ordained less than a year before, went to St. Luke's that a movement was launched to erect a new church. Six years of experience as a young Methodist pastor on the south side of Chicago had given Dr. Stewart a start before he entered the Episcopal ministry. And it was not long before he showed outstanding ability in putting over church projects, his friends recall.

The parish flourished under his guidance and the new building was started. The parish built for the future and today it has a Gothic church which will compare favorably with any in the city. But the building of a church was not the only accomplishment. Other properties, including a large parish house and rectory, have been obtained.

An unusual undertaking of the parish was the erection of an apartment building, Abbey Garth, which has been accomplished at a cost of approximately $300,000. Another unusual feature of the parish property is the battle cloister, between the parish house and church buildings. This cloister commemorates members of the parish who gave their lives in the world war. Above each arch is the name of one of the great battles of the war. On the parish house side of the cloister close is a statue of an American doughboy, rifle in hand, on guard facing the church.

Recognized as National Figure.

Along with the growth of the parish, Dr. Stewart himself has attained a national reputation during his twenty-five years at St. Luke's. In 1914 he received the degree of doctor of letters from Kenyon college; in 1917 Northwestern university, of which he is a graduate and trustee, conferred upon him an honorary degree of doctor of divinity. For many years he has taken an active part in the work of his church nationally. He is a member of the Episcopal national council and the Chicago diocesan council. He has been a delegate to six general conventions of his church and was one of seven delegates from the American Episcopal church to the world conference on faith and order in Lausanne in 1927. During the war Dr. Stewart was secretary of the Episcopal war commission and chaplain of evacuation hospital No. 6, of the American expeditionary forces in France.

As a speaker and preacher Dr. Stewart's ability is heralded widely. He has frequently been chosen as one of the great preachers of the nation. Along with all of his other duties he has taken time to interest himself in business affairs and is director of an Evanston bank.

FOUR EVANSTON BEACHES OPEN; THREE CLOSED

Evanston now has four beaches open, Calvary, Sheridan square, Lee, and Clark streets, but possibilities that the other three will be ready for use this summer have faded.

The Lincoln street bath house is now under repair and a pier is being built, preventing any bathing there now and probably for the rest of the season. The beaches at Kedzie and Main streets are no more and the likelihood of sufficient sand developing this year is remote, according to recreation bureau officials, who are in charge of the beaches.

Life guards have been stationed at all four of the open beaches since the beginning of the week.

Northern Athletic Club Plans All-Day Outing

An all day outing for members and wives of the Northern Athletic club will be held July 18 at the Columbian Country club, Matt F. Kannen, secretary, announced last week. A handicap golf tournament, swimming, and card games will comprise the program during the day, followed by a dinner dance in the evening.

SCHOOLS REPORT RECORD CLASSES FOR THE SUMMER

Northwestern U. Reports 1,600 Enrolled.

Summer schools in Evanston university, high school, elementary and church schools are well under way with, in most cases, the largest enrollments in recent years.

At Northwestern university more than 1,600 students have registered in graduate and undergraduate and lecture course work. Evanston Township High school has an enrollment of close to 700 and the elementary and intermediate schools have garnered almost 1,500. Garrett Biblical Institute will probably have more than 200 students.

At the church schools 204 children were enrolled on the first day of registration and succeeding days will bring the number over the 400 mark, leaders believe. Mrs. H. C. Coffman is city superintendent and a large staff will assist her at the six schools.

At the Noyes school special music training will be given coöperatively by the two Evanston school districts and Northwestern university to 200 selected students. Courses in singing, violin, piano, wind instruments and music appreciation are to be given under the direction of John W. Beattie, professor of music at Northwestern university.

One of the most popular courses for townspeople as well as Northwestern students will be Coach Tom Robinson's annual summer swimming classes at Patten gymnasium. Beginners and advanced classes for boys and girls, and men and women have been scheduled.

At Garrett Biblical institute, Mrs. A. Starr Best, 828 Michigan avenue, Wilmette, director of the Pilgrim players of Evanston, will give a course in religious drama for the second year. Mrs. Best is credited with founding the Drama League of America.

Property owners on Wilson avenue, of Western avenue, however, are ng ahead with their plans to make street a real thoroughfare, George secretary of the Wilson Ave- Improvement association, said erday. The residents in this sec- contend that Wilson avenue is only street that can be improved to care of the increased volume of ffic that is expected when the Lin- park extension and outer drive completed.

The Wilson Avenue Improvement sociation, which was organized to mote the widening, proposes to den the roadway from 40 feet to 50 t by cutting off five feet of each ewalk. William H. Although fifty feet of frontage was on the Kenilworth beach through recent storms and the official beach opening has been delayed, the Kenilworth club, which has charge of the beach, has had a life guard on duty since June 22 and intends to keep him there until school opens in

Five Churches Unite in Vacation Course.

Classes in a daily Bible school sponsored by five Rogers Park churches will start tomorrow. Plans for the school were announced by the Rev. C. Wesley Israel, 2344 Touhy avenue, director of the school, last week. The session will last until July 26 and classes will meet in the Rogers Park Congregational church, 1545 Morse avenue, and the Rogers Park Baptist church, 1902 Greenleaf avenue.

More than 100 children between the ages of 4 and 11 are expected to attend the summer school. A staff of experienced instructors has been obtained to train the pupils and various subjects, including woodwork, handicraft, dramatic art, and music, will be taught.

Teachers Are Announced.

Miss Ruth Cole of Evanston will be in charge of the training for children 4 and 5 years old. Miss Cole is a graduate of the National Kindergarten and Elementary college and conducts a private kindergarten during the winter. Miss Isabelle Clayton, 1662 Farwell avenue, will be superintendent of the primary grades. She gained her academic training at the University of Chicago and the Art institute.

The junior department of the vacation school will be supervised by Mrs. Ralph Johnson, 1536 Thome avenue, superintendent of the junior department of the Rogers Park Baptist church.

Open to All Denominations.

In addition to the Congregational and Baptist churches, the other churches coöperating in the summer school are the Rogers Park Methodist Episcopal church, the West Ridge Community church and the Rogers Park Presbyterian church. The school is offered to children of all demoninations and creeds, the Rev. Mr. Israel said.

The daily vacation Bible school of the Ravenswood Baptist church, Sunnyside and Seeley avenues, will also start tomorrow. The Rev. Frank Taylor is superintendent of the school. The Berry Memorial Methodist church, Giddings and Leavitt streets, is assisting the Baptist church in conducting the school.

The commencement program included dances, pantomimes and stunts by children of the other grades. The three girls in the graduating class sang a trio, "Come Away." J. R. Harper, superintendent of Wilmette schools, addressed the five graduates and Otto Aken, director of education, talked. Miss Bertha Engels is principal of the school.

EVANSTON PLANS 2 MORE THROUGH STREET PROJECTS

Dodge, Asbury to Be Widened.

Two important north and south highways in Evanston will be improved in the next year or two if plans now underway meet no obstacle. Work will start shortly on the Dodge avenue improvement between Crain and Howard streets and the other project, Asbury avenue from Oakton street north to West Railroad avenue, is made possible by coöperation of county and city authorities.

With Ridge and the comparatively recent McCormick boulevard open for traffic, the two new improvements will give west Evanston four north and south arteries which will ease traffic there as well as on the heavily traveled east thoroughfares.

Condemnations Are Made.

Condemnation proceedings on the Dodge avenue paving and widening have been put through successfully with a saving of $6,053 on the estimated cost of $25,884 and as soon as final approval of the payment is received work will begin.

The proposed Asbury avenue project will link up with the recently improved portions from Oakton south to Howard and connect with Western avenue in Chicago. Work will not start until next year, according to Maj. George A. Quinlan, head of the Cook county highway department, who announced that the county would aid in the paving.

Plan Other Projects.

A further extension of Ridge, Asbury and McCormick, which all end in West Railroad avenue is seen also in the plan to pave West Railroad to the Evanston north city limits at Isabella as well as southeast from McCormick to Ridge as recently announced.

Other minor street improvements in the city include a thirty foot new road on Roslyn place from Ridge to Lake Michigan to be entirely paid for by property owners under a private contract.

Mending of a gap in the Oakton street bridge and improvements amounting to $15,000 will be undertaken by the county authorities also.

O. K. NORTH SIDE SIDEWALK AND PAVING JOBS

Paving of two north side streets and construction of a sidewalk were approved at a hearing conducted by the board of local improvements recently.

Property owners on Marcy street between Clay and Willow streets approved paving of their block at a cost of $19,500; and paving of Austin avenue between Michigan avenue and a line 120 feet east of St. Clair street was likewise approved. The latter project will cost approximately $16,000. Property owners on Peterson avenue between Crawford and Ridge avenues approved laying of a sidewalk at a cost of $26,128.

ACTION STARTED BY EVANSTON ON WAR MEMORIAL

Would Be Combined with New City Hall.

At the meeting of the Evanston city council Tuesday night Mayor Charles H. Bartlett appointed a committee of five aldermen with instructions to make a study of all suggested plans for a new city hall and war memorial combined and to make recommendations on the type of architecture, location, means of finance, and other details of the proposed building.

The chairman of the special committee, Ald. Edward B. Davidson [6th], has been a leader in the movement for a new municipal building and recently submitted the first plan for such a structure, to be used as a suggestion in the committee's study. The other members of the committee, who will present their recommendations to the city council early in September, are: E. R. Jacobs, Oscar Carlson, Augustus Knight, and William H. Knapp.

Competition Is Suggested.

The committee will work in conjunction with the city plan commission, which is also making a survey of the advisability of such a building. Under Ald. Davidson's original plan the city plan commission would pass on all plans drawn up by the city council, and he also suggested that an architects' competition might be held to obtain a greater number of ideas on the type of building most suittable.

Ald. Davidson's plan, prepared with the assistance of Frank A. Sexton, an architect residing in Evanston, provides for a building made up of three wings with a large circular colonnade in the front, in the center of which would stand the monument. In front of the colonnade and down several steps would be a plaza extending across the entire front of the building.

Suggests Ridge Avenue Site.

As the location of the municipal building he suggests a site on the west side of Ridge avenue, north of Davis street. Ridge avenue, he pointed out, is not only high in altitude but is one of the finest boulevards in the city, and a building of this type would consequently show up to the best advantage.

In one wing of the building he proposes that the mayor's office, council chambers and the other city offices be located, while in the other outside wing would be the fire station, police station, police court and dormitories for the firemen and policemen.

The central unit would be devoted entirely to the war memorial, a chapel-like room, two stories in height, with stained glass windows and an arched wood ceiling.

A movement recently begun in the north center district to open Byron street at the tracks of the Chicago and North Western railway has been abandoned, Clarence W. EVANSTON TO RID ITSELF OF WORST TRAFFIC BARRIER Ridge Ave. to Run Under L Structure.

Evanston's worst traffic barrier, formed by the elevated railway structure across Ridge avenue, will be eliminated within two months. This announcement was made last week by A. W. Handford, commissioner of public works.

Contracts for the construction of the roadway under the elevated tracks at Ridge avenue as well as at other streets north of Clark street have been awarded, and automobile traffic, which has been forced to detour since the tracks were raised more than a year ago, will again be permitted to move without delay.

Steel Bridges Received.

Under an agreement with the city council, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad has let contracts for all branches of work in connection with the subways. The steel bridges to be erected across the streets were received last week, Commissioner Handford said, and Ridge avenue, one of the city's main highways for automobile traffic, will be given first attention. It is expected that the work will be completed by Sept. 1, early enough to take care of the heavy traffic during the football season at Northwestern university.

Water Mains Laid.

Work on the construction of the abutments for the concrete supports will be started immediately and the bridge construction will be completed within sixty days, he estimated. The roadways, which will not be narrowed under the bridges, are to be paved by the railroad company, which owns the right of way of the Chicago Rapid Transit and North Shore railway through Evanston.

The city has already laid the water and sewer mains at Ridge avenue, sharing the expense with the railroad.

BUYS DAINTY CHIFFON DRESS FOR $2; FINDS MATE PRICED AT $35

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of a best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, June 24.—Just last week I got a remarkable bargain in a neighborhood dress shop. The frock I purchased is a dainty white chiffon of excellent style and it is beautifully made. Because it was soiled I got it for the unbelievable price of $2. A few days ago I saw a dress exactly the same as mine in one of the loop's exclusive shops for $35.

MAKES BIG PROFIT.

Chicago, June 23.—About three years ago I bought a large gas range that had been slightly used from a north side dealer for $3. Later, when we moved, we discovered that it would be much too large for our new home. But the tenant who was moving in offered us her small range, which was in perfect condition, and $18 besides. The "swap" completed my best bargain.

POLICE JUDGES NOW ON SALARY; FEE BATTLE ENDS

Evanston Officials Secure Law.

Political battles for the post of police magistrate such as occurred in Evanston last spring have been ruled out by the Illinois legislature by the passing of a measure placing the office on a salary instead of a fee basis.

Representative Ralph E. Church of Evanston introduced the bill, which had the approval of the Illinois Municipal league, of which Mayor Charles H. Bartlett of Evanston is president. It was signed by Governor Emmerson last Saturday.

Issue in Election.

The question was the high note in a heavily contested campaign for the office of police magistrate in the April elections. Statements were made that the office was worth anything from $15,000 to $25,000 a year to the incumbent and one of the candidates ran on a platform of no pay until the job had been put on a salary basis.

Legally, before the passage of the bill, a magistrate could refuse any salary set by the city and insist on taking fees.

However, just prior to the election the candidates were called together and each promised to waive rights to fees and accept the $6,000 salary set by the city if he were elected.

J. P. On Fee Basis.

The justice of the peace, however, was not covered in the bill and is still on a fee basis.

Another bill, which has become a law, affecting Evanston requires buses to use pneumatic tires. The city council has been unable to regulate this point on intercity and interstate buses but such equipment will be mandatory henceforth all over Illinois.

EMERSON GROUP GIVES 4 PLAYS ON NORTH SIDE

The company of players headed by Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Emerson presented four one-act plays at the Harriet Hammond McCormick Memorial hall, Oak and Dearborn streets, Friday night.

"The Unseen," by Alice Gerstenberg, stars Ruth Frank, Herbert Baree and Sari Szekley. It deals with the troubles of a young married couple which hasn't enough money, but finds in the end that other things are more important than success.

Miss Frank, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Frank, 1540 Lake Shore drive, has earned considerable renown as a poet and writer, as well as an actress in amateur productions.

Mrs. Szekely directed all four of the plays, as well as being the author of "A Just Claim," which won the Illinois State Drama league contest last year.

Two other plays are being given, "The Life of Reilly," and "The Princess Condescends." The latter was written by Mrs. Emerson, who takes the leading part.

AUSTRIAN TROPHY TO BE DEDICATED BY VETS ON JULY 4

Gun to Stand in Park as War Memorial.

An Austrian gun will be dedicated as a war memorial by North Town post of the American Legion at the Fourth of July celebration next Thursday in Indian Boundary park, Lunt avenue and Campbell avenues. James Hamilton Lewis will give the address and Boy Scouts, drum corps, and other organizations will assist in the dedication. The gun is of the 77 millimeter type and has been held by the government as a trophy.

The North Town post auxiliary held a benefit card party last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. G. Delano, 5339 Wayne avenue, the first of a series of similar small parties.

Wilmette post is planning a children's party for next Thursday, the Fourth of July, on the village green. There will be games and races, Punch and Judy shows and clowns. The Wilmette playground and recreation bureau is assisting. The Legion drum and bugle corps will take part in the patriotic ceremonies. Clark Leach is chairman of the committee in charge.

Col. Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, will make his first north shore appearance at the summer jubilee of the seventh district, to be held in Rogers Park with the Rogers Park post as host. Howard P. Savage, past commander, and David L. Shillinglaw, state commander, will aso be guests. The committee in charge includes Lisle Hart of North Shore post; William G. Knox of Rogers Park post; W. C. Bechtold, Evanston; George Sugarman, Rogers Park; and Harry T. Johnson, Evanston.

Gene Morgan, conductor of Hit or Miss in The Daily News and past commander of Advertising Men's post, will talk to the members at their meeting tomorrow noon in Hotel Sherman.

Four posts of the legion will use the Forty and Eight chalet, 95th street and Archer avenue, next month for picnics and entertainments. Chicago Stockyards post, No. 333, and friends of members are holding a dinner and entertainment there today. On consecutive Sundays during July, West Suburban post, No. 692, Medill Tribune post, No. 348, and Maywood post, No. 133, will hold picnics. Several dates are available in August for Legion posts, and Chef de Guerre Elmer Taylor requests that all applications be delivered to him in writing at the American Legion office, room 310, 160 North La Salle street.

The summer carnival of Ravenswood post, No. 149, opened yesterday with a parade of the drum and bugle corps to the carnival grounds of Lawrence avenue, just west of Western avenue. Post Commander Joseph Bernhard is supervising the affair, which will continue until next Saturday, to raise funds to send the post's drum and bugle corps to the Legion state convention at Rock Island next September. Harry A. Sewell, drum corps commander, announces that the corps will turn out for any community activity if he is notified in advance.

Fidac, the interallied veterans' organization, announces that a prize of $100 for the design of an international medal has been awarded to Miss Helen Doft of the Lorado Taft studios in Chicago. For more than a year hundreds of contestants have been working on designs for this medal, which Fidac will award annually to educational institutions whose courses of study have done more to promote a better knowledge of international affairs. The jury which made the award at the Paris headquarters of Fidac included nine leading sculptors, painters, and architects from the allied countries. Paul McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, and David L. Shillinglaw, state commander, presented the prize to Miss Dolft on behalf of Fidac.

Harold Taylor post, No. 47, will hold its annual picnic at Niles park next Sunday.

Members of Jane A. Delano nurses' post, No. 185, will go to Warrenville, Ill., next Thursday, the Fourth of July, to assist in the unveiling of a memorial and a Legion celebration. A Delano member living in Warrenville is largely responsible for the recent formation of Warrenville post, No. 589. Mrs. Ann Stahl is commander of the Delano post.

The Distinguished Service medal, highest award of the American Legion, has been conferred on Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, national baseball commissioner and a Chicagoan. The citation sets forth the service of Landis to the organization since its inception.

Post No. 691, Midlothian, Ill., is planning a frolic and barn dance to be held Aug. 25 in Clark barn, 147th street and Cicero avenue. All Cook county Legionnaires are invited to attend. Reservations should be addressed to A. G. Wirtz, commander, or K. Sidell, adjutant, at Midlothian at an early date.

W-G-N INSTALLS GIANT ORGAN IN ITS NEW STUDIOS

To Be Used in Programs with Goldkette's Band.

A giant organ, especially designed for W-G-N and Jean Goldkette's W-G-N Dance Orchestra, has been installed in THE TRIBUNE's Drake Hotel station, and, after extensive tests, now awaits the completion of W-G-N's new studio, Henry Selinger, program director, announced yesterday.

Through the use of the organ with Goldkette's band new musical effects, never before obtained by any radio station, will be heard daily from W-G-N.

Worked Into Programs.

"The organ will not be merely an instrument playing simultaneously with the dance band," Mr. Selinger said. "It will be carefully worked into the score of every selection; it will be as much a part of the band as the trumpets or the saxophones.

"For two years we have been waiting for an instrument that would exactly fit into the W-G-N plan of orchestra and organ in combination. Jean Goldkette himself has found this one satisfactory, and we are now preparing programs which will take the fullest advantage of its almost limitless potentialities of tone-color and arrangement. With the introduction of the organ the dance band will take on an entirely new character."

Mr. Selinger also emphasized the fact that, while designed primarily for use with the band, the new organ has solo possibilities equalling those of any theater organ. W-G-N plans to bring nationally famous organists to Chicago for radio concerts.

Four New Studios.

Radio listeners will hear the organ when W-G-N's four new studios, which are being built upon the experience gained in five years of broadcasting, are completed.

The new studios break entirely from the old tradition of broadcasting plants. Formerly a radio studio was as "close" as possible. Every sound vibration was eliminated; ventilation was sacrificed to insulation; heavy drapes were hung to absorb sound.

W-G-N engineers have found that a more "open" arrangement improves the quality of broadcasting. Ceilings will be twenty feet higher than they were. Walls and floors have been constructed with special regard for their acoustical qualities. They will give W-G-N broadcasts a new vibrancy and resonance.

BY QUINN RYAN.

Ten years ago next Thursday, on the Fourth of July, 1919, Jess Willard, the heavyweight champion of the world, the conqueror of Jack Johnson, was facing Jack Dempsey, his twenty-four year old challenger, at Toledo, O., before the greatest crowd that had ever seen a prize fight up to that time. Let us imagine you are hearing it over the radio:

ANNOUNCER: Well, the great Fourth of July has come at last. We are broadcasting to you direct from the Bayview Park arena in Toledo. The mercury is up around 97, and there are 70,000 sweltering fans assembled here this afternoon for Tex Rickard's biggest show. The preliminaries are all over, the fighters have their instructions and Referee Ollie Pecord has dropped back to one corner of the ring. The sun glares down on the white canvas floor with intense heat. There's the whistle. Seconds out! [Gong.]

There's the gong! The big fight is on! Both men are coming out of their corners and approaching the center of the ring! Hands up, and they're sparring cautiously, getting the measure of each other! Willard is sticking out those long arms like a pair of feelers, and Dempsey is crouched below him! Oooh! There's the first one! Willard shoved out his left straight at Dempsey's face, but the sunburned boy just stepped away. He's forcing Jess to do the leading! If Willard wants to win this fight he must go out and get it! Ummh! Jess weaved out another left hand blow that barely grazed Dempsey's face. Dempsey is backing up! Now they're mixing it! Dempsey missed a swing and now he's gone into a clinch. It looks like David and Goliath there in the ring, with the shorter challenger's arms wrapped around the big Kansan.

Jess has backed up a bit to pull himself together! Now again Dempsey is coming in crouching, his body swaying from side to side! A wary eye is watching for that long Willard left! Now Jess uncorks it—a pretty tap right on Dempsey's mouth—but it didn't stop the challenger! He's coming right in, swaying, weaving, moving slowly, looking for an opening! There's another one. Jess smashed a straight left for Dempsey's eye.

Dempsey is creeping in! He's like a great cat, moving forward slowly, surely, slyly! Willard trys another left—Dempsey is under it—it didn't touch him, and— Gosh! A right on the jaw! A left to the same spot—Willard is down! The champion is on the mat! A left and a right flush on the jaw and Willard is on the mat for the first time in his ring career! Now Referee Pecord is counting—two—three, four—five—six—seven. Willard is getting to his feet slowly. Now he's on his feet. Now Dempsey tears in and lands another and Willard is on the mat again, and there's blood streaming from his mouth. Dempsey has knocked him down again, and once again Referee Ollie Pecord is standing over him and counting. Once more Willard starts slowly to his feet! The blood drips from his mouth as he slowly lifts that 240 pound body to its feet. Dempsey is waiting, fist poised! Willard is up. His arms hang weakly at his side! He's turning away from Dempsey, seeking the ropes. Oooohh! Two rights! Dempsey laced a pair of rights straight to the champion's jaw and Willard is down again. That is the third time this round that Challenger Jack Dempsey has sent the champion to the floor of the ring! The claret oozes from Willard's mouth!

Willard is getting to his feet—slowly—slowly—the vitality is slipping from that vast frame! Dempsey with a barrage of lefts and rights is crowding him into a neutral corner—now a left and a right to the face—Willard is down again! The whole right side of his face is cut and bleeding. Now there are cries of "Stop it! Stop it!" from the spectators. They know that it can't go on. Willard is a beaten man now. Pecord is counting his death knell. Once again he starts for his feet. His knees and hands leave the canvas—he stands there before Dempsey, a beaten thing and a rain of body blows—right, left, right, left—sends him to the mat again!

Willard is getting up once more, a bloody, beaten hulk, no longer able to defend himself. Dempsey, throwing caution to the winds, is crowding in once more. He has promised to knock out Willard in the first round! Looks as though he's going to do it! He's driving home punch after punch! Willard slips against the ropes, he's on the mat again—sitting down—staring about him in a daze. Dempsey is walking away from him as Referee Ollie Pecord tolls out the fatal second—three, four, five, six, seven—the battle's over and in the first round. The crowd is making such a tremendous noise we can't hear the referee! His arm swings down for the last time—Dempsey starts from the ring—the fight is over! No, there's Jimmie De Forrest pulling him back.

The bell has saved Willard. It ended the round before Pecord had finished counting! The champion is still the champion for a little while, at least.

Never has a heavyweight championship fight started in quite that way. The champion of the world knocked down seven times in one round, or was it six? There's the whistle! Seconds out of the ring! [Gong].

Round two! Dempsey is coming up to scratch like a whirlwind. There'll be no stopping him now. Williard is just a shell; he hasn't got a defense for this sunburnt boy who means to take the championship from him. O! Jack has opened a cut under Willard's right eye! Blood's streaming from the wound! Dempsey is pounding home blow after blow! Left and right, left and right. Willard is trying with his left—he's game—but he can't stop Dempsey—the youngster is battering him all over the ring at will. Dempsey is driving body blows home time after time He just sent in a hard punch to the heart and Willard has fallen outside the ropes—now he's slowly clambering back—the crowd is on its feet! The end may come at any moment—now Willard is rushing into a clinch—he's holding on—he can't fight—Dempsey has knocked all the fight out of him. The crowd is hollering madly for the knockout and Dempsey is trying hard to land that finisner. Now he's torn out of Willard's weak grasp, and he's measuring the champion with punch after punch. Wilard tried to stab a left to Dempsey's face and another and another, but there's no force to his blows. Dempsey is pounding him at will. Punch after punch. Willard's face is swollen out of shape! Dempsey continues with lefts and rights and Willard stumbles around the ring—[Gong].

That's all! That's the end of the second round, and Willard is still on his feet, but it's only a question of time now. Dempsey is entirely unmarked as he sits there in his corner, but Willard is a shocking spectacle. His head and chest are a mass of blood and one side of his face is swollen and pummelled entirely out of shape. There's the whistle! Time out for seconds! Only thirty seconds to the gong! [Gong!] There it is!

Round three! Williard staggers out to the center of the ring, and Dempsey comes out of his corner like a rocket and continues the battery of blows that are about to take the championship from Williard. Willard isn't even defending himself! He is staggering around the ring and Dempsey is rushing after him, sending home blow after blow. Willard's mouth is hanging open. He's a beaten man. Only the tremendous vitality of that great body is keeping him on his feet! The crowd is shouting to Ollie Pecord to stop it. The big fellow is staggering along the ropes and Dempsey is following him relentlessly, slugging, slugging, slugging, waiting for him to drop. Willard is holding on to the ropes, while Dempsey rains blow after blow on his head and body. Now—[Gong]. There's the gong!

Well, that the end of round three, ladies and gentlemen! The scrap is almost over! Jess can't last through another round. He's slumped in his corner now. Dempsey is unmarked! What a beating Willard has taken! Now Monogham, his second, is whispering in his ear—words of encouragement, I suppose—but Jess can't go much longer. Monoghan is still talking to Jess. Now he's walking over and talking to Referee Pecord. Now Ollie comes over to Jack Dempsey's corner and grabs him by the arm—and—Willard has tossed in the towel. Jack Dempsey is champion of the world! Ollie has him in the center of the ring and he's raising his arm in token of victory. The fight is over!

LOSES RHYTHM ON RADIO.

Complaint comes from Los Angeles that a jazz orchestra arriving there had lost its dancing rhythm through its playing so much over the radio and that local dancers were having trouble keeping in step with the music.

REVOLUTIONARY SONGS FROM W-G-N ON 4TH OF JULY

Songs of the revolutionary soldiers, popular one hundred and fifty years ago, are part of the special Independence day program of W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station, this year.

The program, which will begin at 8:30, will include tunes that both the red coats and the Continentals hummed as they marched over colonial roads. Among them is one that was played by fifes at the hanging of Maj. Andre, collaborator with Benedict Arnold in his attempt to betray Washington's army.

Henry Selinger, program director, also promises an appropriate "Musical Mosaics" program, a regular Thursday feature for Independence day, with extracts from the compositions of Francis Hopkinson, early American composer, arranged for modern presentation by Alfred G. Wathall.

ADVENTURERS TO TELL STORIES OF RADIO NETWORKS

Edward "Tex" O'Reilly, a real soldier of fortune who has taken an active part in nine revolutions or campaigns in seven foreign countries, will be the main character in a series to be called "The Soldier of Fortune." This series will have its initial broadcast Saturday night, July 13, and will be heard each Saturday night thereafter from 8 to 8:15 p. m., Chicago time.

45TH WARD FOLK START FIGHT FOR IMPROVEMENTS

Demand a Cleanup and Traffic Safeguards.

A campaign to obtain many improvements for the 45th ward was launched by the North End Improvement association of the Forty-fifth ward at the latest meeting, Clarence Niesen, president of the organization, announced last week.

A large number of members and other residents of the ward held an indignation meeting recently in Schmidt's hall, Clybourn and Wellington avenues, listed their grievances, and made plans to force the immediate improvement of conditions in the community.

Demand Traffic Signal Lights.

Among the improvements demanded are:

The erection of a traffic signal light at the intersection of Roscoe street and Western avenue. Other 45th ward residents demanded that a traffic policeman be stationed at this corner.

Construction of safety zones at the intersection of Western and Barry avenues.

Cleanup of all alleys east of Ashland avenue between Wrightwood avenue and Diversey parkway.

Cleanup of all vacant lots in the community.

Proper control of traffic at Western and Barry avenues by a policeman.

Attack Odors and Noises.

Other complaints were registered against the lack of washroom equipment on Sundays at Hamlin park, Wellington and North Damen avenues; against the odor and noise at the plant of the Montauk Coronade Rubber company, 3014 Clybourn avenue, and still others objected to the noise caused by boys playing ball in the vacant lots of the district.

Other officers of the association who will aid Mr. Niesen in promoting the improvements are: Vice president, Arthur F. Schnell; recording secretary, John Wolf; financial secretary, Charles A. Radatz; treasurer, Louis Koetke, and sergeant at arms, Fred Stammer. The association has recently been carrying on a campaign against the high assessments on the widening of Ashland avenue.

2,000 BOYS GET 10 DAY OUTINGS AT CLUB'S CAMP

All set and ready to go are the boys of branch No. 2 of the Chicago Boys' club, 1725 Orchard street. Their summer camp opens next Friday at Winona Lake, Ind., and they are looking forward to the time of their lives.

"We expect to have at least 2,000 underprivileged Chicago boys at the Chicago Boys' club camp this summer," said A. R. Snyder, director of branch No. 2. "They will have ten day outings each, with plenty of swimming, boating, hiking, baseball games, athletic contests, campfires, and other entertainment. Nature study will be one of the features of camp life.

"These outings are made possible by the generosity of Chicago citizens who 'share' their own vacations with needy boys by sending one or more to camp. Some individuals are taking care of ten or more boys, $10 providing a boy with ten days of camp joys and all he can eat thrown in the bargain. Many boys gain five to ten pounds in weight and get a new lease on life. In addition the woods and open country are a revelation to them."

The Chicago Boys' club camp has 114 acres, with 1,000 feet of shore line, a fine pier, and many new buildings. Its sanitary provisions and drinking water supply have been rated by the Chicago health department as among the highest in the area.

SUNRISE GUN TO START EVANSTON JULY 4 FESTIVAL

Entire Day to Be Crowded with Events.

With the firing of the sunrise gun, activities of the Fourth of July will be set off in Evanston and from then on the day will be crammed with athletic events, stunts and exhibitions, picnics and a parade topping off with a fireworks display all under the direction of the North End Fourth of July corporation.

The rising gun will be the signal for flag raising and house decoration throughout the north end. Following that, with a short time out for breakfast, will come the preliminaries in the baseball, golf, and tennis meets. At 11 o'clock the big parade starts with city officials, veterans, historic floats, and comic entries. In the afternoon the finals in the athletic tournaments will be played, track and field events run off and novelty contests.

Picnics on Lawns.

Then the townsfolk will adjourn to picnic on their front or back lawns as the case may be, finishing in time to witness the daylight celebration at Dyche stadium.

Children from the various parks will compete in folk dancing, and music and daylight fireworks will occupy the crowds until darkness makes a stage for the $10,000 pyrotechnic display planned. Every kind of lighting effect imaginable will be witnessed then, according to the men in charge. Among the set pieces to be shot up are representations of Mayor Bartlett of Evanston and his new bride, Gen. Dawes and his pipe and the legendary ornamental street lighting system promised for the city.

Gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded to the winners in the various contests, even to the spike driving tourney, scheduled under novelties. Silver loving cups will go to the best decorated house in each precinct and the winning floats, and a banner will be awarded to the precinct having the greatest number of well decorated homes.

Officers of Corporation.

William McKay is president of the Fourth of July corporation; Samuel Gilbert is vice president; Mrs. Guy Felton, secretary, and Ralph Goltra, treasurer. There are twenty-five directors, including representatives from the many coöperating civic and social organizations of the north end.

Tom Robinson, coach of Northwestern university's swimming teams, is in general charge of the sports. Lloyd Ellingwood is program chairman. C. T. Reeves is in charge of the golf tournaments, assisted by John Merrill, W. G. McMillan, Harrison McJohnston, and Howard Moore. M. H. Colman is managing tennis, assisted by J. R. Lull, Marshall Sherill, A. A. De Lapp, King Cook, and Seymour Standish. Walter H. Hardy is chairman of the fireworks committee, Roy L. Davis and Walter Steiner are cochairmen of the parade, and Sam Gilbert is head of the decorations committee.

There will be no fees or admission charge to any of the events on the program save the fireworks display at night. The whole affair is being financed by membership sales at $1 each and the 75 cents admission charge at Dyche stadium in the evening.

OGDEN AVENUE FIRST LAID OUT AS PLANK ROAD

Named in Honor of Earliest Mayor.

The old Southwestern Plank road, which bridged the "nine mile swamp" between Chicago and Doty's tavern at Riverside, was the forerunner of the modern arterial highway named for Chicago's first mayor, William Butler Ogden.

Over its precarious planks, often entirely A. W. O. L. after a heavy storm, the stage coaches and farm wagons of an era that seems distant but is in reality only 75 years or so behind us made the long journey to the first southwest outpost from the Garden city.

Fearful and wonderful are the tales that travelers in the old stage coaches tell of the then modern transportation troubles on those first improved highways, which a few years after they were laid, according to contemporary remarks, were little better than rafts.

Passed Out After Decade.

The plank roads were an innovation imported from Canada at about 1844 and, according to M. M. Quaife in "Chicago's Highways—Old and New," which is in the Chicago Historical society library, at Dearborn and Ontario streets, they lasted about a decade and then were relegated to the past.

The first such road was built closely paralleling the Southwestern, connecting Riverside, the Widow Barry's Point and Chicago. And another was built from Bary's Point to Whisky Point, now Cragin, where one tradition says two barrels of whisky were buried and never dug up.

The Southwestern was the first heavily traveled road, however, and was completed as far as Brush Hill, sixteen miles, by 1850, extending on to Naperville the next year and connecting with several other highways.

Although Ogden avenue, as the Southwestern Plank road, was one of the first main highways to be built into Chicago, not until Aug. 2, 1924, was it extended and completed as a highway. At that time, after forty-four years of talking and planning, houses were leveled down to make way for its extension to Lincoln park.

Ended Abruptly at Randolph.

One of the main objections to its use even in the early days was the fact that it ended abruptly at a point east of Ashland on Randolph street. Now it extends diagonally across, cutting North avenue at Larrabee and culminating at Lincoln park, Clark and Center streets.

Of Ogden, for whom the road was named in later days, the New York Sun of Aug. 4, 1877, said, "Mr. Ogden has contributed more than any one man on this continent to the development of the great northwest."

Ogden's niece, Mrs. Frederick T. West, writing in "Chicago Yesterdays," compiled by Caroline Kirkland, says, "It was at William B. Ogden's suggestion and on his original plan that an underground railway for the relief of the already congested traffic of New York was considered."

His suggestion was put through for that city, but Chicago is still expecting.

The Ogden family was a well known one among the pioneers of the city; Mahlon D. Ogden, William Butler's brother, was the first of the name to settle here in the early 1820s, and in 1837, when the city charter was granted, William was well enough known to be chosen the first mayor.

AIRPORT GIVES ELMHURST PLACE IN FLYING WORLD

Elmhurst, abreast of the times, now has an airport which not only bears its name but is endeavoring to coöperate with the community and promote its interests.

It has natural drainage and when the cinder tracks are completed will present a perfect landing surface.

The hangar, though larger in size and different in shape, was built from the original Robinson hangar at Maywood field from which Col. Lindbergh flew when in the mail service. A portion of the plane which Lindy flew is now among the possessions of the owner of Elmhurst airport, who flew with him on many occasions.

Among the plans for the promotion of Elmhurst in connection with the airport is the placing of a beacon on the landing field and a huge sign, Elmhurst, in white stone.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

CHARLES SMITH, who has been living in the wide open spaces of Alaska since 1898, and Mrs. Smith are visiting with Captain and Mrs. Harry Moore of 3137 Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Moore being sisters. Mr. Smith had intended spending the season here, but has decided to go back as he can't stand our balmy summer climate. "The coldest weather I've encountered in forty years," says he.

Hay fever victims will be pleased to learn that pupils of the Lucy Flower High school are waging relentless warfare on the ragweed, which is said to be responsible for 90 per cent of the hay fever cases. Mrs. M. B. Nieland, instructor in botany, is in charge of the campaign. As we go to press the vacant lot at Central Park avenue and Walnut street has been cleared. A worthy example for other schools.

THE champion radio fan of Chicago is Policeman John Hennessy of squad No. 23A, commanded by Sergt. John P. Foley. It is his job, from four o'clock in the atfernoon until after midnight, to sit in the squad car and listen for the word from W-G-N, "Squads, attention!" His colleagues have discovered he has become so interested he now arises at 8 a. m., tunes his home set in on W-G-N and listens all day for calls so he'll be well posted on what's happened while he's been off duty.

The baby girl born to Mr. and Mrs. George Sanderhoff May 24, is getting prettier every day, we are glad to report. Mr. Sanderhoff is the popular plumber at 3904 Armitage avenue.

Alfred A. Mueller, secretary of the Kimball Trust and Savings bank and president of the Fullerton Avenue Business Men's association, is the west side's outstanding hobbyist. That is to say, he is a crack tennis player, a fair billiardist, a promising bowler and a real Cub fan. The last, of course, isn't a hobby; it's an ailment.

THERE are no finer hobbies than those of Otto H. Berz, president of the West Town Chamber of Commerce—horses, dogs, and a log cabin hacienda up in the big timber and pines country in northern Michigan, with a mile of shore line on Lake Superior and hardby the Michegaming river. Fishing, swimming, horseback riding or what have you in summer; sleighing in winter. And we fancy that the way a stack of buckwheat cakes with maple sirup would taste in those hospitable surroundings would be nobody's business. The last time we saw Otto he wasn't talking about the hacienda. He was absorbed in the Ogden avenue project to open up the bottleneck that now exists in Goose island and provide the great west side with another through artery to the north. Good luck, Otto.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Wright of 647 North Mayfield avenue have returned from their tour of Europe. They saw The Hague, Amsterdam, the famed Holland tulip fields; Cologne, the Rhine, the Black Forest; Switzerland, the Alps; Scotland, Ireland, Wales, London. But they say the sight they most enjoyed was the skyline of Chicago at the journey's end.

JOSEPH KACENA JR., the hardworking chief of police of the sanitary district, is conducting an investigation of the hot dog situation. He has detached two stalwart motorcycle policemen from traffice duty to guard the barbecue tavern on the west side of McCormick road, just north of Devon avenue, while the quiz is on. Motorists are warned they can't stop there. Joe's theory is said to be that the hot dog mystery has never been properly solved and that an investigation might disclose a scandal. We shouldn't be surprised, Joe.

Other features included a talk on the traffic squad of the school by Marshall Brando and a reading by Raymond Miller. Following the awarding of diplomas the class song was presented with Sarah Falstein and Rudolph Lapp as accompanists.

The class numbered 136 members.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN TO 19 NAZARETH ACADEMY GIRLS

Nineteen girls were graduated from Nazareth academy, LaGrange, at the commencement ceremonies held on June 20. The Very Rev. Msgr. D. J. Dunne addressed the members of the class and awarded the honors and diplomas. The valedictory was given by Miss Dorothy Capodice. Present at the exercises were Msgr. James Horsburg, Msgr. W. R. Griffin, Rev. J. H. Nawn of LaGrange and a large number of friends as well as the parents of the graduates.

The class flower was the tea rose and the motto "Truth Conquers All." The colors chosen by the class were gold and white.

The graduation exercises for Our Lady of Bethlehem academy, LaGrange, an elementary school for girls, conducted in conjunction with Nazareth, were held the same evening. The class flower was the pink rose and the motto "Semper Fidelis." The colors selected by the graduates for their class were emerald green and silver. Following are the members of the graduating class: Esther Averall, Yvonne Birren, Mary Brandt, Marie Charlton, Mercedes Kowske, Adelaide Krasa, Helen Murphy, Olga Santinello, Evelyn Shahen, Esther Weiss and Joan White.

Commodore Barry School Holds Final Assembly

An assembly was held Thursday at the Commodore Barry school, 2828 North Kilbourn avenue, to observe the end of the scholastic year. In view of the fact that the school does not have upper grades there were no graduation exercises. The principal is D. O. Graham.

HAIL WIDENING OF CHICAGO AVE. AS TRADE BOON

Project Gets Final O. K. by Court.

The widening of Chicago avenue between Laramie and Mayfield avenues, a distance of nearly a mile, ushered through the last legal tangle Monday, was hailed by business men of the district last week as an improvement which will change the street from a suburban business area to one of the liveliest shopping centers of the west side.

Proceedings in charge of G. A. Dahlberg, attorney for the board of local improvements, were culminated Monday when the project was confirmed in the County court. The street will be widened to 48 feet and paved by the board at a cost of $134,500, to be paid partly by special assessment and partly by the city as a public benefit. The board will advertise for bids within a month, and paving will start as soon as funds to pay the public benefit are obtained.

Eliminates Bottle Neck.

Former Ald. John P. Garner, as a large property owner on the street, petitioned for the improvement in October, 1927. With his support and that of business men of the section it was approved at a hearing shortly after that.

Mr. Garner, who is chairman of the board of directors of the Laramie State bank, Chicago and Laramie avenues, said yesterday that the improvement will serve to eliminate a bottleneck in that section of Chicago avenue and will greatly facilitate the movement of traffic.

The street is wide both east and west of this section, he pointed out, but its development has been held back because the narrowness of the roadway between Laramie and Mayfield avenues has caused traffic delays and has forced motorists to travel elsewhere.

Predicts Better Business.

"I look to the completion of the improvement for added business both for the bank and for merchants on the street," he said, "as well as a rise in property values and an increase in building activity in the district."

James T. Bushonville, president of the Chicago Avenue Business Men's association, said that the widening of the street between Laramie and Cicero avenues, completed a year ago, has done a good deal to aid business, and widening of the section to the west will help still further.

Furthermore, he continued, congestion caused by the bottleneck at the intersection of Laramie avenue will be eliminated by the new improvement, and will do a good deal to make Chicago avenue more desirable as a shopping center.

Regret Narrowing of Sidewalk.

T. F. Chamberlain, president of the Austin National bank, 5634 West Chicago avenue, said, however, that while widening of the street would permit more parking for shoppers and at the same time permit free movement of traffic, pedestrian passage would be hindered because the sidewalk would be made narrower.

"There is a question as to the advisability of the widening," he said. "I do not believe a sidewalk, seven feet wide, the approximate size of the new walk, is sufficient for a business street. It would be better if buildings were set back and the same width of sidewalk maintained. However, the good features of the widening will offset this, and it is certain that the street will not be made any worse."

F. W. Meieer of Meier company, dry goods, 5704 West Chicago avenue, agreed with Mr. Chamberlain that the sidewalk would be made too narrow by the widening, but added that since a large percentage of business on the street is brought by motorists, no hardship will be suffered.

Class officers at Austin will not be elected until the beginning of the school year in September, although several student clubs and organizations choose their respective governing groups toward the end of the term.

Students at Schurz High to Organize Polish Club

Plans have been made for the organization of a club at Schurz High school to be composed of students of Polish descent. The name, according to the present intention of students interested, will be the Schurz Polish club. The idea was broached to Walter Slocum, principal, prior to the end of the school year, and he gave it his indorsement. In view of the fact that there is a large number of students of Polish descent at the school a membership of about 100 is expected at the time of organization, which will be early next fall.

PLAN TO "SELL" SUPERHIGHWAY TO WEST SIDERS

Park Board to Act Within 2 Weeks.

A campaign for the education of west side voters regarding features of the elevated highway which the west park board desires to construct will be conducted this summer, President Robertson of the board announced in a communication to members of the west park advisory council yesterday.

Plans for the campaign will be discussed at a meeting of the council within two weeks, President Robertson said, since it is desirable to make clear the merits of the project before residents of the district vote in the referendum recently authorizd by act of the Illinois legislature.

The highway, planned for a route to be selected by the Chicago plan commission, may be wider than 50 feet, as originally contemplated, President Robertson indicated. Efforts will be made to obtain part of the Cook county allotment of gasoline tax funds to help bear the cost.

"If this is done," he said, "it will be possible, by using the $20,000,000 of bond issue money plus the additional funds, to make the road wider than the contemplated 50 feet."

Outlines Advantages of Project.

In his letter yesterday, President Robertson gave an outline of some of the advantages of the highway.

"When erected, this highway will separate traffic over seventy-six cross streets between the river and Austin boulevard," he said. "Traffic is now impeded at these intersections, and needless delay is caused as well as great expense to the automobile driver not only in gas consumption but in accidents.

"During the last four years there were 10,000 accidents on the forty miles of boulevards in the west park system, and last year thirty-seven lives were lost. These conditions are rapidly becoming worse.

"Any one who studies this project carefully will be convinced that the elevated highway is the only proper solution of the problem. The cost of this highway will be spread over a twenty year period, and the increase in taxes will be almost negligible compared with the great benefits and development which will follow in the wake of its construction.

"The $20,000,000 spent for this highway will be a fund which will be expended on the west side to give employment to thousands of people who are out of work and to make for general prosperous conditions in the district."

D'Esposito Outlines His Project.

A $100,000,000 thoroughfare from the loop to Garfield park, 500 feet wide and containing separate roadways for slow traffic, rapid traffic, and electric railways was pictured for members of the Garfield Park club last Wednesday by Joshua D'Esposito, consulting engineer who had charge of building the Union depot.

Asked by a member of the club if he meant that this project should take the place of the proposed superhighway of the west park commissioners, Mr. D'Esposito said, "It does not follow that the west side would not need the superhighway. There is no relation, necessarily, between this improvement and the west park project."

The improvement he outlined would redeem the near west side, Mr. D'Esposito believes, would bring about a tremendous increase in property values there, and cause the district to become the center of business activity in Chicago. His estimated cost of $25,000,000 per mile would soon be absorbed by property value increases, he said.

Original Plan Overlooked.

The near west side was originally intended to be the center of the city, he continued, and the Chicago plan developed by the late D. H. Burnham was conceived with this idea in mind. Instead, he pointed out, the plan commission deviated from the plan and concentrated its efforts on developing the lake front.

According to the D'Esposito plan, the thoroughfare would occupy the entire block between Monroe and Adams street, and all property between these two streets from Canal street to Garfield park would be condemned. The existing streets would be maintained at the present level and widened, providing adequate roadways for local traffic.

The center of the strip would be depressed. In the depression would be constructed two roadways for rapid traffic, and in the center four tracks for a subway leading into the loop. The subway and rapid traffic roadway would be carried under the Chicago river in a tunnel and would connect with Wacker drive when extended along the west side of the loop.

North and south intersecting streets would be carried over the depressed roadway on viaducts, and the more important intersections would connect with this roadway by means of ramps. The width of the improvement would permit the planting of lawns along the roads.

WATER MAINS AND PAVING WON BY NEW AREAS

Northwest Side Jobs to Cost $355,216.

Paving and water pipe projects for newly settled districts of the northwest side have been approved by the board of local improvements with virtually no opposition. The total estimated cost of the improvements is $355,216.

Included in the list of improvements are seven paving jobs costing $293,000, and four water supply pipe systems to cost $62,216. The only protesting voice during the morning was raised against the proposed condemnation of property to open an alley, but the board ordered the project approved despite the objection. Property owners, however, promised to file a petition to halt the project.

The largest of the paving projects is the improvement of Nordica avenue between Addison street and Belmont avenue, and Newport avenue and Roscoe street between Nordica and Sayre avenues at an estimated cost of $90,000.

Other Paving Approved.

Other paving projects are as follows:

A system including Lemont avenue between Hiawatha and Sauganash avenues; Keene avenue between Granville and Sauganash avenues; Granville avenue between the alley east of Keating avenue and Sauganash avenue; and Sauganash avenue between Lemont and Keene avenues, to cost approximately $65,500.

Nora avenue between Addison street and Cornelia avenue, at a cost of $14,500.

Sauganash avenue between the alley northwest of Keene avenue and Devon avenue, and Keating avenue between Devon and Sauganash avenues, costing $27,000.

Kostner avenue between Peterson and Sauganash avenues; Sauganash avenue between Kostner and Kilbourn avenues; and Granville avenue between Kostner avenue and the alley west, costing $30,500.

Water Pipe Projects.

The following water supply pipe systems will be installed by the board:

Osnanam avenue between Devon and Oliphant avenue, costing $1,664.

Granville avenue between Kimball and Ridgeway avenues, and Ridgeway, Lawndale, Monticello, and Central Park avenues between Devon and Granville avenues; and Drake and St. Louis avenues, and Bernard street between Lincoln and Granville avenues at a cost of $29,537.

Oriole avenue between Hortense and Devon avenues; Palatine avenue between Odell and Oriole avenues; and Olcott avenue between Myrtle and Hortense avenues, at a cost of $19,330.

Spokane avenue between Leoti and Ionia avenues; Devon avenue between Spokane and Le Mai avenues, and Navajo and Nokomis avenues between Devon and Ionia avenues, costing $11,685.

Property owners in the block bounded by Navarre, Neola, and Nettleton avenues and Northwest highway approved entering of condemnation proceedings to pave the alley. The board approved the proposal to condemn property for opening an alley in the block bounded by Nevada and Altgeld streets and Kenton and Kilpatrick avenues despite protests of property owners.

Forest Park Now Boasts Biggest Cedar Chest Plant

One of the residential villages located west of Chicago can now boast of the largest factory for the exclusive manufacture of cedar chests. It is Forest Park and the factory is the plant of the Ed Roos company. A new addition was recently built, consisting of a 46 by 129 foot, three story and basement building of pressed brick and giving the plant more than 175,000 square feet of floor space.

ALL-WOOL BLANKET, BOUGHT FOR 98 CENTS, CALLED REAL BARGAIN

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Downers Grove, Ill., June 24.—Some time ago I went to a sale in a nearby dry goods store and was rather aimlessly looking about when I espied a pile of blankets marked at 98 cents. I soon unearthed a fine woolen one, but its color could not be vouched for as it was very badly soiled. However, taking a chance in no way detracts from the lure of bargain hunting. I willingly paid the 98 cents, carried my blanket home and soon had it through a soap flake bath. Presto! When dry, it was a pale pink, satin bound, all-wool blanket. I've told all my friends about my best bargain and now I'm telling the world.

PRIZES A BARGAIN RUG.

Chicago, June 22.—A rug purchased for $10 in this neighborhood three years ago proved to be my best bargain. We had it cleaned a few weeks ago and it looks like new, though it has been in constant use ever since I bought it. No doubt it will still be giving us service three years hence.

MRS. MARGARET KRAUS,
3159 Diversey avenue.

PROFITABLE LINEN PURCHASE.

Chicago, June 23.—I got an unusual bargain in linen at a neighborhood store two years ago. The quality was good, but the shade was a somewhat unusual one in rose which may account for the material reduction in price. I purchased ten yards of this linen at 10 cents a yard. With a little hand embroidery it lent itself beautifully to the making of drapes for the three windows in my bedroom. Recently I sold my bargain drapes for $6 to the woman who rented the apartment when we moved.

IMPROVEMENT OF KEDZIE AVE. STILL BEING DEMANDED

Would Have the Park Board Do Work.

Determined to make Kedzie avenue between North avenue and Palmer square available for use as a boulevard, the Logan Square Business Men's association this week will proceed with a campaign to improve the street.

Since property owners recently declared themselves opposed to widening the thoroughfare by removing the parkway from the center because they do not want to bear the necessary special assessment, Charles V. Falkenberg, president of the Logan square group, said yesterday that other means of improvement will be sought.

Although definite plans have not yet been formulated, the association will take one of four alternatives, Mr. Falkenberg said, any of which will provide some relief for traffic. Members of the group believe, however, that Kedzie avenue must become a boulevard eventually, and anything but removal of the parkway must be only a temporary measure.

Will Urge Bond Issue.

The association will first petition the west park board or northwest park district to take over the street and make the improvement, paying for it by bond issue.

An alternative, if the park boards refuse to undertake the improvement, will be to obtain passage of an ordinance prohibiting all parking on both of the one way drives. The street will be made about ten feet wider on each side in that way, and will become a better artery to relieve present heavy traffic using Humboldt boulevard.

Resurfacing Kedzie avenue will be considered as a third measure likely to facilitate traffic to some extent, and the fourth plan would be widening of the street by doing away with the space between the sidewalks and the curbs.

Other Streets to Be Improved.

As a supplement to the Kedzie avenue improvement, the association will take steps to obtain the resurfacing of Palmer street between Kedzie and Kimball avenues; Kimball avenue, between Palmer street and Milwaukee avenue; Sacramento avenue, between Palmer street and Diversey avenue, and Diversey avenue, between Western and Milwaukee avenues.

Resurfacing of these streets as well as Kedzie avenue would provide at least temporary relief from traffic congestion in the district, Mr. Falkenberg said, and entail only a small cost to property owners. Resurfacing has been estimated to cost $6 a front foot.

2,000 BOYS GET 10 DAY OUTING AT CLUB'S CAMP

All set and ready to go are the boys of Branch No. 5 of the Chicago Boys club, 2801 South Ridgeway avenue. Their summer camp opens next Friday at Winona Lake, Ind., and they are looking forward to the time of their lives.

"We expect to have at least 2,000 underprivileged Chicago boys at the Chicago Boys' club camp this summer," said H. J. Boorman, director of Branch No. 5. "They will have ten day outings each, with plenty of swimming, boating, hiking, baseball, games, athletic contests, camp fires, and other entertainment. Nature study will be one of the features of camp life.

"These outings are made possible by the generosity of Chicago citizens who 'share' their own vacations with needy boys by sending one or more to camp. Some individuals are taking care of ten or more boys, $10 providing a boy with ten days of camp joys, and all he can eat thrown in in the bargain. Many boys gain 5 to 10 pounds in weight and get a new lease on life. In addition, the woods and open country are a revelation to them."

The Chicago Boys club camp has 114 acres with 1,000 feet of shore line, a fine pier and many new buildings. Its sanitary provisions and drinking water supply have been rated by the Chicago health department as among the highest in the area.

NORTHWEST SIDE PUPILS PERFORM AS SCHOOLS END

Present Programs of Music and Drama.

Graduation exercises were held at public schools of the northwest side during the last week. Most of the commencement programs were simple, consisting chiefly of presentation of diplomas and brief talks by the principals. At many of the schools, however, plays and vocal programs were presented by members of the graduating classes. Most of the private and parochial schools ended their respective scholastic years earlier in the month.

An operetta, "What's the Matter with Sally?" was given at Norwood Park school on Thursday, commencement day. Miss Anna P. Keller, principal, addressed the graduates. This year's class numbered 43 members.

Kegel Attends Health Play.

Prior to commencement a health play, "From Death Valley to Safety Hill," was enacted by about 200 children of the school. Present at the performance was Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, health commissioner of Chicago, who gave a talk on matters pertaining to health.

Eighty-nine pupils were graduated at the recent commencement exercises of St. Viator school, Addison street and Kedvale avenue. The address to the graduates was made by the Rev. James F. Ryan, pastor of St. Viator church. Mary Marnell and Alexis Rudnicki had the highest averages among the members of the class, and perfect attendance records for the year were made by Beatrice Padzerski and Joseph Wickletz.

A few days before commencement two plays, "The Real American Girl" and "A Regular Scream," were presented. The school enrollment last year was 797 pupils. The Rev. Angelo F. Rinella is director of the school and the Sisters of St. Joseph of St. Louis, Mo., are in charge.

Lewis Graduating Class Sings.

The exercises at Lewis school, 1431 North Leamington avenue, were held on Thursday. Songs by the 71 members of the graduating class provided one of the features of the program. The principal of the school is Miss Lauretta M. McLindon.

Graduation was held at Bridge school, Byron street and New England avenue, on Thursday afternoon. The class included 86 pupils. Miss Anna M. Kearns is principal.

Spencer School Gives Diplomas to 48 Pupils

Forty-eight pupils were graduated from the Spencer school, 214 North Lavergne avenue, on Thursday. Diplomas were presented by the principal, Miss Helen M. Richards. Members of the Parent-Teacher association were present at the exercises.

Stranger—Is this a healthful town?

Western ranger—Sure is. When I come here I couldn't say a word; didn't have a hair on my head; didn't have enough strength in my legs to walk across the floor. Why, I had to be lifted from my bed.

Stranger—That's remarkable. How long have you been here?

Ranger—O, I was born here, stranger.

"Nothing," he chuckled. "It's just that nurse gave him two baths and hasn't given me any."

NORTHWEST CIVIC GROUPS LAUNCH TAX SLASH DRIVE

Reject Citizens' Association Proposal.

A blow was dealt the Citizen's Tax Reduction association last week in its attempt to enlist the coöperation of northwest side civic groups for the purpose of reducing taxes in Cook county when the Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs refused to work with the new group and started a similar project of its own.

The federation, which includes almost all of the active community organizations north of North avenue and west of Western avenue, voted to handle the tax question itself rather than trust the matter to an organization not directly identified with any local group.

Tax Committee Appointed.

Immediately following a meeting at which a representative of the Citizen's association appeared and attempted to address individual delegates to the federation, a resolution was adopted by the group authorizing the president to appoint a committee to plan a tax reducing campaign of its own.

The committee, appointed Tuesday by O. W. Holmes, president, will meet tomorrow night at 5038 Pensacola avenue for its first conference on the problem. Members are: Chairman, T. F. Quinn, and E. F. Boyle, S. W. Haddock, E. D. Jackson, James Davis, E. O. Hutchins, William Krump, John Pohl, Mr. Holmes and John Klier, secretary, are ex officio members.

They will begin work this week mapping out a plan of action for organizing voters of the northwest side for the cause of lower taxes and will also work out a system whereby civic groups in other parts of the city will organize their local forces and will finally join into a city wide unit.

Has Local Connection.

The advantage of this group over the Citizens' group, according to members of the federation who explained their vote for the resolution, will be its identification with local organizations which are well established and in which the taxpayers have confidence. On the other hand, they said, the Citizens' association has no local connection.

The resolution reads as follows:

"The question of taxation is now looming up as one of the major questions for immediate consideration of the citizens of this city and county.

"New organizations are springing up in an attempt to deal with this vital question. These organizations have no background to justify our confidence in their ability or sincerity to handle the question of taxation in the interest of the small taxpayers, therefore be it resolved:

"That the chairman of this organization be authorized to appoint a committee of five or more members of this body with authority to work out a system of citywide organization to deal with this situation and that the committee be urged to act at once and submit a report at the next meeting."

Mr. Klier said yesterday that while the committee has not yet begun actual work, a policy of protection for the small home-owner will be followed, and the clubs of the northwest side will launch the campaign with the slogan "Equity in taxation—Economy in administration."

4 ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS UNITE IN BAND CONCERT

What was probably the first band contest ever conducted in elementary schools in Chicago was held June 21 at the Orr school, 1040 North Keeler avenue. Four schools took part, Orr, Nash, Cameron, and Nobel.

Besides the presentations by the bands of the four schools, individual competitions were held in various classifications. The winners in the clarinet section were: Advanced grade, James Borngin, Orr school; intermediate grade, Peter McAuslin, Cameron school, and beginners' grade, Laverne Koch, Nash school.

Winners in the cornet section were: Advanced grade, John Pellettiere, Nash school; Lois Peterson, Orr school; and Gus Osterlund, Cameron school. In the drum competitions William Belbees, Cameron school, was the advanced grade winner, and Thaddeus Bembinski of the same school the victor in the intermediate grade. Mary Ursing of the Orr school took first place in a saxaphone contest and James Borngin, also of the Orr school, was the winner in a special solo class competition. The group ensemble contest was won by the Orr school.

COUNCIL GROUP REFUSES O. K. ON PINE AVE. ZONING

Ald. Cepak to Inquire Into Petition.

The west side buildings and zoning committee of the city council, headed by Ald. Joseph Cepak [22d], Monday refused to comply with the request of Ald. J. H. Taylor [37th] to report favorably on the proposed rezoning of part of Pine avenue in North Austin.

Ald. Cepak insisted that a thorough investigation into the proposed rezoning must be made, and succeeded in having the committee defer the matter until July 8. Ald. Taylor sought to have the ordinance approved by the committee three weeks ago when it was originally introduced, and again two weeks ago, but owing to a controversy among property owners, the committee ordered the matter continued both times.

Petition Under Scrutiny.

The ordinance would rezone Pine avenue between a line 125 feet south of Chicago avenue and a line 125 north of Huron street from a residence to an apartment classification. A petition in the hands of the committee is said to contain the names of 84 per cent of the property owners, more than the number necessary for passage of the ordinance.

At the first hearing, however, J. M. Gubbins, 725 North Pine avenue, in opposing the zoning change declared that the petition contains the forged name of Dr. Harry V. Shaw, 709 North Pine avenue. He also averred that other property owners had been "bulldozed" into signing.

Although Charles Post, 741 North Pine avenue, leading proponent of the ordinance, produced an affidavit signed by Dr. Shaw stating that his signature was not forged, the charge caused the zoning committee to become wary.

Finds Opponents of Rezoning.

Ald. Cepak, in refusing to permit passage of the ordinance last Monday at the request of Ald. Taylor, said that a cursory investigation has shown eight property owners supporting Mr. Gubbins, and expressed the belief that further interviews with residents of the street would show that a number of others are also opposed to the rezoning. While he did not concur in the belief that some of the signers of the petition had been coerced as Mr. Gubbins charged, he said that each property owner must be interviewed before the subcommittee makes its decision. The full committee usually abides by the decision of the subcommittee in such cases.

One ordinance was approved by the committee at the meeting Monday, and three others, introduced for the first time, were referred to the west side subcommittee.

An ordinance rezoning the south side of Cortland street between Keeler avenue and the alley east of that street from an apartment to a commercial classification was approved at the request of Ald. Eugene L. Nusser [36th].

Three Others Considered.

Ordinances rezoning the following districts were referred to the subcommittee:

The area bounded by Roscoe street, Belmont and Natoma avenues and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, from a commercial to a manufacturing district.

The south side of Augusta street, between Homan avenue and the alley immediately west, from an apartment to a commercial section.

OLDEST TRIBUNE READER?

Mrs. Mary Smale, 3414 West Monroe street, who has been a subscriber to The Tribune continuously since 1858, believes herself the oldest reader of the World's Greatest Newspaper.

Missed Only in 1871

The oldest reader and continuous subscriber of THE TRIBUNE is how Mrs. Mary Smale, 85 years old, 3414 West Monroe street, proudly describes herself. And not so old but that she intends to read it for many more years.

Mrs. Smale came to Chicago with her parents in 1858, 71 years ago, from Devonshire, England. She traces her reading pedigree through the Democratic Press, which her family started taking as soon as they arrived and which was absorbed by THE TRIBUNE later that same year.

They lived on Randolph street in what is now loop territory then, and her memory goes back to the days when the streets were almost mud swamps and pine boards were laid for sidewalks. When she and her husband, Robert, who died in 1910, moved out to the Monroe street address in 1880, they were outside the city limits and cornfields were all around them.

In those days THE TRIBUNE was brought around to the streets by boys nicknamed "newspaper monkeys," but when the carrier service was inaugurated Mrs. Smale was one of the first to subscribe.

During the Chicago fire, which did not reach out to their home, were the only days, she says, when she didn't get her paper.

The photographer snapped her in a chair almost as old as the number of years she has read THE TRIBUNE. She bought it in 1865 at Tobey's.

ABANDON FIGHT AGAINST PAVING MILE ON ASHLAN

Opponents Fear They'l Increase Cost.

Paving of Ashland avenue between Roosevelt road and 22d street by the board of local improvements was assured last week when property owners abandoned a plan to file a petition against the project or oppose its approval in the County court.

The project was approved at a hearing held by the board recently, and work will be started as soon as the legal procedure can be completed. This will probably require all summer, forcing the board to wait until next spring to do the paving.

The decision not to oppose the project was made by S. H. Huizinga and John Bulthouse, property owners who led the opposition previously, and Ald. Frank A. Sloan [36th] following the hearing at which President Michael J. Faherty warned them that they would gain nothing by fighting the project and that the fight would only serve to increase the cost.

Demand Change in Type of Paving.

A petition will be presented to the board within three weeks, however, demanding that the type of pavement specified be changed. Property owners want concrete instead of asphalt, as is now provided by the plans.

Mr. Faherty said the improvement has been recommended by the Chicago Plan commission and urged by the city council. As a major improvement of the city which has been pending ten years, he declared, it must not be held up any longer.

In answer to pleas of property owners that they cannot pay the special assessment because they are already too heavily taxed and because their property brings no returns, Mr. Faherty declared that the city must have the improvement, and "we must not worry about the cost."

Cost Estimated at $315,000.

The cost of the paving has been estimated at $315,000. Mr. Faherty promised that the city will bear approximately 40 per cent of this amount as a public benefit. Property owners said, however, that even with this large public benefit, the project will cost $525 for each 25 foot lot.

Arguments made by some that a sewer is needed and that the street should not be paved until it is installed were said by engineers for the board to be without foundation. A sewer is needed for the district, they said, but it will not be constructed in Ashland avenue.

Open daily and Sunday

8 A. M. to Midnight

SIX years ago the Chicago Tribune opened its Advertising and Public Service Office at One South Dearborn Street. It was a new note in the Tribune's effort to serve Chicago. Millions turned to it for the unique help offered. Last year alone over a million items of service were rendered.

Now Tribune service moves to the great west side! So successful has been the main office on Dearborn Street and so essential to the convenience of the people of Chicago has it become that the Tribune has opened this new branch office. Tomorrow is the formal opening. The new office is located at 4152 W. Madison Street. This modern bureau with its specially trained staff invites your call. Be sure to visit it.

Here at your elbow are comfortable quarters where you will find expert ability to help you secure maximum results in writing and placing want ads. Here you will find detailed auto and road maps and advice about hotels and scenic points enroute. Dress patterns, tax service, public phones, license blanks, booklets about home building and home management are a few of the many aids which the new Chicago Tribune Advertising and Public Service Office in its west side quarters offers to you.

See and Hear WGN's Famous Radio Artists

Featuring the formal opening, WGN radio stars in person will be at the new Advertising and Public Service Office in a medley performance of songs and music.

See Quin Ryan in person. Enjoy Pat Barnes' quips. Both these famous announcers will be at the new office with a galaxy of other artists, including Henry Selinger, Walter Pontius, East and Dumke, Delos Owen, Tom, Dick and Harry, and Louie's Hungry Five.

Performances from 3 to 6:30 in the afternoon and from 9 to 9:30 in the evening. Don't fail to attend.

SPECIAL: For those who cannot attend the performance in the evening, tune in on WGN. The 9 o'clock program will be broadcast by special wire direct from the new office.

W-G-N INSTALLS GIANT ORGAN IN ITS NEW STUDIOS

To Be Used in Programs with Goldkette's Band.

A giant organ, especially designed [illegible] W-G-N and Jean Goldkette's W-G-[illegible] Dance Orchestra, has been installed [illegible] THE TRIBUNE's Drake Hotel sta-[illegible], and, after extensive tests, now [illegible] the completion of W-G-N's new [illegible], Henry Selinger, program di-[illegible], announced yesterday.

Through the use of the organ with [illegible]ette's band new musical effects, [illegible] before obtained by any radio [illegible], will be heard daily from W-G-N.

Worked Into Programs.

"The organ will not be merely an instrument playing simultaneously with the dance band," Mr. Selinger said; "It will be carefully worked into the score of every selection; it will be as much a part of the band as the trumpets or the saxophones.

"For two years we have been waiting for an instrument that would exactly fit into the W-G-N plan of orchestra and organ in combination. Jean Goldkette himself has found this [illegible] satisfactory, and we are now preparing programs which will take the fullest advantage of its almost limitless potentialities of tone-color and arrangement. With the introduction of the organ the dance band will take on an entirely new character."

Mr. Selinger also emphasized the fact that, while designed primarily for use with the band, the new organ has ample possibilities equalling those of any theater organ. W-G-N plans to bring nationally famous organists to Chicago for radio concerts.

Four New Studios.

Radio listeners will hear the organ when W-G-N's four new studios, which are being built upon the experience gained in five years of broadcasting, are completed.

The new studios break entirely from the old tradition of broadcasting plants. Formerly a radio studio was as "dead" as possible. Every sound [illegible] was eliminated; ventilation was sacrificed to insulation; heavy drapes were hung to absorb sound.

W-G-N engineers have found that a more "open" arrangement improves the quality of broadcasting. Ceilings will be twenty feet higher than they were. Walls and floors have been constructed with special regard for their acoustical qualities. They will give W-G-N broadcasts a new vibrancy and resonance.

BY QUINN RYAN.

Ten years ago next Thursday, on the Fourth of July, 1919, Jess Willard, the heavyweight champion of the world, the conqueror of Jack Johnson, was facing Jack Dempsey, his twenty-four year old challenger, at Toledo, O., before the greatest crowd that had ever seen a prize fight up to that time. Let us imagine you are hearing it over the radio:

ANNOUNCER: Well, the great Fourth of July has come at last. We are broadcasting to you direct from the Bayview Park arena in Toledo. The mercury is up around 97, and there are 70,000 sweltering fans assembled here this afternoon for Tex Rickard's biggest show. The preliminaries are all over, the fighters have their instructions and Referee Ollie Pecord has dropped back to one corner of the ring. The sun glares down on the white canvas floor with intense heat. There's the whistle. Seconds out! [Gong.]

There's the gong! The big fight is on! Both men are coming out of their corners and approaching the center of the ring! Hands up, and they're sparring cautiously, getting the measure of each other! Willard is sticking out those long arms like a pair of feelers, and Dempsey is crouched below him! Oooh! There's the first one! Willard shoved out his left straight at Dempsey's face, but the sunburned boy just stepped away. He's forcing Jess to do the leading! If Willard wants to win this fight he must go out and get it! Ummh! Jess weaved out another left hand blow that barely grazed Dempsey's face. Dempsey is backing up! Now they're mixing it! Dempsey missed a swing and now he's gone into a clinch. It looks like David and Goliath there in the ring, with the shorter challenger's arms wrapped around the big Kansan.

Jess has backed up a bit to pull himself together! Now again Dempsey is coming in crouching, his body swaying from side to side! A wary eye is watching for that long Willard left! Now Jess uncorks it—a pretty tap right on Dempsey's mouth—but it didn't stop the challenger! He's coming right in, swaying, weaving, moving slowly, looking for an opening! There's another one. Jess smashed a straight left for Dempsey's eye.

Dempsey is creeping in! He's like a great cat, moving forward slowly, surely, slyly! Willard trys another left—Dempsey is under it—it didn't touch him, and— Gosh! A right on the jaw! A left to the same spot—Willard is down! The champion is on the mat! A left and a right flush on the jaw and Willard is on the mat for the first time in his ring career! Now Referee Pecord is counting—two—three, four—five—six—seven. Willard is getting to his feet slowly. Now he's on his feet. Now Dempsey tears in and lands another and Willard is on the mat again, and there's blood streaming from his mouth. Dempsey has knocked him down again, and once again Referee Ollie Pecord is standing over him and counting. Once more Willard starts slowly to his feet! The blood drips from his mouth as he slowly lifts that 240 pound body to its feet. Dempsey is waiting, fist poised! Willard is up. His arms hang weakly at his side! He's turning away from Dempsey, seeking the ropes. Oooohh! Two rights! Dempsey laced a pair of rights straight to the champion's jaw and Willard is down again. That is the third time this round that Challenger Jack Dempsey has sent the champion to the floor of the ring! The claret oozes from Willard's mouth!

Willard is getting to his feet—slowly—slowly—the vitality is slipping from that vast frame! Dempsey with a barrage of lefts and rights is crowding him into a neutral corner—now a left and a right to the face—Willard is down again! The whole right side of his face is cut and bleeding. Now there are cries of "Stop it! Stop it!" from the spectators. They know that it can't go on. Willard is a beaten man now. Pecord is counting his death knell. Once again he starts for his feet. His knees and hands leave the canvas—he stands there before Dempsey, a beaten thing and a rain of body blows—right, left, right, left—sends him to the mat again!

Willard is getting up once more, a bloody, beaten hulk, no longer able to defend himself. Dempsey, throwing caution to the winds, is crowding in once more. He has promised to knock out Willard in the first round! Looks as though he's going to do it! He's driving home punch after punch! Willard slips against the ropes, he's on the mat again—sitting down—staring about him in a daze. Dempsey is walking away from him as Referee Ollie Pecord tolls out the fatal second—three, four, five, six, seven—the battle's over and in the first round. The crowd is making such a tremendous noise we can't hear the referee! His arm swings down for the last time—Dempsey starts from the ring—the fight is over! No, there's Jimmie De Forrest pulling him back.

The bell has saved Willard. It ended the round before Pecord had finished counting! The champion is still the champion for a little while, at least.

Never has a heavyweight championship fight started in quite that way. The champion of the world knocked down seven times in one round, or was it six? There's the whistle! Seconds out of the ring! [Gong].

Round two! Dempsey is coming up to scratch like a whirlwind. There'll be no stopping him now. Willard is just a shell; he hasn't got a defense for this sunburnt boy who means to take the championship from him. O! Jack has opened a cut under Willard's right eye! Blood's streaming from the wound! Dempsey is pounding home blow after blow! Left and right, left and right. Willard is trying with his left—he's game—but he can't stop Dempsey—the youngster is battering him all over the ring at will. Dempsey is driving body blows home time after time. He just sent in a hard punch to the heart and Willard has fallen outside the ropes—now he's slowly clambering back—the crowd is on its feet! The end may come at any moment—now Willard is rushing into a clinch—he's holding on—he can't fight—Dempsey has knocked all the fight out of him. The crowd is hollering madly for the knockout and Dempsey is trying hard to land that finisner. Now he's torn out of Willard's weak grasp, and he's measuring the champion with punch after punch. Willard tried to stab a left to Dempsey's face and another and another, but there's no force to his blows. Dempsey is pounding him at will. Punch after punch. Willard's face is swollen out of shape! Dempsey continues with lefts and rights and Willard stumbles around the ring—[Gong].

That's all! That's the end of the second round, and Willard is still on his feet, but it's only a question of time now. Dempsey is entirely unmarked as he sits there in his corner, but Willard is a shocking spectacle. His head and chest are a mass of blood and one side of his face is swollen and pummelled entirely out of shape. There's the whistle! Time out for seconds! Only thirty seconds to the gong! [Gong!] There it is!

Round three! Willard staggers out to the center of the ring, and Dempsey comes out of his corner like a rocket and continues the battery of blows that are about to take the championship from Willard. Willard isn't even defending himself! He is staggering around the ring and Dempsey is rushing after him, sending home blow after blow. Willard's mouth is hanging open. He's a beaten man. Only the tremendous vitality of that great body is keeping him on his feet! The crowd is shouting to Ollie Pecord to stop it. The big fellow is staggering along the ropes and Dempsey is following him relentlessly, slugging, slugging, slugging, waiting for him to drop. Willard is holding on to the ropes, while Dempsey rains blow after blow on his head and body. Now—[Gong]. There's the gong!

Well, that the end of round three, ladies and gentlemen! The scrap is almost over! Jess can't last through another round. He's slumped in his corner now. Dempsey is unmarked! What a beating Willard has taken! Now Monogham, his second, is whispering in his ear—words of encouragement, I suppose—but Jess can't go much longer. Monoghan is still talking to Jess. Now he's walking over and talking to Referee Pecord. Now Ollie comes over to Jack Dempsey's corner and grabs him by the arm—and—Willard has tossed in the towel. Jack Dempsey is champion of the world! Ollie has him in the center of the ring and he's raising his arm in token of victory. The fight is over!

REVOLUTIONARY SONGS FROM W-G-N ON 4TH OF JULY

Songs of the revolutionary soldiers, popular one hundred and fifty years ago, are part of the special Independence day program of W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station, this year.

The program, which will begin at 8:30, will include tunes that both the red coats and the Continentals hummed as they marched over colonial roads. Among them is one that was played by fifes at the hanging of Maj. Andre, collaborator with Benedict Arnold in his attempt to betray Washington's army.

Henry Selinger, program director, also promises an appropriate "Musical Mosaics" program, a regular Thursday feature for Independence day, with extracts from the compositions of Francis Hopkinson, early American composer, arranged for modern presentation by Alfred G. Wathall.

RETREAT GIVES NEW FORCE TO UNION WORKERS

Great Classes Formed at Mayslake.

BY THOMAS WREN.

HUGHIE MULLIGAN.

Three years ago Hughie Mulligan, business representative of the Chicago Asbestos Workers union, became interested in the spiritual exercises of the closed retreat, which are conducted twice a week by Franciscan priests at Mayslake, located a short distance from Hinsdale.

The Franciscan retreat house and spacious college are situated on the old Peabody estate of some 850 acres. A shrine, erected by Stuyvesant Peabody, adorns the spot, where the elder Peabody was accidentally killed some years ago.

Mulligan's first organizing endeavor resulted in a class of 250 union asbestos workers. They returned from the Mayslake retreat and enthusiastically began to lay plans for enlarging their second class.

Centered Work on Unions.

Came then Father Patrick Maloney of the Franciscan order to work in the retreat field. He is a Chicago boy, who was born and schooled in the Brighton park district of the city.

Through Mulligan, who is now serving his second term as president of the St. Francis Laymen's Retreat league, Father Maloney focused his activities on the building trades and organized labor in general.

Mulligan's second class totaled 350 retreatants and his 1929 class, which made the annual retreat last week established a record for Mayslake. Four hundred twenty-five asbestos workers and friends made the last pilgrimage to the Franciscan retreat house. They assembled on Friday evening, June 21, in the streets adjoining St. Augustine's church at 51st and Laflin streets.

Eighty automobiles, festooned in American and papel colors, carried the asbestos workers from Chicago to Mayslake. It was escorted by a cordon of motorcycle policemen. Joseph Mullaney, the asbestos workers' international union president, accompanied the members of the Chicago local on the pilgrimage. Likewise did Charles Dalton, the business agent of the Cleveland local of abestos workers, and a delegation of Hammond workers.

The class of asbestos workers was followed by Chicago plumbers, who were organized in a retreat class under direction of Steve Bailey, one of the union's business agents. Large classes were unknown when Mayslake first opened. Eight men would sometimes constitute a retreatant class.

Other Classes Planned.

Bailey's first class comprised ninety plumbers and friends. This year he assembled approximately 225 men to make the retreat. Johnny Murphy of the electricians, No. 134, is at work passing out applications for an electricians' class. John Stretch, Tommy O'Donnell, Tom Healy and Edward Shaughnessy are doing their stuff among the bricklayers.

Martin Durkin is hard at work with the steamfitters and Paddy Cullen of the stone cutters is active in the retreat's interest among labor in general.

Father Maloney has announced he will endeavor to have regular classes of Chicago policemen and firemen at Mayslake retreats. Coöperating along this line are several police captains and Jimmie Murphy, Clem Manning, Jim and John Gavin, Le Roy McHugh, Pearce Butler, and Bob McLaughlin, Chicago's battery of police reporters.

Attending the eucharistic congress in Chicago in 1926, the late Cardirial Bonzano said:

"The annual retreat is to the soul what steam is to the locomotive—the force that carries it straight to its destination."

The Chicago office of the St. Francis Retreat is at 115 West Polk street. The phone number there is Harrison 1038.

RUSH MOVEMENT FOR NEW SEWERS IN SOUTH AUSTIN

Officials Get Petition of 150 Residents.

Desiring to put an end to flooding of basements caused by inadequate sewers, 150 residents of South Austin presented a petition to the board of local improvements Monday requesting a survey of the district for an up to date sewer system. Engineers of the board began work on the survey immediately and plan to rush the work in preparation for a hearing.

The petition was circulated by the Austin Civic and Business association under the leadership of Helmer C. Patterson. Relief is necessary in the district south of Madison street between Central and Laramie avenues, Mr. Patterson said.

Old System Far Outgrown.

Sewerage now serving this thickly populated district is antiquated, he pointed out, since the system was installed twenty-seven years ago when Austin was sparsely settled. It has been estimated that the population is now twenty-five times as large as it was when the sewers were laid.

Three feet of water backs up into basements throughout the district with each heavy rain, Mr. Patterson continued, and a good deal of damage is done to property by the inadequacy of the sewer facilities.

W. H. Mathews, expert of the bureau of sewers, agreed yesterday that the entire section is undersewered and that a new system is badly needed. Rough surveys of sewer conditions throughout the city show that the sewer system of south Austin is among the worst in the city, he said.

Cost Expected to Be Heavy.

The system which would provide the needed relief would be quite costly, Mr. Mathews believes, since the entire district is improved with paved streets which would have to be temporarily torn up to do the construction work. The cost to each property owner would probably be between $8 and $10 a front foot, he estimated.

Mr. Patterson is confident, however, that if the assessments are not exorbitant little opposition will be encountered in his association's efforts to have the project approved at a hearing. Each property owner will carefully consider the cost of the new system as against the damage and inconvenience suffered under present conditions before objecting to the improvement, he said.

PLAN MADISON STREET UNIT OF OAK PARK GROUP

Plans are being formulated for the organization of a Madison street council of the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce, in accordance with the recently adopted arrangement whereby local units are being formed in the various districts of the village to coöperate with the chamber.

The story of the Madison street section of Oak Park is replete with attempts to bring about an active organization of business and professional men to care for the civic, commercial, and promotional requirements of the locality. Efforts to form such an association were sometimes successful, but interest abated and the idea died. When interrogated recently concerning the failure of a Madison street association to survive, leaders said that it was principally because no one individual assumed the responsibility of keeping the organization active.

According to plans now being made the Madison street council will be accorded the office and clerical facilities of the Oak Park chamber to care for all records, notices, and other details of management.

OGDEN AVENUE FIRST LAID OUT AS PLANK ROAD

Named in Honor of Earliest Mayor.

The old Southwestern Plank road, which bridged the "nine mile swamp" between Chicago and Doty's tavern at Riverside, was the forerunner of the modern arterial highway named for Chicago's first mayor, William Butler Ogden.

Over its precarious planks, often completely A. W. O. L. after a heavy rain, the stage coaches and farm wagons of an era that seems distant but is in reality only 75 years or so behind us made the long journey to the first southwest outpost from the garden city.

Fearful and wonderful are the tales of travelers in the old stage coaches and of the then modern transportation facilities on those first improved highways, which a few years after they were laid, according to contemporary accounts, were little better than rafts.

Passed Out After Decade.

The plank roads were an innovation imported from Canada at about 1848 and, according to M. M. Quaife in "Chicago's Highways—Old and New," which is in the Chicago Historical society library, at Dearborn and Ontario streets, they lasted about a decade and then were relegated to the past.

The first such road was built closely paralleling the Southwestern, connecting Riverside, the Widow Barry's Point and Chicago. And another was built from Bary's Point to Whisky Point, now Cragin, where one tradition says two barrels of whisky were buried and never dug up.

The Southwestern was the first heavily traveled road, however, and was completed as far as Brush Hill, sixteen miles, by 1850, extending on to Naperville the next year and connecting with several other highways.

Although Ogden avenue, as the Southwestern Plank road, was one of the first main highways to be built into Chicago, not until Aug. 2, 1924, was it extended and completed as a highway. At that time, after forty-four years of talking and planning, houses were leveled down to make way for its extension to Lincoln park.

Ended Abruptly at Randolph.

One of the main objections to its use even in the early days was the fact that it ended abruptly at a point east of Ashland on Randolph street. Now it extends diagonally across, cutting North avenue at Larrabee and terminating at Lincoln park, Clark and Center streets.

Of Ogden, for whom the road was named in later days, the New York Times of Aug. 4, 1877, said, "Mr. Ogden has contributed more than any one man on this continent to the development of the great northwest."

Ogden's niece, Mrs. Frederick T. West, writing in "Chicago Yesterdays," compiled by Caroline Kirkland, says, "It was at William B. Ogden's suggestion and on his original plan that an underground railway for the relief of the already congested traffic of New York was considered."

His suggestion was put through for that city, but Chicago is still expecting.

The Ogden family was a well known one among the pioneers of the city; Mahlon D. Ogden, William Butler's brother, was the first of the name to settle here in the early 1820s, and in 1837, when the city charter was granted, William was well enough known to be chosen the first mayor.

AIRPORT GIVES ELMHURST PLACE IN FLYING WORLD

Elmhurst, abreast of the times, now has an airport which not only bears its name but is endeavoring to coöperate with the community and promote its interests.

It has natural drainage and when the cinder tracks are completed will present a perfect landing surface.

The hangar, though larger in size and different in shape, was built from the original Robinson hangar at Maywood field from which Col. Lindbergh flew when in the mail service. A portion of the plane which Lindy flew is now among the possessions of the owner of Elmhurst airport, who flew with him on many occasions.

Among the plans for the promotion of Elmhurst in connection with the airport is the placing of a beacon on the landing field and a huge sign, Elmhurst, in white stone.

Hay fever victims will be pleased to learn that pupils of the Lucy Flower High school are waging relentless warfare on the ragweed, which is said to be responsible for 90 per cent of the hay fever cases. A worthy example for other schools.

THE champion radio fan of Chicago is Policeman John Hennessy of squad No. 23A, commanded by Sergt. John P. Foley. It is his job, from four o'clock in the afternoon until after midnight, to sit in the squad car and listen for the word from W-G-N, "Squads, attention!" His colleagues have discovered he has become so interested he now arises at 8 a. m., tunes his home set in on W-G-N and listens all day for calls so he'll be well posted on what's happened while he's been off duty.

The baby girl born to Mr. and Mrs. George Sanderhoff May 24, is getting prettier every day, we are glad to report. Mr. Sanderhoff is the popular plumber at 3904 Armitage avenue.

Alfred A. Mueller, secretary of the Kimball Trust and Savings bank and president of the Fullerton Avenue Business Men's association, is the west side's outstanding hobbyist. That is to say, he is a crack tennis player, a fair billiardist, a promising bowler and a real Cub fan. The last, of course, isn't a hobby; it's an ailment.

THERE are no finer hobbies than those of Otto H. Berz, president of the West Town Chamber of Commerce—horses, dogs, and a log cabin hacienda up in the big timber and pines country in northern Michigan, with a mile of shore line on Lake Superior and hardby the Michegaming river. Fishing, swimming, horseback riding or what have you in summer; sleighing in winter. And we fancy that the way a stack of buckwheat cakes with maple sirup would taste in those hospitable surroundings would be nobody's business. The last time we saw Otto he wasn't talking about the hacienda. He was absorbed in the Ogden avenue project to open up the bottleneck that now exists in Goose island and provide the great west side with another through artery to the north. Good luck, Otto.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Wright of 647 North Mayfield avenue have returned from their tour of Europe. They saw The Hague, Amsterdam, the famed Holland tulip fields; Cologne, the Rhine, the Black Forest; Switzerland, the Alps; Scotland, Ireland, Wales, London. But they say the sight they most enjoyed was the skyline of Chicago at the journey's end.

JOSEPH KACENA JR., the hard-working chief of police of the sanitary district, is conducting an investigation of the hot dog situation. He has detached two stalwart motorcycle policemen from traffice duty to guard the barbecue tavern on the west side of McCormick road, just north of Devon avenue, while the quiz is on. Motorists are warned they can't stop there. Joe's theory is said to be that the hot dog mystery has never been properly solved and that an investigation might disclose a scandal. We shouldn't be surprised, Joe.

The class numbered 136 members.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN TO 19 NAZARETH ACADEMY GIRLS

Nineteen girls were graduated from Nazareth academy, LaGrange, at the commencement ceremonies held on June 20. The Very Rev. Msgr. D. J. Dunne addressed the members of the class and awarded the honors and diplomas. The valedictory was given by Miss Dorothy Capodice. Present at the exercises were Msgr. James Horsburg, Msgr. W. R. Griffin, Rev. J. H. Nawn of LaGrange and a large number of friends as well as the parents of the graduates.

The class flower was the tea rose and the motto "Truth Conquers All." The colors chosen by the class were gold and white.

The graduation exercises for Our Lady of Bethlehem academy, LaGrange, an elementary school for girls, conducted in conjunction with Nazareth, were held the same evening. The class flower was the pink rose and the motto "Semper Fidelis." The colors selected by the graduates for their class were emerald green and silver. Following are the members of the graduating class: Esther Averall, Yvonne Birren, Mary Brandt, Marie Charlton, Mercedes Kowske, Adelaide Krasa, Helen Murphy, Olga Santinello, Evelyn Shahen, Esther Weiss and Joan White.

Commodore Barry School Holds Final Assembly

An assembly was held Thursday at the Commodore Barry school, 2828 North Kilbourn avenue, to observe the end of the scholastic year. In view of the fact that the school does not have upper grades there were no graduation exercises. The principal is D. O. Graham.

HAIL WIDENING OF CHICAGO AVE. AS TRADE BOON

Project Gets Final O. K. by Court.

The widening of Chicago avenue between Laramie and Mayfield avenues, a distance of nearly a mile, ushered through the last legal tangle Monday, was hailed by business men of the district last week as an improvement which will change the street from a suburban business area to one of the liveliest shopping centers of the west side.

Proceedings in charge of G. A. Dahlberg, attorney for the board of local improvements, were culminated Monday when the project was confirmed in the County court. The street will be widened to 48 feet and paved by the board at a cost of $134,500, to be paid partly by special assessment and partly by the city as a public benefit. The board will advertise for bids within a month, and paving will start as soon as funds to pay the public benefit are obtained.

Eliminates Bottle Neck.

Former Ald. John P. Garner, as a large property owner on the street, petitioned for the improvement in October, 1927. With his support and that of business men of the section it was approved at a hearing shortly after that.

Mr. Garner, who is chairman of the board of directors of the Laramie State bank, Chicago and Laramie avenues, said yesterday that the improvement will serve to eliminate a bottleneck in that section of Chicago avenue and will greatly facilitate the movement of traffic.

The street is wide both east and west of this section, he pointed out, but its development has been held back because the narrowness of the roadway between Laramie and Mayfield avenues has caused traffic delays and has forced motorists to travel elsewhere.

Predicts Better Business.

"I look to the completion of the improvement for added business both for the bank and for merchants on the street," he said, "as well as a rise in property values and an increase in building activity in the district."

James T. Bushonville, president of the Chicago Avenue Business Men's association, said that the widening of the street between Laramie and Cicero avenues, completed a year ago, has done a good deal to aid business, and widening of the section to the west will help still further.

Furthermore, he continued, congestion caused by the bottleneck at the intersection of Laramie avenue will be eliminated by the new improvement, and will do a good deal to make Chicago avenue more desirable as a shopping center.

Regret Narrowing of Sidewalk.

T. F. Chamberlain, president of the Austin National bank, 5634 West Chicago avenue, said, however, that while widening of the street would permit more parking for shoppers and at the same time permit free movement of traffic, pedestrian passage would be hindered because the sidewalk would be made narrower.

"There is a question as to the advisability of the widening," he said. "I do not believe a sidewalk, seven feet wide, the approximate size of the new walk, is sufficient for a business street. It would be better if buildings were set back and the same width of sidewalk maintained. However, the good features of the widening will offset this, and it is certain that the street will not be made any worse."

F. W. Meier of Meier company, dry goods, 5704 West Chicago avenue, agreed with Mr. Chamberlain that the sidewalk would be made too narrow by the widening, but added that since a large percentage of business on the street is brought by motorists, no hardship will be suffered.

Austin High Leader

Miss Mae Belle Finn and Joe Weber have been elected presidents of the Civic Industrial club, student governing organization at Austin High school. Others chosen at a recent meeting were: Secretaries, Miss Ethel Freeman and Paul Armstrong; and treasurers, Miss Conchita Serra and Ted Fetherston. Class officers at Austin will not be elected until the beginning of the school year in September, although several student clubs and organizations choose their respective governing groups toward the end of the term.

Students at Schurz High to Organize Polish Club

Plans have been made for the organization of a club at Schurz High school to be composed of students of Polish descent. The name, according to the present intention of students interested, will be the Schurz Polish club. The idea was broached to Walter Slocum, principal, prior to the end of the school year, and he gave it his indorsement. In view of the fact that there is a large number of students of Polish descent at the school a membership of about 100 is expected at the time of organization, which will be early next fall.

PLAN TO "SELL" SUPERHIGHWAY TO WEST SIDERS

Park Board to Act Within 2 Weeks.

A campaign for the education of west side voters regarding features of the elevated highway which the west park board desires to construct will be conducted this summer, President Robertson of the board announced in a communication to members of the west park advisory council yesterday.

Plans for the campaign will be discussed at a meeting of the council within two weeks, President Robertson said, since it is desirable to make clear the merits of the project before residents of the district vote in the referendum recently authorizd by act of the Illinois legislature.

The highway, planned for a route to be selected by the Chicago plan commission, may be wider than 50 feet, as originally contemplated, President Robertson indicated. Efforts will be made to obtain part of the Cook county allotment of gasoline tax funds to help bear the cost.

"If this is done," he said, "it will be possible, by using the $20,000,000 of bond issue money plus the additional funds, to make the road wider than the contemplated 50 feet."

Outlines Advantages of Project.

In his letter yesterday, President Robertson gave an outline of some of the advantages of the highway.

"When erected, this highway will separate traffic over seventy-six cross streets between the river and Austin boulevard," he said. "Traffic is now impeded at these intersections, and needless delay is caused as well as great expense to the automobile driver not only in gas consumption but in accidents.

"During the last four years there were 10,000 accidents on the forty miles of boulevards in the west park system, and last year thirty-seven lives were lost. These conditions are rapidly becoming worse.

"Any one who studies this project carefully will be convinced that the elevated highway is the only proper solution of the problem. The cost of this highway will be spread over a twenty year period, and the increase in taxes will be almost negligible compared with the great benefits and development which will follow in the wake of its construction.

"The $20,000,000 spent for this highway will be a fund which will be expended on the west side to give employment to thousands of people who are out of work and to make for general prosperous conditions in the district."

D'Esposito Outlines His Project.

A $100,000,000 thoroughfare from the loop to Garfield park, 500 feet wide and containing separate roadways for slow traffic, rapid traffic, and electric railways was pictured for members of the Garfield Park club last Wednesday by Joshua D'Esposito, consulting engineer who had charge of building the Union depot.

Asked by a member of the club if he meant that this project should take the place of the proposed superhighway of the west park commissioners, Mr. D'Esposito said, "It does not follow that the west side would not need the superhighway. There is no relation, necessarily, between this improvement and the west park project."

The improvement he outlined would redeem the near west side, Mr. D'Esposito believes, would bring about a tremendous increase in property values there, and cause the district to become the center of business activity in Chicago. His estimated cost of $25,000,000 per mile would soon be absorbed by property value increases, he said.

Original Plan Overlooked.

The near west side was originally intended to be the center of the city, he continued, and the Chicago plan developed by the late D. H. Burnham was conceived with this idea in mind. Instead, he pointed out, the plan commission deviated from the plan and concentrated its efforts on developing the lake front.

According to the D'Esposito plan, the thoroughfare would occupy the entire block between Monroe and Adams street, and all property between these two streets from Canal street to Garfield park would be condemned. The existing streets would be maintained at the present level and widened, providing adequate roadways for local traffic.

The center of the strip would be depressed. In the depression would be constructed two roadways for rapid traffic, and in the center four tracks for a subway leading into the loop. The subway and rapid traffic roadway would be carried under the Chicago river in a tunnel and would connect with Wacker drive when extended along the west side of the loop.

North and south intersecting streets would be carried over the depressed roadway on viaducts, and the more important intersections would connect with this roadway by means of ramps. The width of the improvement would permit the planting of lawns along the roads.

Forty-five Children Get Diplomas at Linne School

Forty-five children received diplomas at an assembly held last Thursday at Linne school, 3221 North Sacramento avenue. A feature of the program was a presentation of "Lohengrin." The champion pupils in arithmetic and spelling in both the upper and the lower grades were also announced. In the upper grades Corinne Johnson won first place in arithmetic and Lillian Kolakowski in spelling. In the lower grades the champion pupil in arithmetic was Evelyn Brody, and in spelling Harry Schultz. The principal of the school is Miss Mabel R. Loucks.

Most of the private and parochial schools ended their respective scholastic years earlier in the month.

Prior to commencement a health play, "From Death Valley to Safety Hill," was enacted by about 200 children of the school. Present at the performance was Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, health commissioner of Chicago, who gave a talk on matters pertaining to health.

Eighty-nine pupils were graduated at the recent commencement exercises of St. Viator school, Addison street and Kedvale avenue. The address to the graduates was made by the Rev. James F. Ryan, pastor of St. Viator church. Mary Marnell and Alexis Rudnicki had the highest averages among the members of the class, and perfect attendance records for the year were made by Beatrice Padzerski and Joseph Wickletz.

A few days before commencement two plays, "The Real American Girl" and "A Regular Scream," were presented. The school enrollment last year was 797 pupils. The Rev. Angelo F. Rinella is director of the school and the Sisters of St. Joseph of St. Louis, Mo., are in charge.

Elmhurst Pastor Lectures on Prehistoric Race

An interested audience listened to the Rev. Carl H. Walter, pastor of the English Lutheran church of Elmhurst Wednesday of last week when he presented his illustrated lecture on the prehistoric people of Illinois.

The Rev. Mr. Walter has made a hobby of this study and, together with other archæologists, has explored almost the entire state in search of the evidence of a race which lived here prior to the Indians, some authorities placing it as far back as 5000 B. C.

ABANDON FIGHT AGAINST PAVING MILE ON ASHLAND

Opponents Fear They'll Increase Cost.

Paving of Ashland avenue between Roosevelt road and 22d street by the board of local improvements was assured last week when property owners abandoned a plan to file a petition against the project or oppose its approval in the County court.

The project was approved at a hearing held by the board recently, and work will be started as soon as the legal procedure can be completed. This will probably require all summer, forcing the board to wait until next spring to do the paving.

The decision not to oppose the project was made by S. H. Huizinga and John Bulthouse, property owners who led the opposition previously, and Ald. Frank A. Sloan [26th] following the hearing at which President Michael J. Faherty warned them that they would gain nothing by fighting the project and that the fight would only serve to increase the cost.

Demand Change in Type of Paving.

A petition will be presented to the board within three weeks, however, demanding that the type of pavement specified be changed. Property owners want concrete instead of asphalt as is now provided by the plans.

Mr. Faherty said the improvement has been recommended by the Chicago Plan commission and urged by the city council. As a major improvement of the city which has been pending ten years, he declared, it must not be held up any longer.

In answer to pleas of property owners that they cannot pay the special assessment because they are already too heavily taxed and because their property brings no returns, Mr. Faherty declared that the city must have the improvement, and "we must not worry about the cost."

Cost Estimated at $315,000.

The cost of the paving has been estimated at $315,000. Mr. Faherty promised that the city will bear approximately 40 per cent of this amount as a public benefit. Property owners said, however, that even with this large public benefit, the project will cost $525 for each 25 foot lot.

Arguments made by some that a sewer is needed and that the street should not be paved until it is installed were said by engineers for the board to be without foundation. A sewer is needed for the district, they said, but it will not be constructed in Ashland avenue.

The three rhythm bands of the school were trained by Miss Loretta Murphy, Miss Edith Moore, and Miss Mary Hartnett; the harmonica bands by Mrs. Frances Riedmiller and Miss Loretta Sullivan, the girls' and the boys' glee clubs by Mrs. Ethel Dickson, the orchestra and the four part chorus by Miss Mary Grennan, and the piano classes by Miss Barbara Taylor, Miss Anna Livingston, and Mrs. Rose Robinson.

George Sype is principal of the school.

"My mother! Why my mother is miles away."

"I know, but a letter came this morning [boo hoo] addressed to you. I-i-it was in your mother's handwriting so I opened it."

"O, I see. But where does the insult come in?"

"In the postscript. It s-s-said, 'Dear Alice: Don't forget to give this letter to George.'"

NEW COMMUNITY BUILDING FOR CICERO OPENED

The new Warren-Clyde Community building, 56th avenue and 16th street, Cicero, was officially opened to the public yesterday afternoon. Located on a spacious plot of ground, 226 by 400 feet in size, the building is a handsome addition to the park system of the town. It faces 16th street and is set back to allow for a wide circular ornamental driveway leading from the street to the principal entrance.

The building contains a main hall, entrance loby with men's and women's wardrobes, and a large second floor lounge. The main hall is equipped with a stage and has provision for 100 card tables. In the basement is a kitchen with complete facilities.

The entrance lobby has a rubber tile floor and a beautiful colonial fireplace.

A central area of the circular drive is to be improved later with a monument.

The Clyde Park commission, which erected the building, is made up of the following members: president, Joseph Kral; commissioners, William Cepak, Robert A. Pacl, Edward Stejskal and Frank Novak; treasurer, Joseph A. Sobieski; attorney, Thomas M. Zasadil; and secretary, Edward J. Pacl. Plans for the building were made by A. J. Zelanka and the general contract was awarded to Fred Mraz and son.

PLAN MADISON STREET UNIT OF OAK PARK GROUP

Plans are being formulated for the organization of a Madison street council of the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce, in accordance with the recently adopted arrangement whereby local units are being formed in the various districts of the village to coöperate with the chamber.

The story of the Madison street section of Oak Park is replete with attempts to bring about an active organization of business and professional men to care for the civic, commercial, and promotional requirements of the locality. Efforts to form such an association were sometimes successful, but interest abated and the idea died. When interrogated recently concerning the failure of a Madison street association to survive, leaders said that it was principally because no one individual assumed the responsibility of keeping the organization active.

According to plans now being made the Madison street council will be accorded the office and clerical facilities of the Oak Park chamber to care for all records, notices, and other details of management.

Credit Bureau Lists Nearly 15,000 Names in Oak Park

The number of names now listed with the Oak Park credit bureau is fast approaching the 15,000 mark, according to an announcement made at the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce last week. Business men believe that before the end of the summer vacation period the listing of the names of most of the credit users in the Oak Park trading area will be effected. This would have two beneficial results, officials of the chamber state. Business would be saved from large losses owing to bad accounts, and the honest credit user would be offered lower prices because of this saving. The office of the bureau has requested all credit users to list new accounts entered since they sent in the first complete listing.

RUSH MOVEMENT FOR NEW SEWERS IN SOUTH AUSTIN

Officials Get Petition of 150 Residents.

Desiring to put an end to flooding of basements caused by inadequate sewers, 150 residents of South Austin presented a petition to the board of local improvements Monday requesting a survey of the district for an up to date sewer system. Engineers of the board began work on the survey immediately and plan to rush the work in preparation for a hearing.

The petition was circulated by the Austin Civic and Business association under the leadership of Helmer C. Patterson. Relief is necessary in the district south of Madison street between Central and Laramie avenues, Mr. Patterson said.

Old System Far Outgrown.

Sewerage now serving this thickly populated district is antiquated, he pointed out, since the system was installed twenty-seven years ago when Austin was sparsely settled. It has been estimated that the population is now twenty-five times as large as it was when the sewers were laid.

Three feet of water backs up into basements throughout the district with each heavy rain, Mr. Patterson continued, and a good deal of damage is done to property by the inadequacy of the sewer facilities.

W. H. Mathews, expert of the bureau of sewers, agreed yesterday that the entire section is undersewered and that a new system is badly needed. Rough surveys of sewer conditions throughout the city show that the sewer system of south Austin is among the worst in the city, he said.

Cost Expected to Be Heavy.

The system which would provide the needed relief would be quite costly, Mr. Mathews believes, since the entire district is improved with paved streets which would have to be temporarily torn up to do the construction work. The cost to each property owner would probably be between $8 and $10 a front foot, he estimated.

Mr. Patterson is confident, however, that if the assessments are not exorbitant little opposition will be encountered in his association's efforts to have the project approved at a hearing. Each property owner will carefully consider the cost of the new system as against the damage and inconvenience suffered under present conditions before objecting to the improvement, he said.

Civic Helpers Enetrtained by Herbert Spencer School

The Herbert Spencer school, 214 North LaVergne avenue, gave a luncheon on June 21 for the civic helpers of the school, such as patrol boys, monitors and others. Talks were made by the new head of the P. T. A., Mrs. P. Jones, and the outgoing president, Mrs. John Oros. The principal of the school is Miss Helen M. Richards.

Kiwanis Club Meets.

The weekly luncheon for the West Side Kiwanis club was held Tuesday at the Midwest Athletic club. George Hart, vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Jack Fick.

COUNCIL GROUP REFUSES O. K. ON PINE AVE. ZONING

Ald. Cepak Plans Inquiry Into Petition.

The west side buildings and zoning committee of the city council, headed by Ald. Joseph Cepak [22d], Monday refused to comply with the request of Ald. J. H. Taylor [37th] to report favorably on the proposed rezoning of part of Pine avenue in North Austin.

Ald. Cepak insisted that a thorough investigation into the proposed rezoning must be made, and succeeded in having the committee defer the matter until July 8. Ald. Taylor sought to have the ordinance approved by the committee three weeks ago when it was originally introduced, and again two weeks ago, but owing to a controversy among property owners, the committee ordered the matter continued both times.

Petition Under Scrutiny.

The ordinance would rezone Pine avenue between a line 125 feet south of Chicago avenue and a line 125 north of Huron street from a residence to an apartment classification. A petition in the hands of the committee is said to contain the names of 84 per cent of the property owners, more than the number necessary for passage of the ordinance.

At the first hearing, however, J. M. Gubbins, 725 North Pine avenue, in opposing the zoning change declared that the petition contains the forged name of Dr. Harry V. Shaw, 709 North Pine avenue. He also averred that other property owners had been "bulldozed" into signing.

Although Charles Post, 741 North Pine avenue, leading proponent of the ordinance, produced an affidavit signed by Dr. Shaw stating that his signature was not forged, the charge caused the zoning committee to become wary.

Finds Opponents of Rezoning.

Ald. Cepak, in refusing to permit passage of the ordinance last Monday at the request of Ald. Taylor, said that a cursory investigation has shown eight property owners supporting Mr. Gubbins, and expressed the belief that further interviews with residents of the street would show that a number of others are also opposed to the rezoning. While he did not concur in the belief that some of the signers of the petition had been coerced as Mr. Gubbins charged, he said that each property owner must be interviewed before the subcommittee makes its decision. The full committee usually abides by the decision of the subcommittee in such cases.

One ordinance was approved by the committee at the meeting Monday, and three others, introduced for the first time, were referred to the west side subcommittee.

An ordinance rezoning the south side of Cortland street between Keeler avenue and the alley east of that street from an apartment to a commercial classification was approved at the request of Ald. Eugene L. Nusser [36th].

Three Others Considered.

Ordinances rezoning the following districts were referred to the subcommittee:

The area bounded by Roscoe street, Belmont and Natoma avenues and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, from a commercial to a manufacturing district.

The south side of Augusta street, between Homan avenue and the alley immediately west, from an apartment to a commercial section.

The celebration is to take place at the site of Hobson's mill, two miles south of Naperville on the Joliet road. Four chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Downers Grove, Glen Ellyn, Wheaton, and Naperville, have been instrumental in making plans for the monument.

OLDEST TRIBUNE READER?

Mrs. Mary Smale, 3414 West Monroe street, who has been a subscriber to The Tribune continuously since 1858, believes herself the oldest reader of the World's Greatest Newspaper.

Missed Only in 1871

The oldest reader and continuous subscriber of THE TRIBUNE is how Mrs. Mary Smale, 85 years old, 3414 West Monroe street, proudly describes herself. And not so old but that she intends to read it for many more years.

Mrs. Smale came to Chicago with her parents in 1858, 71 years ago, from Devonshire, England. She traces her reading pedigree through the Democratic Press, which her family started taking as soon as they arrived and which was absorbed by THE TRIBUNE later that same year.

They lived on Randolph street in what is now loop territory then, and her memory goes back to the days when the streets were almost mud swamps and pine boards were laid for sidewalks. When she and her husband, Robert, who died in 1910, moved out to the Monroe street address in 1880, they were outside the city limits and cornfields were all around them.

In those days THE TRIBUNE was brought around to the streets by boys nicknamed "newspaper monkeys," but when the carrier service was inaugurated Mrs. Smale was one of the first to subscribe.

During the Chicago fire, which did not reach out to their home, were the only days, she says, when she didn't get her paper.

The photographer snapped her in a chair almost as old as the number of years she has read THE TRIBUNE. She bought it in 1865 at Tobey's.

RETREAT GIVES NEW FORCE TO UNION WORKERS

Great Classes Formed at Mayslake.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Three years ago Hughie Mulligan, business representative of the Chicago Asbestos Workers union, became interested in the spiritual exercises of the closed retreat, which are conducted twice a week by Franciscan priests at Mayslake, located a short distance from Hinsdale.

HUGHIE MULLIGAN.

The Franciscan retreat house and spacious college are situated on the old Peabody estate of some 350 acres. A shrine, erected by Stuyvesant Peabody, adorns the spot, where the elder Peabody was accidentally killed some years ago.

Mulligan's first organizing endeavor resulted in a class of 250 union asbestos workers. They returned from the Mayslake retreat and enthusiastically began to lay plans for enlarging their second class.

Centered Work on Unions.

Came then Father Patrick Maloney of the Franciscan order to work in the retreat field. He is a Chicago boy, who was born and schooled in the Brighton park district of the city.

Through Mulligan, who is now serving his second term as president of the St. Francis Laymen's Retreat league, Father Maloney focused his activities on the building trades and organized labor in general.

Mulligan's second class totaled 350 retreatants and his 1929 class, which made the annual retreat last week established a record for Mayslake. Four hundred twenty-five asbestos workers and friends made the last pilgrimage to the Franciscan retreat house. They assembled on Friday evening, June 21, in the streets adjoining St. Augustine's church at 51st and Laflin streets.

Eighty automobiles, festooned in American and papel colors, carried the asbestos workers from Chicago to Mayslake. It was escorted by a cordon of motorcycle policemen. Joseph Mullaney, the asbestos workers' international union president, accompanied the members of the Chicago local on the pilgrimage. Likewise did Charles Dalton, the business agent of the Cleveland local of abestos workers, and a delegation of Hammond workers.

The class of asbestos workers was followed by Chicago plumbers, who were organized in a retreat class under direction of Steve Bailey, one of the union's business agents. Large classes were unknown when Mayslake first opened. Eight men would sometimes constitute a retreatant class.

Other Classes Planned.

Bailey's first class comprised ninety plumbers and friends. This year he assembled approximately 225 men to make the retreat. Johnny Murphy of the electricians, No. 134, is at work passing out applications for an electricians' class. John Stretch, Tommy O'Donnell, Tom Healy and Edward Shaughnessy are doing their stuff among the bricklayers.

Martin Durkin is hard at work with the steamfitters and Paddy Cullen of the stone cutters is active in the retreat's interest among labor in general.

Father Maloney has announced he will endeavor to have regular classes of Chicago policemen and firemen at Mayslake retreats. Coöperating along this line are several police captains and Jimmie Murphy, Clem Manning, Jim and John Gavin, Le Roy McHugh, Pearce Butler, and Bob McLaughlin, Chicago's battery of police reporters.

Attending the eucharistic congress in Chicago in 1926, the late Cardinal Bonzano said:

"The annual retreat is to the soul what steam is to the locomotive—the force that carries it straight to its destination."

The Chicago office of the St. Francis Retreat is at 115 West Polk street. The phone number there is Harrison 1028.

ALL-WOOL BLANKET, BOUGHT FOR 98 CENTS, CALLED REAL BARGAIN

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Downers Grove, Ill., June 24.—Some time ago I went to a sale in a nearby dry goods store and was rather aimlessly looking about when I espied a pile of blankets marked at 98 cents. I soon unearthed a fine woolen one, but its color could not be vouched for as it was very badly soiled. However, taking a chance in no way detracts from the lure of bargain hunting. I willingly paid the 98 cents, carried my blanket home and soon had it through a soap flake bath. Presto! When dry, it was a pale pink, satin bound, all-wool blanket. I've told all my friends about my best bargain and now I'm telling the world.

MRS. MARTHA RADELL,

PRIZES A BARGAIN RUG.

Chicago, June 22.—A rug purchased for $10 in this neighborhood three years ago proved to be my best bargain. We had it cleaned a few weeks ago and it looks like new, though it has been in constant use ever since I bought it. No doubt it will still be giving us service three years hence.

MRS. MARGARET KRAUS,
3159 Diversey avenue.

PROFITABLE LINEN PURCHASE.

Chicago, June 23.—I got an unusual bargain in linen at a neighborhood store two years ago. The quality was good, but the shade was a somewhat unusual one in rose which may account for the material reduction in price. I purchased ten yards of this linen at 10 cents a yard. With a little hand embroidery it lent itself beautifully to the making of drapes for the three windows in my bedroom. Recently I sold my bargain drapes for $6 to the woman who rented the apartment when we moved.

MRS. HARRIET FLOECK,

W-G-N INSTALLS GIANT ORGAN IN ITS NEW STUDIOS

To Be Used in Programs with Goldkette's Band.

A giant organ, especially designed for W-G-N and Jean Goldkette's W-G-N Dance Orchestra, has been installed in THE TRIBUNE'S Drake Hotel station, and, after extensive tests, now awaits the completion of W-G-N's new studio, Henry Selinger, program director, announced yesterday.

Through the use of the organ with Goldkette's band new musical effects, never before obtained by any radio station, will be heard daily from W-G-N.

Worked Into Programs.

"The organ will not be merely an instrument playing simultaneously with the dance band," Mr. Selinger said. "It will be carefully worked into the score of every selection; it will be as much a part of the band as the trumpets or the saxophones.

"For two years we have been waiting for an instrument that would exactly fit into the W-G-N plan of orchestra and organ in combination. Jean Goldkette himself has found this one satisfactory, and we are now preparing programs which will take the fullest advantage of its almost limitless potentialities of tone-color and arrangement. With the introduction of the organ the dance band will take on an entirely new character."

Mr. Selinger also emphasized the fact that, while designed primarily for use with the band, the new organ has solo possibilities equalling those of any theater organ. W-G-N plans to bring nationally famous organists to Chicago for radio concerts.

Four New Studios.

Radio listeners will hear the organ when W-G-N's four new studios, which are being built upon the experience gained in five years of broadcasting, are completed.

The new studios break entirely from the old tradition of broadcasting plants. Formerly a radio studio was as "close" as possible. Every sound vibration was eliminated; ventilation was sacrificed to insulation; heavy drapes were hung to absorb sound.

W-G-N engineers have found that a more "open" arrangement improves the quality of broadcasting. Ceilings will be twenty feet higher than they were. Walls and floors have been constructed with special regard for their acoustical qualities. They will give W-G-N broadcasts a new vibrancy and resonance.

BY QUINN RYAN.

Ten years ago next Thursday, on the Fourth of July, 1919, Jess Willard, the heavyweight champion of the world, the conqueror of Jack Johnson, was facing Jack Dempsey, his twenty-four year old challenger, at Toledo, O., before the greatest crowd that had ever seen a prize fight up to that time. Let us imagine you are hearing it over the radio:

ANNOUNCER: Well, the great Fourth of July has come at last. We are broadcasting to you direct from the Bayview Park arena in Toledo. The mercury is up around 97, and there are 70,000 sweltering fans assembled here this afternoon for Tex Rickard's biggest show. The preliminaries are all over, the fighters have their instructions and Referee Ollie Pecord has dropped back to one corner of the ring. The sun glares down on the white canvas floor with intense heat. There's the whistle. Seconds out! [Gong.]

There's the gong! The big fight is on! Both men are coming out of their corners and approaching the center of the ring! Hands up, and they're sparring cautiously, getting the measure of each other! Willard is sticking out those long arms like a pair of feelers, and Dempsey is crouched below him! Oooh! There's the first one! Willard shoved out his left straight at Dempsey's face, but the sunburned boy just stepped away. He's forcing Jess to do the leading! If Willard wants to win this fight he must go out and get it! Ummh! Jess weaved out another left hand blow that barely grazed Dempsey's face. Dempsey is backing up! Now they're mixing it! Dempsey missed a swing and now he's gone into a clinch. It looks like David and Goliath there in the ring, with the shorter challenger's arms wrapped around the big Kansan.

Jess has backed up a bit to pull himself together! Now again Dempsey is coming in crouching, his body swaying from side to side! A wary eye is watching for that long Willard left! Now Jess uncorks it—a pretty tap right on Dempsey's mouth—but it didn't stop the challenger! He's coming right in, swaying, weaving, moving slowly, looking for an opening! There's another one. Jess smashed a straight left for Dempsey's eye.

Dempsey is creeping in! He's like a great cat, moving forward slowly, surely, slyly! Willard trys another left—Dempsey is under it—it didn't touch him, and— Gosh! A right on the jaw! A left to the same spot—Willard is down! The champion is on the mat! A left and a right flush on the jaw and Willard is on the mat for the first time in his ring career! Now Referee Pecord is counting—two—three, four—five—six—seven. Willard is getting to his feet slowly. Now he's on his feet. Now Dempsey tears in and lands another and Willard is on the mat again, and there's blood streaming from his mouth. Dempsey has knocked him down again, and once again Referee Ollie Pecord is standing over him and counting. Once more Willard starts slowly to his feet! The blood drips from his mouth as he slowly lifts that 240 pound body to its feet. Dempsey is waiting, fist poised! Willard is up. His arms hang weakly at his side! He's turning away from Dempsey, seeking the ropes. Ooooh! Two rights! Dempsey laced a pair of rights straight to the champion's jaw and Willard is down again. That is the third time this round that Challenger Jack Dempsey has sent the champion to the floor of the ring! The claret oozes from Willard's mouth!

Willard is getting to his feet—slowly—slowly—the vitality is slipping from that vast frame! Dempsey with a barrage of lefts and rights is crowding him into a neutral corner—now a left and a right to the face—Willard is down again! The whole right side of his face is cut and bleeding. Now there are cries of "Stop it! Stop it!" from the spectators. They know that it can't go on. Willard is a beaten man now. Pecord is counting his death knell. Once again he starts for his feet. His knees and hands leave the canvas—he stands there before Dempsey, a beaten thing and a rain of body blows—right, left, right, left—sends him to the mat again!

Willard is getting up once more, a bloody, beaten hulk, no longer able to defend himself. Dempsey, throwing caution to the winds, is crowding in once more. He has promised to knock out Willard in the first round! Looks as though he's going to do it! He's driving home punch after punch! Willard slips against the ropes, he's on the mat again—sitting down—staring about him in a daze. Dempsey is walking away from him as Referee Ollie Pecord tolls out the fatal second—three, four, five, six, seven—the battle's over and in the first round. The crowd is making such a tremendous noise we can't hear the referee! His arm swings down for the last time—Dempsey starts from the ring—the fight is over! No, there's Jimmie De Forrest pulling him back.

The bell has saved Willard. It ended the round before Pecord had finished counting! The champion is still the champion for a little while, at least.

Never has a heavyweight championship fight started in quite that way. The champion of the world knocked down seven times in one round, or was it six? There's the whistle! Seconds out of the ring! [Gong].

Round two! Dempsey is coming up to scratch like a whirlwind. There'll be no stopping him now. Willard is just a shell; he hasn't got a defense for this sunburnt boy who means to take the championship from him. O! Jack has opened a cut under Willard's right eye! Blood's streaming from the wound! Dempsey is pounding home blow after blow! Left and right, left and right. Willard is trying with his left—he's game—but he can't stop Dempsey—the youngster is battering him all over the ring at will. Dempsey is driving body blows home time after time. He just sent in a hard punch to the heart and Willard has fallen outside the ropes—now he's slowly clambering back—the crowd is on its feet! The end may come at any moment—now Willard is rushing into a clinch—he's holding on—he can't fight—Dempsey has knocked all the fight out of him. The crowd is hollering madly for the knockout and Dempsey is trying hard to land that finisher. Now he's torn out of Willard's weak grasp, and he's measuring the champion with punch after punch. Willard tried to stab a left to Dempsey's face and another and another, but there's no force to his blows. Dempsey is pounding him at will. Punch after punch. Willard's face is swollen out of shape! Dempsey continues with lefts and rights and Willard stumbles around the ring—[Gong].

That's all! That's the end of the second round, and Willard is still on his feet, but it's only a question of time now. Dempsey is entirely unmarked as he sits there in his corner, but Willard is a shocking spectacle. His head and chest are a mass of blood and one side of his face is swollen and pummelled entirely out of shape. There's the whistle! Time out for seconds! Only thirty seconds to the gong! [Gong!] There it is!

Round three! Williard staggers out to the center of the ring, and Dempsey comes out of his corner like a rocket and continues the battery of blows that are about to take the championship from Williard. Willard isn't even defending himself! He is staggering around the ring and Dempsey is rushing after him, sending home blow after blow. Willard's mouth is hanging open. He's a beaten man. Only the tremendous vitality of that great body is keeping him on his feet! The crowd is shouting to Ollie Pecord to stop it. The big fellow is staggering along the ropes and Dempsey is following him relentlessly, slugging, slugging, slugging, waiting for him to drop. Willard is holding on to the ropes, while Dempsey rains blow after blow on his head and body. Now—[Gong]. There's the gong!

Well, that the end of round three, ladies and gentlemen! The scrap is almost over! Jess can't last through another round. He's slumped in his corner now. Dempsey is unmarked! What a beating Willard has taken! Now Monogham, his second, is whispering in his ear—words of encouragement, I suppose—but Jess can't go much longer. Monoghan is still talking to Jess. Now he's walking over and talking to Referee Pecord. Now Ollie comes over to Jack Dempsey's corner and grabs him by the arm—and—Willard has tossed in the towel. Jack Dempsey is champion of the world! Ollie has him in the center of the ring and he's raising his arm in token of victory. The fight is over!

LOSES RHYTHM ON RADIO.

Complaint comes from Los Angeles that a jazz orchestra arriving there had lost its dancing rhythm through its playing so much over the radio and that local dancers were having trouble keeping in step with the music.

REVOLUTIONARY SONGS FROM W-G-N ON 4TH OF JULY

Songs of the revolutionary soldiers, popular one hundred and fifty years ago, are part of the special Independence day program of W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station, this year.

The program, which will begin at 8:30, will include tunes that both the red coats and the Continentals hummed as they marched over colonial roads. Among them is one that was played by fifes at the hanging of Maj. Andre, collaborator with Benedict Arnold in his attempt to betray Washington's army.

Henry Selinger, program director, also promises an appropriate "Musical Mosaics" program, a regular Thursday feature for Independence day, with extracts from the compositions of Francis Hopkinson, early American composer, arranged for modern presentation by Alfred G. Wathall.

ADVENTURERS TO TELL STORIES OF RADIO NETWORKS

Two of the world's best known adventurers and story tellers will relate their experiences in all parts of the globe in two series of programs which will be inaugurated by the National Broadcasting company soon.

Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent, novelist, and world wanderer, will be presented in a series which will have its première Monday night, July 8, at 11:30 o'clock, Chicago time. A NBC network will broadcast the programs featuring the war correspondent.

Edward "Tex" O'Reilly, a real soldier of fortune who has taken an active part in nine revolutions or campaigns in seven foreign countries, will be the main character in a series to be called "The Soldier of Fortune." This series will have its initial broadcast Saturday night, July 13, and will be heard each Saturday night thereafter from 8 to 8:15 p. m., Chicago time.

Working under Gaston du Moulin with precision and with verve, they bring out every happy tonal possibility in their selections. And Herbert Johnson, who with him shares a half hour this evening, is one of the finest pianists on the air, endowed with a polished and refined technic from which he derives great power. 8:45.

HONOR MYERS ON ANNIVERSARY OF PASTORATE

Oldtimers Go Back to Church Today.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

The eldest minister in Chicago in point of service in his pastorate, but the youngest in point of view, is Dr. Johnston Myers, whose congregation at Immanuel Baptist church, 23d street and Michigan avenue, will celebrate today his thirty-fourth year as pastor of the church.

DR. JOHNSTON MYERS. [Kaufmann & Fabry.]

When Dr. Myers came to Chicago in 1895, automobiles, airplanes, and radios were unheard of, telephones were a luxury, and the district where the Immanuel Baptist stands was the city's gold coast, whereas now it is automobile row skirted by a boarding house district.

His church is one of the two out of the seven then situated there that stuck it out when their congregations left. He suited his church to the parish and started building to his ideal church, one of service instead of sermons.

2,000,000 Meals Served.

More than two million meals have been served to the hungry of the city through his now famous bread line in a constant thirty-four year stream and beds were found for the homeless and jobs for the unemployed.

Not the least of the work he has set for himself is helping people with their problems, complex or simple, and giving a word of friendliness here and encouragement there.

Along these lines is his vision of the church of today—and tomorrow.

"We have too much preaching," he said, "and not enough practice. The church must be a place of service, service in all lines, help to the poor, the unemployed, the sick in body and in spirit. People are no longer interested in sermons. But they would be interested in helping others. And there are many to be helped.

"Christianity is far simpler than sermonizing and listening to sermons. There is much to be done and many people who would like to help if they knew where they best could."

Built Up Cincinnati Church.

Although Dr. Myers has been here 34 years he had already built up a church in another city—the Ninth Street Baptist church in Cincinnati, where he started the breadline idea and established the Ninth street system of missions all around the city. He was helped there by William C. Procter, soap manufacturer.

In Chicago many different persons have taken over the financial burden of a church like his in the last years, a number of them graduates of his breadline college. Members of almost every profession have been in it, bankers and publishers, contractors, and even ministers.

But the work that one church of that sort can do is limited, he says, by its financial backing and by the largeness of the city.

Old Timers to Participate.

Tonight a number of old timers who knew the church in its early days will talk at a meeting of the congregation. Among them are the Rev. W. F. Ferguson, Frank Sedgewick, J. G. Elsdon, and John Nuveens. The Imperial Quartet, which got its start at Immanuel in the old days, will be on hand, and Clara Louise Thurston, the harpist when the church had a gold coast congregation, will play once again.

For years the church has been seeking an assistant for Dr. Myers, some one to help him with the work, but the search has been long and as yet fruitless. The divinity schools of the country have been scoured, but the right man is yet to be found. Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago divinity school wrote in answer to a request, "We aren't graduating any more Johnston Myerses."

400 WILL ATTEND EPWORTH LEAGUE SUMMER SCHOOL

Approximately 400 young people of Chicago Methodist churches will attend the Epworth League institute which will be held this year at Conference Point, near Lake Geneva, Wis., from Monday, July 8, to Saturday, July 14, it was disclosed yesterday.

This vacation period, which will be divided between a study of literature and life and healthful recreation, is made possible by its patron, Gordon Humphrey, and a group of Methodist clergymen interested in providing a worth while time for the young parishioners. Mr. Murphy is a prominent Chicago attorney. The Rev. C. A. Bloomquist, pastor of the church, will act as dean.

The morning periods will be devoted to the study of the many phases of the Bible, both old and modern, and Epworth league methods. The Methodist pastors who will aid in this work are the following: The Rev. Morgan Williams of St. John's church, the Rev. W. F. Osborn of the Mayfair church, the Rev. Mr. Case of the North Shore church, and the Rev. Charles R. Golf of the Euclid Avenue church. Music will be under the direction of Oscar Gustafson of Gary. Sports, which will include baseball, volley ball, tennis, bathing, swimming, horse shoes, and croquet, will be supervised by the Rev. C. H. Newham of La Grange.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

"DEAR FRIEND: You will find inclosed tickets for an indoor fête to be held Saturday night, July 13, in the new mezzanine ballrooms of the Chicago Beach hotel. We promise you a delightful evening. There will be theatrical numbers, dancing, keno, and refreshments, all for the modest sum of $1 per ticket. The proceeds will be given to institutions which care for sick and crippled children and provide summer camps and outings." The letter is from Mrs. Ronald F. Brunswick, wife of the owner of the Chicago Beach, who, with other prominent women, sponsors this annual benefit performance—the biggest dollar's worth of entertainment we've ever enjoyed. Last year $1,200 was realized, and, incidentally, THE TRIBUNE free ice fund received $100. It's a show we wouldn't miss, and, as Mrs. Brunswick's letter concludes, "each ticket will bring 100 cents worth of unalloyed joy and happiness to some mother's unfortunate baby." Let's go!

Maybe we're wrong, but it looks as if Edward C. Zimmerman exposed himself too recklessly to that California climate. It settled in his tonsils and now he's in Michael Reese hospital. Zimmie is our well and favorably known bank equipment magnate and the best cornet tooter on the south side. He plays with the Medinah Temple brass band, which went to Los Angeles for the 55th annual session of the shrine. Well, Zimmie, you have our prayers for a speedy recovery, and let's not forget to return thanks that the California climate didn't settle on the brain. They say it's worse than water.

J. ERIC THOMPSON, that handsome young Englishman at the Field museum, is just back from Yucatan, the famous chewing gum country in Mexico; Guatemala, in Central America, and British Honduras. He spent several months searching for evidence of the early Mayan empire civilization. He found a quantity of human teeth which had been filled with iron pyrites. His conclusion is that the Mayans practiced dentistry, but whether for repairs or ornament he cannot say. Eric, of course, is a Hyde Parker.

Helen Israel writes that she "scanned and scanned your section last Sunday in the hope of finding an item of interest to me, but I just couldn't find it. Would you please, please, please have it in next SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE?" Here it is, Helen: Mr. and Mrs. Max H. Israel of 5237 Drexel boulevard will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversay today at the Cooper-Carleton. There will be a family dinner at 7 p. m. and a reception afterwards.

DEMAND BRIGHT LIGHTS TO ROUT HALSTED GLOOM

Englewood Business Men Open Drive.

Bright lights are scheduled to drive the gloom from South Halsted street. Four south side aldermen announced last week their intention of supporting local organizations in a campaign for improved lighting facilities on Halsted from Garfield boulevard to 79th street. In the same week Leonard Fish, who was recently installed as president of the Englewood Business Men's association, announced that the lighting project would be the principal objective of the organization during the next year.

LEONARD FISH.

Other officers installed at a meeting last week were: Treasurer, Arthur Rathje, secretary of the Chicago City bank, 6223 Halsted street; secretary, Ald. Walter W. Morris [18th]; vice president, Julius Cohen; and directors, L. C. Smith and Harry Levinson.

The aldermen who are supporting the movement for better lights on Halsted street are: Terence F. Moran [16th], James G. Coyle [17th], Walter W. Morris [18th], and O. E. Northrup [19th]. These aldermen all agree that inadequacy of the present lighting system causes many motor accidents and is one of the reasons for numerous burglaries and holdups on the street.

Ask Better Lights in Home Areas.

Mr. Fish declared that the members of his organization would not only support the aldermen in their campaign for better lights on Halsted street, but that they would also ask that the residential streets of the section be better lighted to decrease the number of holdups and motor accidents in the neighborhood.

He pointed out that the members of the organization had been discussing plans for better lights on Halsted street for some time and that a committee which is working on the project of the new lighting system will be ready to report in the early future.

If the organization is successful in gaining its objectives, Halsted street will soon boast of a system of 1,000 candlepower lamps installed on every other trolley pole. This system would provide each block with six huge lights. The present lighting system, according to Francis Donnelly, chief engineer for city department of electricity, provides each block with four 600 candlepower lamps.

Lights Often Out of Repair.

Mr. Donnelly pointed out that not only have the residents of the section tolerated the inadequate lighting system for some time past, but that the lamps have often been damaged and left unrepaired for days, throwing large sections of the street into darkness after 11 o'clock each night when the privately owned street lamps are turned out.

Ald. Morris quoted Lieut. James Day, acting captain of the Gresham police station, as having declared a powerful street light is worth a policeman.

The aldermen have not decided yet how the money will be raised to pay for the new lighting system. However they hope to devise a feasible plan so that when they enter their plea for better lights in the city council next fall they will offer at the same time a plan of paying for them.

Mr. Fish announced that the members of his organization will continue to work for better lights in the district, would also seek to get more adequate police protection, and to push the opening of Union avenue and the elevation of the Pennsylvania railroad tracks throughout the Englewood territory.

Mr. Fish said the organization is forming plans to induce the business men in the territory to employ private watchmen.

ACTION IS ASKED BY SOUTH SIDE ON BOULEVARD

Delay of Eighteen Months Is Pointed Out.

Two letters, one from the members of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce and the other from the Greater South Side Chamber of Commerce, were sent to Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, last week asking the park commission to explain the delay in completing the system of streets, which will comprise the contemplated Southeastern boulevard.

The proposed route, which will enable motorists to travel from Michigan avenue to the Indiana state line on one of the finest boulevard systems in the country, will start at Jackson park and will run on Jeffery avenue, 92d street, Anthony avenue, Escanaba avenue, 100th street, Avenue L, and 112th street to the state line.

Nothing Done in 18 Months.

The south park board, said the letter from H. H. Haylett, managing vice president of the Greater South Side Chamber of Commerce, more than 18 months ago accepted the streets from the city to construct the contemplated boulevard.

The letter stated that the city had taken every necessary action to give the park board these streets and that the park commission had performed every legal act required to gain control of these streets.

Mr. Haylett pointed out that undoubtedly the system of streets may be called a legal boulevard but physically nothing has been done to make it an actual boulevard. It is still a hit and miss heavy trucking route.

Asks Temporary Repairs.

"Is it not possible for the south park board to put the Southeastern boulevard into proper temporary service at once when, as I have understood you have said that this could be accomplished by a meager expenditure of four or five thousand dollars," the letter reads. "The property owners along the proposed route have already evidenced their willingness to stand a special assessment, if necessary, in order to obtain the more permanent boulevard improvement which can be provided in the due course of time."

Call Streets Orphans.

The streets involved in the proposed route appear to be orphans, asserts the letter from the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce, which was signed by Charles A. Rubey, president, and Walter Tredup, chairman of the organization's committee on good roads and improvements.

The letter declared that the city had relinquished jurisdiction but the park board has not assumed jurisdiction despite formal acceptance more than 18 months ago. No governmental agency is looking after the route and no one is cleaning it. These streets are probably the dirtiest in all Chicago, and pavements which have been opened by public utility corporations are never properly repaired, the letter said.

Detriment to Business.

"These neglected and abandoned streets," the letter continued, "so far as governmental control, care and supervision is concerned, are a detriment to the business of the members of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce. Our membership cannot understand, with the information available, why these streets remain orphans."

RETREAT GIVES NEW FORCE TO UNION WORKERS

Great Classes Formed at Mayslake.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Three years ago Hughie Mulligan, business representative of the Chicago Asbestos Workers union, became interested in the spiritual exercises of the closed retreat, which are conducted twice a week by Franciscan priests at Mayslake, located a short distance from Hinsdale.

HUGHIE MULLIGAN.

The Franciscan retreat house and spacious college are situated on the old Peabody estate of some 850 acres. A shrine, erected by Stuyvesant Peabody, adorns the spot, where the elder Peabody was accidentally killed some years ago.

Mulligan's first organizing endeavor resulted in a class of 250 union asbestos workers. They returned from the Mayslake retreat and enthusiastically began to lay plans for enlarging their second class.

Centered Work on Unions.

Came then Father Patrick Maloney of the Franciscan order to work in the retreat field. He is a Chicago boy, who was born and schooled in the Brighton park district of the city.

Through Mulligan, who is now serving his second term as president of the St. Francis Laymen's Retreat league, Father Maloney focused his activities on the building trades and organized labor in general.

Mulligan's second class totaled 350 retreatants and his 1929 class, which made the annual retreat last week established a record for Mayslake. Four hundred twenty-five asbestos workers and friends made the last pilgrimage to the Franciscan retreat house. They assembled on Friday evening, June 21, in the streets adjoining St. Augustine's church at 51st and Laflin streets.

Eighty Autos Carry Crowd.

Eighty automobiles, festooned in American and papal colors, carried the asbestos workers from Chicago to Mayslake. It was escorted by a cordon of motorcycle policemen. Joseph Mullaney, the asbestos workers' international union president, accompanied the members of the Chicago local on the pilgrimage. Likewise did Charles Dalton, the business agent of the Cleveland local of abestos workers, and a delegation of Hammond workers.

The class of asbestos workers was followed by Chicago plumbers, who were organized in a retreat class under direction of Steve Bailey, one of the union's business agents. Large classes were unknown when Mayslake first opened. Eight men would sometimes constitute a retreatant class.

Bailey's first class comprised ninety plumbers and friends. This year he assembled approximately 225 men to make the retreat. Johnny Murphy of the electricians, No. 134, is at work passing out applications for an electricians' class. John Stretch, Tommy O'Donnell, Tom Healy and Edward Shaughnessy are doing their stuff among the bricklayers.

Other Classes Planned.

Martin Durkin is hard at work with the steamfitters and Paddy Cullen of the stone cutters is active in the retreat's interest among labor in general.

Father Maloney has announced he will endeavor to have regular classes of Chicago policemen and firemen at Mayslake retreats. Coöperating along this line are several police captains and Jimmie Murphy, Clem Manning, Jim and John Gavin, Le Roy McHugh, Pearce Butler, and Bob McLaughlin, Chicago's battery of police reporters.

Attending the eucharistic congress in Chicago in 1926, the late Cardinal Bonzano said:

"The annual retreat is to the soul what steam is to the locomotive—the force that carries it straight to its destination."

Prof. Robert Morss Lovett of the University of Chicago made the commencement address to graduating students of Chicago Normal college, 6800 Stewart avenue, at the annual exercises held Friday morning in the college auditorium. SCHOOL OF 1849; BUILT FOR DUTCH, TO BE WRECKED

An old schoolhouse at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and East 103d street will be torn down soon, according to the board of education, which has announced it will lease the property to the highest bidder. It is expected that a store and office building will be erected on the site.

This school, which is one of old landmarks of the Pullman district, was built in 1849 to enable the children of the Dutch settlers to learn their letters.

Several other old landmarks of original town of Pullman, embracing the sections known as Pullman, Roseland and Kensington, have disappeared, the most recent one being the Arcade building.

ARCHER AVENUE HONORS MAN WHO BUILT IT IN 1836

Follows Line of Plank Road Through Hardscrabble.

BY ELEANORE GRAFF.

This is the third of a series of articles explaining the origin of the names of streets, districts, and suburbs of the south side.

Spreading out in all directions like spokes of a giant wheel with the loop as a hub, a number of old roads have played an important rôle in the growth and development of Chicago. Not the least among these is the present Archer avenue, beginning at 19th and State streets, following the sanitary canal to the western city limits near Summit, and continuing along the Des Plaines river to Lockport, Joliet, and Ottawa. From Lockport to Ottawa it forms one branch of the old Ottawa road.

Back as early as 1673 the French explorers, Joliet and Marquette, are known to have followed the Indian trail along the Des Plaines to Chicago. More than a hundred years later, in 1831, it became the first white man's highway in the county by an ordinance passed by the Cook county commissioners. However, it was in 1836 that the Archer road was formally laid out by Gen. W. B. Archer, a member of the Michigan-Illinois canal commission, and was accordingly named for him.

Led to Archer's Home.

Although it was a project ostensibly to aid the canal which it follows most of the way, it is an interesting fact that the road was continued to Lockport, where Gen. Archer's home was located. The cost of building the road was $40,000, a large sum of money in those days.

A few years later Archer avenue became outstandingly important to the future of Chicago. The stockyards were moved to their present location and Archer avenue became the most important entrance to this district from the south and the only convenient entrance from the north. Thus it is not strange that one of the first horse car lines was built on Archer avenue from the loop to the stockyards district and that from the stockyards to the road was laid with planks for sixteen miles southwestward.

The plank road craze hit Chicago in the late 1840's. The idea was originated in New York state, and pioneers coming to Chicago inaugurated the plan here. Early settlers were troubled with the condition of the roads then existing. Following thaws and during rainy seasons the roads would become so muddy that often small settlements would be stranded for several weeks with no provisions from the outside.

Tribune Hailed Improvement.

Thus the plank roads were adopted hopefully and an early editorial writer for THE TRIBUNE prophesied that Archer avenue would cause Chicago to become the central livestock market of the country, inasmuch as neighboring farmers could now safely drive their stock to market in all seasons, along the planks of Archer avenue and Archer road.

This editorial writer proved to be a true prophet, but the cattle now arrive at the stockyards in freight cars drawn over steel rails, and the plank era in Chicago ended as suddenly as it begun. Builders of the roads tried in vain to find a method by which the ground beneath the planks could be kept dry, and when water gathered under the wooden roads, the planks rotted.

In the early days of the beginnings and struggles of Archer avenue, it was thinly settled for the first mile out from the central business district of downtown Chicago. Then came clusters of large, low structures, all of which were either slaughter or packing houses, with a glue factory thrown in here and there. Then, save for a fringe of structures, Archer avenue was just a road through unsettled marshland known to the old settlers as Hardscrabble.

Important Traffic Route.

From that day to this there have grown up along Archer avenue settlements, villages and towns, many of which have become part of the vast metropolis of Chicago. Cutting diagonally across the southwest section of the city through the stockyards district, McKinley park, Elsdon and West Chicago Lawn to Summit, it provides a direct outlet to the loop for both motorists and those who travel by street car. For the original short horse-car line has grown into one of the longest carlines in the city, extending from the loop to Archer and Narragansett avenues.

And if Archer avenue has not attained fame through its close connection with the history and growth of Chicago, it will always be a familiar name, at least, to the fans of Peter Finley Dunne, who have followed his comic character, Mr. Dooley, who ran a saloon on Archer avenue.

BARGAIN HUNTER BUYS COWHIDE BRIEF CASE FOR HALF A DOLLAR

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, June 23.—About two weeks ago I purchased a genuine black cowhide brief case for 50 cents at one of our neighboring stores. It was so greatly reduced in price because of the fact that one strap was missing and it was badly shop worn. A shoemaker replaced the strap for 15 cents, however, and I had little trouble cleaning the leather myself. I have carried this case every day since and will probably carry it for several years to come. It is a bag which is well worth $5 and has been much admired because of its unique clasp.

L. C. LIVINGSTON,
7926 Vernon avenue.

Found on Remnant Counter.

Chicago, June 25.—I found my best bargain tucked away on a neighborhood remnant counter recently. It was a half yard of fine white flannel and I purchased it for 25 cents. It was slightly soiled on one side, but that was turned inside and I made myself the nicest beret!

MRS. CLARENCE STAAT,
10409 South Park avenue.

69 Cent Waffle Iron.

Chicago, June 23.—My pet bargain is an electric waffle iron that I bought in this neighborhood for 69 cents. We have used it almost every day for two years and it is still in good condition.

Hear Lecture on Gas.

Members of the East Hamilton Park Home Owners' association will hear an illustrated lecture on the Peoples Gas Light & Coke company at a meeting of the organization tomorrow evening at 7355 Vincennes avenue. George Beck, 30 West 70th street, president, will be chairman at the meeting.

CALVARY CHURCH DEDICATES FIRST UNIT OF BUILDING

The first unit of the new Calvary Evangelical Lutheran church, 62d street and Kenneth avenue, was dedicated last Sunday as the culmination of a week's festivities.

It is fifteen years since the small, struggling mission first tried to gain a foothold in the West Lawn community and six years since the congregation was organised with 25 charter members and the church established as the Calvary Lutheran church.

Under the leadership of the early pastors, the Rev. Carl G. Okerbloom and the Rev. Gilbert Bengtson, who served in the West Lawn Community mission, and the Rev. J. H. Gregg, who has been pastor of the church since 1924, it has developed and grown until now it is one of the largest and strongest churches and the foremost Lutheran church in West Lawn.

Holds Special Events.

The week's dedication program included a banquet Tuesday night given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society; a special program at the meeting of the Brotherhood and Business Men's night Wednesday evening; a special meeting of the Luther league at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, with the Rev. P. N. Sjogren, synodical Luther league secretary, as speaker, and a sacred concert by the choir Friday night.

The dedication services proper were held at 3 o'clock, although both the morning and evening services were part of the complete program.

Officers of the church are the Rev. J. H. Gregg, pastor; Mrs. J. H. Gregg, organist; Mrs. J. M. Rogers, assistant organist; G. A. Berg, secretary of the congregation; Mrs. E. G. Hedberg, Sunday school superintendent, and Mrs. George Kasang, assistant superintendent. The board of administration, which also constitutes the building committee, includes G. A. Berg, C. J. Hadley, C. M. Becker, Olof Johnson, Ben Bolin, Adolph Kliner, and C. O. Nelson.

Built for Expansion.

The new church, which is in Gothic style with a brick and stone trim, was planned by Malmquist & Thompson, architects. Erickson-Christianson were the general contractors. The building has been planned as the first unit of a larger structure and so built that it can be easily enlarged.

It is a two story and ground floor structure with a seven room parsonage on two floors.

Foot racing, ball games and a treasure hunt are planned for the children of members who attend. Trucks will leave Western avenue and 51st street at 11 and 1 o'clock and others will go by automobile and street car. The day will be topped off with a spaghetti dinner at 4 o'clock. On the committee are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Casey, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Casey and Mr. and Mrs. George Clark. Reservations may be made at the post headquarters, 11 Dexter Park avenue.

South Central post, No. 494, will hold an Independence day celebration next Thursday in Hardin Square park, Wentworth avenue and 26th street. As well as patriotic events there will be a decorated doll buggy parade, pie eating and watermelon contests, a tug of war and races for men and women, girls and boys. Al H. Cohan, past commander of the post, is chairman.

Post No. 691, Midlothian, Ill., is planning a frolic and barn dance to be held Aug. 25 in Clark barn, 147th street and Cicero avenue. All Cook county Legionnaires are invited to attend. Reservations should be addressed to A. G. Wirtz, commander, or E. Sidell, adjutant, at Midlothian at an early date.

Woodlawn post, No. 175, has set aside its meeting night tomorrow in the post headquarters at 1208 East 63d street as Shillinglaw night for David Shillinglaw, state commander. A special program has been arranged.

Col. Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, will make his first north shore appearance at the summer jubilee of the seventh district, to be held in Rogers Park with the Rogers Park post as host. Howard P. Savage, past commander, and David L. Shillinglaw, state commander, will also be guests. The committee in charge includes Lisle Hart of North Shore post; William G. Knox of Rogers Park post; W. C. Bechtold, Evanston; George Sugarman, Rogers Park; and Harry T. Johnson, Evanston.

Four posts of the legion will use the Forty and Eight chalet, 95th street and Archer avenue, next month for picnics and entertainments. Chicago Stockyards post, No. 333, and friends of members are holding a dinner and entertainment there today. On consecutive Sundays during July, West Suburban post, No. 692, Medill Tribune post, No. 348, and Maywood post, No. 133, will hold picnics. Several dates are available in August for legion posts, and Chef de Guerre Elmer Taylor requests that all applications be delivered to him in writing at the American Legion office, room [illegible], 160 North La Salle street.

The summer carnival of Ravenswood post, No. 149, opened yesterday with a parade of the drum and bugle corps to the carnival grounds of Lawrence avenue, just west of Western avenue. Post Commander Joseph Bernhard is supervising the affair, which will continue until next Saturday, to raise funds to send the post's drum and bugle corps to the Legion state convention at Rock Island next September. Harry A. Sewell, drum corps commander, announces that the corps will turn out for any community activity if he is notified in advance.

Fidac, the interallied veterans' organization, announces that a prize of [illegible] for the design of an international medal has been awarded to Miss [illegible] Doift of the Lorado Taft studios in Chicago. For more than a year hundreds of contestants have been working on designs for this medal, which Fidac will award annually to educational institutions whose courses of study have done more to promote a better knowledge of international affairs. The jury which made the award at the Paris headquarters of Fidac included nine leading sculptors, painters, and architects from the allied countries. Paul McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, and David L. Shillinglaw, state commander, presented the prize to Miss Doift on behalf of Fidac.

CHILD CRIPPLES HEAR M'GOORTY AT GRADUATION

Judge John P. McGoorty gave the commencement address Thursday afternoon for graduates of the Christopher school for crippled children at 51st street and Artesian avenue. Diplomas were presented by Miss Anna Henry, principal of the school.

Three girls were graduated from the high school class, two in a business course and one in a general course, and twenty-four completed the eighth grade. Twelve of those finishing grammar school will return next fall for the Christopher high school course.

One of the girls who has finished the high school business course has already obtained a position paying $25 a week, and the girl who was graduated in the general course, because of her physical disability which will prevent her leaving home to work, is planning to make children's exclusive dresses at home, sponsored jointly by the Christopher school and the Dorothy Kahn club.

U. of C. Helpers' Club Honors Gertrude Stone

Members of the University of Chicago Helper's club gave a farewell dinner party for Miss Gertrude Stone, who is retiring after 23 years of service with that organization, last week at the settlement house, 4630 Gross avenue. Miss Mary MacDowell, Mrs. A. A. Abbott, of the organization, and Mrs. Thelma Helling of the Chicago Orphans' asylum, were the principal speakers.

RIDGE DISTRICT OPERA LOVERS TO FORM CLUB

Will Foster Public Interest in Music.

Plans for the formation of an opera club in the Ridge district were completed at a meeting held Friday night at the Beverly Hills Country club under the auspices of the Associated Opera clubs of the metropolitan area.

According to Miss Dema Harshbarger, president of the Civic Concert Service, Inc., which is sponsoring the local groups, who addressed those gathered at the Beverly Hills Country club Friday evening, opera in the United States has always been considered a form of entertainment for only the extremely intelligent and musically educated persons. She compared the class of people who attend opera in this country with Germany, where opera is the favorite entertainment for everybody.

Plan 42 Clubs in Chicago.

Miss Harshbarger believes that good music will enrich the lives of Americans as well, if they can become interested in it and educated to enjoy it. It is for this reason that the neighborhood opera clubs are in the process of organization and she hopes that the business man, the housewife who does her own cooking, the doctors, lawyers, professors, ministers, stenographers, school teachers, and secretaries can learn to appreciate the opera as well as the leisured class who display their evening wraps and diamonds in the opera boxes.

Announcement of plans for the formation of 42 opera clubs throughout the metropolitan area of Chicago was made at a banquet held May 20 at the Stevens hotel.

Otto F. Reich Is Chairman.

Otto F. Reich, 9403 Pleasant avenue, is general chairman of the group working in the Ridge district. His assistants are Mrs. Leslie Wiswell, 10543 Seeley avenue, vice chairman; Victor Rice, 9054 Robey street, secretary chairman; Miss Edna Leasey, 10541 Hoyne avenue, publicity chairman, and Mrs. Alma Hays Reed, membership chairman.

OPERETTA GIVEN BY GRADUATES AT FORT DEARBORN

Members of the graduating class of the Fort Dearborn school, 90th and Throop streets, gave an operetta entitled "The Merry Company," as part of their commencement exercises Thursday morning.

Music for the program was provided by the school orchestra and Walter Bornemann who played a saxophone solo. Mary Louise Hahn gave a recitation.

GREENE SCHOOL HOLDS EXERCISES FOR 71 GRADUATES

Exercises were held Thursday afternoon for the largest graduating class in the history of Greene school, 3537 South Paulina street. Seventy-one pupils were presented diplomas by Howard B. Smith, principal of the school, and Morgan G. Hogge, district superintendent, made the commencement address. Special honor was paid to Miss Josephine C. Ford, head assistant of the school, who has served in the district since 1886 when she was graduated from the first class of the Nathaniel Greene school.

The girl graduates all wore summer ensembles which they made themselves in the household arts class under the direction of Miss Francyne Hoban.

Songs and folk dances by the eighth grade girls' chorus provided the entertainment on the program. Miss Irene Raczynski sang a solo and Miss Irene Slovey led the dances.

MOVE CHURCH OF HOLY NATIVITY TO WIDEN 95TH ST.

Work has started on the relocation of the Church of the Holy Nativity, 95th street and Longwood drive, to make way for the widening of 95th street. Since the present structure extends only 18 inches over the line of the widened street, no great alteration is necessary, but it has been decided to turn the building about so that the entrance now on 95th street will be on Longwood drive.

At the same time a few changes will be made in the upper portions of the church and a larger basement containing a kitchen and class rooms will be built. During the period of alteration church services are being held at the Ridge Park fieldhouse, 96th and Wood streets.

MORGAN PARK'S OUTGOING CLASS DISPLAYS TALENT

Presents Varied Program at Senior Assembly.

Senior student talent was lavishly displayed Wednesday morning at the annual class day assembly held by members of the graduating class of Morgan Park High school. There were dramatic readings by Miss Dorothy Lloyd, who, with Miss Anna Gunner and Robert Brooks, was in charge of the program. Two senior members of the Morgan Park Dramatic club, Miss Maurene Frey, and Jack Haliday, gave a drama skit, and Miss Dorothy Dow gave an interpretative dance.

Music for the program was provided by a senior vocal quartet including Clayton Stafford, Victor Futcher, Myron Pilbrow, and Lewis Langdon, accompanied by Mark Guerin, pianist, and the senior orchestra. The latter is composed of Averell Cole, banjo; William Lee and Perry Brooks, saxophones; Foster Lilly, cornet; Marchand Hall, violin; Bernard Stoddard, bass horn; Ernest Larson, trombone; Hamlin Baker, drums; and Miss Vera Pitkin, piano.

The Rev. W. H. Boddy Speaks.

Commencement exercises were held Thursday evening in Blackwelder hall. The Rev. William Henry Boddy of the First Presbyterian church, 64th street and Kimbark avenue, was the speaker, and the awarding of honors and presentation of diplomas was in charge of W. Schoch, principal of the school.

Miss Helen Morgan was graduated with the highest honors in her class, having the highest scholastic standing in her class and holding more athletic honors than any girl in school. Miss Morgan did not apply for a scholarship. Miss Marjorie Goller was awarded a quarter scholarship at the University of Chicago and Miss Annie Gunner was awarded a year's scholarship at Northwestern university.

Leaders in Scholarship.

The senior members of the Tau Epsilon, the honor society of Morgan Park High school, who have been members of the organization because of their high scholarship for the maximum number of semesters, which is seven, are: Miss Morgan, Miss Elizabeth Crane, Miss Frances Fisher, Miss Marjorie Goller, Miss Helen Grimes, Miss Annie Gunner, Miss Josephine Hedges, and William Lee.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN TO 86 GRADUATES AT RAY SCHOOL

Eighty-six pupils, including thirty-eight boys and forty-eight girls, were graduated from Ray school, Kimbark avenue and 56th street, Friday morning with exercises held in the assembly hall of the school. The commencement address was delivered by the Rev. Willis L. Goldsmith, and Arthur O. Rape, principal of the school, made the presentation of diplomas. According to Mr. Rape, this year's graduating class is the largest in the history of the school.

Miss Cora B. Mull, assistant principal of the school, has been chosen as a delegate from the National Education association to the World Federation of Education associations, which will hold its fourth biennial conference in Geneva, Switzerland, July 25 to Aug. 3. She will join a party of educators from various sections of the United States in New York and will sail July 6 to spend the summer in Europe.

MT. GREENWOOD FIGHTS FAHERTY SEWER PROPOSAL

Asks Drain Hooking Up with Sanitary District.

Members of the Greater Mount Greenwood Improvement association are circulating a petition among property owners of Mount Greenwood, Beverly Hills and Morgan Park, which will be presented to the city council asking it to authorize the city engineer to arrange a sewer for the Mount Greenwood community, hooking up with the sanitary district sewer directly east of this district.

This petition is the result of a hearing held recently by the board of local improvements at which residents of Mount Greenwood protested against the installation of a sewer for their district which would cost $1,198,000. Despite the fact that more than 50 property owners appeared at the city hall to tell the board that 75 per cent of the property owners in the district objected to such a costly improvement, the board, under the direction of its president, Michael J. Faherty, ordered the record to show that the project was approved.

Old Sewer Plans Rejected.

Two years ago when the west section of the 19th ward known as Mount Greenwood was added to the city, an appropriation was made by the sanitary district for the purpose of installing a sewer from 103d street to the southwest limit of the city, which would hook up with the existing sanitary district system and empty at the southwest terminus in Stony Creek, and which would be adequate for Mount Greenwood and the suburb of Evergreen Park with a house on every 25 front footage.

However, A. J. Shafmeyer, engineer for the board of local improvements, proposed the larger and more expensive sewer system last fall at a meeting called for the purpose of passing on the system proposed by the sanitary district. Since that time considerable controversy has taken place which came to a head last week in a debate which occurred at a meeting of the Greater Mount Greenwood Improvement association at the Mount Greenwood State bank. Property owners of Beverly Hills and Morgan Park were represented at this meeting to voice their objections to the plan of the board of local improvements, since the proposed million dollar sewer would entail taxation of property owners of these districts, whereas they already have an adequate sewer system.

Charges Cost Too High.

Participants in the unscheduled debate were Mr. Shafmeyer and Dr. N. B. Cunningham, chairman of the committee on streets and sewers for the Mount Greenwood Improvement association. The system proposed by the board of local improvements will cost approximately $10 a front foot, which, according to Dr. Cunningham, is more than much of the property in Mount Greenwood is worth at the present time. He told the property owners gathered at the meeting that at the most the sanitary sewer hook-up would cost $2 a front foot, and that although there is no doubt that relief is necessary from the poor sanitary condition in the district, a million dollar system is not needed.

A vote taken following the debate was overwhelmingly in favor of the sanitary district hook-up, but at the public hearing held the following day the board of local improvements ignored the preference of property owners in the district and went on record as approving their own project.

Sees Sacrifice of Land.

According to Dr. Cunningham, much of the Mount Greenwood property is still undeveloped, and the residents are all persons who have moved to the outskirts of the city either to improve their health or to escape high rents. Should the million dollar sewer be installed it will mean that many property owners will be forced to sacrifice their land. He believes that in a few years the exclusive Beverly Hills residential district will extend to Mount Greenwood, and that property values will go up, but until then he does not consider it advisable to tax the present property owners beyond their ability to pay.

Dr. Cunningham believes that the board of local improvements is pushing the project of the large sewer system in this district in order to fight the beginning of a dual system of sewers. He admits that in a few years an additional storm water sewer will be required, but says the dual system will not cost more than the million dollar project of the board of local improvements, and that by the time the storm water sewer is required, the property owners will be in a position to pay for it.

Outline of Board's Projects.

The project suggested by the board of local improvements calls for the construction of brick sewers in the following streets:

In 116th place between Central Park and St. Louis avenues; in the latter street between 116th place and 112th street; in 112th street between Central Park and Sacramento avenues; Homan avenue between 112th and 104th streets; east in 104th to Sacramento avenue; then south to 103d; and east in that street to Francisco avenue; in Francisco to 102d place and east to California avenue; in California to 102d street and thence east to Western avenue.

In Talman avenue between 101st and 103d streets; in Kedzie avenue between 109th and 110th streets; 110th and 109th streets, between Central Park and Kedzie avenues; Utica avenue, between 109th and 107th streets; in 109th street, between Kedzie and Utica avenues; in 107th, between Homan and Central Park avenues, and between Utica and Fairfield avenues; in Fairfield avenue, between 107th and 108th streets; in 108th street, between Fairfield and Western avenues; in Western avenue, between 107th place and 112th place, and in 106th street, between Western and Irving avenues.

PUPILS, ALUMNI JOIN FAREWELL TO MISS STODDER

Retires After 49 Years' Service.

The graduation program of the Thomas A. Hendricks school, 313 West 43d street, was held Wednesday morning. Alumni of the school assisted the graduating class in bidding farewell to Miss Ida Stodder, assistant principal of the school, as a part of the commencement exercises.

Miss Stodder has presided over every Hendricks graduating class since 1886, in which year she became the assistant principal. For two years previous she was an instructor at the school, which was then a new building, the pride of the Town of Lake. In those days it housed, as well as the elementary school, the Lake High school, which has since developed into Tilden Technical High school.

Retiring This Year.

Both Miss Stodder and her sister, Miss Myrabelle Stodder, assistant principal of the Lewis-Champlin school, are retiring this year. Miss Myrabelle Stodder has served the Chicago schools for half a century and her sister for one year less. Both are old residents of Englewood and graduates of the Cook County Normal college, now the Chicago Normal college.

"The Future," a play written by Miss Stodder, was presented on the program by the boy graduates, and the girl graduates gave the play "Everygirl," after which Miss Margaret H. Byrne, principal of the school, made the presentation of diplomas.

Many old graduates of the Hendricks school returned to greet Miss Stodder and several families reported that six or eight members of their families had studied under her guidance.

Notables Among Alumni.

Alumni of the Hendricks' school include Harry Keeler, principal of Lindblom High school; Mrs. Walter Buhlig, ex-president of the Illinois Parent-Teachers' association; Walter Shea, principal of the Edwards school; Joseph Elward, an attorney; Paul Buhlig, a broker; and Miss Emma McCredie, Miss Rose Buhlig, and Miss Helen Keleher, teachers in the Lindblom, Tilden, and Calumet High schools, respectively, as well as Oliver Kimball, president of the June graduating class at Tilden this year.

Morgan Park Elementary Graduates Hear B. F. Buck

Benjamin F. Buck, assistant superintendent of schools, gave the commencement address Wednesday afternoon in Morgan Park Baptist church for the graduating class of Morgan Park grammar school. Seventy pupils received diplomas, which were presented by Robert J. White, principal of the school. Music was provided by the school orchestra and a violin, cello and piano trio played by the music instructor, Mrs. M. Janice, Bernard Siebos and Jennie Siebos.

W-G-N INSTALLS GIANT ORGAN IN ITS NEW STUDIOS

To Be Used in Programs with Goldkette's Band.

A giant organ, especially designed for W-G-N and Jean Goldkette's W-G-N Dance Orchestra, has been installed in THE TRIBUNE's Drake Hotel station, and, after extensive tests, now awaits the completion of W-G-N's new studio, Henry Selinger, program director, announced yesterday.

Through the use of the organ with Goldkette's band new musical effects, never before obtained by any radio station, will be heard daily from W-G-N.

Worked Into Programs.

"The organ will not be merely an instrument playing simultaneously with the dance band," Mr. Selinger said. "It will be carefully worked into the score of every selection; it will be as much a part of the band as the trumpets or the saxophones.

"For two years we have been waiting for an instrument that would exactly fit into the W-G-N plan of orchestra and organ in combination. Jean Goldkette himself has found this satisfactory, and we are now preparing programs which will take the fullest advantage of its almost limitless potentialities of tone-color and arrangement. With the introduction of the organ the dance band will take on an entirely new character."

Mr. Selinger also emphasized the fact that, while designed primarily for use with the band, the new organ has solo possibilities equalling those of any theater organ. W-G-N plans to bring nationally famous organists to Chicago for radio concerts.

Four New Studios.

Radio listeners will hear the organ when W-G-N's four new studios, which are being built upon the experience gained in five years of broadcasting, are completed.

The new studios break entirely from the old tradition of broadcasting plants. Formerly a radio studio was as "close" as possible. Every sound vibration was eliminated; ventilation was sacrificed to insulation; heavy drapes were hung to absorb sound.

W-G-N engineers have found that a more "open" arrangement improves the quality of broadcasting. Ceilings will be twenty feet higher than they were. Walls and floors have been constructed with special regard for their acoustical qualities. They will give W-G-N broadcasts a new vibrancy and resonance.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUINN RYAN.

Ten years ago next Thursday, on the Fourth of July, 1919, Jess Willard, the heavyweight champion of the world, the conqueror of Jack Johnson, was facing Jack Dempsey, his twenty-four year old challenger, at Toledo, O., before the greatest crowd that had ever seen a prize fight up to that time. Let us imagine you are hearing it over the radio:

ANNOUNCER: Well, the great Fourth of July has come at last. We are broadcasting to you direct from the Bayview Park arena in Toledo. The mercury is up around 97, and there are 70,000 sweltering fans assembled here this afternoon for Tex Rickard's biggest show. The preliminaries are all over, the fighters have their instructions and Referee Ollie Pecord has dropped back to one corner of the ring. The sun glares down on the white canvas floor with intense heat. There's the whistle. Seconds out! [Gong.]

There's the gong! The big fight is on! Both men are coming out of their corners and approaching the center of the ring! Hands up, and they're sparring cautiously, getting the measure of each other! Willard is sticking out those long arms like a pair of feelers, and Dempsey is crouched below him! Oooh! There's the first one! Willard shoved out his left straight at Dempsey's face, but the sunburned boy just stepped away. He's forcing Jess to do the leading! If Willard wants to win this fight he must go out and get it! Ummh! Jess weaved out another left hand blow that barely grazed Dempsey's face. Dempsey is backing up! Now they're mixing it! Dempsey missed a swing and now he's gone into a clinch. It looks like David and Goliath there in the ring, with the shorter challenger's arms wrapped around the big Kansan.

Jess has backed up a bit to pull himself together! Now again Dempsey is coming in crouching, his body swaying from side to side! A wary eye is watching for that long Willard left! Now Jess uncorks it—a pretty tap right on Dempsey's mouth—but it didn't stop the challenger! He's coming right in, swaying, weaving, moving slowly, looking for an opening! There's another one. Jess smashed a straight left for Dempsey's eye.

Dempsey is creeping in! He's like a great cat, moving forward slowly, surely, slyly! Willard trys another left—Dempsey is under it—it didn't touch him, and— Gosh! A right on the jaw! A left to the same spot—Willard is down! The champion is on the mat! A left and a right flush on the jaw and Willard is on the mat for the first time in his ring career! Now Referee Pecord is counting—two—three, four—five—six—seven. Willard is getting to his feet slowly. Now he's on his feet. Now Dempsey tears in and lands another and Willard is on the mat again, and there's blood streaming from his mouth. Dempsey has knocked him down again, and once again Referee Ollie Pecord is standing over him and counting. Once more Willard starts slowly to his feet! The blood drips from his mouth as he slowly lifts that 240 pound body to its feet. Dempsey is waiting, fist poised! Willard is up. His arms hang weakly at his side! He's turning away from Dempsey, seeking the ropes. Oooohh! Two rights! Dempsey laced a pair of rights straight to the champion's jaw and Willard is down again. That is the third time this round that Challenger Jack Dempsey has sent the champion to the floor of the ring! The claret oozes from Willard's mouth!

Willard is getting to his feet—slowly—slowly—the vitality is slipping from that vast frame! Dempsey with a barrage of lefts and rights is crowding him into a neutral corner—now a left and a right to the face—Willard is down again! The whole right side of his face is cut and bleeding. Now there are cries of "Stop it! Stop it!" from the spectators. They know that it can't go on. Willard is a beaten man now. Pecord is counting his death knell. Once again he starts for his feet. His knees and hands leave the canvas—he stands there before Dempsey, a beaten thing and a rain of body blows—right, left, right, left—sends him to the mat again!

Willard is getting up once more, a bloody, beaten hulk, no longer able to defend himself. Dempsey, throwing caution to the winds, is crowding in once more. He has promised to knock out Willard in the first round! Looks as though he's going to do it! He's driving home punch after punch! Willard slips against the ropes, he's on the mat again—sitting down—staring about him in a daze. Dempsey is walking away from him as Referee Ollie Pecord tolls out the fatal second—three, four, five, six, seven—the battle's over and in the first round. The crowd is making such a tremendous noise we can't hear the referee! His arm swings down for the last time—Dempsey starts from the ring—the fight is over! No, there's Jimmie De Forrest pulling him back.

The bell has saved Willard. It ended the round before Pecord had finished counting! The champion is still the champion for a little while, at least.

Never has a heavyweight championship fight started in quite that way. The champion of the world knocked down seven times in one round, or was it six? There's the whistle! Seconds out of the ring! [Gong].

Round two! Dempsey is coming up to scratch like a whirlwind. There'll be no stopping him now. Willard is just a shell; he hasn't got a defense for this sunburnt boy who means to take the championship from him. O! Jack has opened a cut under Willard's right eye! Blood's streaming from the wound! Dempsey is pounding home blow after blow! Left and right, left and right. Willard is trying with his left—he's game—but he can't stop Dempsey—the youngster is battering him all over the ring at will. Dempsey is driving body blows home time after time. He just sent in a hard punch to the heart and Willard has fallen outside the ropes—now he's slowly clambering back—the crowd is on its feet! The end may come at any moment—now Willard is rushing into a clinch—he's holding on—he can't fight—Dempsey has knocked all the fight out of him. The crowd is hollering madly for the knockout and Dempsey is trying hard to land that finisher. Now he's torn out of Willard's weak grasp, and he's measuring the champion with punch after punch. Willard tried to stab a left to Dempsey's face and another and another, but there's no force to his blows. Dempsey is pounding him at will. Punch after punch. Willard's face is swollen out of shape! Dempsey continues with lefts and rights and Willard stumbles around the ring—[Gong].

That's all! That's the end of the second round, and Willard is still on his feet, but it's only a question of time now. Dempsey is entirely unmarked as he sits there in his corner, but Willard is a shocking spectacle. His head and chest are a mass of blood and one side of his face is swollen and pummelled entirely out of shape. There's the whistle! Time out for seconds! Only thirty seconds to the gong! [Gong!] There it is!

Round three! Willard staggers out to the center of the ring, and Dempsey comes out of his corner like a rocket and continues the battery of blows that are about to take the championship from Willard. Willard isn't even defending himself! He is staggering around the ring and Dempsey is rushing after him, sending home blow after blow. Willard's mouth is hanging open. He's a beaten man. Only the tremendous vitality of that great body is keeping him on his feet! The crowd is shouting to Ollie Pecord to stop it. The big fellow is staggering along the ropes and Dempsey is following him relentlessly, slugging, slugging, slugging, waiting for him to drop. Willard is holding on to the ropes, while Dempsey rains blow after blow on his head and body. Now—[Gong]. There's the gong!

Well, that the end of round three, ladies and gentlemen! The scrap is almost over! Jess can't last through another round. He's slumped in his corner now. Dempsey is unmarked! What a beating Willard has taken! Now Monogham, his second, is whispering in his ear—words of encouragement, I suppose—but Jess can't go much longer. Monoghan is still talking to Jess. Now he's walking over and talking to Referee Pecord. Now Ollie comes over to Jack Dempsey's corner and grabs him by the arm—and—Willard has tossed in the towel. Jack Dempsey is champion of the world! Ollie has him in the center of the ring and he's raising his arm in token of victory. The fight is over!

LOSES RHYTHM ON RADIO.

Complaint comes from Los Angeles that a jazz orchestra arriving there had lost its dancing rhythm through its playing so much over the radio and that local dancers were having trouble keeping in step with the music.

REVOLUTIONARY SONGS FROM W-G-N ON 4TH OF JULY

Songs of the revolutionary soldiers, popular one hundred and fifty years ago, are part of the special Independence day program of W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station, this year.

The program, which will begin at 8:30, will include tunes that both the red coats and the Continentals hummed as they marched over colonial roads. Among them is one that was played by fifes at the hanging of Maj. Andre, collaborator with Benedict Arnold in his attempt to betray Washington's army.

Henry Selinger, program director, also promises an appropriate "Musical Mosaics" program, a regular Thursday feature for Independence day, with extracts from the compositions of Francis Hopkinson, early American composer, arranged for modern presentation by Alfred G. Wathall.

ADVENTURERS TO TELL STORIES OF RADIO NETWORKS

Two of the world's best known adventurers and story tellers will relate their experiences in all parts of the globe in two series of programs which will be inaugurated by the National Broadcasting company soon.

Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent, novelist, and world wanderer, will be presented in a series which will have its première Monday night, July 8, at 11:30 o'clock, Chicago time. A NBC network will broadcast the programs featuring the war correspondent.

Edward "Tex" O'Reilly, a real soldier of fortune who has taken an active part in nine revolutions or campaigns in seven foreign countries, will be the main character in a series to be called "The Soldier of Fortune." This series will have its initial broadcast Saturday night, July 13, and will be heard each Saturday night thereafter from 8 to 8:15 p. m., Chicago time.

W-G-N SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Working under Gaston du Moulin with precision and with verve, they bring out every happy tonal possibility in their selections. Their repertoire reaches from symphonic arrangements of popular tunes to Bach and Beethoven in their most inspired moments, and always they preserve a delicate, delightful balance between technic and enthusiasm, letting the two share the high throne of harmony. 4:30, 5:45, 7:45, 10:10.

COSMO D'ALMADA—HERBERT JOHNSON

Cosmo D'Almada, Italian baritone, European operatic star, may sing an aria from "Aida," but he will not sing "Duna." He confines his program to strong, expansive music, taking full advantage of the epic ring of his voice. . . . And Herbert Johnson, who with him shares a half hour this evening, is one of the finest pianists on the air, endowed with a polished and refined technic from which he derives great power. 8:45.

SEEK $50,000 FUND FOR IMPROVEMENT OF RAINBOW BEACH

RICHARD C. DAY.

Petitions asking that the city council appropriate $50,000 for the immediate rehabilitation and improvement of Rainbow beach, between 75th and 79th streets, are being circulated throughout the seventh and neighboring wards this week by the members of the Seventh Ward division of the Illinois Republican Service Men's league.

Richard C. Day, 1733 East 67th street, president of the organization, pointed out that Rainbow beach is the only one south of 63d street and that it serves all of the people in the south shore and the South Chicago districts. He declared that the dressing rooms are in a state of disrepair and persons are compelled to put on their bathing suits at home instead of dressing at the beach.

Mr. Day explained that Ald. Clement Nance [7th] introduced an ordinance in the city council last week asking for an appropriation of $100,000 for the construction of a new women's dressing room and bathhouse for the beach.

"The ordinance was referred to the finance committee," said Mr. Day, "but I do not believe that, with the city's finances in their present state, the committee will recommend the ordinance."

Mr. Day said Walter Wright, superintendent of city parks and playgrounds, had informed him that at least $200,000 would be required to improve the beach.

Although neither party has as yet made an offer, the south park commission is thinking of taking over the beach. Recently George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south park commission, was quoted as saying that part of the money obtained through the $15,000,000 bond issue which was upheld in court last week, would be spent in improving Rainbow beach.

Junior A. of C. Gives Dance at Ogden Park

Healy, 7436 South Michigan avenue, was chairman of the committee in charge. This dance was the first of a series which the association proposed to hold on the last Friday of every month at the Ogden park fieldhouse. The organization also gives a dance once a month on the north side.

HONOR MYERS ON ANNIVERSARY OF PASTORATE

Oldtimers Go Back to Church Today.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

DR. JOHNSTON MYERS.
[Kaufmann & Fabry.]

The oldest minister in Chicago in point of service in his pastorate, but the youngest in point of view, is Dr. Johnston Myers, whose congregation at Immanuel Baptist church, 23d street and Michigan avenue, will celebrate today the thirty-fourth year as pastor of the church.

When Dr. Myers came to Chicago in 1895, automobiles, airplanes, and radios were unheard of, telephones were a luxury, and the district where the Immanuel Baptist stands was the city's gold coast, whereas now it is automobile row skirted by a boarding house district.

His church is one of the two out of the seven then situated there that stuck it out when their congregations left. He suited his church to its parish and started building to his ideal church, one of service instead of sermons.

2,000,000 Meals Served.

More than two million meals have been served to the hungry of the city through his now famous bread line in a constant thirty-four year stream and beds were found for the homeless and jobs for the unemployed.

Not the least of the work he has set for himself is helping people with their problems, complex or simple, and giving a word of friendliness here and encouragement there.

Along these lines is his vision of the church of today—and tomorrow.

"We have too much preaching," he said, "and not enough practice. The church must be a place of service, service in all lines, help to the poor, the unemployed, the sick in body and in spirit. People are no longer interested in sermons. But they would be interested in helping others. And there are many to be helped.

"Christianity is far simpler than sermonizing and listening to sermons. There is much to be done and many people who would like to help if they knew where they best could."

Built Up Cincinnati Church.

Although Dr. Myers has been here 34 years he had already built up a church in another city—the Ninth Street Baptist church in Cincinnati, where he started the breadline idea and established the Ninth street system of missions all around the city. He was helped there by William C. Procter, soap manufacturer.

In Chicago many different persons have taken over the financial burden of a church like his in the last years, a number of them graduates of his breadline college. Members of almost every profession have been in it, bankers and publishers, contractors, and even ministers.

But the work that one church of that sort can do is limited, he says, by its financial backing and by the largeness of the city.

Old Timers to Participate.

Tonight a number of old timers who knew the church in its early days will talk at a meeting of the congregation. Among them are the Rev. W. F. Ferguson, Frank Sedgewick, J. G. Elsdon, and John Nuveene. The Imperial quartet, which got its start at Immanuel in the old days, will be on hand, and Clara Louise Thurston, the harpist when the church had a gold coast congregation, will play once again.

For years the church has been seeking an assistant for Dr. Myers, some one to help him with the work, but the search has been long and as yet fruitless. The divinity schools of the country have been scoured, but the right man is yet to be found. Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago divinity school wrote in answer to a request, "We aren't graduating any more Johnston Myerses."

Approximately 400 young people of Chicago Methodist churches will attend the Epworth League institute which will be held this year at Conference Point, near Lake Geneva, Wis., from Monday, July 8, to Saturday, July 14, it was disclosed yesterday.

This vacation period, which will be divided between a study of literature and life and healthful recreation, is made possible by its patron, Gordon Humphrey, and a group of Methodist clergymen interested in providing a worth while time for the young parishioners. Mr. Murphy is a prominent Chicago attorney. The Rev. C. A. Bloomquist, pastor of the church, will act as dean.

The morning periods will be devoted to the study of the many phases of the Bible, both old and modern, and Epworth league methods. The Methodist pastors who will aid in this work are the following: The Rev. Morgan Williams of St. John's church, the Rev. W. F. Osborn of the Mayfair church, the Rev. Mr. Case of the North Shore church, and the Rev. Charles R. Goff of the Euclid Avenue church. Music will be under the direction of Oscar Gustafson of Gary. Sports, which will include baseball, volley ball, tennis, bathing, swimming, horse shoes, and croquet, will be supervised by the Rev. C. H. Newham of La Grange.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

"DEAR FRIEND: You will find inclosed tickets for an indoor fête to be held Saturday night, July 13, in the new mezzanine ballrooms of the Chicago Beach hotel. We promise you a delightful evening. There will be theatrical numbers, dancing, keno, and refreshments, all for the modest sum of $1 per ticket. The proceeds will be given to institutions which care for sick and crippled children and provide summer camps and outings." The letter is from Mrs. Ronald F. Brunswick, wife of the owner of the Chicago Beach, who, with other prominent women, sponsors this annual benefit performance—the biggest dollar's worth of entertainment we've ever enjoyed. Last year $1,200 was realized, and, incidentally, THE TRIBUNE free ice fund received $100. It's a show we wouldn't miss, and, as Mrs. Brunswick's letter concludes, "each ticket will bring 100 cents worth of unalloyed joy and happiness to some mother's unfortunate baby." Let's go!

Maybe we're wrong, but it looks as if Edward C. Zimmerman exposed himself too recklessly to that California climate. It settled in his tonsils and now he's in Michael Reese hospital. Zimmie is our well and favorably known bank equipment magnate and the best cornet tooter on the south side. He plays with the Medinah Temple brass band, which went to Los Angeles for the 55th annual session of the shrine. Well, Zimmie, you have our prayers for a speedy recovery, and let's not forget to return thanks that the California climate didn't settle on the brain. They say it's worse than water.

J. ERIC THOMPSON, that handsome young Englishman at the Field museum, is just back from Yucatan, the famous chewing gum country in Mexico; Guatemala, in Central America, and British Honduras. He spent several months searching for evidence of the early Mayan empire civilization. He found a quantity of human teeth which had been filled with iron pyrites. His conclusion is that the Mayans practiced dentistry, but whether for repairs or ornament he cannot say. Eric, of course, is a Hyde Parker.

Helen Israel writes that she "scanned and scanned your section last Sunday in the hope of finding an item of interest to me, but I just couldn't find it. Israel of 5237 Drexel boulevard will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversay today at the Cooper-Carleton. There will be a family dinner at 7 p. m. and a reception afterwards.

JACOB VALENTINE HAVENER of 4406 Berkeley avenue has received a letter from S. Barre, secretary of the cabinet of the king of Belgium, and sent from the palace at Brussels, stating that the king officially approves of the "Greater Chicago March," the music of which is of Mr. Havener's composing and the words by Agnes Clark Winkler, 4468 Lake Park avenue. We're glad that's settled.

DEMAND BRIGHT LIGHTS TO ROUT HALSTED GLOOM

Englewood Business Men Open Drive.

Bright lights are scheduled to drive the gloom from South Halsted street. Four south side aldermen announced last week their intention of supporting local organizations in a campaign for improved lighting facilities on Halsted from Garfield boulevard to 79th street. In the same week Leonard Fish, who was recently installed as president of the Englewood Business Men's association, announced that the lighting project would be the principal objective of the organization during the next year.

LEONARD FISH.

Other officers installed at a meeting last week were: Treasurer, Arthur Rathje, secretary of the Chicago City bank, 6223 Halsted street; secretary, Ald. Walter W. Morris [18th]; vice president, Julius Cohen; and directors, L. C. Smith and Harry Levinson.

The aldermen who are supporting the movement for better lights on Halsted street are: Terence F. Moran [16th], James G. Coyle [17th], Walter W. Morris [18th], and O. E. Northrup [19th]. These aldermen all agree that inadequacy of the present lighting system causes many motor accidents and is one of the reasons for numerous burglaries and holdups on the street.

Ask Better Lights in Home Areas.

Mr. Fish declared that the members of his organization would not only support the aldermen in their campaign for better lights on Halsted street, but that they would also ask that the residential streets of the section be better lighted to decrease the number of holdups and motor accidents in the neighborhood.

He pointed out that the members of the organization had been discussing plans for better lights on Halsted street for some time and that a committee which is working on the probable cost of the new lighting system will be ready to report in the early future.

If the organization is successful in gaining its objective, Halsted street will soon boast of a system of 1,000 candlepower lamps installed on every other trolley pole. This system would provide each block with six huge lights. The present lighting system, according to Francis Donnelly, chief engineer for city department of electricity, provides each block with four 600 candlepower lamps.

Lights Often Out of Repair.

Mr. Donnelly pointed out that not only have the residents of the section tolerated the inadequate lighting system for more than thirteen years, but the lamps have often been damaged and left unrepaired for days, throwing large sections of the street into darkness after 11 o'clock each night when the privately owned street lamps are turned off.

Ald. Morris quoted Lieut. James Day, acting captain of the Gresham police station, as having declared a powerful street light is worth a policeman.

The aldermen have not decided yet how the money will be raised to pay for the new lighting system. However, they hope to devise a feasible plan so that when they enter their plea for better lights in the city council next fall they will offer at the same time a plan of paying for them.

Mr. Fish announced that the members of his organization, in addition to working for better lights in the district, would also seek to get more adequate police protection, more building, the opening of Union avenue and the elevation of the Pennsylvania railroad tracks throughout the Englewood territory.

Mr. Fish said the organization is forming plans to induce the business men in the territory to employ private watchmen.

ACTION IS ASKED BY SOUTH SIDE ON BOULEVARD

Delay of Eighteen Months Is Pointed Out.

Two letters, one from the members of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce and the other from the Greater South Side Chamber of Commerce, were sent to Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, last week asking the park commission to explain the delay in completing the system of streets, which will comprise the contemplated Southeastern boulevard.

The proposed route, which will enable motorists to travel from Michigan avenue to the Indiana state line on one of the finest boulevard systems in the country, will start at Jackson park and will run on Jeffery avenue, 92d street, Anthony avenue, Escanaba avenue, 100th street, Avenue L, and 112th street to the state line.

Nothing Done in 18 Months.

The south park board, said the letter from H. H. Haylett, managing vice president of the Greater South Side Chamber of Commerce, more than 18 months ago accepted the streets from the city to construct the contemplated boulevard.

The letter stated that the city had taken every necessary action to give the park board these streets and that the park commission had performed every legal act required to gain control of these streets.

Mr. Haylett pointed out that undoubtedly the system of streets may be called a legal boulevard but physically nothing has been done to make it an actual boulevard. It is still a hit and miss heavy trucking route.

Asks Temporary Repairs.

"Is it not possible for the south park board to put the Southeastern boulevard into proper temporary service at once when, as I have understood you have said that this could be accomplished by a meager expenditure of four or five thousand dollars," the letter reads. "The property owners along the proposed route have already evidenced their willingness to stand a special assessment, if necessary, in order to obtain the more permanent boulevard improvement which can be provided in the due course of time."

Call Streets Orphans.

The streets involved in the proposed route appear to be orphans, asserts the letter from the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce, which was signed by Charles A. Rubey, president, and Walter Tredup, chairman of the organization's committee on good roads and improvements.

The letter declared that the city had relinquished jurisdiction but the park board has not assumed jurisdiction despite formal acceptance more than 18 months ago. No governmental agency is looking after the route and no one is cleaning it. These streets are probably the dirtiest in all Chicago, and pavements which have been opened by public utility corporations are never properly repaired, the letter said.

Detriment to Business.

"These neglected and abandoned streets," the letter continued, "so far as governmental control, care and supervision is concerned, are a detriment to the business of the members of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce. Our membership cannot understand, with the information available, why these streets remain orphans."

$50,000 SOUGHT FOR IMPROVING RAINBOW BEACH

Republican War Veterans Circulate Petition.

RICHARD C. DAY.

Petitions asking that the city council appropriate $50,000 for the immediate rehabilitation and improvement of Rainbow beach, between 75th and 79th streets, are being circulated throughout the seventh and neighboring wards this week by the members of the Seventh Ward division of the Illinois Republican Service Men's league.

Richard C. Day, 1733 East 67th street, president of the organization, pointed out that Rainbow beach is the only one south of 63d street and that it serves all of the people in the south shore and the South Chicago districts. He declared that the dressing rooms are in a state of disrepair and persons are compelled to put on their bathing suits at home instead of dressing at the beach.

Ordinance Before Council.

Mr. Day explained that Ald. Clement Nance [7th] introduced an ordinance in the city council last week asking for an appropriation of $100,000 for the construction of a new women's dressing room and bathhouse for the beach.

"The ordinance was referred to the finance committee," said Mr. Day, "but I do not believe that, with the city's finances in their present state, the committee will recommend the ordinance."

Mr. Day said Walter Wright, superintendent of city parks and playgrounds, had informed him that at least $200,000 would be required to improve the beach.

Park Board May Take It Over.

Although neither party has as yet made an offer, the south park commission is thinking of taking over the beach. Recently George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south park commission, was quoted as saying that part of the money obtained through the $15,000,000 bond issue which was upheld in court last week, would be spent in improving Rainbow beach.

TABOR LUTHERAN TO BUILD ROOMS TO DRAW YOUTH

Fund for $50,000 Addition Almost Raised.

Members of the Tabor Lutheran church have started a campaign for funds to erect an addition to their building at 80th street and Escanaba avenue.

The new building will be three stories high and will front on 80th street, adjoining the church, which fronts on Escanaba avenue. The ground floor will be used as Sunday school rooms, while the second floor will be used as an auxiliary room to the present main auditorium and will have a seating capacity of more than 600 persons.

An apartment for the use of the caretaker of the church is being planned for the second floor, with a check room and rest room for both men and women. On the third floor a social hall and a kitchen will be provided.

Expected to Cost $50,000.

It is expected that the erection of the new building will cost more than $50,000, most of which has already been raised by subscription among the members of the congregation. The new structure is expected to be ready for use by next Christmas.

The Rev. Frank R. Carlson, pastor, pointed out that the people of the church realize that its activities can no longer be limited to the guidance of the spiritual life of its members.

"We believe that with our new church," said the Rev. Mr. Carlson, "we shall be able to have a closer contact with our young people and shall be able to make the church and its activities attractive to them.

Plan Gym to Equal Any.

ARCHER AVENUE HONORS MAN WHO BUILT IT IN 1836

Follows Line of Plank Road Through Hardscrabble.

BY ELEANORE GRAFF.

This is the third of a series of articles explaining the origin of the names of streets, districts, and suburbs of the south side.

Spreading out in all directions like spokes of a giant wheel with the loop as a hub, a number of old roads have played an important rôle in the growth and development of Chicago. Not the least among these is the present Archer avenue, beginning at 19th and State streets, following the sanitary canal to the western city limits near Summit, and continuing along the Des Plaines river to Lockport, Joliet, and Ottawa. From Lockport to Ottawa it forms one branch of the old Ottawa road.

Back as early as 1673 the French explorers, Joliet and Marquette, are known to have followed the Indian trail along the Des Plaines to Chicago. More than a hundred years later, in 1831, it became the first white man's highway in the county by an ordinance passed by the Cook county commissioners. However, it was in 1836 that the Archer road was formally laid out by Gen. W. B. Archer, a member of the Michigan-Illinois canal commission, and was accordingly named for him.

Led to Archer's Home.

Although it was a project ostensibly to aid the canal which it follows most of the way, it is an interesting fact that the road was continued to Lockport, where Gen. Archer's home was located. The cost of building the road was $40,000, a large sum of money in those days.

A few years later Archer avenue became outstandingly important to the future of Chicago. The stockyards were moved to their present location and Archer avenue became the most important entrance to this district from the south and the only convenient entrance from the north. Thus it is not strange that one of the first horse car lines was built on Archer avenue from the loop to the stockyards district and that from the stockyards to the road was laid with planks for sixteen miles southwestward.

The plank road craze hit Chicago in the late 1840's. The idea was originated in New York state, and pioneers coming to Chicago inaugurated the plan here. Early settlers were troubled with the condition of the roads then existing. Following thaws and during rainy seasons the roads would become so muddy that often small settlements would be stranded for several weeks with no provisions from the outside.

Tribune Hailed Improvement.

Thus the plank roads were adopted hopefully and an early editorial writer for THE TRIBUNE prophesied that Archer avenue would cause Chicago to become the central livestock market of the country, inasmuch as neighboring farmers could now safely drive their stock to market in all seasons, along the planks of Archer avenue and Archer road.

This editorial writer proved to be a true prophet, but the cattle now arrive at the stockyards in freight cars drawn over steel rails, and the plank era in Chicago ended as suddenly as it begun. Builders of the roads tried in vain to find a method by which the ground beneath the planks could be kept dry, and when water gathered under the wooden roads, the planks rotted.

In the early days of the beginnings and struggles of Archer avenue, it was thinly settled for the first mile out from the central business district of downtown Chicago. Then came clusters of large, low structures, all of which were either slaughter or packing houses, with a glue factory thrown in here and there. Then, save for a fringe of structures, Archer avenue was just a road through unsettled marshland known to the old settlers as Hardscrabble.

Important Traffic Route.

From that day to this there have grown up along Archer avenue settlements, villages and towns, many of which have become part of the vast metropolis of Chicago. Cutting diagonally across the southwest section of the city through the stockyards district, McKinley park, Elsdon and West Chicago Lawn to Summit, it provides a direct outlet to the loop for both motorists and those who travel by street car. For the original short horse-car line has grown into one of the longest carlines in the city, extending from the loop to Archer and Narragansett avenues.

And if Archer avenue has not attained fame through its close connection with the history and growth of Chicago, it will always be a familiar name, at least, to the fans of Peter Finley Dunne, who have followed his comic character, Mr. Dooley, who ran a saloon on Archer avenue.

BARGAIN HUNTER BUYS COWHIDE BRIEF CASE FOR HALF A DOLLAR

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, June 23.—About two weeks ago I purchased a genuine black cowhide brief case for 50 cents at one of our neighboring stores. It was so greatly reduced in price because of the fact that one strap was missing and it was badly shop worn. A shoemaker replaced the strap for 15 cents, however, and I had little trouble cleaning the leather myself. I have carried this case every day since and will probably carry it for several years to come. It is a bag which is well worth $5 and has been much admired because of its unique clasp.

I. C. LIVINGSTON,
7926 Vernon avenue.

Found on Remnant Counter.

Chicago, June 25.—I found my best bargain tucked away on a neighborhood remnant counter recently. It was a half yard of fine white flannel and I purchased it for 25 cents. It was slightly soiled on one side, but that was turned inside and I made myself the nicest beret!

69 Cent Waffle Iron.

Chicago, June 23.—My pet bargain is an electric waffle iron that I bought in this neighborhood for 69 cents. We have used it almost every day for two years and it is still in good condition.

2,000 BOYS GET 10 DAY OUTINGS AT CLUB'S CAMP

All set and ready to go are the boys of Branch No. Four of the Chicago Boys' club, 6405 South Hermitage avenue. Their summer camp opens next Friday at Winona Lake, Ind., and they are looking forward to the time of their lives.

"We expect to have at least 2,000 under privileged Chicago boys at the camp this summer," said N. H. Cook, director of Branch No. Four. "They will have ten-day outings each, with plenty of swimming, boating, hiking, baseball, games, athletic contests, camp fires and other entertainment. Nature study will be one of the features of camp life.

"These outings are made possible by the generosity of Chicago citizens who 'share' their own vacations with needy boys by sending one or more to camp. Some individuals are taking care of ten or more boys, ten dollars providing a boy with ten days of camp joys and all he can eat thrown in the bargain. Many boys gain 5 to 10 pounds in weight and get a new lease on life. In addition, the woods and open country are a revelation to them."

The Chicago Boys' club camp has 114 acres, with 1,000 feet of shore line, a fine pier and many new buildings. Its sanitary provisions and drinking water supply have been rated by the Chicago health department as among the highest in the area.

James Carson Worthy of Glenwood and Robert Taylor Harris of Joliet were named as Austin scholars last week by President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university. The scholarships are given under a foundation established by Frederick C. Worthy was graduated from Bloom Township High school a year ago, ranking 12th in a class of 109. While in school he made garden furniture to pay his expenses and built up a business of his own in this line.

Harris has just been graduated from the Joliet Township High school with high honors.

CALVARY CHURCH DEDICATES FIRST UNIT OF BUILDING

The first unit of the new Calvary Evangelical Lutheran church, 62d street and Kenneth avenue, was dedicated last Sunday as the culmination of a week's festivities.

It is fifteen years since the small struggling mission first tried to gain a foothold in the West Lawn community and six years since the congregation was organized with [illegible] charter members and the church established as the Calvary Lutheran church.

Under the leadership of the early pastors, the Rev. Carl G. Okerbloom and the Rev. Gilbert Bengtson, who served in the West Lawn Community mission, and the Rev. J. H. Gregg, who has been pastor of the church since 1924, it has developed and grown until now it is one of the largest and strongest churches and the foremost Lutheran church in West Lawn.

Holds Special Events.

The week's dedication program included a banquet Tuesday night given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society; a special program at the meeting of the Brotherhood and Business Men's night Wednesday evening; a special meeting of the Luther league at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, with the Rev. P. N. Sjogren, synodical Luther league secretary, as speaker, and a sacred concert by the choir Friday night, which was given under the auspices of the mission society.

The dedication services proper were held at 3 o'clock, although both the morning and evening services were part of the complete program. The three pastors who have had a part in the development of the church took part in the dedication.

Officers of the church are the Rev. J. H. Gregg, pastor; Mrs. J. H. Gregg, organist; Mrs. J. M. Rogers, assistant organist; G. A. Berg, secretary of the congregation; Mrs. E. G. Hedberg, Sunday school superintendent, and Mrs. George Kasang, assistant superintendent. The board of administration, which also constitutes the building committee, includes G. A. Berg, C. J. Hadley, C. M. Becker, Olof Johnson, Ben Bolin, Adolph Kliner, and C. O. Nelson.

Built for Expansion.

The new church, which is in Gothic style with a brick and stone trim, was planned by Malmquist & Thompson, architects. Erickson-Christianson were the general contractors. The building has been planned as the first unit of a larger structure and so built that it can be easily enlarged.

It is a two story and ground floor structure with a seven room parsonage on two floors.

W-G-N INSTALLS GIANT ORGAN IN ITS NEW STUDIOS

To Be Used in Programs with Goldkette's Band.

A giant organ, especially designed for W-G-N and Jean Goldkette's W-G-N Dance Orchestra, has been installed in THE TRIBUNE'S Drake Hotel station, and, after extensive tests, now awaits the completion of W-G-N's new studio, Henry Selinger, program director, announced yesterday.

Through the use of the organ with Goldkette's band new musical effects, never before obtained by any radio station, will be heard daily from W-G-N.

Worked Into Programs.

"The organ will not be merely an instrument playing simultaneously with the dance band," Mr. Selinger said. "It will be carefully worked into the score of every selection; it will be as much a part of the band as the trumpets or the saxophones.

"For two years we have been waiting for an instrument that would exactly fit into the W-G-N plan of orchestra and organ in combination. Jean Goldkette himself has found this one satisfactory, and we are now preparing programs which will take the fullest advantage of its almost limitless potentialities of tone-color and arrangement. With the introduction of the organ the dance band will take on an entirely new character."

Mr. Selinger also emphasized the fact that, while designed primarily for use with the band, the new organ has solo possibilities equalling those of any theater organ. W-G-N plans to bring nationally famous organists to Chicago for radio concerts.

Four New Studios.

Radio listeners will hear the organ when W-G-N's four new studios, which are being built upon the experience gained in five years of broadcasting, are completed.

The new studios break entirely from the old tradition of broadcasting plants. Formerly a radio studio was as "close" as possible. Every sound vibration was eliminated; ventilation was sacrificed to insulation; heavy drapes were hung to absorb sound.

W-G-N engineers have found that a more "open" arrangement improves the quality of broadcasting. Ceilings will be twenty feet higher than they were. Walls and floors have been constructed with special regard for their acoustical qualities. They will give W-G-N broadcasts a new vibrancy and resonance.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUINN RYAN.

Ten years ago next Thursday, on the Fourth of July, 1919, Jess Willard, the heavyweight champion of the world, the conqueror of Jack Johnson, was facing Jack Dempsey, his twenty-four year old challenger, at Toledo, O., before the greatest crowd that had ever seen a prize fight up to that time. Let us imagine you are hearing it over the radio:

ANNOUNCER: Well, the great Fourth of July has come at last. We are broadcasting to you direct from the Bayview Park arena in Toledo. The mercury is up around 97, and there are 70,000 sweltering fans assembled here this afternoon for Tex Rickard's biggest show. The preliminaries are all over, the fighters have their instructions and Referee Ollie Pecord has dropped back to one corner of the ring. The sun glares down on the white canvas floor with intense heat. There's the whistle. Seconds out! [Gong.]

There's the gong! The big fight is on! Both men are coming out of their corners and approaching the center of the ring! Hands up, and they're sparring cautiously, getting the measure of each other! Willard is sticking out those long arms like a pair of feelers, and Dempsey is crouched below him! Oooh! There's the first one! Willard shoved out his left straight at Dempsey's face, but the sunburned boy just stepped away. He's forcing Jess to do the leading! If Willard wants to win this fight he must go out and get it! Ummh! Jess weaved out another left hand blow that barely grazed Dempsey's face. Dempsey is backing up! Now they're mixing it! Dempsey missed a swing and now he's gone into a clinch. It looks like David and Goliath there in the ring, with the shorter challenger's arms wrapped around the big Kansan.

Jess has backed up a bit to pull himself together! Now again Dempsey is coming in crouching, his body swaying from side to side! A wary eye is watching for that long Willard left! Now Jess uncorks it—a pretty tap right on Dempsey's mouth—but it didn't stop the challenger! He's coming right in, swaying, weaving, moving slowly, looking for an opening! There's another one. Jess smashed a straight left for Dempsey's eye.

Dempsey is creeping in! He's like a great cat, moving forward slowly, surely, slyly! Willard trys another left—Dempsey is under it—it didn't touch him, and— Gosh! A right on the jaw! A left to the same spot—Willard is down! The champion is on the mat! A left and a right flush on the jaw and Willard is on the mat for the first time in his ring career! Now Referee Pecord is counting—two—three, four—five—six—seven. Willard is getting to his feet slowly. Now he's on his feet. Now Dempsey tears in and lands another and Willard is on the mat again, and there's blood streaming from his mouth. Dempsey has knocked him down again, and once again Referee Ollie Pecord is standing over him and counting. Once more Willard starts slowly to his feet! The blood drips from his mouth as he slowly lifts that 240 pound body to its feet. Dempsey is waiting, fist poised! Willard is up. His arms hang weakly at his side! He's turning away from Dempsey, seeking the ropes. Oooohh! Two rights! Dempsey laced a pair of rights straight to the champion's jaw and Willard is down again. That is the third time this round that Challenger Jack Dempsey has sent the champion to the floor of the ring! The claret oozes from Willard's mouth!

Willard is getting to his feet—slowly—slowly—the vitality is slipping from that vast frame! Dempsey with a barrage of lefts and rights is crowding him into a neutral corner—now a left and a right to the face—Willard is down again! The whole right side of his face is cut and bleeding. Now there are cries of "Stop it! Stop it!" from the spectators. They know that it can't go on. Willard is a beaten man now. Pecord is counting his death knell. Once again he starts for his feet. His knees and hands leave the canvas—he stands there before Dempsey, a beaten thing and a rain of body blows—right, left, right, left—sends him to the mat again!

Willard is getting up once more, a bloody, beaten hulk, no longer able to defend himself. Dempsey, throwing caution to the winds, is crowding in once more. He has promised to knock out Willard in the first round! Looks as though he's going to do it! He's driving home punch after punch! Willard slips against the ropes, he's on the mat again—sitting down—staring about him in a daze. Dempsey is walking away from him as Referee Ollie Pecord tolls out the fatal second—three, four, five, six, seven—the battle's over and in the first round. The crowd is making such a tremendous noise we can't hear the referee! His arm swings down for the last time—Dempsey starts from the ring—the fight is over! No, there's Jimmie De Forrest pulling him back.

The bell has saved Willard. It ended the round before Pecord had finished counting! The champion is still the champion for a little while, at least.

Never has a heavyweight championship fight started in quite that way. The champion of the world knocked down seven times in one round, or was it six? There's the whistle! Seconds out of the ring! [Gong].

Round two! Dempsey is coming up to scratch like a whirlwind. There'll be no stopping him now. Williard is just a shell; he hasn't got a defense for this sunburnt boy who means to take the championship from him. O! Jack has opened a cut under Willard's right eye! Blood's streaming from the wound! Dempsey is pounding home blow after blow! Left and right, left and right. Willard is trying with his left—he's game—but he can't stop Dempsey—the youngster is battering him all over the ring at will. Dempsey is driving body blows home time after time He just sent in a hard punch to the heart and Willard has fallen outside the ropes—now he's slowly clambering back—the crowd is on its feet! The end may come at any moment—now Willard is rushing into a clinch—he's holding on—he can't fight—Dempsey has knocked all the fight out of him. The crowd is hollering madly for the knockout and Dempsey is trying hard to land that finisner. Now he's torn out of Willard's weak grasp, and he's measuring the champion with punch after punch. Wilard tried to stab a left to Dempsey's face and another and another, but there's no force to his blows. Dempsey is pounding him at will. Punch after punch. Willard's face is swollen out of shape! Dempsey continues with lefts and rights and Willard stumbles around the ring—[Gong].

That's all! That's the end of the second round, and Willard is still on his feet, but it's only a question of time now. Dempsey is entirely unmarked as he sits there in his corner, but Willard is a shocking spectacle. His head and chest are a mass of blood and one side of his face is swollen and pummelled entirely out of shape. There's the whistle! Time out for seconds! Only thirty seconds to the gong! [Gong!] There it is!

Round three! Williard staggers out to the center of the ring, and Dempsey comes out of his corner like a rocket and continues the battery of blows that are about to take the championship from Williard. Willard isn't even defending himself! He is staggering around the ring and Dempsey is rushing after him, sending home blow after blow. Willard's mouth is hanging open. He's a beaten man. Only the tremendous vitality of that great body is keeping him on his feet! The crowd is shouting to Ollie Pecord to stop it. The big fellow is staggering along the ropes and Dempsey is following him relentlessly, slugging, slugging, slugging, waiting for him to drop. Willard is holding on to the ropes, while Dempsey rains blow after blow on his head and body. Now—[Gong]. There's the gong!

Well, that the end of round three, ladies and gentlemen! The scrap is almost over! Jess can't last through another round. He's slumped in his corner now. Dempsey is unmarked! What a beating Willard has taken! Now Monogham, his second, is whispering in his ear—words of encouragement, I suppose—but Jess can't go much longer. Monoghan is still talking to Jess. Now he's walking over and talking to Referee Pecord. Now Ollie comes over to Jack Dempsey's corner and grabs him by the arm—and—Willard has tossed in the towel. Jack Dempsey is champion of the world! Ollie has him in the center of the ring and he's raising his arm in token of victory. The fight is over!

REVOLUTIONARY SONGS FROM W-G-N ON 4TH OF JULY

Songs of the revolutionary soldiers, popular one hundred and fifty years ago, are part of the special Independence day program of W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station, this year.

The program, which will begin at 8:30, will include tunes that both the red coats and the Continentals hummed as they marched over colonial roads. Among them is one that was played by fifes at the hanging of Maj. Andre, collaborator with Benedict Arnold in his attempt to betray Washington's army.

Henry Selinger, program director, also promises an appropriate "Musical Mosaics" program, a regular Thursday feature for Independence day, with extracts from the compositions of Francis Hopkinson, early American composer, arranged for modern presentation by Alfred G. Wathall.

APPROVE PAVING AND WATER LINES FOR SOUTH SIDE

Officials Overrule Protest Against Repairing 66th.

South side street paving jobs and water supply pipe installations to cost $239,908 were approved at a hearing held by the board of local improvements in the city hall recently. The list of paving projects approved included only one ushered through the hearing despite protests of property owners. Of three others to which there were objections, two were ordered abandoned and a third was deferred for another hearing.

Three paving projects approved will cost $123,500, while the two abandoned would have cost $138,000. Objections raised to a $23,500 paving job were overruled by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board, but property owners intent on stopping the improvement promised to file a petition [illegible] thirty days demanding that it be [illegible]d.

Property owners on 66th street between Parnell avenue and Halsted street told Mr. Faherty that they do not want an expensive asphalt job as the board desires, but want the street resurfaced only where it is in need of repair. Furthermore, they said, assessments for an alley paving have just been paid and another assessment cannot be borne. Mr. Faherty ordered the project approved.

Southwest Projects Approved.

Paving of 112th street between Aberdeen street and Hamlet avenue, costing $66,000, and Avers avenue between 53d and 55th streets, costing $37,000, were approved without objection.

At the request of Ald. Thomas F. Byrne [15th] and residents of Sacramento avenue between 59th and 63d streets, paving of that street at a cost of $69,000 was abandoned by the board. A petition against the project was presented, and Ald. Byrne said the street is in good condition and will last ten years more without paving. The board likewise abandoned the proposed paving of California avenue between 59th and 63d streets. This project would also have cost $69,000.

Property owners on Washtenaw avenue between 62d and 63d streets insisted that their street be widened at the time it is repaired.

Water Pipe Projects Approved.

Installation of water supply pipes on the following streets were approved without objection:

Ninety-third street between Beverly and Ashland avenues, costing $1,683.

Morgan street between 105th and 107th streets, costing $2,786.

A system including Hoyne avenue between 85th street and the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad; 85th street between Hoyne and Seeley avenues, between Damen avenue and Lincoln street, and between Honore and Wood streets; Hamilton avenue between 84th street and the railroad; and 86th street between Seeley and Damen avenues, at a cost of $6,410.

Double lines of pipes in Wabash avenue between 85th and 87th streets, and Michigan, Prairie, and Calumet avenues between 85th and 86th streets at a cost of $17,794.

Saginaw, Marquette, Manistee, Muskegon, Houston and Baltimore avenues between 128th and 130th streets; Escanaba avenue between 127th and 130th streets; Commercial avenue between the Calumet-Western railroad and 129th street; 128th street between Muskegon and Exchange avenues; 129th street between Exchange and Carondolet avenues; and Exchange avenue between 127th and 129th streets, at a cost of $42,567.

RIDGE DISTRICT OPERA LOVERS TO FORM CLUB

Will Foster Public Interest in Music.

Plans for the formation of an opera club in the Ridge district were completed at a meeting held Friday night at the Beverly Hills Country club under the auspices of the Associated Opera clubs of the metropolitan area.

According to Miss Dema Harshbarger, president of the Civic Concert Service, Inc., which is sponsoring the local groups, who addressed those gathered at the Beverly Hills Country club Friday evening, opera in the United States has always been considered a form of entertainment for only the extremely intelligent and musically educated persons. She compared the class of people who attend opera in this country with Germany, where opera is the favorite entertainment for everybody.

Plan 42 Clubs in Chicago.

Miss Harshbarger believes that good music will enrich the lives of Americans as well, if they can become interested in it and educated to enjoy it. It is for this reason that the neighborhood opera clubs are in the process of organization and she hopes that the business man, the housewife who does her own cooking, the doctors, lawyers, professors, ministers, stenographers, school teachers, and secretaries can learn to appreciate the opera as well as the leisured class who display their evening wraps and diamonds in the opera boxes.

Announcement of plans for the formation of 42 opera clubs throughout the metropolitan area of Chicago was made at a banquet held May 20 at the Stevens hotel.

Otto F. Reich Is Chairman.

Otto F. Reich, 9403 Pleasant avenue, is general chairman of the group working in the Ridge district. His assistants are Mrs. Leslie Wiswell, 10543 Seeley avenue, vice chairman; Victor Rice, 9054 Robey street, secretary chairman; Miss Edna Leasey, 10541 Hoyne avenue, publicity chairman, and Mrs. Alma Hays Reed, membership chairman.

YOU—
And Another Language

Knowing more than one language is no longer a vogue. There are many sound, sensible reasons why you should master French, Spanish, German, or Italian. Thorough mastery of a modern foreign language gives you social prestige . . . develops you culturally . . . stimulates you mentally. Foreign travel takes on new delights . . . opera enjoyment is multiplied. More and more large commercial organizations are opening up foreign departments offering remunerative positions to those knowing the foreign language. The famous Berlitz Conversational Method has made language mastery as simple as A-B-C—as fascinating as your favorite novel. All drudgery has been eliminated . . . you learn by talking and hearing the language spoken—and in a fraction of the time ordinarily required.

A WORTH WHILE JOB

Young men are wise if they choose carefully the business in which they invest their time and ambition.

Of all the great industries the automobile business is the greatest in the value of its product.

It is the industry that has made many earnest men rich, in a comparatively short time.

The open door to the important positions, with dealer or factory in the business side of the automobile industry, is through retail selling.

We provide a position for each man who successfully takes brief but thorough sales training course, both without charge.

If you want to get settled in a job where you can develop personally, through interesting contracts, where you will be outdoors part of the time and where real effort will obtain a greater income each year, apply Monday, July 1st, between 9:30 and 4.

A MAN OF Excepional Mentality

A manufacturer, rated AAA1, operating nationally, has an opening for a man of successful selling experience. Prefer one who has met and sold chief executives, although in the final analysis personality will be the determining factor.

We are not so much interested in a salesman as we are in a man with potential executive ability—one who can learn our business and then qualify to direct others. For such a man there is a brilliant future.

This is not stocks, bonds, real estate, insurance or books—nor is it posters.

Do not investigate unless you feel confident that your services are worth $8,000 per year or more.

We can use a man immediately in each of the following territories: Detroit, Cleveland, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and one in Chicago.

We will grant you a personal interview if you are able to interest us over the telephone. Phone Mr. C. C. Below on Monday for appointment, Randolph 4745, or, if you prefer, address S E 479, Tribune.

Only men who do things in an original way—leaders of the personality, stamina and character of the type of campaign men who headed the membership drives of the Medinah Country Club and the Medinah Athletic Club—need apply.

See today's Real Estate Sections for physical details.

Give a brief resume of your individual campaign or sales experience, state residence address and telephone number and your present business connection, if any, for immediate personal interview.

Special Opportunity

A financial institution which is operating under the supervision of the State Banking Department, is opening an office in the 7th Federal Reserve District, which, in addition to the city of Chicago, comprises the state of Iowa, all that part of Wisconsin in the counties of Vernon, Monroe, Jackson, Clark, Marathon, lying east and south of these counties; all of the southern peninsula of Michigan—viz.: that part east of Lake Michigan; all that part of Illinois located north of a line forming the southern boundaries of the following counties: Hancock, Schuyler, Cass, Sangamon, Shelby, Cumberland, and Clark; and all that part of Indiana north of a line forming the southern boundaries of the following counties: Vigo, Clay, Owen, Monroe, Brown, Bartholme, Jennings, Ripley, and Ohio. It wants, as its representative, a man at present living somewhere in this district; it would make no difference where his local residence may be, so long as he lives within the above described territory.

He must be over 25 years of age and under 55; what we require is a clear thinking man with experience in business; one with some training in a sales department would be preferred; a man who has owned and operated his own business, even though he failed in that, might suit our purpose; a man tired of working for somebody else, who wants his industry rewarded with a proportionate interest in the business is the type of man we are seeking; one who has had experience as life insurance solicitor or as a real estate salesman, or in any other such capacity, where experience with human nature has been gathered, would be given the most careful consideration. What we are really searching for is a man with courage and initiative, who does his own thinking, who would take our proposition and make it his proposition and assume full responsibility for the success of our business in the above described territories.

In answering, state whether or not you are married. All communications will be considered confidential.

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

FIRST RATE 2D MORTGAGE LOANS

Second mortgage loans are cut to order, so to speak, just like a suit of clothes. They may be first rate, second rate, or tenth rate.

The rate applied by the Chicago Morris Plan Bank as agent is first rate, because it is the lowest rate.

And it is the only rate which we apply to any second mortgage loan which is made by this institution.

If you do not get this distinction, just make a few inquiries as to what a second mortgage loan will cost you and see how they compare with our rate of 6% interest and commissions as follows:

3¼% for one year.
6½% for two years.
9% for three years.

A PAGE FROM THE
'Used Car Buyer's Guide'
"What to Guard Against."

Do not consider buying a car from a dealer with questionable reputation. A dealer in new cars, who must protect his reputation and cherish your confidence, will strive to give you the safest deals.

The title of the car you buy must be clear. A stolen car purchased from an irresponsible dealer could be taken from you by law and without recourse.

The bill of sale from a dependable dealer is a guarantee of the undisputed ownership of your car. It protects you against the danger of coming into possession of stolen property.

The legitimate dealer will not sell you a car whose motor or serial number have been changed or defaced. The car you buy should be guaranteed as to title and to be exactly as described and represented.

A JEWETT 6-55 BROUGHAM SEDAN, 5 passenger that will surely please you. It's in the original finish, the upholstery shows no signs of wear, and the entire car is as bright and shiny as when new. Color is a beautiful shade of green. Has trunk, bumpers, 4 wheel brakes, etc., and guaranteed. Only one person can buy it, so do not delay. $350.

GRAHAM-PAIGE 610 1928 SEDAN. If you are contemplating spending from $300 to $800 for a closed car, we believe it would be folly to invest in any car before seeing and riding in this ope. Mechanically it's as near perfect as an automobile can be; the finish is high grade and should stay like new for some time to come, and it handles as easily, goes as fast, and just as efficient on gas, oil and tires as cars costing three times as much. This is a full sized 5 passenger, and one that any family would be proud to own. It's a special for today. $675.

GRAHAM-PAIGE 619 '28 SEDAN, 5 PASS. This car should appeal strongly to the purchaser who insist upon absolute value for every dollar invested, a car that is truly economical to operate and one that presents more and better looks than any other car in its class. Car has perfect duco finish, hydraulic 4 wheel brakes, practically new tires, and everything else that goes to make up a complete car. It's reconditioned and guaranteed. Try to match its value and performance with the car you have been thinking about. Price $1,075.

PAIGE STRAIGHT 8 BARGAIN. Here's a model 885 5 passenger sedan with the 4 speed transmission that has just come into our possession. It was given the finest care imaginable: the finish, a beautiful Sand Tan, is like new; and the condition of the interior would lead you to believe the upholstery had never been sat upon. The tires are A-1, has lots of equipment, inclding Lorraine spotlight, and we will guarantee it mechanically. $775.

1928 GRAHAM-PAIGE 629 SEDAN This is a 4 door 5 passenger and a recent delivery; has side mountings, de luxe equipment, first class mechanically and backed by the Bird-Sykes guarantee; its appearance is perfect and practically identical with the latest cars. You owe it to yourself to come and investigate this particular car. It is a car that is exceptional in more ways than one and represents by far the greatest automobile value ever offered for $1,275.

GRAHAM-PAIGE 835 5 PASS. SEDAN DEMONSTRATOR. This is our straight 8 model, 135 inch wheel base, with side mounts, trunk rack, full equipment, and is offered in almost new condition mechanically and otherwise. The car has had but slight service and will exceed the expectations of the most fastidious purchaser. A remarkable saving is possible at our figure of $1,675.

GRAHAM-PAIGE 614, 5 PASS. 1928 SEDAN. This is the model with 4 speed transmission; was used but a few thousand miles. Has many extras; excellent tires and because of the thorough checking it has received carries our regular guarantee. We believe you will have to act quickly to take advantage of a value such as this. $875.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

Must Sell at Sacrifice Going Mail Order Business

on a patented specialty, together with special automatic machinery necessary to its manufacture and three patents covering the device itself. It requires only a small amount of space in which to operate, can readily be moved to any location in the United States without any loss of business and has made startling profits.

This business is now owned by a company of unquestioned reputation who started it about six years ago. It showed a profit of $68,000 the last year the present company operated it alone. The following year another larger business was taken on and efforts upon the original business were lessened. The new and larger business has required considerable more capital than expected, which has made it necessary to sell the older business immediately. Prospective buyers must be in a position to act promptly.

This business is now in operation and a going one. With the sales now being made, despite the lack of any advertising or merchandising effort for more than a year and a half, it will easily pay a profit of between $6,000 and $10,000 a year. A minimum amount of promotional effort will double this profit quickly. Everything is open to the fullest investigation.

This business will be sold at the cost price of finished goods, raw material, equipment and machinery, which is approximately $20,000, to make a quick sale. Patents are carried at $1.00. Complete operating plan will be explained and absolutely everything supplied. Not more than $2,000 or $3,000 liquid working capital required.

In replying to this advertisement give financial references to prove you are capable of financing a proposition of this size. Replies not covering this detail in full will be ignored. Principals only will be considered. Address S A 424, Tribune.

Hog receipts showed a slight increase compared with the preceding week, but the total at the eleven leading markets was smaller than any corresponding week since 1917.

Midweek prices were lowest, the market scoring a sharp "comeback" Friday, although the week's general average was held down to $10.75, against $10.85 the previous week. Shippers bought 20 per cent of receipts at Chicago, against 16 per cent the previous week and 22 per cent a year ago. A gain in the weight of hogs partly offset decreased supplies. Hogs are averaging 16 lbs. heavier than a year ago.

Poorer quality of cattle offerings during the last week helped to force the week's general average price down 50c at $14.05, despite the fact that receipts were among the smallest in many years. For the first time in several weeks prices averaged below the corresponding week in 1928, but compared with an average of $11.35 two years ago.

Prime 1,491 lb steers equaled the season's top with 1,028 lb. yearlings at $15.50. Less than 400 cattle sold at $15.35 and above, against 1,000 the previous week. Slight reductions in wholesale prices of fresh beef were partly responsible for the decline.

Sheep receipts at Chicago this week at 47,000 were smallest of the year, but failed to stop buyers from slashing quotations again. The week's general average price at $14.05 compares with $14.95 the previous week and with $16.35 a year ago, being below any corresponding week since 1924.

Natives showed the most decrease, both westerns and southern lambs being larger in numbers than a week ago. The western season to date total shows a decrease of about 50,000 compared with a year ago.

Receipts of hogs Saturday were light at 6,000 head and approximately 5,000 of them were shipped direct to packers from other points. There were around 4,000 hogs held over from Friday's market, which gave a fair amount of hogs to be traded on.

The market was mostly steady, although, due to the absence of load lots of strictly top grades, top prices failed to equal Friday's top. The best in load lots sold at $11.25, although a part load sold at $11.35. The average price for all weights and grades was $10.75 or 5c below the Friday average, this drop also being due to scarcity of top grades.

The trade was fairly active and shippers took around 2,000 of the supply, and at the finish there were only 2,000 hogs left unsold.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 17,000 cattle, 48,000 hogs and 13,000 sheep, against 17,385 cattle, 44,324 hogs and 13,570 sheep a week ago and 15,974 cattle, 47,132 hogs and 14,907 sheep for the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 35,000 cattle, 125,000 hogs and 50,000 sheep, against 36,212 cattle, 123,270 hogs and 47,588 sheep a year ago.

WOOL.

BOSTON, Mass., June 29.—(AP)—The Commercial Bulletin today states: "There has been rather more business in fine wools this week, especially of the 12 months Texas type at around 90c, clean basis. Medium wools are less active with prices barely steady. In the west buying is moderate with a tendency for growers to make consignments. In the manufacturing end of the market, worsteds have the call, although new business is not being placed in a large way. Foreign markets are generally quiet and barely firm, except that Japan paid good prices for wools in Brisbane this week.

"The rail and water shipments of wool from Boston from Jan. 1, 1929, to June 27, 1929 inclusive, were 87,133,000 pounds against 83,258,000 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from Jan. 1, 1929, to June 27, 1929 inclusive, were 141,161,985 pounds, against 164,446,200 for the same period last year." The Bulletin publishes the following quotations:

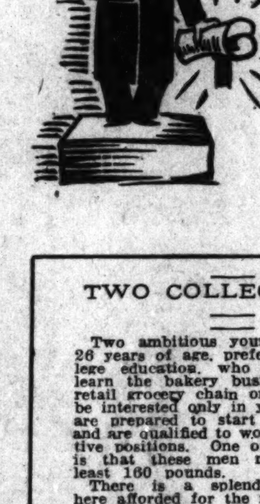
"Take a Ramble through the Want Ads"

"Look here," Dad said, from the depths of the section he always takes first from the Sunday Tribune. "Did you ever notice the way these Want Ads hook up with each other? Here's a young college man looking for a job in the Situations Wanted:



SITUATION WTD.—UNIVERSITY GRADUATE, age 26, teaching, executive experience; good knowledge of business, to work into responsible position in executive or production field. References. Address T 474, Tribune.

"Now, over on another page are half a dozen chances for him to get work. Here's one that even mentions the same age:

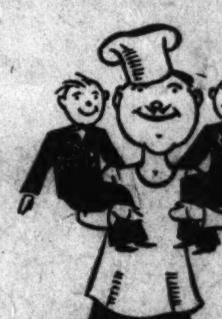
TWO COLLEGE MEN.

Two ambitious young men, 23 to 26 years of age, preferably with college education, who would like to learn the bakery business. A large retail grocery chain organization will be interested only in young men who are prepared to start at the bottom and are qualified to work up to executive positions. One of the essentials is that these men must weigh at least 160 pounds.

There is a splendid opportunity here afforded for the right men both from a financial standpoint and because they will be allowed to make a definite place for themselves in one of the most promising industries.

Write, giving details of age, education, experience, etc. Address M E 65, Tribune.

"Sure," Jim remarked from behind the rotogravure section, "but what if our friend doesn't like to get flour in his breathing apparatus? Or what if he doesn't weigh a hundred and sixty? They must be going to start those fellows out at holding down the roof!"



Dad bristled. "All right, then, if you're so critical. Maybe you'll like this better:

COLLEGE GRADUATE, ABOUT 30, WITH car, for managerial position; construction and mortgage experience preferred, but not essential. Write brief history and state salary to start. Exceptionally good opportunity. Address D A 136, Tribune.

Marie, who goes for Frederick Donaghey and Burns Mantle, and high-hats anybody who doesn't, chimed in: "He didn't say anything about having a car in the Situation Wanted, Dad."

"That's right, but why should he? All he has to do is turn to the Used Car columns and find anything from a 1492 Ford to a Hispano-Suiza, all equipped with a built-in piano and tile bath. Look at this collection of used cars. It's just like going to the Automobile Show all over again. Read the names—Mercedes, Rolls-Royce." "Yes," mother interrupted, "a young man needing a job would buy a Rolls-Royce, wouldn't he? I think he did just right. He wants a job to fit him, so he asks for it!" Dad snorted. "We didn't act that fussy in my young days. But speaking of cars, here's a real buy for somebody:
